On Fear and Freedom

"Any person who hasn't anything to fear can answer anything."—Bernard Baruch, commenting on the refusal of actors to answer Congressional inquiry into communist affiliations.

"I believe that freedom always wins the last battle."—Dr. Gainza Paz, editor of La Prensa, Buenos Aires, on the fall of President Peron.

Largest Donations Ever Made Announced by the Ford Foundation

The largest philanthropic donation ever made in the United States—and in the whole world, too—was announced Dec. 12, 1955, by the Ford Foundation in New York City. It allocated $500,000,000, to be distributed during the next 18 months to 4,157 privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals throughout the United States. This exceeded by $150,000,000 the total amount donated by the Foundation since its organization 19 years before by the family of Henry Ford. Based entirely upon the profits of the motor car industry, it was a dramatic demonstration of the contribution of private enterprise to the nation's welfare.

The Foundation announced that the sum would be given in addition to approximately $30,000,000 allocated during the year for new projects, and it represented an evolution of the determination of Henry Ford II, expressed earlier in the year, to help raise the level of salaries of faculties. An advisory committee was formed to study needs and it agreed on the following program: $210,000,000 for endowing increases in salaries of 615 private, regionally accredited, 4-year colleges and universities; $50,000,000 to 126 institutions that already have improved the salaries and status of their teachers and could use the grants either to supplement them or turn the money to other work; the rest of the college grants to give healthy support to other institutions, without trying to compare their accomplishments. A ceiling of 2% of the payroll was placed on the grant to any one institution, so that no one received more than $5,000,000.

HOSPITALS TO ENLARGE PLANTS

The aid to hospitals went to 3,500 voluntary, nonprofit institutions in the U. S. and its possessions, in grants of $10,000 to $250,000, the money to be used for all legitimate purposes except operating expenses for services. Facilities may be increased, personnel may be added, training may be extended and research conducted under these grants. Hospital boards must submit evidence of tax exemption and outline their plans for the use of the money. The Foundation also will grant $90,000,000 to privately supported medical schools as endowment to help them strengthen their instruction.

The Foundation made no discrimination between race or religion; its object was to benefit not one group or one region, but to raise the welfare of the institutions throughout the country.

CROSS-SECTION OF DONATIONS

Some of the donations were: California Institute of Technology, $1,229,900; Stanford University, $2,334,400; Yale University, $4,000,900; Hampton Institute, $420,000; University of Pennsylvania, $2,742,800; University of Pittsburgh, $1,498,200; Carnegie Institute of Technology, $1,318,400; University of Chicago, $4,324,200; Loyola University, $711,500; Tuskegee Institute, $547,800; Harvard University, $4,510,000; Northwestern University, $1,958,200; Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart, $475,200; Augustana College, $248,800; New York University, $5,000,000; Syracuse Univ., $3,177,900; Yehiva University, $203,200; Pratt Institute, $391,100; Brigham Young Univ., $1,030,100; Baylor University, $884,800; Vanderbilt University, $1,249,600.

The donations to hospitals were so widely distributed and to so many institutions that a large improvement in facilities and professional help was to be expected.

In estimating the value of the holdings of the Ford Foundation, the New York Times said:

As of Sept. 30, 1954, the Foundation's wealth had been reported at $493,213,842. But the bulk of this was a theoretical book value for Ford Motor Company stock. When the stock is put on public sale next month, the Foundation's riches are expected to mushroom to a truer value between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000.

Portland, Ore., Housewife Wins $25,000 for Baking Sweet Roll

Mrs. Henry Jorgensen, Portland, Ore., won an award of $25,000 on Dec. 13, 1955, in the finals of an annual contest conducted by the Pillsbury Mills of Minneapolis. The award was made at a luncheon in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, after the "bakeoff" in a contest in which 100 persons, including one man and 2 boys, took part. Other prizes:

Mrs. Clara E. Hughes, Orange, Va., $7,500 for a layer cake; Mrs. Nicholas Suciu, Otter Lake, Mich., $2,500 for apple dumplings; Mrs. Louis Ganssle, Glen Ridge, N. J., $1,000 for pucky star cookies. In the junior class: Karen Fokmier, 14, Battle Creek, Mich., $3,000 for pieburgers; La Vaun Jost, 15, Limestone, Okla., $2,000, for layer cake with apricot. All contestants received a range from the General Electric Co. The winning recipe:

- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup lukewarm water (or 2 packages dry yeast and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup very warm, not hot, water)
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot scalded milk
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 2 unbeaten eggs
- 4 to 4½ cups sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup orange juice
- 3 tablespoons sugar

Soften compressed yeast in lukewarm water. (Or soften dry yeast in warm water.)

Combine butter and milke in large bowl. Stir until butter melts. Cool to lukewarm. Add sugar, salt, orange rind, eggs and the yeast mixture. Gradually add the flour to form a stiff dough. Mix thoroughly. Cover. Let stand 30 minutes.

Roll out to a 22 by 12-inch rectangle on floured board. Spread half of dough along 22-inch side with nut filling. Fold uncovered dough over filling. Cut into 1-inch strips (crosswise). Twist each strip 4 or 5 times. Hold one end down on baking sheet, curl around in a spiral, tucking end underneath. Cover with waxed paper or towel. Let rise in warm place (85° to 90° F.) until doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.*

Bake at 375° F. for 15 minutes until light golden brown. Meanwhile prepare glaze of orange juice and sugar. Brush tops of rolls and bake 5 minutes longer until deep golden brown. Remove from baking sheet immediately. Makes 1½ to 2 dozen rolls.

*For warm place, set pan of boiling water in bottom of cold oven. Place rolls on rack above; close oven door. Remove 15 minutes before baking to preheat oven.

Nut Filling

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 cup ($\frac{1}{4}$ -lb.) filberts, ground or chopped very fine—(other nuts may be substituted.)

Cream butter. Blend in sugar thoroughly. Add nuts.

United Nations Admits 16 New Members in Compromise

For earlier reports see Chronology: United Nations

After weeks of maneuvering, the General Assembly of the United Nations on Dec. 14, 1955, voted to admit 16 nations as new members. The vote was effected after a plan to admit 18 nations was wrecked by 13 vetoes cast by the Soviet Union and one by Nationalist China. In the compromise Outer Mongolia, which China and the United States considered a puppet of the Soviet Union, and Albania were omitted. The 16 admitted were:

- Albania
- Austria
- Bulgaria
- Cambodia
- Ceylon
- Finland
- Hungary
- Ireland
- Italy
- Jordan
- Laos
- Libya
- Nepal
- Portugal
- Rumania
- Spain

This gave the Communist bloc four new nations—Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania, and increased its votes to 9. The United States abstained from voting on the four satellites. It attempted to have Japan added after Outer Mongolia was dropped, but the Soviet Union turned this down. The Soviet delegate, Sobolev, in proposing a vote on the 16, indicated that in 1956, indicating a Soviet plan to be considered against the other. It was also believed the Soviet Union expects in 1956, to get Communist China into the U. N.

Immediate seating of the new delegates on Dec. 16 was arranged.

When Nationalist China vetoed Outer Mongolia on Dec. 13, the Chinese delegate, Dr. T. F. Tsiang said the issue was simply, whether the frontiers of freedom were to be extended, or whether the world was to be engulfed behind the iron curtain.

NATIONAL CONVENTION AND ELECTION DATA FOR 1956

The campaign of 1956 will open with the formal nominations for President and Vice President by the Republican and Democratic National Conventions, and the nominations for Senator, Governor and other state officials by state conventions. Election day: Nov. 6, 1956.

REPUBLICAN

Republican National Convention was scheduled to open Aug. 20, 1956, at the Cow Palace in San Francisco, Calif. Delegates: 1,323 maximum, alternates same. Votes needed to nominate candidates: A simple majority—651 or more.

As of December, 1955, candidates mentioned for the nomination of President were Dwight D. Eisenhower, if his health permits him to run; otherwise Sen. Wm. F. Knowland (Calif.), Vice President Richard M. Nixon (Calif.), Chief Justice Earl Warren (Calif.), Gov. Goodwin P. Knight (Calif.), Gov. Christian Herter (Mass.), George Humphrey. Candidate for Vice President, if Mr. Eisenhower ran, was expected to be incumbent, Richard M. Nixon.

At the Chicago convention, 1952, the delegates numbered 1,206; alternates same. Dwight D. Eisenhower received 845 votes, Robt. A. Taft 280, Earl Warren 77, on final ballot.

DEMOCRATIC

Democratic National Convention was scheduled to open Aug. 13, 1955, in Chicago. If all states take advantage of their maximum quotas, there will be 2,744 delegates, 1,896 alternates. Votes to be cast will be 1,372, with 687 needed to nominate.

As of December, 1955, Adlai Ewing Stevenson (Ill.) had announced his candidacy for President. Gov. Averell Harriman (N. Y.), Sen. Estes Kefauver (Tenn.), Gov. Frank J. Lausche (Ohio) and Gov. G. Mennen Williams (Mich.) also had backers. Mayor Robt. F. Wagner of New York City had been endorsed in New York for Vice President.

At the Chicago convention, 1952, there were 1,576 delegates. Out of 1,230 votes to nominate a Presidential candidate, Gov. Adlai Ewing Stevenson of Illinois received 617½ (revised figure); Sen. Estes Kefauver (Tenn.), 279½; Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.), 261; Vice President Alben W. Barkley (Ky.), 67½.

Delegates are chosen in primary elections, district or state conventions, and party state committees. In many states, state laws require use of one or more of these three methods. Otherwise, state party rule or custom prevails.

Although Americans go to the polls to vote for President and Vice President, their votes are technically cast for a group of electors, who automatically cast the vote for the executives. Consult Constitution of the United States, Art. II, and Amendment, Art. XII, pages 616 and 618.

For officers and members of the National Committees of the Republican and Democratic parties see pages 51-52. For other political committees, see page 52.

The World Almanac

and Book of Facts for 1956

The 180th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, 1776, falls on July 4, 1956. The 169th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States, 1787, falls on September 17, 1956. The Government declared the Constitution in effect March 4, 1789.

The WORLD ALMANAC first appeared 88 years ago, in 1868, as a booklet published by the New York World, and giving political and economic information. Annual publication was discontinued in 1876. In 1886 Joseph Pulitzer revived the WORLD ALMANAC as a comprehensive record of American and foreign activities. It has been published annually since, and in 1956 enters its 71st year. In 1931 it was acquired by Scripps-Howard, and until 1951 bore the imprint of the New York World-Telegram. It is now published by the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

After the Continental Congress had ratified the Treaty of Peace with Great Britain in 1784, Benjamin Franklin, patriot, statesman, and one-time editor of Poor Richard's Almanac, wrote to a friend: "Let us beware of being lulled into a dangerous security, and of being both enervated and impoverished by luxury; of being weakened by internal contentions and divisions; of being shamefully extravagant in contracting private debts, while we are backward in discharging honorably those of the public; of neglect in military exercises and discipline, and in providing stores of arms and munitions of war, to be ready on occasion—for all these are circumstances that give confidence to enemies, and diffidence to friends, and the expenses required to prevent a war are much lighter than those that will, if not prevented, be absolutely necessary to maintain it."

 The Editor acknowledges with thanks the many letters, whether of helpful comment or criticism, that attest the usefulness of the WORLD ALMANAC, and invites suggestions for improvement of its services to readers. Address: 125 Barclay St., New York 15, N. Y.

The WORLD ALMANAC does not decide wagers.

MAJOR EVENTS OF 1955

- 1 The New Look of the Soviet Union, with which the leaders conciliated Marshal Tito, agreed to a Treaty of Peace with Austria, opened relations with the Federal Republic of Germany, and extended arms and loans to other foreign nations, without changing objectives.
- 2 The Summit Conference at Geneva, and its complement, the Conference of Foreign Ministers, at which the Western Powers demonstrated their will to peace, and the Soviet Union rejected every project that threatened the hold of communism.
- 3 Threat of war in the Near East, by the border clashes of Israel and Egypt, the dispute over territory, the delivery of arms to Egypt by the Soviet Union, and the covert penetration of the Near East by the Soviet Union, disturbing the balance of forces.
- 4 Restoration of the Republic of Austria by the Big Four in a treaty guaranteeing neutrality, and the resulting withdrawal of all occupation troops.
- 5 Asian-African Conference at Bandung, where delegates from 29 countries condemned colonialism, demanded self-determination, independence and membership in the U.N., and individual nations repudiated the neutralism of India.
- 6 Formal entry into NATO of Federal Republic of Germany as sovereign nation, starting program of armament.
- 7 Atoms-for-Peace program of the United States, which called the scientists of the world to Atom Conference at Geneva, and signed agreements giving atomic information to other nations.
- 8 President Eisenhower's heart ailment, which, by threatening his retirement at term's end, affected U. S. influence abroad and politics and business confidence at home.
- 9 The overthrow of President Peron in Argentina and the prospect for the return of normal, democratic government, protecting the fundamental liberties.
- 10 The general prosperity of the United States, with unemployment at its lowest figure, labor earning its highest wages, industries prospering and Government revenues increasing.

YEAR OF NEGOTIATIONS WITH SOVIET UNION

Kremlin Rejects Revision of Status Quo, Expands Influence in Near East

International relations underwent a marked change in 1955 after the Soviet Union, under the leadership of Nikita S. Khrushchev and Nicolai Bulganin, adopted what the West called the New Look.

The masters of the Kremlin dropped the uncooperative attitude of Stalin and began to cultivate closer relations with foreign powers. But by the end of 1955 the basic aims of the Soviet Union were unchanged. The world situation, however, had turned to the disadvantage of the West, as the Soviet Union began penetration of the Near East.

Major moves of the Soviet Union were: apology by the masters of the Kremlin, in person, to Marshall Tito and Yugoslavia for the Stalin period of antagonism and abuse; conclusion of a treaty of peace with Austria and withdrawal of occupation troops; diplomatic recognition of the Federal Republic of Germany (West); return of Porkkala to Finland; recognition of "sovereignty" of East German Democratic Republic; exchange of visits with heads of states, including India; barter agreement with Egypt for delivery of arms; conferences with heads of the Powers and their foreign ministers at Geneva, to discuss means of relieving world tension and encouraging peaceful relations.

American observers believed that the Soviet Union realized that war with lethal nuclear weapons would mean common destruction. The United States also believed that the new attitude was forced by the growing strength of Germany and the decision of the West to rearm and support Germany. As months went by it became evident that the Soviet Union was proceeding from a position of strength; that it was ready to compete with the Western Powers by offering goods and loans to underwrite developments in countries it meant to influence, and that it planned to split West Germany from the western alliance without yielding anything in East Germany.

NEW SOVIET REGIME

Changes in Soviet internal administration were visible soon after Stalin's death when Georgi Malenkov, premier (ch., Council of Ministers), advocated greater improvement in agriculture and in production of consumer goods, commended coexistence and became accessible to western diplomats. When he and his associates, Nicolai Bulganin, defense minister, Nikita S. Khrushchev, party secretary and Gorgi K. Zhukov, deputy defense minister, were able to destroy Laventri P. Beria, minister of state security, in 1954, and break the hold of Beria's police organization, it was evident the army dominated.

Khrushchev, in January, 1955, openly condemned the losses in agriculture and called the turn to consumer goods "rightest deviation." On Feb. 8 Malenkov presented his resignation to the Supreme Soviet, citing inexperience in internal affairs and "guilt and responsibility" for the state of agriculture.

BULGANIN BECOMES PREMIER

Khrushchev announced the appointment of Bulganin, "worthy pupil of the great Lenin," as premier. Bulganin appointed Zhukov defense minister and Malenkov deputy premier and minister of electric power. Speeches by Bulganin and Molotov, foreign minister, contained the usual assertions that western nations were thirsting for war and "rattling the atom bomb," and included bitter condemnation of German rearmament.

TENSION IN FAR EAST

In the U. S., the situation remained tense. In the Far East the Tachens had been evacuated, the 7th U. S. fleet had been reinforced. Communist planes on Yikiang Isl. shot down an American plane, but Washington minimized the significance. The Senate ratified the defense treaty with Nationalist China, agreeing that in the event of attack "each party . . . would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes." This was construed in some quarters as implying defense of Formosa and the Pescadores. As the Chinese Communists continued their abuse of the United States, some senators urged stern measures, but the temper of the nation was against further Far East operations.

ATTEMPTS TO NEGOTIATE

In January Dag Hammarskjöld General Secretary of the U.N., went to China and made a direct appeal to Chou En-lai for the release of military and civilian prisoners. His efforts, and those of Krishna Menon, Indian delegate to the U.N., promised a relaxation of tension. First evidence came in a public statement by Chou En-lai, at the Bandung Conference in April, that he was willing to negotiate with the United States. It became obvious that Communist China had consulted the Soviet Union. However, the Communists in North Korea continued to fortify and expand their position contrary to agreement and members of the Neutral Commission abused privileges by spying in South Korea. Eventually the U. S. and Communist China began negotiations by ambassadors in Geneva.

MEETING AT SUMMIT

When the Soviet Union reversed its stand on a peace treaty for Austria, after 10 years of stalling, the West decided on a conference of the heads of states. A meeting of the Big Four "at the summit" had been proposed by Sir Winston Churchill May 11, 1953. On May 10, 1955, the U. S., Great Britain and France sent identical notes to the Soviet Union, proposing a meeting "to remove the source of conflict between us." The Soviet Union accepted May 14. Preliminaries were left to the foreign ministers. The Summit Conference was held at the Palace of Nations in Geneva July 18-23, 1955.

The Summit Conference was conducted in a spirit of cordiality. Coincident with it the Soviet Union adopted a milder tone in its publications at home. The West considered it necessary to assure the Russians that Western alliances were defensive and there was no threat of aggression against the Soviet Union. The West also made a determined effort to consider German unification and European security as facets of a single issue. The Soviet Union rejected this connection but agreed grudgingly that they might be discussed together when foreign ministers met in Geneva Oct. 27.

The Summit Conference prepared a directive for the meeting of the foreign ministers, who were to explore these topics: Unification of Germany and Security; Disarmament; Improvement in East-West Economic and Cultural Relations.

Top negotiations were conducted by President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Anthony Eden (Br.), Premier Edgar Faure (Fr.) and Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin (USSR). Present also were Khrushchev and Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov. Subjects for the meeting of foreign ministers were discussed by John Foster Dulles (U. S.), Harold Macmillan (G. B.), Antoine Pinay (Fr.) and V. M. Molotov (USSR).

PRESIDENT WINS FRIENDS

The cordiality and openness of President Eisenhower at Geneva created a most friendly atmosphere. The readiness of the Russians to be genial rather than surly helped. President Eisenhower said the conference would not expect to solve the problems of the world in a few hours or days, but might create a new spirit and take the first step on a new road to "a just and durable peace." He said the problems dividing East and West were not inherently insoluble, nor was it necessary that people should think alike. He said: "It is time that all curtains, whether of guns or laws or regulations, should begin to come down."

The President said international communism had disturbed relations between nations and the Soviet Union for 38 years; the distrust could not be ignored. But he reiterated that the American people wished to be friends with the Russian people. He stressed the great loss that had come to humanity by the need for armament, which had deprived our people of higher living standards and the people of underdeveloped areas of ability to use their resources. The world needed to "substitute cooperation in human welfare for competition in the means of destruction."

Premier Bulganin said: "We are glad to hear President Eisenhower's statement, namely, the American people want to be friends with the Soviet peoples. There are no natural differences between our peoples or our nations."

On the second day at Geneva, when the intentions of NATO were being questioned by the Soviet, President Eisenhower turned to Bulganin and Zhukov and said: "The United States will never take part in an aggressive war." Bulganin replied: "We believe the statement."

RUSSIAN EXPERTS TOUR U. S.

At this time the new policy of the Soviet Union of opening its borders to a limited number of visitors bore fruit. Members of Congress and journalists toured Russia, and even writers who had written critically of the Soviet Union were enabled to enter the country, interview citizens and take photographs. In return groups of Soviet experts in agriculture and housing toured the United States, a spectacular welcome being given by conservative Iowa farmers to the Soviet farm group, which later encountered hostility in Canada.

Important changes took place between the close of the Summit Conference, July 23 and the opening of the Foreign Ministers' Conference Oct. 27.

Proposals for disarmament had disclosed difficulties in means of inspection. Atomic scientists had exchanged views at the atoms-for-peace meeting in Geneva, in which the Soviet scientists participated. The Soviet Union had given East Germany control over traffic between Berlin and the West and after protests from the West announced this affected only traffic from West Germany; the Soviet Union would control traffic from the Allies. The Soviet had announced a reduction of armed forces. Moscow and Bonn had opened diplomatic relations and the Soviet had agreed to release German prisoners. The Soviet had returned Porkkala base to Finland.

Most important of all was the disclosure that the Soviet Union had allocated arms from Czech munitions plants as well as airplanes to Egypt by barter; this was followed by reports of Soviet readiness to sell arms to other Arab nations. This upset the balance of power in the East, threatened the security of Israel, disclosed new Soviet expansion and faced the Anglo-American bloc with a strong military rival in the Near East at the moment when France was in difficulties with Morocco.

FOREIGN MINISTERS' CONFERENCE

Thus the Conference of the Foreign Ministers opened in an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust. The Western Powers maneuvered to get agreement on opening moves toward solution of larger issues; the Soviet Union, through its master of obfuscation, Molotov, held out for the major concessions and rejected the preliminaries. The West wanted free elections to unify Germany; the Soviet wanted its puppet, the "republic" of East Germany to treat with West Germany and called the military alliance of West Germany an insuperable barrier.

On the position of Germany as an independent sovereign nation choosing its own alliances Molotov said: "The resurgence of German militarism cannot be accepted either at once or by stages." In the settlement of the German problem Molotov contended it should not be done at the expense "of the social achievements of the workers of the German Democratic Republic" (East) meaning communism.

The Soviet Union expressed some tolerance for the Eisenhower plan of aerial inspection and the Bulganin plan for bases of inspection inside countries. It demanded an immediate end to nuclear tests and a pledge not to use nuclear weapons, which would handicap the West without any proof that the Soviet Union would not repudiate its pledges.

THE SPIRIT OF GENEVA

Secy. of State Dulles, in a public statement on Nov. 18 said: "The Soviet Union, while eager to get a treaty of European security, said they would not be willing to sacrifice their East German regime to get it. And despite their explicit agreement at the Summit Conference that Germany should be reunited by free elections they made clear that they would keep Germany divided in order to maintain that regime. Some had thought the Soviet Union might be willing to allow Germany to be reunified if reunified Germany would not enter NATO. But the Soviet Union made it abundantly clear that it would not permit Germany to be reunified by free elections even on such terms."

Secy. Dulles declared the "spirit of Geneva," of seeking a peaceful solution to differences, was not ended. But the cold war—"in the sense of peaceful competition"—would go on. "We must assume that the Soviet Union will continue its efforts short of war to make its system prevail, as it has done in the past. We can, however, hope that this competition will not entail the same hostility and animosity that so defiled the relations between us." On Dec. 15 Secy Dulles told the North Atlantic Council of NATO: "The Soviet Union has started a new cold war in the Middle East and Asia."

MAJOR ISSUES DEBATED AT TWO GENEVA CONFERENCES

Summit Meeting July 18-23, 1955; Foreign Ministers Oct. 27-Nov. 16, 1955

GERMAN UNIFICATION AND EUROPEAN SECURITY

Western Powers—Proposed a united Germany, its government chosen by supervised free elections, having sovereign power to choose its alliances, according to the Eden Plan of 1954. Assured Soviet Union that membership in NATO and Western European Union contributed to security of all states and did not threaten Soviet. Offered Treaty of Assurance and system of control, to cover following subjects: (1) Renunciation of use of force; (2) Withholding support from aggressors and invoking measures through U.N.; (3) limiting forces and armaments and having special rules for zones near lines of demarkation; (4) inspection and control; (5) special radar warning system, operated in eastern part of zone by NATO members, in western part by Soviet Union and other eastern members of treaty; (6) consultation; (7) No interference with individual and collective self-defense recognized by U.N. and treaties under it; (8) obligation of all to act against any aggressor.

Reunification by free elections, guaranteed by freedom of movement throughout Germany, immunity of candidates, freedom from arbitrary arrest or victimization, free association and political meetings, freedom of expression for all and of press, radio, tv, and free circulation of newspapers. A secret vote and security of polling places and ballot boxes. Supervision by a commission of the Four Powers, with Germans consulted. The all-German elections to establish an all-German national assembly, which will draft constitution for a government, which when formed will conclude a peace treaty. The all-German government to take over all functions of East and West Germany and to assume or reject their obligations.

"Existence of several regional security systems does not in any way constitute a danger of aggression"—Pinay (Fr.)

"Without reunification there can be no solid peace in Europe"—Dulles (U. S.)

"A divided Germany creates a basic source of instability in Europe"—President Eisenhower.

Soviet Union—Announced that treaty guaranteeing collective European security must precede unification. East and West Germany must be consulted and may be parties to treaty until formation of German state. Treaty proposed is revision of proposal of 1954, to be made by all 26 European states "irrespective of their social systems." Original proposal had U. S. as observer; new project included U. S. as member. Was to operate in two stages: First, states would agree not to use armed force to settle disputes, would not increase foreign troops pending agreement on disarmament, would not use nuclear weapons. When in full force nations would terminate NATO, Paris Agreements, Warsaw Treaty, remove all foreign troops from territory of European states.

The question of holding all-German elections "has not yet ripened" (Molotov). A "mechanical merger by means of so-called free elections" in presence of foreign troops could infringe on rights of working masses of German Democratic Republic (East). Proposed all-German council to coordinate actions of the two German republics affecting all-German economic and cultural life, also trade. Unification can be solved gradually step by step by rapprochement of the two republics, but membership of West Germany in NATO and "remilitarization" is bar to elections. "Germany should be unified by free elections."

Ready to "extend neutrality guarantees, as with Austria"—Bulganin (USSR)

DISARMAMENT

Western Powers—To help create an atmosphere free of fear and suspicion and a prelude to general disarmament, the Powers proposed: the states should agree to put into early operation to help prevent surprise attack a plan for exchange of military blue-prints and aerial inspection "from beginning to end" (Eisenhower). States also should agree to arrange for exchange and publication of information on military expenditures and budgets (Faure) and study how to gain practical experience regarding problems of inspection and control.

Eden (Br.) proposed that inspection start in a demilitarized zone and extend to other nations. Pinay (Fr.) proposed resources freed by disarmament be used to improve welfare, at home and abroad. Faure (Fr.) stressed financial and budgetary global control in an international organization to supervise arms expenditures and allocation of energies thus liberated, with quota for arms and fines for violations.

"We want reduction that can be checked and controlled. Primary task is to find means of supervision and control. . . . The Soviet Union does not accept President Eisenhower's suggestion as an initial step, but it does accept his concept of aerial inspection as a possible subsequent step."

"We are not disarming because we have learned the hard way that one-sided weakness does not promote peace. We will remain strong unless and until the Soviet Union by its actions helps restore confidence and joins in measures that make it sound and wise to reduce our armaments."—Dulles, (U. S.)

"My government considers that the present Soviet suggestions for inspection and control are not adequate even for supervising reductions in the conventional field, let alone the crucial nuclear field."—Eden (Br.)

Soviet Union—Proposed armed forces of U. S., Soviet Union and China be limited at from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men each, Britain and France at 650,000 each. The People's Republic of China (Communist China) to participate in discussions affecting China. Other states not to exceed 150,000 to 200,000 men. When 75% of the agreed reductions of troops and arms have been made, there shall be complete prohibition of nuclear weapons. Before that happens the Powers shall pledge themselves not to use nuclear weapons unless in defense against aggression, as decided by the Security Council, U.N. The states pledge themselves to discontinue tests of atomic weapons. International control shall be established over the implementation of measures for the reduction of armament and prohibition of nuclear weapons. Pending the conclusion of an international convention, each of the Four Powers agrees not to be the first to use nuclear weapons against any country. Bulganin, in considering Eisenhower blue-print plan, suggested control posts at key points, such as ports.

BETTER EAST-WEST INTERCOURSE

Western Powers—Asked the Soviet Union to agree to bilateral negotiations to establish direct air links under normal bilateral transport agreements; alleviate difficulties encountered by western businessmen inside the Soviet Union; accord more adequate protection to western industrial property rights and copyrights; recognize the right of priority to new patents and make Soviet patents data available; make available production, marketing, price and trade data. Also eliminate obstacles to free communication of ideas and information, especially in books, press, radio; give better treatment to journalists; remove restrictions on free movement of persons, on liberty of travel, and the artificial rate of exchange of currency. Increase cultural exchanges of films, expositions, books, periodicals, newspapers, official publications, radio programs, scientific information and contacts. The West suggested establishment of reading rooms in the respective capitals.

"Unless the Soviet Union takes concrete steps to open its market, unilateral willingness to trade on the part of the western countries cannot convert itself into two-way trade. . . . The Soviet representatives confined their approach to an openly political attack upon the western system of security controls over the exportation of a relatively small range of strategic commodities. The only restrictions which exist are those on strategic goods related to war purposes."—Dulles (U. S.)

Soviet Union—Cited directive of heads of government: "The foreign ministers should by means of experts study measures, including those possible in organs and agencies of the United Nations, which could (a) bring about a progressive elimination of barriers which interfere with free communications and peaceful trade between peoples and (b) bring about such freer contacts and exchanges as are to the mutual advantage of the countries and peoples concerned."

As interpreted by Molotov: "Discrimination is practiced in trade with the Soviet Union, especially by the United States; without elimination of these barriers trade cannot normally develop. . . . Strategic trade is not mentioned at all in the directive. . . . A number of proposals constitute attempts to interfere in the internal affairs of individual states. . . . Allegations that the leaders of the Soviet Union tried to isolate their people from contacts with the outside world are absolutely groundless. . . . The Soviet Union will not grant such 'freedom of the exchange of ideals' as would mean freedom of propaganda for war. . . . We cannot agree to such a 'freedom' as would lead to the unleashing of subversive activities of all kinds of scum of society thrown out by the peoples of the countries of socialism and people's democracy. . . . Radio stations, disguised under a false name, Free Europe and so forth, serve not the cause of freedom but the ends of arch reactionaries, the instigation of hatred among nations, to the undermining of peace and the preparation of a new war."

Prosperity of Nation Reflected in Steel, Motor Car Earnings

Prosperity spread its benefits over the American people as never before in 1955. Industrial production was greater, employment was better, income rose higher than in any previous year. Wages were raised in many places, with many extras. There was less unemployment, and there were fewer strikes than in 1954.

There were a few drawbacks to moderate enthusiasm. The United States Government received a larger take than ever of the national income, but was unable to balance its budget. More motor cars than ever were produced, but borrowings rose to such a point that the Treasury Dept. was compelled to put on the brakes in the form of higher discount rates. Farmers produced more and complained of a falling market. Steel furnaces operated night and day, but there was not enough steel to supply the demand. Thousands of new houses were built, but their costs mounted, and so did prices. And everybody, nearly everybody, paid a bit more in an era of abundance.

Steel ingot production in 1955 was expected to reach or even surpass 115,000,000 tons, 3,000,000 tons more than in the previous record year, 1953. Unprecedented requirements of the automobile industry, which takes almost 23% of all steel shipped, and of residential and nonresidential construction, which receives about 14%, are the main causes of the upsurge in demand.

United States Steel

United States Steel exceeded all its records for steel products and earnings in the second quarter of 1955. On July 26 it reported income of $105,225,558, a return of 9.6% on sales for the quarter. This was the highest ever reported for any quarter and equivalent to $1.85 per share of common stock. Income for the first 6 mos. of 1955 reached $177,877,960, a return of 9.1% on sales, highest for any 6 mos. since the Corp. started in 1901. Sales for the second quarter were $1,094,833,924 and 7,056,140 net tons were shipped in the 3 mos. ending June 30, 1,277,944 net tons higher than shipments in the first quarter. For the first 6 mos., 1955, shipments reached 12,834,336 net tons.

Net current assets June 30, after deducting current dividend declarations of $33,019,691 and $217,000,000 set aside for payment of property expenditures, were $683,034,301, compared with $379,603,795 June 30, 1954. The increase reflects the sale of $300,000,000 of serial debentures in August, 1954.

Following in the wake of the 7½% increase in steel wages, U. S. Steel announced an increase of about 5.8% in its steel prices, less than three-eighths of 1c per lb.

The average number of employees in the second quarter of 1955 was 273,562; in 1954 the average number of employees in the second quarter was 269,375. Employment costs during the second quarter totaled $402,629,099, compared with $337,466,937 for the same period of 1954.

Ford Motor Co.

One of the extraordinary events of the year was the decision of the Ford family, owners of the Ford Motor Co., to dispose of 60% of the voting stock of the corporation to the public, retaining only 40%. The stock to be offered is in the hands of the Ford Foundation, the philanthropic trust set up by the family. Ford Motor Co., since its organization by Henry Ford in 1903, has been entirely a family holding. The Ford Foundation holds 3,090,000 non-voting shares or 90% of the 3,453,000 shares outstanding, representing a value of more than $2 billion. The original outlay was $28,000 and most of those who joined Ford became millionaires.

Ford Motor Co. filed its annual statement of condition in 1954 with the Massachusetts State Tax Commission in 1955, showing assets of $2,089,820,000, up $194,786,000 from the year before. Cash, securities and receivables were $521,918,000. Earnings retained for use in the business were $1,065,584,000 or an increase of $144,250,000 over 1953. Liabilities were listed at $483,557,000.

The net income of the 3 major automobile manufacturers, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler Corp., was estimated at over $13 billion, of which General Motors had 52% of unit sales, Ford 27% and Chrysler 17%.

Bell Telephone System

The Bell System—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and its subsidiaries—reported operating revenues of $5,123,603,591 for 12 months ended Aug. 31, 1955, as against $4,641,531,536 for the year earlier. Net income was $644,002,284, equal to $12.68 a share, as against $539,083,816 or $11.84 a share for the year earlier. A. T. & T. alone had operating revenues of $377,110,000 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1955, compared with $326,081,942, while net income was $528,050,000 or $10.62 a share, compared with $466,062,582 or $10.41 a share a year earlier.

Expansion Plans for 1956

Ford announced that it would spend $500,000,000 for expansion in 1956. Chrysler Corp. said it would spend $1 billion in the next 5 years. Standard Oil of New Jersey announced an expansion program costing $1,200,000,000. Kaiser Aluminum announced new projects to cost $280,000,000. U. S. Steel Corp. planned to spend $467,000,000 to complete additions and replacements. A survey by McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. indicated that American industry would spend $33,361,000,000 for expansion and modernization in 1956.

PERON DEPOSED BY ARGENTINE REVOLT

Army and Navy Leaders Break Power of Confederation of Labor

South America in 1955 witnessed far-reaching political and economic changes, of which the overthrow of President Juan Domingo Peron, dictator of Argentina, had the greatest meaning for democracy. The revolt was begun June 16 by Naval and Marine Corps units and temporarily suppressed, but with the support of leaders of the Army the rebels gained headway and forced Peron out Sept. 19.

The provisional govt. of Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi was displaced Nov. 14 by that of Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu.

The revolt brought injury and death to several hundred persons in Buenos Aires on June 16. Airplanes from the aviation base of the Navy at Punto de Indio dropped 12 bombs in 2 attacks on Casa Rosado, government hq., and on Plaza de Mayo, when the latter was filled with Peronist supporters from the General Confederation of Labor (CGT). Naval and Marine Corps units tried to seize government offices but were overcome by the Army, which remained loyal. Gen. Franklin Lucero, minister of the Army, former Argentine delegate to U.N., became "commander-in-chief of the forces of repression" and administered martial law.

The Army arrested Rear Adm. Samuel Toranzo Calderon as chief plotter; also Rear Adm. A. O. Oliveri. Radio appeals for action against "the second tyrant" failed. In retaliation CGT announced a 24-hour strike as an act of mourning. Mobs set 7 churches on fire, acts imputed to Communists by Peron, but blamed on Peronists by prelates.

The revolt broke out after President Peron on June 14 expelled by airplane Msgr. Manuel Tato, auxiliary bishop and vicar general of Buenos Aires, and Msgr. Ramon Novoa, canon. The prelates went from Rio de Janeiro to Rome and the Vatican announced excommunication of all who had taken part in the expulsion, without designating names. Police occupied the archiepiscopal palace and hq. of Catholic Action.

President Peron's campaign to disestablish the Roman Catholic church and abolish religious instruction came to a head Nov. 10, 1954, when he broadcast the names of churchmen who, he said, were interfering in politics. When a riot followed in Cordoba, the government removed Catholics from office there. Between December, 1954, and May, 1955, the government abolished the dept. of religious instruction of the Ministry of Education, suspended El Pueblo, a Catholic daily newspaper, withdrew subsidies from 80 Catholic schools, removed nuns from welfare institutions and arrested priests and leaders of Catholic Action, releasing them later.

ACT TO CUT OFF CHURCH

An act to separate church and state was introduced in Congress May 5 in a measure calling a constituent assembly within 180 days to amend the constitution to that effect. The Chamber of Deputies approved 121-12, and the Senate unanimously, May 20. It was also proposed to tax all religious institutions retroactively to Jan. 1, 1955.

Anti-Peron demonstrations by Catholics followed. Catholic professors were dismissed from Univ. of La Plata. Mass demonstrations were forbidden, but on the feast of Corpus Christi, June 11, 100,000 Catholics gathered at the National Cathedral in Buenos Aires and later hoisted the Papal flag in the garden of Congress. Peron supporters retaliated by attacks on churches.

President Peron offered Aug. 31 to resign to promote peace, but withdrew the offer when members of the CGT demonstrated in his favor. On Sept. 6 he signed an act postponing the projected constitutional assembly, which was to disestablish the Roman Catholic church. At this time it became plain that the revolt was by no means crushed, but was gathering support in the provinces.

NAVY THREATENS CAPITAL

Civil war broke out again Sept. 16 when Peron's power was challenged in many places. Brig. Gen. Felix Videla Belaguer obtained control of Cordoba. Peron placed Gen. Franklin Lucero, Minister of the Army, in charge of crushing the rebels. During this time Mar Del Plata was shelled by ships of the Navy. Two destroyers, the Cervantes and Rioja, were bombed by Peronist airplanes and suffered casualties. The rebels then moved ships of the Navy outside Buenos Aires and threatened to bombard the city if Peron did not surrender.

A military junta agreed to the unconditional surrender of the government. Peron was ousted Sept. 19 and took refuge on a Paraguayan gunboat. Major General Eduardo Lonardi became provisional president Sept. 23, dissolved congress and promised free elections.

Peron went via gunboat to Paraguay, which offered to intern him in the interior. On Nov. 2 Peron left by plane for Nicaragua, where he took up residence.

In a broadcast Oct. 26 President Lonardi reported the result of an economic study of the nation by a commission headed by Dr. Raul Prebisch, sec. gen. of the U.N. Economic Commission for South America. He said the national debt was over $5 billion, whereas at the end of the World War the reserve was $1,680,000,000. Money in circulation 10 years ago was 7,800,000,000 pesos, whereas now it was 54,800,000,000. Oil imports 10 years ago took one-tenth of the available foreign exchange, whereas now it took one-fifth. There was a power and transportation shortage.

ARAMBURU OUSTS LONARDI

Maj. Gen. Lonardi's administration was toppled Nov. 13 by a new military junta, which accused him of leaning toward fascism. In a victory of "democratic elements over totalitarianism" the new junta chose Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu provisional president. When the CGT and Peronists called a general strike Aramburu arrested the labor leaders, seized their hq.; also arrested "clerical nationalists." Workers returned to work and leaders called off the strike. Gen. Aramburu endorsed civil liberties, dissolved the Peronist party and restored the newspaper, La Prensa, to its owner, Dr. A. Gainza Paz.

Juan Domingo Peron, b. Oct. 8, 1895, was a member of the army group that deposed President Ramon Castillo in 1943. He gained support of "los descamisados" (the shirtless) and workers Feb. 24, 1946, defeating a reform coalition. He introduced economic controls, curtailed freedom labor special advantages, cultivated intensive nationalism. His wife, Eva Duarte de Peron (1919-1952), a strong political personality, was credited with initiating compulsory religious instruction. By order the name of the city of La Plata was changed to Eva Peron. The Revolution erased her name from public buildings and streets and the name La Plata is again in general use. During the last years of his regime Peron took over La Prensa, the great liberal newspaper of Buenos Aires and turned over its operation to the CTG.

Albert Einstein, Greatest Modern Mind in Theoretical Physics

Albert Einstein, often called the greatest scientist of modern times, died Apr. 18, 1955, at Princeton, N. J., aged 76. He won fame in the field of theoretical physics with a group of discoveries that changed the course of the world's scientific thinking. His major contribution was the theory of relativity, which modified the gravitational theories of Isaac Newton, and his statement of "the world's most famous mathematical equation," which showed how mass could be converted into energy, which led to atomic fission.

Einstein was born Mar. 14, 1879, in Ulm, Wuerttemberg, Germany, and passed his boyhood in Munich, where his father had an electro-technical works. He was 15 when the family moved to Switzerland in 1894. He taught at Zurich and Prague and became a Swiss citizen. He also acted as examiner of patents in the Patent Office at Berne and in the meantime obtained his doctorate in physics at the University of Zurich.

Einstein's extraordinary grasp of theoretical physics was early recognized. In 1913 he was made a member of the Prussian Academy of Sciences and in 1914 professor of physics at the University of Berlin. He then became a German citizen. He was named director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Physical Institute in 1914.

The growing hostility of the Nazi government to Jews led him in 1933 to accept the position of professor of theoretical physics in the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton University, and to move his family to the United States. The Nazi government cancelled his citizenship and confiscated his property in 1934. In 1940 Einstein became a citizen of the United States. He became professor emeritus in 1945.

In 1905, at 26, Einstein published studies that changed the course of scientific thinking. They included (1) a theory of photons, or atoms of light, based on the light quantum theory of Max Planck, for which Einstein received the 1921 Nobel prize. It is of basic use in electronics. (2) A clarification of the Brownian movement of light particles. (3) A "special" theory of relativity. Among other conclusions this set forth that the apparent rest or motion of an object is relative to the rest or motion of the observer. It contained a mathematical equation that indicated that matter (or mass) and energy, which scientists considered distinct and separate entities, were phases of the same thing—matter being a form of concentrated energy that can be converted into energy under certain conditions. Proof of this theory was obtained with the use of Uranium 235, or plutonium, Dec. 2, 1942. Einstein published a "general" theory of relativity in 1913-16.

When scientists favorable to the Allies became aware that Nazi Germany was trying to apply nuclear fission to weapons, they conferred with Einstein to urge the United States to achieve this result first. Einstein wrote a note to President Franklin D. Roosevelt explaining how the formula could be applied. President Roosevelt authorized research which eventually led to an outlay of $2 billion and the construction of the first atomic bomb, which was detonated July 16, 1945.

Einstein was a strong supporter of the state of Israel. This was commemorated in a memorial meeting in New York May 15, 1955, at which addresses were made by Abba Eban, ambassador of Israel to the United States, Hugo L. Black, Dr. Nahum Goldman, ch. Jewish Agency for Palestine and Dr. Norbert Wiener, professor of mathematics, Mass. Institute of Technology.

WORK OF 84th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Both Parties Support Foreign Policy, Split on Domestic Issues

The 84th Congress, First Session, convened Jan. 5, 1955, and rose Aug. 2, 1955, with the Senate 105 days in session and the House of Representatives 112. Number of measures introduced was 11,914; public bills enacted into law were 390, as against 493 in the 83rd Congress, 2nd Session; private bills, 490, as against 775. Bills vetoed, 11.

The Congress had a Democratic majority. The Senate, Democratic by one vote (Morse, Ore.), gave marked support to the President's foreign policy. He asked authority to use the Armed Forces in defense of Formosa and the Pescadores at his discretion. Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D.-N. Y.) offered an amendment eliminating authority for security of "related positions and territories," affecting Quemoy and Matsu. This was voted down 74 (42 R., 32 D.) to 13 (12 D., 1 R.) The Senate then voted the desired authority 85 to 3. Public Law 4.

A resolution was proposed by Sen. Jos. R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) to express the sense of the Senate that the Secy. of State should obtain a prior agreement by the U. S., Britain, France and the Soviet Union that the present and future status of nations under Communist control should be on the agenda for discussion by heads of state at the "summit" conference in Geneva. This was defeated 77 (42 D., 35 R.) to 4 (R.).

AGRICULTURAL SURPLUS

Public Law 387 increased from $700,000,000 to $1.5 billion the funds for the sale of the surplus agricultural commodities for foreign currencies, thus supplementing the Agricultural Trade Development Act of 1954. Further effort to reduce these surpluses through sale abroad was included in the foreign-aid bill which stipulates that not less than $300,000,000 of the money appropriated for the fiscal year 1956 could be used to finance the export and sale of these surpluses for foreign currencies.

HOUSING

Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R.-Ind.) presented the Administration's plan for amending the Housing Act to provide 35,000 new house units a year for the next 2 years. The Senate rejected it: 38 (R. 32, D. 6) to 44 (R. 9, D. 35), proposing instead a maximum of 135,000 and a minimum of 50,000 units a year for 4 years. The House first voted for no housing, 217 to 188. The House and the Senate compromised on 45,000 units over 13 mos. Public Law 345.

The law also increases the FHA mortgage insurance authority by $4 billion, keeps the present $2,500 loan insurance limit on home improvement and repair loans, increases to $12,500,000 from $5,000,000 the mortgage insurance limit for a multi-family housing unit, authorizes an additional $500,000,000 for slum clearance and urban redevelopment during 2 years and until Sept. 30, 1956, a new military housing program designed to add 100,000 units through private capital. The Government can enter into contracts with any eligible builders, who would get Govt.-insured 25-year mortgages up to nearly $1.4 billion, and sell mortgages to private lenders. The Government would pay the mortgages from rents and finally own the buildings.

The act provides that mortgage insurance may be available not only to families dispossessed by urban renewals, but to those not required to leave. Insurance of mortgages on trailer parks or courts will have a limit of $1,000 per trailer space and $300,000 per mortgage, and supervision of rentals and rate of return is stipulated. The Federal Natl. Mortgage Assn. may make advance commitments to buy FHA cooperative housing mortgages of not more than $50,000,000 at any one time, with $5,000,000 limit applied to any one state.

The Housing and Home Finance administrator is authorized to make loans to political subdivisions for essential public works where financial assistance is not available, establishing a revolving fund not exceeding $100,000,000 borrowed from the Treasury. Priority is given places of 10,000 pop. or less for public works, with a 40-year loan maturity.

The act extends to Sept. 30, 1956, the Wherry military housing program, with additions: insurance authorized is $1,363,500,000 in addition to FHA insurance; it may be issued when adequate housing is not available, within commuting distance of base, not exceeding an average of $13,500 per dwelling, maturing in 25 yrs. at 4%. This to provide also for Coast Guard.

The act provides the following additional authorization for farm housing: $100,000,000 in loan funds from the Treasury; $2,000,000 annually for housing on potentially adequate farms; $10,000,000 in loans and grants for improvements and repairs of farm dwellings and other buildings, and for development of farms.

INTER-AMERICAN HIGHWAY

To complete the Inter-American Highway to the Panama Canal within 3 years Congress voted $74,980,000 of the total cost of $112,470,000. Central American countries providing $37,490,000. Mexico has built 1,590 mi. and 1,590 mi. were to be finished by U. S. and other countries. Since 1934 the U. S. has spent $57,700,000 on the project. To be completed are 25 mi. in Guatemala, 134 mi. in Costa Rica, 14 mi. in Panama. Public Law 129.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORP.

Congress authorized U. S. membership in the International Finance Corp. with a payment of $35,163,000. With 42 nations as members, IFC has a capital of $100,000,000. It is intended to make loans to encourage private enterprise in less developed areas and to provide venture capital on easier conditions than obtainable from the two banks that provide such capital, the International Bank and Export-Import Bank. But members of the IFC must also be members of the International Bank, and the president of the latter will be ch. of the board of IFC, with operations of the two coordinated. The IFC will stimulate private enterprise, create conditions for investment of private capital and invest in association with private financing without Government guarantees of repayment where sufficient capital is not available on reasonable terms. The bill requires the approval of Congress for an increase in capital or subscribing to additional stock, accepting amendments to the articles of agreement, and making any loan to the IFC. Public Law 350, approved Aug. 11, 1955

MILITARY RESERVE

Congress passed a Reserve measure raising the U. S. military reserve from the present 800,000 (including National Guard) to 2,900,000 by 1960. Men of 17 and 18½ yrs. may escape the draft by volunteering for 6 mos. active reserve training and 7½ yrs. reserve training, the number limited to 250,000 a yr. for 4 yrs. All others have the reserve years cut from 8 to 6, while 150,000 men can cut their years down to 4 by volunteering for 3 yrs. of parttime service in the ready reserve after 1 yr. of active service. There are several other concessions. The President may call up a 1,000,000 reserve without approval of Congress. It passed the House 315 (169 D., 146 R.) to 78 (40 R., 38 D.) and the Senate by a voice vote of all except Sen. Wm. Langer (R.-N. D.).

MILITARY TRAINING

Public Law 118, approved June 30, 1955, extends the Universal Military Training and Service Act and Dependents Assistance Act for 4 years until July 1, 1959, and extends the Doctors Draft Act for 2 years until July 1, 1957.

It exempts from training and service any person who serves on active duty subsequent to June 24, 1948, for not less than 18 months in the armed forces of a nation with which the United States is associated in mutual defense activities. Denies this exemption to nationals of country having no such reciprocal provisions. Credits active duty prior to June 24, 1948, in the armed forces of World War II allies with whom the United States is associated in mutual defense activities in the computation of the 18-month service period.

Exempts from training and service one who has served honorably in the Armed Forces for a minimum 1-year period on active duty after Sept. 16, 1940, or subsequent to that date was discharged after having served honorably on active duty in the Armed Forces for a 6-month minimum period, or served a minimum 24 months as a commissioned officer in the Public Health Service, or in the Coast and Geodetic Survey except during time of war or national emergency. Subjects this to provisions relating to medical, dental and allied specialist categories.

Exempts from training and service persons who enlist in the State National Guard prior to attaining age 18½ after such persons having reached age 28.

Prohibits consideration of the shortage or surplus of an agricultural commodity in determining deferment on the grounds that such person's employment is necessary.

Exempts from induction under the Doctors Draft Act 1, medical, dental, and allied specialists over 35 who have applied for a commission and have been rejected for physical reasons or who are 45.

Continues existing law which authorizes additional pay for commissioned officers in medical, dental, and veterinary corps of the Armed Forces serving on active duty.

The President supported an amendment to the Constitution to fix the voting age at 18 instead of 21. This was not acted on.

RECIPROCAL TRADE

Extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act from June 12, 1955, to June 30, 1958, was enacted after strong opposition from protectionists and Pennsylvania and West Virginia coal districts, which attributed unemployment in part to foreign competition. Public Law 86.

The U. S. has trade agreements with 42 nations carrying 80% of world trade, totaling $40 billion annually. The new law extends the President's authority to enter into trade agreements and to cut tariffs by 5% a yr. for 3 years, provided no domestic importer is injured.

The Philippine trade agreement was revised to expedite business, as requested by the Administration. It provides for a gradual impost of customs duties beginning with 5% a year and reaching 100% by 1974.

TAXATION

Congress repealed Sec. 452 and Sec. 462 of the Revenue Code of 1954, relating to prepaid income and estimated business expenses, considered a tax loophole. It repealed the 10% manufacturers' excise taxes on radio and TV sets used in business, and the excise tax on motorcycles, and put a ceiling on excise levies on utility trailers. It extended the period during which claims for flood-stock refunds may be filed on excises reduced last year. It extended the existing excise tax schedule and the 52% corporation income tax to April 1, 1956.

NATIONAL DEBT LIMIT

*Since the Government was still spending more than it received in revenue, the national debt limit was put at $281 billion for fiscal 1955-1956, by voice vote of the Senate, a rise from 275 billion. The public debt July 1, 1955, was placed at 273.6 billion.

WAGES

The President asked a rise in the minimum wage from 75c to 90c an hr. The Democrats raised the minimum to $1. It passed both houses. The House: 362 (192 D., 170 R.) to 54 (29 D., 25 R.) Senate vote not recorded.

The Senate voted down a Republican measure to raise pay in certain postal categories an average of 7.5% and substituted a rise of 8.2 by 52 (43 D., 9 R.) to 41 (38 R., 3 D.) The House voted a similar rise 224 (202 D., 22 R.) to 189 (172 R., 17 D.).

Congress voted an increase in pay for senators, representatives and a number of high officials. The Senate adopted it by voice vote; the House by 223 for (119 D., 104 R.) to 113 against (60 R., 53 D.) Law was approved Mar. 2. The act raises the pay of senators and representatives from $15,000 to $22,500 a yr. An attempt to give them $1,250 expense money taxfree was rejected by the Senate. The new law provides for one annual trip home at 20c a mile, but eliminates $2,500 a year taxable expense allowance. Other increases: Vice President and Speaker of the House, from $40,000 to $45,000; Chief Justice, from $25,500 to $35,000; associate justices, Supreme Court, from $25,000 to $35,000; higher court judges, from $17,500 to $25,500; lower court judges, from $15,000 to $22,500; deputy attorney general, from $15,500 to $21,000; solicitor general, from $17,500 to $20,500; asst. attorney general, from $15,000 to $20,000; U. S. attorneys from $15,000 to $20,000; asst. U. S. attorneys, from $12,000 to $15,000.

HEALTH AND WELFARE

Public Law 377 authorizes appropriations to supply polio vaccine free to the states for their vaccination programs.

Public Law 159 authorizes a 5-year program of $3,000,000 a year for research into air pollution.

Public Law 182 authorizes $125,000,000 for study and research in mental health.

Public Law 311 authorizes $15,000,000 during the next 2 years for processing of wheat and corn into flour for distribution to states for needy families.

Public Law 71 provides for a survey of New England for preventing loss of life and damage by hurricanes.

MEDALS

Congress instructed the Secy. of the Treasury to strike a gold medal for Dr. Jonas E. Salk in recognition of his serum for poliomyelitis. Duplicates are to be sold to cover costs.

Also Secy. was instructed to strike bronze medals commemorating the 120th anniversary of the signing of the Texas Declaration of Independence and the battles of San Jacinto, Goliad and the Alamo, 1836, and to furnish 2,000 to the Texas Heritage Foundation at cost.

Also to strike 71 bronze medals to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, Jan. 17, 1956, for the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia and 21 societies of which Franklin was a member.

IN GOD WE TRUST

Public Law 140, approved July 11, 1955, makes mandatory the placing of "In God We Trust" on all coins and currency of the United States.

MEASURES THAT FAILED

Atomic Peace Ship—The President proposed to have AEC build an atomic peace ship, to demonstrate to the world the specific use of atom power. It was presented to the Senate by Sen. B. Hickenlooper (R.-Ia.) in a request for $21,000,000 for this purpose. It was lost 42 (D.) to 41 (R., 1 D.). But Congress did approve $25,000,000 for an atom-propelled military or merchant vessel of advanced type.

Flexible Price Support—The Administration asked for flexible price support for farm products adjusted to supply and demand. The House substituted a bill for rigid price supports, by 206 (185 D., 21 R.) to 201 (172 R., 29 D.). The Senate did not act.

Highway Project—The Administration proposed a 10-yr. highway project to cost $39.1 billion financed by Federal and state means, the Government to advance $32 billion in bond issues to be paid in 30 yrs. with the use of gas and oil taxes. The Democrats proposed a Federal-state project to cost $17,941,000,000 over 5 yrs, the Government to appropriate $12,580,000,000 out of its budget, with increased taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel and tires. The Senate voted 50 (46 D., 4 R.) to 39 (R.) against a motion to return the measure to committee. The House voted against it by 292 (164 R., 128 D.) to 123 (94 D., 29 R.).

Natural Gas Control—An attempt to remove Federal price control from natural gas production passed the House, 209 (123 R., 86 D.) to 203 (136 R., 67 D.). Senate did not act.

Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska—The Republicans proposed statehood immediately for Hawaii, adjudged Republican, postponing Alaska, adjudged Democratic. A Democratic measure giving statehood to both was returned to committee by the House, 218 (113 R., 105 D.) to 170 (107 D., 63 R.).

Social Security—A Democratic bill to increase Social Security benefits was adopted by the House, 372 (203 D., 169 R.) to 31 (23 R., 8 D.) but failed of Senate action.

LABOR REVIEW FOR 1955

Prosperity Brings Wage Increases, Unemployment Compensation Plans

Nation-wide interest attended the opening of negotiations by the United Automobile Workers, CIO, with Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp., because of the long preparation for the so-called Guaranteed Annual Wage. This plan was intended to give security against unemployment and layoffs because of seasonal and other changes in the industry. UAW asked that workers with seniority status get a guarantee of 40 hr. a week for 52 consecutive weeks maximum workers without seniority, 40 hr. of work or pay for each week for which they were called in, or for which they had no prior notice of a week's layoff. Payments to be reduced by basic state unemployment benefits. The union also asked numerous "package" concessions.

Ford proposed a "partnership in prosperity" plan, including savings and stock participation. Workers with a yr. or more seniority would invest up to 10% of pay in a fund, the company adding an amount half the workers'. Half of the employees' money would go into Government bonds, the rest into Ford stock, when issued. Interest-free loans would be open to laid-off workers, to be repaid when rehired. There was a separation allowance, an annual improvement factor, a revised cost-of-living escalator. These terms were rejected by the union.

FORD UNEMPLOYMENT PLAN

The Ford contract, signed June 6, is for 3 yrs. and provides supplementary unemployment benefits. Laid-off employees with at least 1 yr. seniority will receive $2 to $25 a wk. for a maximum of 26 wks. at one time, which, when combined with state unemployment compensation, will equal a maximum of 65% of weekly pay after taxes for the first 4 wks., thereafter a maximum of 60% for 22 more wks. Ford will contribute 5c for every man-hr. to 2 separate trust funds, one for regular production employees, the other for defense work, the two eventually to have a maximum of $55,000,000.

Example: A Detroit employee with wife and 1 child getting $100 a week before taxes and $87.02 after taxes, would get no benefits the first week of layoff; the next 4 wks. he would get $14.56 from Ford Fund and $42 from the state of Michigan, total $56.56 (65% of pay). If unemployed in succeeding 22 wks. he would get $10.21 from Ford, $42 from the state, total $52.21, or 60%.

MANY NEW BENEFITS

The Ford Agreement also provides increased annual improvement factor; wage increases of 5c an hr. for apprentices in skilled trades, 8, 10 and 18c an hr. for skilled workers; a revised escalator, keeping the former allowance (1 cent change when consumer price index moves by 0.6 of a point above 113.6) and adding 1c an hr. for each 0.5 of a point change above the June, 1955, index. Also added were half holidays on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. Also double time plus holiday pay for holidays worked for most employees, and an extra half week's vacation pay (total 2½ wks.) for employees with 10 but less than 15 yrs. service. Pension benefits, financed by Ford, were increased; also life insurance, accidental death benefits. Accident and sickness disabilities receive new rates ranging from $38.40 to $76.80; in-hospital medical benefits were increased from $4 to $5 a day and extended to dependents. Health and insurance programs are financed by Ford and the workers.

For the first time, an employee would not lose his pension if he left the employer. Any employee with at least 10 yrs. service, ending employment at or after age 40, would get monthly benefit payments until age 65, calculated on a new $2.25 rate, multiplied by years of service between age 30 and terminal date.

GENERAL MOTORS EQUALS FORD

General Motors Corp. on June 13 signed agreements with United Automobile Workers, CIO, and International Electrical Workers, CIO, embodying most of the clauses of the Ford contract. This applies to supplementary unemployment benefits, escalator formula, improvement factor, pension vacations, half holidays, wage increases to skilled workers, and liberalized insurance. General Motors further will pay time-and-a-half pay for all Saturday shifts except those on 7-day operations, and increases for the third or night shift from 7.5% to 10%, and $5 a day for jury duty.

General Motors gave a full union shop, replacing the modified union shop. Employees must join the unions within 60 days, but the security clause provides that "an employee shall not be required to become a member of, or continue membership in, the union, as a condition of employment, if employed in any state which prohibits or otherwise makes unlawful membership in a labor org. as a condition of employment."

The supplementary unemployment fund is to be built up to $400 for each employee and salaried person; the maximum for the 375,000 employees will be $150,000,000. The company makes a 5c a man-hr. contribution to the fund. Increases of at least 8c an hr. went to skilled workers.

UAW reported that the "cost breakdown of economic factors" was 19.6c an hr. for Ford, 20.9c for UAW-GM and 21.2c for IUE-GM.

Chrysler Corp., after a brief strike, on Sept. 1 agreed to union shop, layoff pay, productivity increases, a new escalator, higher shift differentials and fringe benefits. Union office workers were also covered by the supplemental unemployment plan.

UAW gained increases similar to the Ford-GM pattern, with some modifications, with Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co., White Motor Co., Budd Co., Dana Corp., Holley Carburetor, Kaiser Metal Products gave 6c wage increases in each of 3 yrs., and extras. Caterpillar Tractor, after a 3-day stoppage, gave supplemental layoff pay, an 8c an hr. increase plus 4c to 8c advance for higher classifications, and fringe benefits.

UAW-CIO also signed an agreement with John Deere & Co., Moline, Ill., covering 12,000 with a Ford type supplemental jobless pay plan, wage increases of over 18c an hr. spread over 3 yrs., increases pension, hospitalization and other fringe benefits.

BIG STEEL UPS WAGES, PRICES

A strike in Big Steel lasting 12 hours ended July 1 when the Steelworkers Union, CIO, signed a new agreement with U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Inland and Youngstown Sheet & Tube, covering about 400,000 workers. The basic contracts run to July, 1956. U. S. Steel gave an average increase of 15c to 15½c an hr., varying from 11.5 for the lowest of 27c for the most skilled. The 8,000 salaried employees, also CIO, received biweekly increases ranging from $9.20 to $22. On July 6 U. S. Steel raised its price by approximately $7.35 a ton. Kaiser Steel and Sheffield Steel (subsidiary of Armco) concluded similar agreements, as also did the independent unions with Weirton Steel, and Armco at Middletown, O.

The Steelworkers, CIO, also negotiated agreements with Aluminum Co. of America, 11½c an hr. increase an widening of pay differentials among jobs averaging 3½c a man-hr. This covered 17,000 employees, and AFL union, covering 14,000, signed an agreement giving 6½c an hr. increase and pay differential at 3½c. They had earlier received 5c an hr. annual improvement factor increase effective July 1.

United Steelworkers, CIO, signed a 2-yr. contract with American Can Co. and Continental Can Co. for wage increase averaging 13c an hr. for 35,000, and layoff pay plans which, with unemployment compensation, will give 65% of take home pay. Value of the increase was estimated at 21½c an hr.

STRIKES IN METAL PLANTS

There was a strike in nonferrous mining, smelting and refining July 1-Aug. 12. Phelps Dodge increased the wages of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers (Ind.) 11½c to 17½c an hr., increased health benefits, hospitalization and surgery for employees and dependents and increased weekly allowance for employees out of work because of injury uncompensated. American Smelting & Refining gave 11½c an hr. basic increase, 2c for job reclassification, 34c an hr. for days off on birthday. Kennecott Copper Corp., after a 47-day strike, gave 15½c raise, including 10c an hr. basic increase, ½c an hr. rise for reclassification and increased the pension. Calumet, Mich., plant of Calumet & Hecla, after 112-day CIO strike gave a 15c hr. wage increase first yr. insurance benefits and union shop. Anaconda, in Butte, Mont., settled with the union without a strike, giving increases of from 1½¢ to 17½¢ an hr. Anacosta's subsidiary, American Brass Co. agreed to 11½¢ to 15½¢ an hr. increase for 3,700 after a strike.

ELECTRICAL AND TELEPHONES

The United Electrical Workers, CIO, and General Electric Co. signed a 5-yr. contract effective Aug. 15, giving 100,000 employees an annual increase of 3% a mo. for the first 3 yrs., with a 4½¢ an hr. minimum; in the 4th and 5th yrs. it will pay 3½¢ plus 1¢, with 5¢ an hr. minimum. It gave a cost-of-living escalator on a Sept. 1, 1955, base; improved pensions, health and sick benefits with catastrophe clauses, increased life and accident insurance, additional holiday, vacation and overtime benefits.

A 1-yr. agreement with Southern Bell Telephone Co. May 24 ended a 72-day strike of Communications Workers of America, CIO, affecting 50,000 employees in 9 Southern states. There are wage increases of $1 to $4 a week for non-supervisory employees, upgrading of 25 towns to higher pay schedules, a seventh paid holiday, a no-strike, no-lockout clause and limited arbitration. Workers have the right to respect legitimate picket lines. After the settlement the company filed suit against the union for $5,000,000 for damages to its property.

Radio Corporation of America gave United Electrical Workers, CIO, a 4¢ to 7¢ hr. increase May 23, plus pension and other benefits for 14,000 employees in New Jersey, Ohio and California. Philco Corp. raised wages 5¢ an hr. and will pay 7¢ an hr. instead of 5¢ to a severance pay fund.

A one-day strike of 3,000 workers in 5 New Jersey plants of Allen B. Dumont Laboratories ended with a 5¢ across the board increase, and benefits.

TEXTILES AND OTHERS

After a 13-wk. strike of Textile Workers Union, CIO, Berkshire-Hathaway, Pepperell Mfg. Co. and Luther Mfg. Co. abandoned a proposed cut of 10¢ an hr., adopted a 3¢ cost of living allowances in base rates, discontinued the escalator, eliminated extra pay for 3 local holidays. Lockwood-Dutchess, Inc., closed its Waterville, Me., plant because of Southern competition. In the South, Burlington Industries gave an average of 5¢ an hr. to 35,000, and about 60,000 unorganized southern textile workers also won increases elsewhere. Industrial Rayon Corp. in Ohio and Virginia gave 6¢ an hr. plus a 5¢ an hr. rise after Jan. 1, 1956 to 4,800.

AFL Machinists—20,000 mechanics and ground service workers—reached agreement with 5 major airlines—Capital, National, Northwest, Trans World, and United—for wage increases of 5¢ to 7¢ an hr., retroactive to July 1, 1954, and other increases standardizing mechanics' rates.

A strike for higher wages on the Capital Transit Co., Washington, D. C., handicapped government workers 52 days until Congress passed an act limiting the franchise to Aug. 14, 1956, and ordering a 10¢ an hr. increase at once and a 5¢ additional increase July 1, 1956.

Armour & Co. gave 14¢ an hr. increase to 35,000 by agreement with Meat Cutters, AFL and Packinghouse Workers, CIO. Swift & Co. gave a similar increase to 33,000. Cudahy, Wilson & Co. signed likewise with CIO, Oscar Mayer with AFL.

RAILROAD INCREASES

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. was handicapped 58 days by a strike of 25,000 non-operating employees of 10 AFL unions. Three operating brotherhoods joined in sympathy. This ended May 10 when both parties agreed to arbitration. The arbitrator ruled that the railroad pay full cost of a health and welfare plan and adopt vacation, holiday and other working arrangements in force on other Class I railroads. L. & N. signed May 20.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen gained advantages in contracts with the nation's railroads May 11 in an agreement providing pay increases when the number of cars in a freight train increased. Passenger conductors and trainmen also received 20¢ a day increase and dining car stewards $5 a mo. The Brotherhood later settled with the principal railroads for an increase of 10½¢ an hr. across the board. The agreement effects 173,000.

MARTIAL LAW IN INDIANA

There was so little violence in strikes during 1955 that unusual prominence was given to the Oct. 5 clash of non-strikers and striking CIO men at the New Castle, Ind., foundry of Perfect Circle Corp., manufacturer of piston rings. Although only 8 persons were injured, Gov. Geo. N. Craig declared martial law and sent detachments of the National Guard to disperse crowds and stop the sale of liquor. The strike, which began July 24, when the company rejected union demands, reached its end when a compromise was made late in November. This included a 2-yr. contract ending July 1, 1957, endorsing the 10¢ an hr. increase the company put into effect in July, 1955, plus 7¢ an hr. additional effective July 1, 1956. Rehiring of strikers accused of illegal acts was subject to arbitration.

Craft and Industrial Unions Merge in AFL-CIO

Merger of America's two largest labor organizations was effected Dec. 5, 1955 under the name American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. Conventions of both AFL and CIO were held in New York simultaneously beginning Dec. 1 so that the new organization could be approved by the members and begin to function.

George Meany, pres., AFL, became president AFL-CIO. Walter Reuther, pres., CIO, became vice pres. in charge of the Industrial Dept., virtually the same position he had held before. James B. Carey, secy.-treas. of CIO, became secy.-treas. of the Industrial Dept. AFL-CIO will have 27 vice presidents.

The merged organization has a total of $3,800,000 in its treasury, $1,280,000 provided by CIO. Per capita dues to the central org., will be 4¢ a mo. The membership total is estimated at 15,000,000.

PRESIDENT IN WELCOME

After the merger had been vociferously proclaimed by the 1,400 delegates and their 4,000 guests in the 71st Regt. Armory, New York, President Eisenhower made an address of welcome. It was his first speech since leaving the Denver hospital. He spoke over a telephone hookup from his Gettysburg farm. The President said:

"The ultimate values of mankind are spiritual. These values include liberty, human dignity, opportunity and equal rights and justice.

"Workers want recognition as human beings and as individuals before everything else. They want a job that gives them a feeling of satisfaction and self-expression, good wages, respectable working conditions, reasonable hours, protection of status and security. These constitute the necessary foundations on which you build to reach your higher aims.

"If any group or section of citizens is denied its fair play in the common prosperity, all others among us are thereby endangered.

"The economic interest of employer and employee is a mutual prosperity. Their economic future is inseparable. Together they must advance in mutual respect, in mutual understanding, toward mutual prosperity.

"The American worker strives for betterment not by destroying his employer and his employer's business, but by understanding his employer's problems of competition, prices, markets. And the American employer can never forget that, since mass production assumes a mass market, good wages and progressive employment practices for his employee are good business. . . . The mutual interest of employer and employee is the natural outgrowth of teamwork for progress, characteristic of the American economy where the barriers of class do not exist. Labor relations will be managed best when worked out in honest negotiation between employers and unions, without Government's unwarranted interference.

RIGHTS OF MINORITIES

"In your new national organization, as well as in your many constituent organizations, you have a great opportunity of making your meetings the world's most effective exhibit of democratic processes. In those meetings the rights of minorities holding different social, economic and political views must be scrupulously protected and their views accurately reflected. In this way, as American citizens, you will help the public correct the faulty, fortify the good, build stoutly for the future, and reinforce the most cherished freedoms of each individual citizen."

Secretary of Labor Jas. P. Mitchell, Adlai E.

Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman (N.Y.) also addressed the convention.

One problem was the mutual aid pact of the largest AFL union, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, with the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union, which was expelled from CIO in 1950 on charges of being dominated by Communists. Both Meany and Reuther denounced communism in their speeches and Reuther declared that communism prospered only where labor was weak and not free. The Teamsters wished to enter the Industrial Dept. in a body but that Dept. proposed to accept only a minority of truckmen. Another problem was racial discrimination, which AFL-CIO proposed to eradicate. The invitation to join given the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen was criticized by the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, which alleged that the other two unions discriminated against Negroes.

The Transport Workers Union, under Michael Quill, was the only organization that did not immediately join the merger.

On May 2 the Joint Unity Committee of the two bodies agreed on a constitution, which was approved by the Executive Council, AFL, and Executive Board, CIO. It specifies that membership shall be chosen regardless of race, creed, color or national origin. Raiding is prohibited and elimination of conflicting organizations and jurisdictions is to be "encouraged" by mergers and agreement. Other aims of AFL-CIO:

Legislation and Politics—"To secure legislation which will safeguard and promote the principle of free collective bargaining, the rights of workers, farmers and consumers and the security and welfare of all the people. While preserving the independence of the labor movement from political control, to encourage the workers to register and vote, to exercise their full rights and responsibilities of citizenship, and to perform their rightful part in the political life of the local, state and national communities."

Protection against Communism—"To protect the labor movement from any and all corrupt influences and from the undermining efforts of Communist agencies and all others who are opposed to the basic principles of our democracy and free and democratic unionism. . . . No organization officered, controlled or dominated by Communists, Fascists or other totalitarianism, or whose policies and activities are consistently directed toward the achievement of the program or purpose of the Communist party, any Fascist organization or other totalitarian movement, shall be permitted as affiliates of this federation or any of its state or local central bodies."

MEANY ON POLITICS

At the dedication in Washington, D.C. Nov. 4 of the hq of the Teamsters Union, AFL, George Meany, AFL pres., outlined the policy to be followed by the combined AFL-CIO. He said every legal means would be used to influence election and legislation. He said: "Our major object is to elect strong, liberal majorities to Congress."

He has also mentioned aid to education, highway construction and low-cost housing. The merged organization will have constructive programs for raising the standard of living of workers and increasing the general welfare. There will be concerted drives to organize non-union workers.

CIO made its report for the year ended Sept. 30, showing $4,914,823 collected from national unions and $148,544 from local unions, suggesting an actual membership of 4,067,000.

STASSEN IS CRITICAL

Harold E. Stassen, addressing the Economic Club in Detroit, Dec. 5, said the merger of AFL and CIO would "speed up the political effort" and this was a "dangerous trend" for the future well-being of the workers and the nation. He reminded listeners that in the last 3 years the auto workers and their families have had "the best 3 years of their lives" under an administration that the top leadership of UAW-CIO tried desperately to defeat in 1952 and would try again to reverse in 1956. He hoped "individual conclusions" would decide the worker's interest.

International Livestock Exposition Held in Chicago

The 56th annual International Livestock Exposition was held in International Amphitheater, Chicago, Nov. 25-Dec. 3, 1955, attended by several hundred thousand farmers and visitors from the Middle West. Animals worth $5,000,000 in the aggregate were shown, and $100,000 was available in prizes. Also attending were 1,250 delegates to the 4-H congress, young people interested in raising the standards of farm production and in many instances exhibiting results of their work.

Top prize of the exposition, the grand champion steer, was also grand champion of the junior show: Julius, an Aberdeen-Angus, 986 lbs., exhibited by Nancy Turner, 16, of Champaign, Ill. Nancy already had received $850 prize money when the steer was bid in for $16,125, second only to the 1954 top of $16,650. Julius was won by Howard Johnson, of Milton, Mass., restaurant man, who said he would take the steer on tour to interest livestock breeders. The reserve grand champion was a shorthorn, U. K. Spotlight, of the University of Kentucky, 1,155 lbs., which was sold to another restaurant man for $1,732.50.

Grand champion shorthorn bull was Leveledale Critic, owned by Mathers Bros., Mason City, Ia. Reserve gr. ch. shorthorn bull was Kickapoo Council Chief owned by Stanley G. Harris, Kenosha, Wis., who also had the junior champion bull. Gr. ch. Hereford steer was Bunny, 960 lbs., owned by Lile Lewter, Lubbock, Tex.; Reserve gr. ch. Hereford steer was owned by Penn. State Univ. Gr. Ch. sheep was a Southdown wether, Big Chief, 100 lbs., from Purdue Univ., Ind.

During the exposition an Aberdeen-Angus bull, Ellenmeere, 1,750 lbs., worth $35,000, died. It was owned by J. T. Tolan, Pleasant Plains, Ill.

The 34th 4-H congress was held during the exposition. The congress put on record that its ranks were open to all without racial discrimination, and that 350,000 Negroes were on the rolls.

Automation, Present and Future

Automation means a continuous and integrated operation of a production system using electronic equipment to perform routine functions and regulate and coordinate the flow and quality of production. It is already being used in many industries as either a supplement or substitute for conventional assembly line operations. The more spectacular uses of automation, particularly in taking over administrative functions and in integrating them with productive processes, remain for the future. However, there can be no question about the potential uses of automation. It is merely a question of time, possibly 5 years or less, before electronic control of business operations comes of age.—Walter S. Buckingham, Jr., Georgia Institute of Technology, at CIO conference, Washington, D. C.

Major Decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court, 1955

Refused to review the conviction of 13 Communist leaders, including Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, for conspiracy to overthrow the U. S. Government. (Jan. 10)

Ruled that contingent bequests to charity, the actual value of which could not be determined in advance, were not deductible for Federal estate tax purposes. (Jan. 10)

Rejected attempts by New York City to establish the right of collecting a tax on the gross receipts of a New Jersey firm for the privilege of doing business in New York City. Ruling upheld the Supreme Court of New York in its decision that the corporation was exclusively interstate commerce. (Jan. 10)

Ruled professional boxing and the legitimate theater were subject to anti-trust laws, opening the way for the Government to press suits alleging monopoly. Court held its 1953 ruling that baseball was not subject to anti-trust laws did not grant immunity to every business based on live exhibitions regardless of the extent of its interstate phases. (Jan. 31)

Declined to rule on the President's power to negotiate international agreements. (Feb. 7)

Refused to hear an appeal by 13 New York teachers over dismissal from their jobs. They had refused to answer questions of a Senate subcommittee about Communist Party membership. A 14th teacher won a hearing because his case was properly presented. (Feb. 7)

Rejected an appeal, thereby upholding a Massachusetts law prohibiting child adoptions that cross religious lines. (Feb. 14)

Ruled the Securities and Exchange Commission had jurisdiction over fees paid in public utility reorganization proceedings. (Feb. 28)

Ruled that a foreign power invoking U. S. law in a suit could not use the legal immunity of a sovereign to protect it from counter-claims by American citizens. (Mar. 7)

Upheld again the $50 wagering tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code, reaffirming that the "Federal government may tax what it also forbids." (Mar. 14)

Declared in a union dispute that Federal law is supreme to state authority. (Mar. 28)

Ruled Federal courts could not interfere with state anti-picketing injunctions when state court appeals procedure had not been used. (Apr. 4)

VIRGIN ISLAND DIVORCE LAW VOID

Voided the Virgin Islands "quickie" divorce law because it exceeded authority delegated by Congress to the legislative assembly of the islands. (Apr. 11)

Rejected a Government contention that the courts cannot review orders of deportation except in habeas corpus proceedings. (Apr. 25)

Reversed contempt-of-Congress convictions of two witnesses who had invoked the First and Fifth Amendments and of a third who had invoked only the Fifth Amendment, in refusing to answer House Un-American Activities Committee questions on communism. The court held all had used the Fifth Amendment validly and did not rule on the First Amendment. Those acquitted: Julius Empspak, United Electrical Workers secretary-treasurer; Thomas Quinn, UE organizer; Philip Bar, Daily Worker General Manager. (May 24)

DESEGREGATION OF SCHOOLS

The Supreme Court clarified the application of its decision of May 17, 1954, which supported the Constitutional principle of public education without racial discrimination. The clarifying decision (1) reaffirmed the principle and said "all provisions of Federal, state or local law requiring or permitting such discrimination must yield to this principle"; (2) gave local authorities the task of integrating the schools and gave the Federal district courts the task of seeing this done; (3) instructed the courts to require "a prompt and reasonable start" toward desegregation, with the proviso that they may allow "additional time" for adjustments, such as providing adequate personnel, transportation, buildings and other necessities. (May 31)

Ruled that the Federal Power Commission had right to license the construction of a hydroelectric plant on the Deschutes River in Oregon, over state of Oregon's objection that the Federal action was an invasion of its sovereign rights. (June 6)

Directed the Georgia Supreme Court to reconsider the case of Aubry Williams, a Georgia Negro sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of Harry Furst, a white man. Williams contended there was discrimination in the selection of the jury that tried him in Fulton County Superior Court. (June 6)

Ordered the U. S. Court of Appeals in New York to reconsider its decision setting aside a Federal Communications Commission order permitting the Easton Publishing Co. to set up a new standard radio station at Easton, Pa. The opinion said the appeals court made errors of law in ruling against the commission. (June 6)

Denied a request for a new hearing for three New York men who faced execution for the 1950 killing of a messenger on a Readers Digest money truck. (June 6)

Ruled University of Alabama must admit two Negro students, Atherine J. Lucy and Polly Anne Myers, who had been seeking admission since 1952. (Oct. 10)

LOUISIANA'S SHORE BOUNDARIES

Rejected Government request to fix Louisiana's seaward boundary at three geographical miles from its shore. The state argued that its boundary extended into the Gulf of Mexico three leagues, or about ten and one-half miles. (Oct. 10)

Granted condemned Caryl Chessman a new hearing in San Francisco's U. S. District Court, and held Chessman's plea that his 1948 trial records had been fraudulently prepared should not have been summarily dismissed. (Oct. 17)

Granted 14 California Communist leaders review of their convictions for violation of the Smith Act. The 14 had taught a peaceful transition to communism in the U. S. and asked the high court if they could be convicted for advocacy in the absence of evidence of violence. (Oct. 17)

Rejected the Kansas law under which exhibition of the motion picture, The Moon is Blue, was banned in that state as obscene. (Oct. 24)

Rejected a Government appeal from a Court of Appeals ruling which had reversed the contempt-of-court convictions of the International Longshoremen's Association and 3 of its officials. (Oct. 24)

Refused to review the conviction of 12 Puerto Rican nationalists charged with seditious conspiracy. Four of them were under sentence for the 1954 shooting of 5 Congressmen in the House of Representatives. (Oct. 24)

SEGREGATION IN PUBLIC PARKS

Banned racial segregation in publicly-financed parks, playgrounds and golf courses. The rulings upheld a lower-court decision against segregation at beaches and bathhouses operated by the city of Baltimore and the state of Maryland and overturned two lower-court decisions against Negroes using city-operated golf courses in Atlanta. (Nov. 7)

Ruled that the Armed Forces could not arrest and court-martial civilians for crimes they had committed while in service. Under this provision the Air Force had sought to court-martial Robert W. Toth, who had been charged with participating in the murder of a Korean civilian. (Nov. 7, 1955)

Rejected appeals of Eugene Moy, editor, China Daily News and of Chin You Gon and Chin Hong Ming, stockholders, who were jailed in 1954 for violating the trading with the enemy act. The newspaper and Moy were found guilty of accepting ads from two Communist-controlled Hong Kong banks. The ads offered to transmit money from Chinese in the U. S. to relatives in Communist China. The two Chins were convicted of sending money to friends and relatives in Red China. (Nov. 7)

Ruled that the Government could not tax profits a company made in selling its own treasury stock provided the company did not deal in it "as it might deal in the shares of another corporation." This upheld a ruling Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston had obtained from the U. S. Court of Claims. (Nov. 7)

Treaty Obligations of the United States

A summary of treaty obligations by the United States, made in November, 1955, disclosed that the United States is obligated to defend no less than 45 nations on 5 continents, not counting the base arrangements with Morocco and Libya in Africa. Declarations of war, however, need the consent of Congress. Treaties of mutual assistance with Latin America account for 20; NATO allies the U. S. with 13. Security treaties link the U. S. with West Germany, Australia, New Zealand and Japan. Mutual defense treaties have been signed with the Republic of the Philippines, the Republic of Korea and Nationalist China. The United States also has obligations under SEATO, which give the nation a special relation to Pakistan, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam. There are arrangements for bases in exchange for self-defense assistance with Spain, Libya, Ethiopia and Saudi Arabia. In addition the U. S. is interested (without commitments) in the Balkan Alliance and the Northern Tier, and has expressed its approval of the Baghdad Pact.

Justices of the United States Supreme Court

The Supreme Court comprises a Chief Justice and such number of Associate Justices as may be fixed by Congress. By virtue of an act of June 25, 1948, the number of Associate Justices is eight. Power to nominate is vested in the President and appointments are made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Judges of the Federal courts hold office during good behavior and their compensation may not be diminished while they are in office. A Justice may retire at 70 after serving 10 years as a Federal judge.

*Retired. (a) Rejected Dec. 15, 1795; (b) resigned Sept. 30, 1800; (c) resigned July 31, 1945; (d) resigned Oct. 3, 1942, to assume new post as chairman of Economic Stabilization Board.
Robert H. Harrison, who is listed above as an Associate Justice of the Court, was nominated Sept. 24, 1789; confirmed by the Senate, September 26, 1789; and commissioned September 28, 1789. There is nothing affirmative to show that he ever accepted the commission or took the oath. Justice Iredell was nominated February 9, 1790, "vice Harrison, resigned." Under date of Jan. 1790, Harrison wrote to the President saying, "I cannot accept the appointment."

Three Americans Share Nobel Prize Awards

Three American scientists were among the recipients of Nobel prizes in 1955. They are Dr. Vincent du Vigneaud, 54, of Cornell Univ. Medical College, New York, N. Y.; Dr. Willis E. Lamb, 42, of Stanford Univ., Stanford, Calif.; and Dr. Polykarp Kusch, of Columbia Univ., New York. The 1955 prizes were worth $36,726 each, except for the Peace prize award of $35,066.

Dr. Vigneaud, a native of Chicago, received recognition for his work in identifying oxytocin and vasopressin in a hormone produced by the pituitary gland and making a synthesis of the hormone. The award committee in Stockholm called this a historic feat in biochemistry.

Dr. Lamb won his prize "for his discoveries regarding the hyperfine structure of the hydrogen spectrum." Dr. Kusch "for the precision determination of the magnetic moment of the electron." Dr. Lamb is American-born, and Dr. Kusch, who was brought here from Germany as an infant, has been a citizen since 1922.

The prize for medicine was given to Hugo Thorell, 52, head of the biochemistry section of Nobel Institute, Stockholm, for discoveries in the nature and effects of oxidation of enzymes. The prize for literature was won by Halldor Kiljan Laxness, 52, an Icelandic novelist, whose book, Independent People, was well received in the United States. Laxness is regarded as pro-Soviet, though not a Communist. He has condemned NATO and won the Stalin prize for literature.

The Peace prize for 1954—one year later than other 1954 awards—was given to the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. The High Commissioner is Mr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart, of the Netherlands. The last time this prize went to an organization was in 1948, when the recipients were the American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers) and the Friends' Service Council, London. The Peace prize for 1955 was held over.

Four Freedoms

President Roosevelt, in an address to Congress, Jan. 6, 1941, said:
"In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward for a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.
"The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world.
"The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

"The third is freedom from want—which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy, peaceful life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.
"The fourth is freedom from fear—which, translated into world terms, means a worldwide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world."

Largest State Fair Has Record Attendance at Dallas

The Texas State Fair of Dallas, largest state fair in the country, broke all attendance records Oct. 7-23, 1955, with a total of 2,611,271 visitors, an increase of 104,808 over 1954. The fair was open 16 days and 17 nights. There were 7,931 entries in the Pan-American Livestock Exposition. Major attractions included the Religious Festival in the Cotton Bowl, with a high school chorus of 2,500; 24 performances of The Pajama Game, musical comedy, which had an attendance of 82,337 and a gross income of $246,352; and 3 major football games: Texas-Oklahoma, Southern Methodist-Missouri and Southern Methodist-Rice.

Clement Attlee, now an Earl, Felicitates Churchill

Clement E. Attlee resigned leadership of the British Labor party on Dec. 7 and was granted an earldom by Queen Elizabeth. He was prime minister 1945-51. On Apr. 6, 1955, he told the House of Commons: "The retirement from active political life of Sir Winston Churchill does indeed mark the close of an epoch. He is the last survivor in the House of those who served in Queen Victoria's reign. He held high office before and during the first World War. In the length of his political career he rivals Palmerston and Gladstone. He gave leadership to this country when it needed it most and in history, as one of the greatest prime ministers, his place is assured. . . . Instead of making history we hope he will be continuing to write it."

PROVISIONAL ESTIMATE OF U. S. POPULATION OCTOBER, 1955

The total population of the United States including Armed Forces overseas was about 166,022,000 on Oct. 1, 1955, according to estimates released on Nov. 8, 1955 by the Bureau of the Census. This figure represents an increase of 14,889,000, or 9.9% since April 1, 1950, the date of the last census, and an increase of 2,811,000, or 1.7%, over the estimate for the corresponding month a year ago.

Floods, Tornadoes, Cause Record Damage—Weather of 1955

Source: U. S. Weather Bureau, Weatherwise, United Press

South wind or great heat in the summer fortelleth whirlwinds—Job, XXXVII, 9.

In 1955 nature blasted man with some of the worst weather on record. There were heavy floods and big winds. The year opened with a continuation of the long drought that since 1952 had been pulverizing the southwestern plains. In March dust storms, with 40 mi. winds, raised soil from parts of Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas and whirled it toward the Mississippi valley. In mid-March the Ohio River overflowed, left thousands homeless and caused damage of about $13,000,000. But the water really hit the dust bowl in May. In 48 hrs. May 18-19, New Mexico reported 11.28 in. of rain in one area, Blacklake, N. M., had 22 in. of wet snow, and the Arkansas River overflowed. Some Texas towns had 15 in. of rain. Lightning hit a group of high school boys at Kingsville, Tex., killing 4.

On May 25 the worst tornado ever to hit Kansas levelled Udall, 25 mi. southeast of Wichita, with hundreds of its 610 people casualties. Major whirlwinds also hit Tonkawa and Blackwell, Okla., levelling 12 blocks in the latter city. Total deaths for the area were estimated at 200. The Weather Bureau had spotted about 15 tornadoes developing in a 200-mi. area between Oklahoma City and Wichita, and the countryside was warned.

HOT AND HOTTER

On the first 7 days of August, official temperatures in New York were in the 90° range and often higher. Hottest days were Aug. 2 and 5, when U. S. Weather Bureau, Battery Place, reported 98° and 94°, LaGuardia Field reported 100° for both days, as did the Meteorological Observatory in Central Park. But several low temperatures brought down the monthly average to around 78°, only 4° higher than normal. It was, however, the second month in a row to set a heat record with 19 days over 90° for the summer.

The West Coast sensation was the heat in Los Angeles. The moderate temperature of 83° high to 59° low of Aug. 29 was changed to 101° and 70° by Sept. 1; on Sept. 2 it hit 110° and for 7 days Los Angeles basked in temperatures running above 100° and considerably more unofficially. This competed with the most consistent hot spot, Phoenix, Ariz., which can hit 100° for weeks in midsummer and had 5° above that a number of days in 1955. The surprise was possibly Chicago, which kept comfortably cool at 73° high, 55° low, while Omaha was frying at 103° on Sept. 8. Chicago reached a high of 68° on the day Bismarck, N. D. went to 96°.

Other cities that had a spate of 90° and over weather in 1955 included Denver, Tucson, Salt Lake City, Savannah, Phoenix, Spokane, Fort Worth, Abilene, Minneapolis and St. Paul, Des Moines, San Antonio, Memphis and San Francisco.

ROSTER OF HURRICANES

Big winds are named for women. Alice, in the French West Indies, went to sea Jan. 2. Brenda, July 21, brought heavy rains to Louisiana and Mississippi. Connie hit the Carolina coast Aug. 12, see below. Diane hit the same coast Aug. 17, see below. Edith, Aug. 24, and Flora, Sept. 3, went off to sea. Gladys flooded Mexico City Sept. 5. Hilda started east of Florida Sept. 12, caused heavy damage in Cuba and Tampico, Mex. Ione hit the North Carolina coast Sept. 19. Janet started Sept. 28, hit Mexico from Yucatan to Tampico, damaged Chetumal, isolated Veracruz, destroyed many fishing villages, flooded Tampico. Deaths were estimated up to 500, 61 in British Honduras.

AND THEN CAME CONNIE

Hurricane Connie was the best-advertised storm when it was approaching the Atlantic coast off Cape Hatteras, N. C., but its 135 mph winds lost strength soon after they hit the Carolinas Aug. 12 and moved up by way of Maryland and Virginia into southeast Pennsylvania thence northwest to Erie, Lake Erie and Ontario, Canada. At Harrisburg, Pa., winds were 55 mph. The worst damage was in North Carolina and the President allocated $1,000,000 for relief at request of the governor. A 125-ft. sailing schooner capsized on Chesapeake Bay near North Beach, Md., drowning 14. Deaths reached 43, 11 in the New York metropolitan area.

Precipitation records showed the effects of the hurricane. On Aug. 12 and 13, the U. S. Weather Bureau, New York, reported 5.86 in. and 2.51 in. on the two days. The greatest fall in 24 hrs. was 6.71 in. Aug. 11-12 there and 7.11 in. at LaGuardia Field.

RUIN IN NEW ENGLAND

Hurricane Diane, the next hurricane to hit the U. S. mainland in August, swept over North Carolina and Virginia, but lost much of its force in the New York City area Aug. 17. Heavy rain fell in Connecticut, northeastern Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey. South Carolina and Rhode Island were among 6 states designated major disaster areas. Flood toll was 191 dead in the northeastern states as waters receded Aug. 20; resort areas in the Poconos reported 35 lost with the greatest tragedy at Camp Davis, near Ansonia.

A summary of death and damage caused by the disaster of Aug. 17-19 was published Oct. 30 by the Business and Defense Services Admin., Dept. of Commerce. Deaths: 179; seriously injured persons, 6,992; homes destroyed, 813; damage est. $457,674,044. Losses by states: Connecticut, $215,245,004, of which $83,870,958 was industrial; Massachusetts, $110,412,808; Pennsylvania, $70,206,700; New Jersey, $27,525,532; Rhode Island, $18,000,000; New York, $16,284,000. Loss of income and production and many emergency costs are not included.

MILLIONS FOR RELIEF

The American Red Cross allotted $2,000,000 for first aid and sent 300 workers. Its report, 10 days after the hurricane, showed 49,441 families had suffered loss, of which number 31,193 were in Connecticut, 8,211 in Pennsylvania, 5,109 in Massachusetts, 2,206 in New Jersey, 1,362 in Rhode Island and 1,360 in New York. Homes destroyed were 1,314; badly damaged, 4,905; partly damaged 15,251. Deaths reached 143 and injuries 5,909. The Red Cross had 104 shelters and fed 17,672 the first days. The Salvation Army shipped supplies and workers, as did other welfare organizations.

The Red Cross increased its request for contributions to $10,000,000. It received $175,000 from Ford Foundation, $100,000 each from General Motors Corp., National Board of Fire Underwriters and John A. Hartford Foundation. The legislature of Massachusetts financed flood relief with a bond issue for $55,000,000. Connecticut halted use of $35,000,000 for state construction to conserve credit for flood aid. President Eisenhower authorized transfer of $100,000,000 Corps of Engineers money to a fund to restore public facilities. By executive order Aug. 25 he authorized nearly $1,000,000,000 in Office of Defense Mobilization loans to aid damaged defense plants. Federal Housing Authority permitted postponement of mortgage payments on FHA homes at discretion of lenders. It approved full insurance on new homes costing up to $7,000 and repairs up to $2,500, and 44-year loans for rebuilding public works. The Housing and Home Finance Agency opened unoccupied Federally-owned houses. The Dept. of Commerce made 500,000 items of machinery available by lease, chiefly to shoe factories. The Corps of Engineers, USA, brought portable bridges, generators, water purifying systems, cots and blankets, and lent the New Haven Railroad 20 Diesels for 4 months use. The Dominican Republic authorized $200,000 worth of supplies and Rafael Trujillo, former president, donated $100,000.

In October New England once more experienced a major drenching, with 34 fatalities. Three days of heavy rain flooded 48 Connecticut towns that had barely recovered from the August hurricane. Danbury, Conn., had 11.32 in. in 3 days. The New Haven Railroad cancelled its through service for days. New York and New Jersey also were inundated; many families were removed from their homes along flooded tributaries of the Hudson, in the Catskills and in Pennsylvania. The New York Central Railroad also curtailed services.

WASHINGTON

Dec. 2—Senate voted 67 to 22 to condemn Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) for contempt of a Senate elections subcommittee that investigated his financial affairs, for abuse of its members and for his insults to the Senate during censure proceedings. (For condemnation, Republicans 22; Democrats 44; Independent 1. Against, Republicans 22; Democrats 0.) Proposal to censure Sen. McCarthy for denouncing Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker as unfit to wear his uniform was defeated by parliamentary procedure, which avoided a direct vote by substituting the condemnation of Sen. McCarthy's conduct during hearings.

Sen. McCarthy differed with President Eisenhower, Dec. 7, criticizing the President for his "tolerance" of the Chinese Communists, who were holding American airmen and for congratulating Sens. A. V. Watkins (R.-Utah) and Ralph E. Flanders (R.-Vt.) who had urged censure of Sen. McCarthy. . . . U. S. and Nationalist China signed a mutual defense treaty. Both nations promised to preserve the peace and security of the Far East and to act, within constitutional processes, to meet "the common danger" in the event either was attacked. China ratified the treaty Jan. 14, 1955; U. S. Senate approved 64 to 6, Feb. 9.

Dec. 11—Joseph M. Dodge, former Dir. of the Bureau of the Budget, was designated head of the Council of Foreign Economic Policies by President Eisenhower. The new Cabinet-level agency was to develop economic policies and coordinate foreign aid.

New Reserve Program

Dec. 17—Secy. of Defense Charles E. Wilson proposed a new military reserve program to train annually 100,000 young men, who, after 6 mos. would revert to reserve status for 9½ yrs. Plan would provide a trained reserve of 5,000,000 men by 1959, at a yearly cost of $1 billion. On Dec. 20, Secy. Wilson reported new reductions in the strength of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. New cuts would reduce the military from 3,218,000 men to 2,815,000 by June 30, 1956. Air Force was to be increased from 961,000 to 975,000 by 1956.

In a letter to Secy. Wilson, Jan. 5, President Eisenhower called for a cut in the Armed Forces, but to a lesser degree than Wilson had proposed. The President called for a force of 3,000,000 by June 30, 1955, and of 2,850,000 by June 30, 1956. President Eisenhower sought attainment of Wilson's Air Force figures by mid-1955.

Inquiry on Foundations

Dec. 19—House Special Committee to Investigate Tax-Exempt Foundations, Rep. B. Carroll Reece (R.-Tenn.), ch., in a majority report, alleged some tax-exempt "public" foundations allowed their funds to be distributed to causes detrimental to the American system. Democratic minority rejected the majority opinion. Dean Rusk of the Rockefeller Foundation and H. Rowan Galtier, Jr., of the Ford Foundation and others called the committee findings false and charged the committee had failed to include in its report answers by foundations to charges made by the committee. Rep. Reece was criticized for ending public hearings before the foundations presented their case. . . . Senate Banking and Currency Committee, Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R.-Ind.), ch., reported that "maladministration" in the Federal Housing Administration was responsible for millions of dollars in "windfall" housing profits. Builders were charged with misrepresenting to Congress, 1942 to 1950, the "existence of wrongdoing" in the apartment building pro-

Hammaraskjold and Chou En-lai Discuss Release of U.S. Airmen

U.N. General Assembly, 47 to 5 (Communist bloc), condemned the People's Republic of China (Communist) Dec. 10, for the "trial and conviction of prisoners of war illegally detained" after Sept. 25, 1953, the date set by the Korean armistice for the release of prisoners. Resolution called on Secy. Gen. Dag Hammaraskjold to continue efforts to obtain the release of 11 American airmen convicted of espionage by a Communist military tribunal and of other U.N. personnel still in the hands of the Chinese Communists. Peiping radio said Dec. 13 that the U.N. had no right to interfere in the sentencing.

Proposal by Hammaraskjold to meet in Peiping, with Chou En-lai, premier of Communist China, to discuss the imprisonment of the 11 Americans was accepted by Chou En-lai, Dec. 17. Hammaraskjold arrived in Peiping, Jan. 5. Formal parleys with Chou En-lai began Jan. 6, ended Jan. 10. Joint communique said discussions had been "pertinent to the relaxation of world tension." Hammaraskjold and Chou En-lai hoped to continue the contact established in the "useful" meetings. While Hammaraskjold's visit concerned the prisoner issue primarily, the two presumably discussed the admission of Communist China to the U.N. Hammaraskjold returned to New York, Jan. 13, and conferred with Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. representative to the U.N. Lodge later said he was confident the airmen would be released.

Hammaraskjold said Jan. 14, that "no deals of any kind" had been made regarding the imprisoned airmen and no connections between the prisoner question and any other question had been suggested by either side. He declared that a lessening of tension between the U. S. and Communist China might aid in bringing about the release of the 11 airmen. Sen. William F. Knowland (R.-Calif.), Senate minority leader, said Jan. 17, that U.N. efforts to free the Americans had failed. He warned that appeasement of Communist China might follow, asserting Hammaraskjold favored admission of Communist China into the U.N. According to Sen. Knowland, 800 American servicemen were missing since becoming prisoners in Korea and 28 American civilians were imprisoned. If the U.N. appeased Russia through a "Far Eastern Munich" by allowing Communist China to join the U.N., he foresaw greater demands by the Communists.

Hammaraskjold, meeting with Secy. of State Dulles, Jan. 19, said he hoped it would be possible to have the airmen released if there was "restraint on all sides." Secy. Dulles said President Eisenhower favored leaving the matter in the hands of the U.N. "for the time being," despite strong sentiment favoring direct action by the U. S.

Communist China offered to permit relatives to visit U. S. prisoners of war held in China, according to a Hammaraskjold report Jan. 21. Among relatives of 17 Americans, 2 families were willing to go. U. S. State Dept. said any Americans who accepted the offer would have to travel to China at his own risk. American Red Cross offered financial aid. U. S. called the Chinese invitation propaganda. Secy. Dulles notified relatives of the 17 imprisoned Americans, Jan. 27, that the U. S., in view of the "belligerent" attitude of the Chinese Communists, had decided against granting passports to visit Communist China. See Chronology for August.

gram carried on with the assistance of the FHA. Committee made no specific recommendations.

Dec. 21—Secy. of State Dulles, after attending NATO Council meetings in Paris, reported that tactical nuclear weapons presumably would be used in the event Western Europe was attacked.

Dec. 23—Federal Court of Appeals in Washington upheld, 2 to 1, the constitutionality of the 1950 Subversive Activities Control Act. Communist party had taken the case to court after the Subversive Activities Control Board ordered the party to register with the Attorney General. Decision was the first on the constitutionality of the law known as the McCarran Act.

FOREIGN

Dec. 2—Economic conference in Petropolis, Brazil, ended with the 21 American republics adopting resolutions on raw materials, transportation, technical cooperation and ways of attracting foreign capital. U. S. voted with other nations for a study of coffee price fluctuations. U. S. agreed to seek from Congress tax exemptions for corporations in foreign countries but abstained from voting on a controversial proposal for a study of the formation of an inter-American bank or fund based on each nation's gold reserves and foreign exchange.

Yoshida Resigns

Dec. 7—Shigeru Yoshida, premier of Japan, and his entire cabinet resigned. He was dissuaded by his Liberal party from dissolving the lower house of the Diet (parliament) and seeking new elections. Diet, Dec. 9, chose Ichiro Hatoyama, conservative Democrat, to be premier until elections were held in the spring of 1955.

Dec. 15—The Netherlands ratified statutes granting self-rule to the Dutch Antilles and Surinam. Control over foreign policy and defense was retained by the Netherlands.

Dec. 21—A treaty associating Britain with the 6-nation European Coal and Steel Community for 50 yrs. was signed in London. Britain and the Community were to try to eliminate restrictions on coal and steel between their areas, but both signatories retained independent control of their areas.

Dec. 23—Pres. Tito of Yugoslavia, visiting India, agreed with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in rejecting the idea that nations shunning the East-West conflict should form a "third force" in the world. Both stated that "peaceful co-existence" was the key to the survival of civilization.

France Approves German Arming

Dec. 24—French Natl. Assembly, 280 to 259, refused to ratify an agreement to join Western European Union, which would include West Germany and Italy in a European defensive group. German sovereignty was approved 380 to 180, and the Saar accord between France and West Germany by 368 to 145. On Dec. 28, the Assembly, 289 to 251, ratified a protocol inviting West Germany to join NATO, and on Dec. 30, approved the Western European Union and West German rearmament, 287 to 260.

Dec. 29—Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia signed agreements with France giving the 3 Indo-Chinese states economic independence and virtually ending foreign control. The states granted each other freedom of navigation on the Mekong River.

UNITED NATIONS

Dec. 4—General Assembly unanimously adopted a resolution backing President Eisenhower's program for the peaceful use of atomic energy and inviting members of U.N. and its agencies to participate in a conference. Soviet Union voted for the resolution.

Dec. 10—General Assembly, 47 to 5 (Communist bloc), condemned the People's Republic of China (Communist) for the "trial and conviction of prisoners of war illegally detained" after Sept. 25, 1953, the date set by the Korean armistice for the release of prisoners. Resolution called on Secy. Gen. Dag Hammarskjöld to continue efforts to obtain the release of 11 American airmen convicted of espionage by a Communist military tribunal and of other U.N. personnel still in the hands of the Chinese Communists. Peiping radio said Dec. 13, that U.N. had no right to interfere.

Dec. 11—The General Assembly voted to recommend all-Korea elections to unite North and South Korea under one government. Vote was 50 to 5, Soviet bloc opposed.

Dec. 14—About 5,000 demonstrators attempting to reach the U. S. embassy in Athens, Greece, to protest U. S. refusal to back a Greek move in the U.N. to free Cyprus from British rule, clashed with police. Injured numbered 75. Political and Security Committee of the General Assembly, Dec. 15, adopted a compromise resolution 49 to 0, to defer consideration of the Cyprus issue at the current session of the General Assembly.

Dec. 17—Ninth General Assembly adjourned after 72 days of sessions, to meet again at the 10th anniversary observance of U.N. in San Francisco June 20. One of its final acts was to vote down a resolution brought by the Soviet Union condemning the U. S. for aggression against Communist China and violation of the freedom of the seas in the China Sea by the 7th U. S. Fleet.

The General Assembly approved, 52 to 5 (Soviet bloc opposed) payment of $179,420 indemnity to 11 U. S. citizens removed by the Secretariat because they took refuge in the 5th and other amendments when asked about communist ties by House investigating committees. The U. S. agreed to pay-

President Calls for Democratic Cooperation, Opposes Tax Cuts

In his State of the Union message to the 84th Congress, Jan. 6, President Eisenhower called for cooperation between the Republican executive and the Democratic Congress to aid peace and prosperity and to prevent "indecision approaching futility."

Acknowledging progress made in 1954 in foreign affairs, he pointed out that increasing Russian military power made the peace insecure. The President asked for "unhesitating cooperation" among the branches of the Government, declaring the U. S. could not carry on "politics as usual." Both parties were on trial before the American people, he said, and, in the quest for peace and freedom "we who hold positions of public trust . . . must subordinate to the general good our partisan, our personal pride and prejudice." He believed the state of the nation was good—the transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy having been largely completed.

Many of his legislative requests to the 83rd Congress again were introduced by the President, but 3 new programs were called for—the creation of a reserve training program to supplement an extended draft law, the beginning of a Federal program to meet the shortage of classrooms in public schools, and an increase in the Federal minimum wage from 75c to 90c an hr. He opposed any further tax reductions during 1955, but hoped additional cuts would be possible by 1956.

Proposals reintroduced included a Federal health reinsurance program; amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act; lowering the voting age to 18; approval of statehood for Hawaii with later action on Alaska; authorization for 35,000 public housing units in each of the next 2 fiscal years; reduction of certain tariff barriers; programs for highways, water resources, drought aid and public works; and continuation of technical aid for underdeveloped nations, the Defense Production Act and the Small Business Act.

The President advocated an increase in individual pay rates of Federal workers and based increases for postal clerks on a rise in postal rates. He advocated Federal health insurance on a contributory basis for Federal employees and families, on group insurance methods and purchased from private facilities. A rise in salaries of members of Congress and the Federal judiciary "to a level commensurate with their heavy responsibilities" was also recommended.

ment after the General Assembly had approved establishment of a board of 18 nations to study judicial review of U.N. tribunal decisions, and providing a special indemnity fund of $250,000. The vote was 36 to 5, Soviet bloc opposed.

GENERAL

Dec. 3—Anti-trust suit against E. I. DuPont de Nemours Co., General Motors Corp., U. S. Rubber Co. and members of the DuPont family, accused of curtailing competition by holdings in these companies, was dismissed by Federal Judge Walter J. LaBuy, Chicago, on ground Govt. had not proved its charges. . . . Natl. Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., representing 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox church bodies with a membership of over 35,000,000, ended its week-long biennial General Assembly in Boston. Assembly said the U. S. was ready for a "great spiritual awakening and revival." Opposition of Christianity to communism was reaffirmed and the Assembly called on churches to end segregation.

Dec. 4—In New Orleans, Paul M. Butler, Indiana lawyer, was elected ch. of the Democratic Natl. Committee, to replace Stephen A. Mitchell of Illinois, who retired Jan. 1, 1955.

U.S.S. Forrestal Launched

Dec. 11—U.S.S. Forrestal, world's largest war ship, was launched at Newport News, Va. The 59,650-ton aircraft carrier has a flight deck 1,036 ft. by 252 ft., making it the longest and widest vessel afloat, twice as wide as the Panama Canal. The Forrestal will have a speed of over 30 knots and carry atom bombers and guided missiles. Estimated total cost was $200,000,000.

Dec. 14—In Brooklyn, N. Y., Jack Koslow, 18, and Melvin Mittman, 17, were convicted of murdering Willard Menter, 34-yr.-old factory worker. Jerome Lieberman, 17, another defendant, was acquitted Dec. 9, and the case against Robert Trachtenberg, 15, who testified for the prosecution, was severed Nov. 22. Trachtenberg was committed Jan. 18, 1955, to a youth institution for an indefinite period. Mittman and Koslow were sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 24. Parole was ruled out.

Sheppard Convicted

Dec. 21—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, osteopath, on trial in Cleveland, O., for the July 4, 1954, murder of his wife, Marilyn, was convicted of murder in the second degree. Sheppard was sentenced to life imprisonment. Requests for a new trial were denied May 9, 1955. Sheppard's mother, Ethel Sheppard, 62, committed suicide Jan. 7, 1955, leaving a note saying she could not manage without her husband. Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, 11 in a hospital. The elder Sheppard died Jan. 18.

Dec. 31—A Liberian tanker struck the El Firdan bridge over the Suez Canal, near Ismailia, knocking a 350-ton section into the waterway and blocking it for 3 days. Accident held up about 60 ships and caused the rerouting of 300 others.

The 1953 conviction of Minot F. Jelke in New York on vice charges was reversed by the New York State Court of Appeals because trial Judge Francis L. Valente had barred the public and the press from the court room. New trial was ordered; it opened in New York, Mar. 14, 1955. Jelke was convicted Mar. 31 on 2 counts of compulsory prostitution, and was sentenced Apr. 28, to 2 to 3 yrs. in prison.

Disasters

Airliner hit a mountain peak near Luang Prabang, Laos, Dec. 4, killing 26 aboard. . . . Tornadoes struck western Georgia and eastern Alabama, Dec. 5, killing 1, injuring 47. . . . Indian government radio reported 64 miners died Dec. 10, in a coal mine cave-in at Parasia, central India. . . . Italian Airlines DC-6B transport from Rome, crashed near shore in Jamaica Bay, N. Y., Dec. 18, after failing to make an instrument landing at New York International Airport, Idlewild, Queens, N. Y., during a rainstorm. Of 32 aboard, 26 died. . . . Earthquake in southern Oregon and northern California, Dec. 21, killed 1 and caused $1,000,000 damage. . . . DC-3 with 28 aboard, including 23 soldiers, crash-landed in the Monongahela River, 15 mi. from Pittsburgh, Penn., Dec. 22. Ten died. . . . British Overseas Airways Strato-cruiser, London to New York, crashed and burned at Prestwick Airport, Scotland, Dec. 25, killing 28 of 36 aboard. . . . USAF C-119, 11 aboard, crashed during a violent storm near Guntersville, Ala., Dec. 29, killing 9 men. Nineteen other persons died as snow and sleet blanketed the Southwest. Toll reached 57, Dec. 30, when the Midwest and New England were hit by snowstorms.

January—1955

WASHINGTON

Jan. 1—By proclamation and executive order, President Eisenhower designated Jan. 31, as the date wartime benefits granted to veterans during the Korean war were to end. President, Feb. 15, signed a law continuing G.I. education benefits for those who entered military before Feb. 1.

Jan. 2—Joseph M. Swing, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, reported to the Attorney General that 5,261 criminals and 184 subversives had been deported from the U.S. between 1950 and 1954. In 1954, 266,788 illegal Mexican immigrants had been rounded up, and 66,643 aliens had been naturalized.

Russians in U.S. Restricted

Jan. 3—State Dept. put 27% of the U.S. out of bounds to Soviet citizens, in a retaliatory move against travel restrictions on U.S. citizens in USSR. Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Delaware were closed entirely to the Russians. About 400 Soviet citizens were affected; approximately 50 U.N. members and those who enter the U.S. temporarily were exempt.

Jan. 4—U.S. agreed to pay Japan $2,000,000 for damages resulting from atomic tests in the Marshall Islands in March, 1954. The 22 Japanese fishermen injured and the family of one who died from contact with radioactive ash were to share in the award. Fishing interests that suffered losses from contaminated fish also were to be compensated. . . . Federal Reserve Board increased the margin requirement for stock purchases from 50% to 60%, effective Jan. 5. [It raised margins to 70% Apr. 25.] This was met with disapproval by Keith Funston, pres., New York Stock Exchange, who said money borrowed for margin purchases totalled $2.2 billion in November, 1954—under 1.4% of the market value of all stocks owned. . . . Joseph S. Petersen, Jr., former employee of the Natl. Security Agency, was sentenced in Alexandria, Va., to 7 yrs. in prison for taking secret documents from the files of the agency. Petersen had pleaded guilty.

Jan. 5—The 84th Congress, 1st Session, convened. Rep. Sam Rayburn (D.-Tex.), after taking the oath as Speaker of the House for the 7th time, asserted that President Eisenhower's program would be examined non-politically. He was acclaimed for calling for harmony on foreign policy.

Wolf Ladejinsky, removed from his post in Tokyo as agricultural attache in December, 1954, by Secy. of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson on security grounds, was cleared as a security risk. See also page 107. . . . President Eisenhower said Jan. 19, that a special unit of the Justice Dept. had been ordered to act as mediator between Government agencies in differences of opinion.

Zwicker Cleared in Peress Case

Jan. 7—Defense Dept. announced Dr. Irving Peress, former major and Army dentist, was honorably discharged by Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, deputy chief of staff, and John G. Adams, Army counselor. Discharge had been urged by Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker Oct. 21, 1953, before Sen. McCarthy charged subversion. Peress was promoted to major Oct. 23, 1953 by Adjutant General, who was unaware of any charge, as part of automatic correction of rank of medical men improperly made captains under the draft act. Discharge was set for Feb. 2, 1954. When Sen. McCarthy's demand for court martial reached Pentagon Feb. 1 Weible and Adams saw no evidence of subversive activities and decided to "get Peress out of the service as expeditiously as possible." See also pp. 97-98.

Jan. 9—Lewis L. Strauss, ch., AEC, in line with Government plan to aid private industry in the development and operation of atomic power plants, called for private proposals by Apr. 1, on the construction of reactors.

Jan. 10—President Eisenhower called on Congress to extend for 3 yrs. the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act authority to cut tariffs below current limits in return for trade concessions by foreign countries. He also asked for tax concessions on foreign earnings of U.S. firms, further simplifications of customs procedure and increasing from $500 to $1,000 the duty-free allowances of travelers returning from abroad.

Jan. 11—President's advisory committee on highways, headed by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, recommended a Federal, state and local highway program to be realized in 10 yrs., with provisions for traffic needs 20 to 30 yrs. hence. Cost of program was estimated at $101 billion—about $25 billion above expenditures planned by the Government. The additional money would be raised by the sale of bonds issued by a Federal Highway Corp. . . . Russia's possession of the hydrogen bomb lessened the time the free world has to find a way of getting along with the Soviet Union, according to Lewis L. Strauss, AEC ch. On the bright side, he said, were President Eisenhower's atoms for peace program, the progress and superiority of the U. S. in the atomic weapons field, development of electric power from nuclear materials, liberalized Atomic Energy Act, medical advances through atomic radiation and the goodwill of the free world.

"Massive Retaliation"

Jan. 12—Secy. of State Dulles, in an address in New York, said the President and the National Security Council had taken a basic decision "to depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate instantly by means and at places of our choosing." This became known as "massive retaliation" and incurred criticism as alarming the allies. On Mar. 15 Secy. Dulles modified the statement, saying small nuclear weapons could pinpoint their attacks.

President Urges Draft Extension

Jan. 13—In a message to Congress on military manpower, the President proposed continuance of the present selective service system for another 4 yrs. after it expired June 30, 1955. Draftees would be required to serve 24 mos. on active duty and then be released into the inactive reserve or to serve 6 mos. active duty followed by 9½ yrs. in the active reserve. Draft ages would remain at 18½ and 19. He called for an aggregate pay rise of approximately 6.7% plus other benefits. The President also emphasized the cost of training—$3,200 for a private's basic training, plus $2,000 to $5,000 for training in technical skills, and $120,000 to train a jet pilot.

Budget Proposals

Jan. 17—President Eisenhower, in his budget message to Congress, estimated Government expenditures for fiscal 1956, beginning July 1, at $62.41 billion, with receipts set at $60 billion, leaving a deficit of $2.41 billion. He said the estimate took into account the maintenance of an "insecure peace." In view of the expected deficit, he called for cancellation of the $3 billion reduction in corporation and excise taxes.

Approximately $34 billion was proposed for national defense—$15.6 billion for the Air Force, $9.7 billion for the Navy and $8.85 billion for the Army. For atomic energy programs the President asked $2 billion, for foreign military aid $4.7 billion and for strategic materials $783,000,000.

Senate Reforms Procedure

Jan. 18—Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee eased its rules to provide more protection for witnesses. Sen. John L. McClellan (D.-Ark.), who replaced Sen. Jos. R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) as ch., also reported an end to former practices, including one-man committee meetings, issuance of public summonings of testimony given in secret, making transcripts difficult for witnesses to obtain, holding surprise hearings away from Washington, interrogation of witnesses by other than committee members or authorized agents, appointments to key committee jobs without approval by the minority, preventing witnesses from filing statements in advance, issuance of secret testimony with accusations against persons unable to defend themselves, and permitting criticism of individuals who were given no chance to reply.

Owen Latimore Case

In Federal District Court, Washington, D.C., Judge Luther W. Youngdahl threw out a 2-count indictment charging Owen Latimore with falsely denying before a Senate Internal Security subcommittee in 1952 that he was a follower of the Communist line or a promoter of Communist causes. Judge Youngdahl said the indictment failed to meet constitutional requirements for clarity. Dismissal of the charges, brought by the Government, Oct. 7, 1954, left 5 counts of the original indictment standing. Federal Court of Appeals, Washington, upheld dismissal, June 14, whereupon Atty. Gen. Brownell dropped prosecution because unlikely to succeed.

Secy. of Defense Charles E. Wilson, testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of the President's request for a 3-yr. extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, urged increased trade with Communist nations. He believed trade in "carefully screened nonstrategic items" might eventually promote basic understandings that would contribute to world peace. Pres. Eisenhower said, Jan. 19, that Wilson's statement did not carry his approval.

Jan. 19—Mrs. Annie Lee Moss, suspended twice from her clerical job with the Army after hearings by the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, Sen. Jos. R. McCarthy, ch., was restored to an Army job but transferred from the Pentagon by Secy. of Defense Wilson, as "not actually subversive or disloyal."

Jan. 20—In his annual Economic Report to Congress, the President forecast a long-term expansion of economy, with a "high and satisfactory level of employment and production" in 1955. He opposed any tax reduction in 1955, but hoped for "modest" reductions in 1956.

Ridgway vs. Army Cut

Jan. 31—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, testified before the House Armed Services Committee that President Eisenhower's plan to cut Army ground forces "jeopardizes" the safety and security of the U.S. Secy. of the Army Robert T. Stevens, however, backed the proposed 140,000-man reduction by 1956. President said Feb. 2, that the military manpower cuts were correct on a long-term basis, according to his best judgment. He said he had the top responsibility to make recommendations to Congress. . . . In an affidavit filed in New York, Harvey Matusow, former Communist, declared he, as a Government witness, had lied at Communist trials and Congressional hearings. He said Roy M. Cohn, then an asst. U.S. attorney, had helped him create false testimony for the New York trial of 13 Communist leaders. Cohn called the affidavit a "Communist maneuver," saying he was in Spain when Matusow testified. Matusow was sentenced in El Paso, Tex., Mar. 16, to 3 yrs. in prison for contempt of court. He was cited for obstructing justice and "scheming" to set aside a conviction obtained earlier, partly because of his testimony. In New York, Apr. 22, 2 secondary Communist leaders convicted on his testimony were granted a new trial.

FOREIGN

Jan. 2—Jose Antonio Remon, 46, pres. of Panama, was slain by assassins at the Juan Franco race track in Panama. Two others were killed and 3 were wounded by the blast of machine-gun fire. Jose Ramon Guizado, first vice pres., succeeded but was deposed by the Natl. Assembly and ordered held for plotting the murder of Remon. Second vice pres. Ricardo Arias Espinosa was sworn in as pres. Assembly acted after Ruben Miro, prominent lawyer, confessed plotting and carrying out the assassination alone. Miro, who said the attack was made with Guizado's knowledge, asserted he had been offered an important government post for slaying Remon. Pres. Espinosa doubted Guizado had taken an active part in the plot. A commission to study charges against Guizado was set up Jan. 17 and recommended that Guizado be brought to trial. Trial opened Mar. 21, and on Mar. 29, Guizado was convicted of complicity and given a 6 yr. 8 mos. prison term.

Jan. 8—In Berlin, the Soviet Union freed two Americans—John H. Noble of Detroit, a civilian arrested in Dresden in 1945, and Pvt. William J. Marchuk of Norristown, Penn., taken prisoner in Berlin in 1949. Marchuk was charged with informing. Pvt. William A. Verdine was released Jan. 20, after 6 yrs.

Jan. 9—Iraq enacted measures ending the Communist party's drive for political power and forcing it underground. Soviet Union recalled its legation in Iraq. Iraq had suspended diplomatic relations with Russia, Nov. 6, 1954.

Jan. 10—West German Refugee Ministry reported that 184,198 persons had left East Germany for the Western sector in 1954. Ministry also said about 7,000 persons were leaving West Germany each month to settle in the Soviet zone.

Yugoslavia and Communist China reported they had entered into diplomatic relations. Negotiations were held in Moscow.

Short Costa Rican Revolt

Jan. 11—An airborne armed force of nearly 100 rebels seized Villa Quesada, Costa Rica, and was dislodged by loyal Costa Rican forces the next day. Pres. Jose Figueres of Costa Rica, asserting the men had come from Nicaragua, accused Nicaragua of an act of aggression and asked the Council of the Organization of American States for military aid. Pres. Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua denied the rebels had come from his country. OAS invoked the 1947 Rio de Janeiro defense treaty and set up a 5-nation investigating committee. U.S., authorized by the OAS, sent 4 F-51 Mustang fighter planes to Costa Rica, Jan. 16. Planes, costing $50,000 each, reportedly were sold to Costa Rica for a token payment of $1 each. Rebel domination of the air with a fighter, 2 trainers and a transport ended almost immediately.

OAS committee reported, Feb. 17, that the rebels were mostly Costa Ricans who had been based in Nicaragua. It called for conciliation of disputes between the 2 countries and greater control by the OAS over arms traffic in the Western Hemisphere. OAS Council in Washington, Feb. 24, asked both nations to set up a peace commission to settle any future disputes and called on each nation to bar its territory from rebels seeking to attack the other country. Presidents of both nations assured Vice Pres. Nixon, on a tour of Caribbean countries, that they would work to ease tensions.

Jan. 14—Premier Oscar Torp of Norway and his Labor government resigned. The premier retired after 25 yrs. in government service.

Adenauer, Mendes-France Meet

Jan. 14—Talks between Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany and Premier Pierre Mendes-France, meeting in Baden-Baden, Germany, resulted in closer ties. Both agreed to meet obligations for the maintenance and strengthening of peace and to continue efforts with other free nations to ease tensions between East and West. They discussed measures to implement the Saar agreement signed Oct. 23, 1954, including preparations for a plebiscite. An international commission presumably would supervise the plebiscite. Disputes over the Saar statute and the functions of a Saar commissioner to be appointed by the Council of the Western European Union were to be handled within the framework of the Union. They agreed to seek a British-U.S. guarantee for the statute. Economic terms also were discussed. Details were worked out on a current 6-mos. trade agreement calling for increased agricultural exports from France to West Germany. A long-term agreement was under study. Arms standardization also was agreed upon.

Jan. 20—Uprising in Guatemala was suppressed. About 10 persons were killed in an attack on a military base in Guatemala City. Over 100 were arrested. State of siege was proclaimed throughout the country. Pres. Carlos Castillo Armas asserted Communist-inspired elements had been aided by military groups connected with the government of Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, ousted June, 1954. . . . U.S., France and Vietnam agreed to reorganize the Vietnamese army on a basis of 100,000 regulars and 150,000 reserves. U.S. was to train troops under the direction of Gen. Paul Ely, French comdr. in Indo-China.

Jan. 24—Premier Ichiro Hatoyama dissolved the lower house of Japan's Diet (parliament) and ordered elections held in late February. Hatoyama, in office 1½ mos., had pledged an election in return for Socialist aid in electing him premier.

Panama Canal Treaty

Jan. 25—Panama and the U.S. signed a new treaty on the Canal Zone, increasing the yearly payment to Panama from $430,000 to $1,930,000, and returning to Panama certain land areas valued at over $20,000,000. See Panama Canal, page 198. . . . Supreme Soviet formally ended state of war with Germany, reserving rights and obligations under the Potsdam-Yalta agreements.

Jan. 28—Two Mau Mau leaders surrendered following an amnesty offer by the British. Gen. Sir George Erskine, British East Africa comdr., reported that 7,811 Mau Mau had been killed, 1,193 captured and 828 had surrendered during the 28-mo. emergency in Kenya. Thirty Europeans, 19 Asians and 1,316 African civilians had been killed by the anti-white terrorist organization.

Jan. 29—Hans Hedtoft, 51, premier of Denmark, died in Stockholm, Sweden. He was succeeded Feb. 1, by H. C. Hansen, 49, who retained his post as foreign minister in the Social Democratic government.

Iraq in Alliance with Turkey

Jan. 31—Arab leaders met in Baghdad, Iraq, to ease tension between Iraq and Egypt that threatened to disrupt the Arab League. Egypt warned it would withdraw from the League if Iraq went through with plans for an alliance with Turkey. Arab League ended its meeting Feb. 6, when members failed to dissuade Iraq from completing the treaty, signed Feb. 24. Egypt, Syria and Saudi-Arabia reported agreement Mar. 6, on a plan to strengthen the military, political and economic strength of the Arab states. The Arab League denied the new organization would replace it. . . . In South Africa, about 60,000 Africans

Congress Votes Powers to Defend Formosa; Efforts for Truce

President Eisenhower, Jan. 24, asked Congress for emergency powers to permit U.S. Armed Forces to protect Formosa and the Pescadores, and to be ready to assist in deployment and consolidation of Nationalist forces and take appropriate military action against Communist forces massed on the islands off mainland of China for an invasion of Formosa. A joint resolution was offered in the House by Rep. Jas. P. Richards (D-S.C.) and in the Senate by Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.). The House adopted the resolution 409-3, Jan. 25—opposed were Graham Barden (D-S.C.), Eugene D. Siler (R-Ky.), Timothy P. Sheehan (R-Ill.). The Senate adopted it 85-3, Jan. 28—opposed were H. H. Lehman (D-N.Y.), Wm. Langer (R-N.D.), Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

The President explained that U.S. Forces were for defense only and not for a "preventive war," as charged by Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.). The Chinese Communist radio called the message a step in preparation for a new war.

The 18th Fighter-Bomber Wing was ordered, Jan. 27, from Okinawa and the Philippines for temporary duty on Formosa. The aircraft carriers Midway, Essex, Yorktown and Kearsarge, the cruiser Pittsburgh and 4 destroyers joined the 7th U.S. Fleet.

About 100 Communist planes raided the Tachens, Jan. 10. Nationalists reported sinking 44 hostile craft around Tachens, Jan. 20. Chinese Communists captured Yikiang Isl., 7½ mi. nw. of Tachens, Jan. 18; 750 Nationalist guerrillas who had killed 1,500 Communists held out until Jan. 21. Units of the 7th Fleet helped evacuate 25,000 military and 17,000 civilians from Tachens, Feb. 6-11.

The Security Council, U.N., Jan. 31, voted 9-1 (Soviet Union opposed, Natl. China abstaining) to discuss a cease-fire between Nationalist China and the Communists. It voted 9-1 (Natl. China opposed, Soviet abstaining) to invite the Chinese Communists to join the discussion. The project originated with Sir Leslie Know Munro, pres., Security Council, on behalf of New Zealand; the second invitation was strongly supported by the French.

Foreign Secy. Sir Anthony Eden (Britain) had urged the U.N. to seek a cease-fire; in Moscow the British Ambassador asked Foreign Minister Molotov to help stop Communist China from creating an incident that might lead to general fighting. Molotov in turn blamed the "aggressive actions" of U.S. Soviet Union, Jan. 30, asked U.N. to bring about withdrawal of U.S. forces, with a halt in military action on both sides to facilitate removal of armed forces from islands not controlled by Communist China.

U.N. Secy. Gen. Hammarskjöld, Peiping, Jan. 31; Peiping, Jan. 31, Feb. 3, declaring that U.N. action that began a peaceful 13-day protest against government plans to move them from Johannesburg to a new town outside the city. Forced removal of natives from their homes began Feb. 9. . . . Yugoslavia planned to cut military production and emphasize the output of civilian goods, according to Tanjug, official government news agency. About 30% of military plant facilities were to be used to make civilian goods, contrasted with 6% in 1953. . . . Two Jews, one a French citizen, convicted with 13 others as spies and saboteurs, were hanged in Cairo, Egypt, despite efforts by France and Jewish religious leaders to save them. Premier Moshe Sharett of Israel charged the Egyptian government with attempting to strengthen its position against opposition in Egypt and in the Arab League by making scapegoats of Jews. . . . Prime ministers of the British Commonwealth opened a 10-day conference in London. Differences over the approach to Far Eastern problems were resolved. Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was said to understand U.S. responsibility toward Nationalist China and to accept U.S. refusals to bar Nationalist China from a conference on Formosa.

UNITED NATIONS

Jan. 17—Soviet Union reported it would share its nuclear materials and scientific knowledge with Communist China, Czechoslovakia, Poland, East Germany and Rumania. Earlier Russia had said it wished to take part in U.N. preparations for an international conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy. First conference tentatively was set for Geneva in August. Committee, with members from the U.S., Britain, Russia, Canada, France, Brazil and India, began planning for the conference.

GENERAL

Jan. 1—Averell Harriman, Democrat, 63, was inaugurated as Governor of New York, in Albany, succeeding Thomas E. Dewey, R. In his inaugural address, Gov. Harriman pledged "bold" policies to solve state problems and raise incomes of low-bracket families.

Jan. 8—New York State Council of Churches, representing 17 Protestant denominations with about 1,500,000 members, opened a vigorous campaign against measures before the New York State legislature to legalize bingo.

Communist Leaders Jailed

Jan. 11—Elizabeth Gurley Flynn and 11 other Communist leaders were jailed in New York, following refusal by the Supreme Court, Jan. 10, to review their conviction for conspiracy to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U.S. government. Action to jail a 13th defendant, on trial in Washington, D.C., on other charges, was not taken immediately. Two—Jacob Mindel and Claudia Jones—offered, Jan. 26, to leave the U.S. if their sentences were reduced to the time already served. When sentenced, all had refused an offer by Judge Edward J. Dimock to suspend the sentences of those who agreed to go to the Soviet Union.

Jan. 13—In New York directors approved a merger of the Chase Natl. Bank and the Bank of the Manhattan Co. Merger, which was legally accomplished Mar. 31, formed the Chase Manhattan Bank, second largest in the U.S. John J. McCloy, ch. of Chase, became ch. of the board, J. Stewart Baker, ch. of Manhattan, became ch. of the executive committee. Combined resources total $7.58 billion.

Jan. 17—Atomic submarine Nautilus began its first sea tests in Long Island Sound. Its first dive was made Jan. 20. Nautilus returned to port Jan. 24, after making 50 dives, cruising 1,000 mi. and running on nuclear power for almost 150 hrs.

Prison Reform Sought After Escape Attempt

Jan. 18—Four prisoners seized 5 guards at the Massachusetts State Prison, Boston, in an attempt to bargain for their freedom. Armed with pistols and knives, the convicts held out until Jan. 21. Hostages were unharmed. Surrender was brought about after they conferred with a 7-man committee of their own choosing. Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor and spokesman, pledged that he and the other committee members would work for better conditions in the prison. Gov. Christian A. Hertz of Mass., Jan. 26, chose a 4-man committee, headed by Dr. Nils Wessell, pres., Tufts College, to study the penal code and the correctional system of Massachusetts.

Jan. 24—Joseph P. Ryan, 71, former head of the International Longshoremen's Assn., Ind., was found guilty in New York of taking $2,500 in gratuities from employers, in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act. Ryan was sentenced Feb. 1, to 6 mos. in prison and fined $2,500. Decision was reversed by Federal Ct. of Appeals, which said a union officer cannot be prosecuted for acting as bargaining agent. The U. S. Supreme Court Oct. 17 granted the Govt. a review of the reversal.

MacArthur Warns on War

Jan. 26—In Los Angeles, following dedication of a monument in MacArthur Park on his 75th birthday, Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur urged the U.S. and other great powers to abolish war. He warned the alternative was an arms race that might result in nuclear warfare by "spontaneous combustion." He said distrust between the West and the Soviet world fostered present tensions. Commenting on the Far Eastern situation, he said Communist China faced defeat if it fought in Korea and Indo-China at the same time it fought the Nationalists on Formosa. Successful in Korea and Indo-China, the Communists turned to Formosa, demonstrating the military weakness of the theory of collective security—that the chain is no stronger than its weakest link. He declared collective force can be utilized only when there is simultaneous action. He pointed out that different interests of allies always tend to separate rather than unify. . . . In Federal Court, Chicago, Claude M. Lightfoot, executive secy. of the Illinois Communist party, was convicted of knowingly belonging to an organization that conspired against the U. S. government. He was sentenced to 5 yrs. and fined $5,000, Feb. 15. He planned appeal.

Jan. 27—Serge Rubenstein, 46, Russian-born financier and convicted draft-dodger, was found strangled in his New York City home.

Jan. 29—Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., founded as Stephen Sanford & Sons in Amsterdam, N.Y., in 1836, reported plans to shift operations devoted almost entirely to the production of Axminster carpets and yarn to its Thompsonville, Conn., plant. Move was to reduce costs. About 1,650 employees were affected. Amsterdam recently raised $300,000 by public subscription to attract new industries.

Disasters

Traffic accidents, New Year's Eve through Jan. 2, killed 296. . . . Furness liner Queen of Bermuda saved 10 aboard a wrecked Newfoundland fishing boat about 200 mi. northeast of Bermuda, Jan. 6. . . . About 40 persons reportedly were killed in a railroad accident near Aracaju, Brazil, Jan. 8. . . . USAF C-119 crashed and burned near Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 11; 37 of 39 aboard parachuted to safety. Another C-119 made a forced landing near Miles City, Mont., after 32 troopers made parachute jumps; 4 crewmen landed the plane. . . . Collision in mid-air between a TWA airliner and a private DC-3 near Burlington, Ky., Jan. 15, killed 15 persons. . . . U.S. Navy Super-Constellation crashed in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, off Newfoundland, Jan. 17, killing 13 men aboard. . . . Bus crashed in a canyon 50 mi. south of Mexico City, Jan. 21, killing 30 of 40 aboard. . . . Mine explosion in Zonguldak, Turkey, killed 54 miners, Jan. 24. . . . In fires throughout the U.S., Jan. 30 to Feb. 1, 48 persons died. Most of the deaths were caused by defective oil heaters. Worst blaze killed 11 children and 1 adult in Amsterdam, N.Y., Feb. 1. In New York City, 13 died.

February—1955

WASHINGTON

Feb. 1—Lewis L. Strauss, ch., AEC, denied that controversy over the Dixon-Yates contract had upset atomic energy programs or weapon production. His testimony before the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy conflicted with that by Thomas E. Murray, also a member of the AEC. Murray said Jan. 31, that AEC operations had been impaired by the contract signed by the AEC to permit a private corporation to construct a $107,250,000 steam plant at West Memphis, Ark. AEC voted 2 to 1, Feb. 8, to reject a Democratic demand that the contract be cancelled. SEC, Feb. 9, approved financing of the Dixon-Yates contract, 4 to 1, specifically authorizing the sale of $5,500,000 worth of common stock by the Mississippi Valley Generating Co. The company was set up by Middle South Utilities, Inc., headed by Edgar H. Dixon, which was to take 79% of the stock, and the Southern Co., headed by Eugene A. Yates, which was to take the remaining stock. . . . U.S. Tax Court ruled out a test case in which the Government sought to collect about $3,000,000 in back taxes from 11 stockholders of Gross-Morton Corporations, builders of Glen Oaks Village in Queens, L.I., N.Y., and the Mars homes development in Baltimore, Md. Projects were financed by Government loans totalling $24,000,000. Government had contended that windfall profits, allegedly $6,000,000, were distributed to stockholders, who, for income tax purposes, were able to treat their profits as capital gains. . . . South-east Asia treaty was approved by the Senate, 82 to 1. Treaty was signed in Manila, Sept. 8, 1954, by the U.S., Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand. . . . In New York, Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld approved the Government's first application to give immunity from prosecution to a witness in a Communist espionage case. It involved William L. Ullman, former Air Force officer and Treasury Dept. official, who previously had refused to testify about a wartime spy ring in Washington.

Adams Resigns as Army Counsel

Feb. 4—John G. Adams, a major figure in the dispute between the Army and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), resigned his post as Army counsel, effective Mar. 31. Secy. of the Army Robert T. Stevens accepted the resignation and praised Adams for his "loyal and steadfast support." Frank G. Millard, former Atty. Gen. of Michigan, was named Mar. 14, to succeed Adams.

Feb. 6—Vice Pres. and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon left Washington for Havana, Cuba, the first stop on a 4-wk goodwill tour of Caribbean nations. The Nixons returned to Washington, Mar. 5. The Vice Pres. said the Caribbean nations were making gains in economic and political stability, and the time was opportune for increasing trade with these nations. He called for more private investment in the Caribbean states.

Feb. 7—Henry W. Grunewald, 3 former tax officials, including Daniel A. Bolich, and a tax lawyer went on trial in Federal Court, New York, charged with conspiring to evade tax laws and with attempting to prevent Congress and a Federal grand jury from ascertaining facts in the case. They were convicted Mar. 28. Grunewald was sentenced Apr. 1, to 5 yrs. in prison and fined $10,000. On Apr. 14, Bolich was sentenced to 5 yrs. imprisonment and fined $15,000.

Feb. 8—President Eisenhower proposed a 3-yr., $7 billion Federal-state-local program for school construction. He requested Congress to make available $220,000,000 in Federal grants and about $900,000,000 in loans to meet a deficit of over 300,000 school classrooms. Democratic sponsors of education bills before committees criticized the program as inadequate and "makeshift."

Feb. 12—AEC reported U.S. had sold India 10 tons of heavy water to use in peaceful atomic energy research. Announcement coincided with the release of a report by a subcommittee of the Joint Atomic Energy committee urging implementation of President Eisenhower's atomic pool plan. Heavy water ranges in price from $80 to $100 a lb. The subcommittee, in a report on its 5-wk. visit to 11 countries in Europe and the Far East, said it had found out in India that Russian offers to aid Asian nations in peaceful atomic developments were worthless.

Hoover Commission Reports

Feb. 13—Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, in its first report to Congress on a more efficient and economical Government, said the need for better expert management was the "greatest weakness" in Government. Commission recommended the formation of a senior Civil Service group of skilled non-political administrators. Politically appointed executives would take over partisan work. Better pay would attract capable workers and lessen employee turnover, which in 1954 cost over $278,000,000, according to the Commission. Group believed the President should be authorized to transfer jobs to the political category. Special preferences for veterans would be altered after 5 yrs. to put veterans on a more competitive basis with non-veterans in Civil Service.

Commission called on the President, Feb. 20, to cut Government paper work, now costing about $4 billion a yr., to save an estimated $255,000,000 annually. It was recommended that the General Services Administration supervise the Executive Branch's paper work. Another report, Feb. 27, called Federal health services wasteful and urged an advisory council to review Federal health programs. Adoption of the Commission's proposals would save about $250,000,000 a yr. Commission, Mar. 13, recommended that Government lending services be cut or turned over to private business. Annual savings would amount to about $200,000,000. Fifth report, Apr. 3, urged an overhaul of Government transport functions, both domestic and foreign, to eliminate waste and inefficiency. Estimated savings would be $151,000,000.

Commission recommended, Apr. 10, an overhaul of Federal legal practices and procedures and called for a court to handle tax, trade and labor regulations. Commission said its proposals were intended to separate administrative and judicial functions in Federal agencies to protect the public against abuses of power. The 12-man bipartisan Commission said, Apr. 17, that billions of dollars could be saved through efficient disposal of Federal surpluses, valued at $155 billion.

Democrats Lose $20 Tax Cut

Feb. 25—The House approved a cut of $20 in income tax of every taxpayer and dependent effective Jan. 1, 1956, by 242 (221 D., 21 R.) vs. 175 (173 R., 2 D.). The cut was a rider on a bill postponing excise tax cuts one year. Treasury Secy. Geo. M. Humphrey opposed the cut as depriving the nation of much needed revenue. The Democratic bill was denounced by Republicans as a political gesture, intended to embarrass the President, who would veto it. In the Senate committee the rider was rejected 9 to 6, the ch., Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and Sen. Walter F. George (D., Ga.) voting with 7 Republicans against it. In the Senate amendments were offered to make the cut start at $10, increase it to $15 in 1957 and $20 in 1958; these were voted down.

FOREIGN

Feb. 1—In reply to a recent Russian proposal to normalize relations with Japan, the Japanese government said terms for a peace treaty were admission of Japan to the U.N., return of Soviet-occupied Habomai and Shikotan Islands, and establishment of Japanese fishing rights in the northern waters controlled by USSR. Japan also hoped to negotiate for the return of war prisoners held in the Soviet Union.

Feb. 2—Central Committee of the Communist party in Moscow, called on the agricultural industry to produce the equivalent of 164,000,000 tons of grain a year by 1960. Over 3% of the total was to be used to feed livestock. Plans also called for cultivation of about 75,000,000 acres on the Eastern Steppes by 1956. Principal task of the party was said to be expansion of heavy industries and electrification projects. Expanded production of consumer goods apparently was abandoned. . . . India and the Soviet Union signed a contract for the latter to build a 1,000,000-ton steel plant in the state of Madhya Pradesh, India, by 1960. India can cancel the agreement if the Russians do not submit a satisfactory progress report within 9 mos. or if the cost estimates greatly exceed the equivalent of $91,140,000.

Feb. 4—At a meeting of the representatives of the Commonwealth of Nations in London Pakistan announced its intention to end its status as a dominion and become a republic associated with the Commonwealth.

Faure Made French Premier

Feb. 5—Premier Pierre Mendes-France and his cabinet were ousted by the French Natl. Assembly, 319 votes to 273, in a dispute over the premier's policy in North Africa. He sought to enact peaceful reforms while partially agreeing to Tunisian nationalist demands for autonomy. Opposition saw abandonment of French power in North Africa and the encouragement of other nationalist movements. Parls agreements for rearming West Germany, social reforms in France and the Indo-Chinese settlement were delayed. Government crisis ended Feb. 23, when the Natl. Assembly approved Edgar Faure, radical socialist, and former finance and foreign affairs minister, as premier, 369-310, the socialists and communists casting 199 votes against him.

Feb. 6—Collectivization of agriculture was dropped in Yugoslavia, according to Vladimir Bakario, pres. of the Croatian parliament. Trend was toward Western-style cooperatives.

Feb. 7—Soviet government approved a 1955 budget providing 590.2 billion rubles in revenue and 563.5 billion in expenditures. In 1954 revenue was 572.5 billion and expenditures 562.8 billion. Heavy industry was to be developed in 1955 at a cost of 163.3 billion rubles, 30 billion over 1954 expenditures. Defense expenditures were set at 112 billion in 1955 against the previous year's 100 billion. (Exchange rate for the ruble is quoted at 4 to $1.)

Feb. 8—Foreign Minister Molotov announced in Council of the Supreme Soviet that Russia had an H-bomb lead over the U. S.

Feb. 9—In Pakistan, the Provincial Court of Sind province ruled the dismissal of the Natl. Assembly by Gov. Gen. Ghulam Mohammed on Oct. 24, 1954, was illegal. Court also invalidated his later appointment of ministers. Federal High Court voided the lower court ruling Mar. 21.

Feb. 11—Pres. Tito returned to Yugoslavia after a 2-mo. visit to Burma, India and Egypt. He said these countries were Yugoslavia's "real allies and close friends," adding that Yugoslavia would not join any bloc that might increase the danger of war. . . . Italy and the U.S. signed an agreement giving Italy $53,000,000 to aid the economy of Trieste and to better the standard of living in southern Italy.

Attack Communists in Bern

Feb. 15—Rumanian legation in Bern, Switzerland, was seized by 5 armed Rumanian anti-Communists, who sought to get Rumania to free 5 resistance leaders in prison. Swiss police surrounded but did not attack the building. Rumania protested the incident. Three holdouts surrendered Feb. 16 to police, who had picked up 1 man earlier and reported the escape of 2 others. All were held for the fatal shooting of a legation chauffeur. Swiss police said Mar. 7, that the 4 men had crossed the German-Swiss border Feb. 14. . . . In a White Paper Britain reported plans for a 10-yr., $840,000,000 program to build 12 electric power stations run by atomic power. Construction of 2 stations was to start in 1957. Each was rated at 100,000 to 200,000 kilowatts. Capacity of all 12 plants was estimated at 1,400,000 to 2,000,000 kw and will provide one-fourth of the power needs of expanding industry and population. Growing disadvantages of coal-generated power were cited.

Feb. 17—Britain reported it would make hydrogen bombs with the "ultimate" aim of abolishing weapons of mass destruction. Until there is a workable disarmament pact with the Soviet Union, the hydrogen bomb "increases the chances of world peace far more than of world war."

SEATO Meeting

Feb. 19—Southeast Asia Defense Treaty, signed in Manila, Sept. 8, 1954, went into force, being ratified by the U.S., Britain, France, Australia, the Philippines, Pakistan, New Zealand and Thailand. First meeting of the Council was held at Bangkok, Thailand, Feb. 23-25. Bangkok was made hq.; the secretariat was formed by the ambassadors to Thailand; committees were named on subversion, military security and economic planning. The nations agreed to help one another combat subversive forms of international communism and to guard against subtle forms of aggression. Secy. of State Dulles said U. S. had "solid intentions" to aid any nation that was attacked. Other nations: Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Republic of the Philippines, Thailand.

Feb. 22—The biggest campaign against Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya was begun by 10,000 troops. About 4,000 fanatical terrorists were believed lurking in the Mt. Kenya and Aberdare forest areas.

Feb. 24—Prime Ministers of Turkey and Iraq signed a 5-yr. mutual defense pact at Baghdad, with 5-yr. renewal clause. Ratified Feb. 26. They assured the Arab League Israel would not be admitted.

Feb. 27—Election for the Japanese Diet (parliament) was won by Premier Ichiro Hatoyama's conservative Democrats, who won 185 of the 467 seats, against 112 for the Liberals, ruling party under former Premier Shigeru Yoshida. Hatoyama, who had campaigned for friendship with both the East and the West, was chosen premier by the House of Representatives, Mar. 18, defeating Mosaburo Suzuki, pres., Left-Socialist party, 254 votes to 160. . . . In Vietiane, Laos, Secy. of State Dulles said the U.S. would defend Laos against any Communist aggression. Similar assurances were given Vietnam, Mar. 1.

UNITED NATIONS

Feb. 9—International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands, elected Judge Green H. Hackworth, 72, of the U.S. as its pres. to succeed Sir Arnold McNair of Britain, who resigned. . . . Statistical Office of the U.N. reported that Communist China's imports were off 20% in the first 6 mos. of 1954, against the like 1953 period. Exports declined by 25%.

Feb. 15—After Sen. William F. Knowland (R.-Calif.) criticized the U.N. for its failure to obtain the release of 15 U.S. airmen held by Communist China and for its failure to settle the threat of war in the Formosa area, Secy. of State Dulles defended the U.N. as an "essential buffer" between nations but did agree that no solution to the prisoner and Formosa problems had been found as yet.

GENERAL

Feb. 8—Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McCauliffe, 56, was appointed cmdr. of the U.S. Army in Europe. Gen. McCauliffe in the 1944 Battle of the Bulge had rejected a German demand to surrender with the reply, "Nuts!"

Feb. 10—Plans for the first nuclear reactor built by private industry were announced by Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, vice ch., American Car & Foundry Co. . . . H. R. Searing, pres. Consolidated Edison Co., New York, N.Y., informed the Joint

Radioactive Fall-out from Nuclear Weapons Analyzed by AEC

The Atomic Energy Commission on Feb. 15, 1955, made public a report of the radioactivity following the test explosion of a "very large thermonuclear device" (hydrogen bomb) at Bikini atoll Mar. 1, 1954. A detonation has 4 major characteristics—blast, heat and nuclear radiation, which are instantaneous, and residual radioactivity, which can pollute a large area with danger to health. Fall-out (radioactive particles) from Nevada tests was also analyzed.

AEC found pollution covered 7,000 sq. mi. in the Pacific, an area almost as large as New Jersey. Radioactive particles are lifted up when a bomb touches the earth, but there is much less material fall-out when it explodes in the air. The tests showed great danger to all life in a downwind area 140 mi. long and up to 20 mi. wide to one-half the persons 160 mi. downwind; to 5% to 10% of those 190 mi. downwind, whereas no deaths were likely 220 mi. or more downwind. These casualties would occur under extreme conditions and when no precautions were used. For precautions AEC advised:

In an area of heavy fall-out the greatest radiological hazard is that of exposure to external radiation. Simple precautionary measures can greatly reduce the hazard to life. Exposure can be reduced by taking shelter and by utilizing simple decontamination measures until such times as persons can leave the area. Test data indicate that the radiation level, i.e., the rate of exposure, indoors on the first floor of an ordinary frame house in a fall-out area would be about one-half the level out-of-doors. Even greater protection would be afforded by a brick or stone house. Taking shelter in the basement of an average residence would reduce the radiation level to about one-tenth that experienced out-of-doors. Shelter in an old-fashioned cyclone cellar, with a covering of earth 3 feet thick, would reduce the radiation level to about 1/5000, completely safe, in even the most heavily contaminated area. Designs of shelters of simple yet effective construction have been prepared by the Civil Defense Administration and are available to the public.

Radioactive material deposited during fall-out may or may not be visible but would be revealed by radiation detection instruments such as Geiger counters. Any falling dust or ash that can be seen downwind within a few hours after a nuclear explosion should be regarded as radioactive until measured by a radiation detection instrument and found to be harmless.

AEC assured the public that tests in Nevada were carefully limited and exposure of U. S. population was so small that it will not affect "the genetic constitution of human beings," meaning future births.

Atomic Energy Comm. in Washington that his firm would build the first atomic power plant.

Feb. 15—Scientists at the General Electric Research laboratory, Schenectady, N.Y., succeeded in duplicating the diamond exactly for the first time, according to a company report. Produced by simulating temperatures and pressures 240 mi. below the earth's surface, the artificial diamond was too small and too expensive to compete with industrial diamonds. . . . In New York, the Bankers Trust Co., 9th largest bank in the U.S., and the Public Natl. Bank and Trust Co., 43rd in size, announced merger plans. Resources of both totaled $2,843,790,209 on Dec. 31, 1954. Institution was to continue as Bankers Trust Co. Stockholders approved Mar. 24.

Wiretap Investigation

Feb. 17—New York police secretly raided an illegal wiretapping center in Manhattan, Feb. 11, according to a report to legislative leaders in Albany by the New York City Anti-Crime Committee. Three persons, including 2 employees of the New York Telephone Co., present in the raided apartment, were arrested Feb. 19. Center was capable of tapping 5 mid-town exchanges. FBI entered the inquiry Feb. 18. Legislature named 6 legislators, Feb. 25, to investigate wiretapping.

The privately-sponsored Anti-Crime Committee accepted the resignations of William J. Keating, staff counsel, and John M. O'Mara, executive director, Mar. 3. They had touched off the investigation. Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams called a false a charge by Keating that there apparently was a "hush-up agreement" between the Telephone Co. and the Commissioner. Keating was sentenced to 5 days in prison Mar. 22, for contempt of court after he refused to name his informants. He served and his conduct was acclaimed by civil welfare organizations.

Feb. 18—August Robles, a suspect in the murder Feb. 15, in Brooklyn, N.Y., of Joseph Aronowitz, former convict who was to have testified in a robbery trial in Baltimore, Md., disarmed 3 detectives in New York and 1 hr. later survived a pistol battle with 4 others. Robles was shot dead in an East Harlem flat, Feb. 20, after a 2-hr. siege by hundreds of policemen.

Feb. 23—Cooperative for American Remittances to Everywhere, Inc. (CARE) disclosed its shipments of relief packages to 8 Western European nations would end after Apr. 8, because of improved economic conditions in the area. Asian facilities were to be expanded.

Feb. 27—Two American students from New York—Malcolm Bersohn and Mrs. Adele A. Rickett—imprisoned in Communist China for 3½ yrs. on spy charges, were freed and sent to Hong Kong. Both said in the presence of U.S. officials that they had been spies and that the Communists were "justified" in jailing them.

March—1955

WASHINGTON

Mar. 2—President Eisenhower signed a bill increasing the salaries of members of Congress and the Judiciary, effective Mar. 1. The first Congressional pay rise since 1946 increased salaries from $15,000 a year to $22,500.

Mar. 5—President Eisenhower approved 7 procedural changes in the Federal employee security program that Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, Jr. said would be helpful in protecting "both the national security and the rights of employees." Revisions were made to aid accused employees by letting them face and question accusers and by giving them statements of charges. . . . Gen. of the Army Omar N. Bradley was named by the President to head a 7-man commission to study veterans' pensions and report by Nov. 1.

Dulles Warns Communist China

Mar. 7—Secy. of State Dulles returned to Washington after attending the Southeast Asia defense conference and visiting Burma, Indo-China, Formosa and the Philippines. He said opposition to Communist expansion was necessary to prevent allied authority in the area from "crumbling away." In a broadcast Mar. 8, Dulles said Peiping seemed determined to conquer Formosa. U. S. reaction to any attack would have far-reaching effects on Formosa itself and all of the countries of Southeast Asia and the Pacific. He left in doubt what action the U. S. would take if the Quemoy and Matsu Islands were attacked but warned Communist China that any use of force would be met by the "greater force that we possess." British Foreign Secy. Sir Anthony Eden called for a withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist forces from the Quemoy and Matsu Islands. In return he asked the Chinese Communists not to attack Formosa or the Pescadores. He also wanted a discussion to decide Chinese representation in the U.N.

Mar. 10—President Eisenhower said the U. S. would keep its troops in Europe if the Paris agreements granted sovereignty to and providing for the rearming of West Germany were ratified. He sought to dispel fears that the U. S. might withdraw its troops once German divisions were activated. He also promised the U. S. would confer with other NATO nations on questions of mutual concern, including the strength of NATO forces at the disposal of the Supreme Allied Comdr. in Europe. . . . U. S. agreed to allow 11 Soviet editors of student publications to visit the U.S. for 30 days. Atty. Gen. waived provisions of the McCarran-Walter Act at the request of the State Dept. Visit was canceled Apr. 16, after the student editors declined to be fingerprinted. They considered fingerprinting "incompatible with their public standing and journalistic activities."

Mar. 13—Harold E. Stassen, dir., Foreign Operations Agency, returned to Washington after a 3-wk. visit to the free nations of Asia. He believed these countries should receive greater economical aid from the U.S. FOA reported an additional $48,000,000 in aid to Formosa to strengthen Chinese Nationalist forces.

Nixon Reports on Caribbean Tour

Mar. 14—Vice Pres. Nixon, in Los Angeles, said the Republican party should develop strength to elect a President rather than depend on a candidate's popularity. The Republican party was "not strong enough to elect a President." He reported on his recent trip to Caribbean countries, advising the U.S. to strengthen the friendship and economics of Latin America through trade, Government loans and private capital investment. While Communist undergrounds still existed in many nations, the Communist movement in Latin America had "passed its high-water mark." He declared the entire Administration aimed at keeping the free world and the U.S. stronger than any enemy. . . . Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia, in the U.S. on a state visit, conferred with President Eisenhower on defense problems of Southeast Asia.

Mar. 15—Secy. of State Dulles said the U.S. would rely on small nuclear weapons to knock out military targets during a war rather than use hydrogen bombs to destroy entire cities. Air Force disclosed existence of the Falcon, an air-to-air missile designed to destroy bombers before they reached their targets. The 6-ft., 100-lb. missile, developed by the Hughes Aircraft Co., is controlled by an electronic brain, making it impossible for it to miss its target.

Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, Sen. John L. McClelland (D-Ark.), ch., opened a new inquiry into the promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress. Maj. Floyd E. Van Sickle, Jr., testified he failed to notice a reference to a "confidential file" attached to Peress' promotion application. He did not check the file, which disclosed Peress was under Army investigation. Other officers also testified on aspects of the Peress case. Sen. McClelland said Mar. 22, that someone on the Army Personnel Board had been "derelict in his duty."

Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, commandant at Camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was discharged, in testimony Mar. 23, accused 2 aides of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) of having falsely testified during Senate hearings in 1954. Heated exchange took place between Sen. McCarthy and Gen. Zwicker after the subcommittee learned the Army had known that Peress was an "active Communist." Gen. Zwicker had protested promoting Peress. On Mar. 24, John G. Adams, retiring Army chief counsel, said he had approved the discharge, and Secy. of the Army Robert T. Stevens testified that "some very bad mistakes" had been made in the promotion of Peress. Inquiry ended Mar. 25. The case was turned over to the Justice Dept., which decided no one could be prosecuted for perjury. . . . Democratic measure to cut by $20 each individual's income tax was defeated in the Senate after having been passed by the House. Measure was killed by a joint Congressional committee Mar. 25. The $3 billion corporation and excise tax reductions scheduled for Apr. 1 were cancelled. The President signed the measure Mar. 30.

Yalta Papers Released

Mar. 16—After 10 yrs. the stenographic record of the Yalta Conference was released by the State Dept. Prime Minister Churchill, only survivor of the conference of Big Three leaders that included Roosevelt and Stalin, said the U. S. version contained serious mistakes. See Foreign Relations, page 742. . . . Senate, 71 to 11, confirmed the appointment of Judge John Marshall Harlan of New York to the Supreme Court. Judge Harlan was sworn in Mar. 28.

Mar. 19—U.S. decided to admit 20 Russian seamen who had deserted their tanker when it was seized in June, 1954, by Chinese Nationalists. Secy. of State Dulles reportedly said they should be admitted, partly to encourage others to leave Soviet control. . . . Harold E. Stassen, head of Foreign Operations Agency, which was to end June 30, was named by the President as Special Assistant on disarmament problems, a post of Cabinet rank. White House pointed out that the U.N. Disarmament Commission had made no progress on disarmament.

Mar. 31—Harold E. Stassen, head of the Foreign Operations Agency, refused to allow members of the FOA to be interviewed by the staff of the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee unless he or his lawyers were present. Stassen rescinded the order, but the subcommittee issued a subpoena, which he refused to accept. The subcommittee Apr. 6, sought Stassen's explanation of why the FOA offered to negotiate a contract for grain elevators in Pakistan with the highest of 5 bidders. Stassen said the selection of the contractor was based on both design and cost. He refused requested data until he had reviewed it. . . . President Eisenhower signed a bill to give pay rises totalling $745,000,000 to 1,700,000 members of the Armed Forces.

FOREIGN

Mar. 1—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that the Soviet Union had developed a hydrogen bomb of "intermediate" power but only the U.S. could attack in strength quickly with hydrogen bombs. He said the U.S. and Britain must better their superiority in atomic weapons to convince Russia that any surprise attack on the West would result in immediate retaliation. He expected Russia to have more advanced nuclear weapons in 2 to 4 years. Destructive power of atomic weapons may force an international conference and result in disarmament. The world may reach a point, he declared, where "safety will be the sturdy child of terror and survival the twin brother of annihilation." President Eisenhower said Mar. 2, that the length of time the West could hold its nuclear superiority was problematical, commenting that "if you get enough of a particular weapon I doubt that it is particularly important to have a lot more of it." On Mar. 3, Churchill suggested to the House of Commons that the U.S. would retaliate immediately if Russia attacked Britain with hydrogen weapons.

Mar. 2—Concluding a 3-day conference in Ankara, Turkey, the foreign ministers of Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey reported the 3 nations would increase their military strength to resist aggression. The 3 Balkan alliance members agreed to use "appropriate political methods" to improve the international situation. In their first meeting since signing a 3-power treaty for military assistance and political cooperation in Bled, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9, 1954, the 3 nations signed a pact setting up a Balkan consultative assembly, prepared for a Balkan economic conference and established a commission to plan an Institute of Balkan Studies. . . . Norodom Sihanouk, King of Cambodia, abdicated in favor of his father, Prince Norodom Suramarit, declaring his proposals for constitutional reforms had been obstructed. . . . Results of an election for a state legislature in the state of Andhra, India, gave a heavy majority to the coalition headed by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. The Communist party was severely defeated in the state believed to be its stronghold.

Mar. 4—Soviet Union cleared Anna Louise Strong, 70, of charges that she had spied on Russia. The American writer had been arrested and deported from Russia in 1949. Lavrenti P. Beria, Soviet Minister of the Interior executed in 1953 and another executed official were held responsible for her arrest.

Mar. 7—Pres. Tito of Yugoslavia told parliament that the country now was capable of producing nuclear energy, and from its own raw materials. He said he was for the peaceful use of atomic power and called for the destruction of nuclear weapons. Rumania, meanwhile, reported the discovery of rich uranium sources and said it would build an atomic power industry.

Soviet Expels Priest

Mar. 8—Soviet Union said Rev. Georges Bissonnette, American Roman Catholic priest, had been expelled from Russia in reprisal for U.S. failure to extend the 60-day visitor's visa of Metropolitan Boris, exarch of the Russian Orthodox Church for North and South America. Rev. Bissonnette, in Moscow for over two years, arrived in the U. S., Mar. 2; Boris left Mar. 1.

Mar. 12—At Nagpur, India, an assailant trying to attack Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru with a knife was overpowered by police. . . . Japan, according to Premier Ichiro Hatoyama, planned no large defense expenditures for the coming year despite urgings by the U.S. to increase the arms budget.

Mar. 13—In Britain, Anglican Bishop Alfred Blunt of Bradford said Queen Elizabeth should refuse to sanction a marriage between Princess Margaret, 24, and RAF Capt. Peter Townsend, 40, because of church views against remarriage of a divorced person if the former partner were alive. British newspapers had speculated on the marriage of Princess Margaret after her return from a Caribbean tour, Mar. 3. . . . King Tribhubana of Nepal died in Switzerland. Crown Prince Mahendra succeeded.

Bevan Cautioned

Mar. 16—British parliamentary Labor party voted 141 to 112 to expel Aneurin Bevan after Clement R. Attlee brought the issue of Bevan's parliamentary status to a vote of confidence in the Attlee leadership of the party. The small majority was seen as a defeat for Attlee continuing the split in the Labor party. Bevan's pledge of loyalty was accepted by the Natl. Executive committee of the Labor party, Mar. 30, and he was cautioned on future behavior, but not expelled from the party. Parliamentary Labor party reinstated Bevan, Apr. 28, following his apology for opposing Attlee's policies.

Mar. 20—France reported a new agreement to govern economic relations between the Saar and France. West Germany was given a greater share of economic activities in the Saar area. Accord was based on the French-German agreement of Oct. 23, 1954. West Germany had completed ratification of the Paris and Saar agreements Mar. 18. West German Federal Constitutional Court, May 4, ruled that French-German Saar agreement constitutional. Social Democrats had claimed the agreement deprived 1,000,000 Saarlanders of their rights as German citizens.

Mar. 22—Valery A. Lysikov, 17, son of a Russian Air Force officer, fled to West Berlin and was promised asylum in the U.S. His parents saw him Mar. 26, but failed to persuade him to return home. He returned to East Germany, Apr. 9, fearing reprisals against his father. Young Lysikov told Western officials that he had listened to Voice of America and BBC broadcasts in Russia and in East Germany. He also said anti-Communist literature was being circulated among school children in Stalingrad.

Mar. 26—Riotous demonstrations in Belgium by 60,000 Roman Catholic students protesting proposed cuts in state support of church schools resulted in injury to about 40 persons.

Paris Facts Ratified

Mar. 27—France ratified the Paris agreements to create the Western European Union and authorize a German army of 12 divisions, to grant West Germany sovereignty and end occupation, to Europeanize the Saar and to admit West Germany to NATO. U.S. Senate approved the pacts to end the occupation and grant sovereignty to the Bonn government, and to allow West Germany to enter NATO. President signed the agreements Apr. 7, and also approved another to permit U.S. troops to remain in West Germany. The Netherlands, last of 15 nations to approve, ratified on Apr. 28. . . . Premier Mario Scelba and Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino of Italy arrived in the U.S. for a 12-day goodwill visit. Premier Scelba met with President Eisenhower, Mar. 28, when he asked that NATO be extended to economic and social fields. . . . Gov. Gen. Ghulam Mohammed of Pakistan voted himself special administrative authority and declared a state of national emergency. Federal Court ruled Apr. 12, that he had exceeded his legal authority.

Mar. 31—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India said the chances of peace had been upset by the West's seeking military alliances in the Far East, by creating a new armed Germany while talking disarmament in Europe, and by not coming out against racialism in Africa. Arabs in the Middle East had been divided into hostile groups, according to Nehru. While he did not expect war, the Indian leader observed that some events taking place could lead to "catastrophic results." He criticized the Communists only once, for interfering "rightly sometimes" in other countries. Non-Communist nations also interfered he said.

UNITED NATIONS

Mar. 1—Egypt charged Israeli forces had killed 38 and wounded 33 Egyptians in an attack in the Gaza area Feb. 28. Attackers blew up an army hq. and ambushed a troop truck. Eight Israelis were killed. Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission, Mar. 6, condemned Israel for a "prearranged and planned attack, ordered by the Israeli authorities." Commission said 3 earlier incidents had contributed to tension before the Gaza attack. Egypt was held responsible for 2, Israel for the other. Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Palestine truce chief, told the Security Council, Mar. 17, that the Gaza incident was the most serious since the two nations signed the 1949 armistice agreement. Security Council unanimously condemned Israel for the Gaza attack, Mar. 29.

Mar. 10—Israeli-Jordanian Mixed Armistice Commission held Israel responsible for killing 5 Jordanian Bedouins, Mar. 4, near the Dead Sea. One Bedouin reportedly was freed to tell authorities the murders were in retaliation for the killing of 2 Israelis in Jordan in February. Both Jordan and Israel were held responsible for a clash, Mar. 5.

Mar. 21—In Geneva, the U.S. agreed to adhere to a revised General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. U.S. also signed a protocol setting up an Organization for Trade Cooperation.

Mar. 25—Israel charged Egyptians threw grenades into a gathering celebrating a wedding in Fatish, Israel, Mar. 24. One woman was killed; 22 other persons were injured. Egypt was held responsible by the Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission.

GENERAL

Mar. 1—After serving 40 mos. of 5-yr. sentences for conspiring to overthrow the U.S. government, 6 Communist party leaders were released from Federal penitentiaries. Five were rearrested immediately for knowingly being members of a party dedicated to overthrow the Government. They were Eugene Dennis, John B. Williamson, Carl Winter, Jacob A. Stachtel and John Gates. Each was released in $5,000 bail, but Benjamin J. Davis, Jr. was jailed for 60 days on a conviction for contempt of court during a trial of secondary Pittsburgh leaders of the party. . . . Natl. City Bank of New York reported plans to purchase outstanding stock of the First Natl. Bank of New York for $165,000,000. New bank was to be called the First Natl. City Bank of New York.

Natl. City's resources totalled $6.32 billion, First National's $713,000,000. Sale was made Mar. 30.

Mar. 4—Irving Potash, one of 11 Communist leaders convicted in 1949 of conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U.S. government, was deported to Poland voluntarily. He was released from Leavenworth, Dec. 9, 1954.

Mar. 6—Ocean liner Queen of Bermuda sailed from New York for Bermuda with no passengers after 300 strikers had been dismissed as deserters. Labor difficulty grew out of a demand by some of the crew for higher pay. The Furness Withy Line later rehired the crewmen.

Mar. 8—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, comdr. of the 8th Army in Korea since February, 1953, was appointed U.S. Far East Comdr.-in-Chief and head of the U.N. Far East Command, effective Apr. 1. He succeeded Gen. John E. Hull, who was to retire Apr. 30.

Puerto Rican Nationalists Convicted

April—1955

WASHINGTON

Apr. 2—State Dept. reported 76 Chinese students, previously refused permission to leave the U.S., would be permitted to go home. At the Geneva conference in 1954, the Chinese Communists connected detention of Americans in China with the students' case.

Apr. 4—Supreme Court found that Ernest K. Bramblett, former U.S. representative, had been convicted legally of padding his office payroll. Bramblett said he would appeal on other points.

Apr. 6—Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, told a Senate appropriations subcommittee that Communist airpower was a threat to U.S. security. The Russians, he said, were producing long-range jet bombers "aimed squarely in our direction." The Soviet Union and the U.S. were in a race to develop intercontinental missiles. U.S., meanwhile, tested an atomic missile in Nevada. Released from a B-36, the air-to-air missile exploded 30,000 ft. over the testing grounds. The device was capable of destroying a fleet of bombers even if it was destroyed by half a mile.

Apr. 8—Edward J. Corsi, for of Immigration, was dismissed as expedient. Dulles as expedient. his was only reason. (C) refugees had been admitted in 17 mos. Subcommittee of Senate Judiciary Committee, Wm. Langer (R.-N. D.) ch., heard statement of Scott McLeod, chief, Security and Consular Affairs, that up to Apr. 1, 3,700 refugees had visas, 1,044 had entered U. S., 23,000 relatives of refugees had visas and 15,000 had entered. Secy. Dulles offered Corsi study of Latin American migration, which Corsi rejected.

Atom News for NATO

Apr. 13—President Eisenhower approved an agreement to share information on atomic weapons with NATO nations. Pact, called a "great stride forward" in strengthening the common defense, provides for the development of defense plans, the training of personnel in the use of atomic weapons and calls for evaluation of the atomic capabilities of potential enemies. Agreement did not call for the transfer of actual weapons or information on their manufacture.

Apr. 14—Five-day hearings before the Supreme Court on segregation in public schools ended. Debate sought means to implement the 1954 ruling of the court ending segregation in public schools. Counsel for the Natl. Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People asked the court to set a deadline for ending segregation, but the attorney for the Administration said no iron-clad deadline should be set. Instead a gradual system of integration should be followed. Court took the question under study. . . . Sinclair Weeks, Secy. of Commerce, predicted the U.S. in 1955 would have the best year in its history. He pointed to record business expansion in the first 3 mos. of 1955. Federal Reserve Board also reported new economic gains.

Apr. 15—AEC reported that fall-out from the Nevada atomic tests had not resulted in any harmful effects. Investigators, including Weather Bureau experts, also said it was unlikely that the blasts had any effect on the weather, and possibilities of genetic or hereditary changes were remote. Report to the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy was made to allay public fears. . . . Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the U.S., mentioned as a possible candidate for President, said he had accepted the post of Chief Justice with the intention of leaving politics permanently.

Apr. 16—President directed that a semi-independent International Cooperation Administration be set up in the State Dept. to supervise long-range foreign economic aid programs. He intended to transfer to the new organization most of the functions of the Foreign Operations Agency, scheduled to end June 30.

Atom Ship Proposed

Apr. 25—President Eisenhower announced plans to build an atomic-powered merchant ship to visit ports throughout the world in the interests of peace. The AEC and the Maritime Administration were developing plans for a vessel that presumably could circle the globe more than once without refueling. . . . President Eisenhower called on Congress to enact his reciprocal trade program, with no amendments, to aid world peace. To end the program for the gradual reduction of unjustifiable tariff barriers to aid the free nations in building their economies and military defenses would be a severe blow to the free countries. Bill to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for 3 yrs. and permit the President to cut tariff rates passed the House but met opposition in the Senate.

Apr. 27—President Eisenhower believed the outlook for peace had improved since the Soviet Union had shown a willingness to conclude an Austrian treaty and Communist China had offered to negotiate directly with the U.S. on Formosa. He said the U.S. would not insist that Nationalist China be present at a conference but maintained the U.S. would not talk "behind the backs" of the Nationalists. Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China made the proposal at the Asian-African conference, Bandung, Indonesia. Secy. of State Dulles, Apr. 28, had said substantially the same thing as the President, altering a stand that the U.S. would insist on participation in a conference by Nationalist China. . . . President disclosed he had exchanged personal correspondence within the past 3 wks. with Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet defense minister. President said the correspondence might lead to "some betterment of the world situation."

FOREIGN

Apr. 1—East Germany increased road tolls on truck traffic into West Berlin from $5 to $55 for the round trip on the 110-mi. superhighway connecting West Berlin with Helmstedt, West Germany. U.S., British and French High Commissioners protested to the Soviet High Commissioner; the West Berlin government reimbursed truckers for the added toll fees. Communists claimed the extra money was needed for road repairs. On Apr. 10, new restrictions were imposed on travel by West Berliners who tried to visit relatives in the Soviet zone. East Germany reported Apr. 12, the arrest of 521 persons accused of being Western agents. East Germany seized 17 trucks going from Berlin to West Germany, Apr. 23.

Gross national product declined from $24.42 billion in 1953 to $23.99 billion in 1954. Government, despite the deficit, cut income taxes Apr. 5, to promote prosperity. . . . Kao Kang, former regional head of Communists in Manchuria, committed suicide after having been accused of an attempt to overthrow the government of Mao Tse-tung. Jao Shu-shih, former organizational chief of the party, was expelled from the Communist party as was Kao, for joining in an anti-party alliance. Seven others were disciplined.

Churchill Retires as Prime Minister

Apr. 5—Sir Winston Churchill, 80, resigned as British prime minister. He declined a peerage offered by Queen Elizabeth II, preferring to remain an elder statesman in the House of Commons, where he has served almost 50 yrs. Foreign Minister Sir Anthony Eden succeeded Apr. 6, and on Apr. 21 was unanimously elected leader of the Conservative party. Harold Macmillan, defense minister, became foreign secy. Sir Winston, in a letter, had said his retirement was prompted by his age. . . . Gen Fazollah Zahedi, premier of Iran, resigned because of ill health, Hussein Ala succeeded.

Soviet Voids Treaties

Apr. 9—Soviet Council of Ministers reported it had presented to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet proposals to void treaties of alliance with Great Britain and France. In December, 1954, Russia had warned action would be taken if the Paris agreements to arm West Germany were ratified. Presidium voted May 7, to end the treaties. . . . Thailand's World War II claims against Japan were settled for over $41,600,000 in cash, goods and services to be paid over several years.

Apr. 13—Premier Edgar Faure of France said his nation would not make atomic weapons but would concentrate on the development of atomic energy for peacetime uses.

Apr. 14—Argentina restricted the teaching of Roman Catholic religion and morals in government-subsidized schools. Differences between church and state began in November, 1954. A number of government-inspired newspapers have been advocating a constitutional convention to deprive Catholicism of its status as the official religion of Argentina.

Russians for Austrian Treaty

Apr. 15—At a conference in Moscow, representatives of Austria and Russia agreed to sign a state treaty, ending the 10-yr. occupation of Austria. Soviet Union reportedly accepted the treaty draft, already approved by Britain, France and the U.S., providing clarifications were added. Russia eased occupation curbs, Apr. 28. Ambassadors of the 4 occupying powers met in Vienna, May 2, to consider a final draft of the treaty.

Apr. 18—Communist party of Hungary removed Imre Nagy from the premiership and all party posts. Defense Minister Mihaly Farkas, a supporter of Nagy, also was ousted. Nagy was accused of "right-wing deviationism." He had emphasized consumer production rather than heavy industry. Andras Hegedus, deputy premier, succeeded Nagy. . . . Jordan and Israel set up a Jerusalem security zone, 4 mi. by $6\frac{1}{2}$ mi., to end hostile actions in the area. Arrangement followed the killing Apr. 15, of Charles B. Harris, a Univ. of Nebraska student, by a Jordanian border guard.

Apr. 19—Britain announced reductions in the basic income tax rate, freeing 2,400,000 persons from tax liability. Considering the 50% cut in the purchase tax on textiles, the government would lose the equivalent of $375,200,000 in the 1955-56 fiscal year. However, it expected a surplus of $414,400,000. Total revenue was estimated at $13.2 billion.

Concessions in Tunisia

Apr. 22—In Paris, France and Tunisia signed a protocol setting terms whereby France would give internal autonomy to Tunisia. France will control foreign affairs. Agreement covered French military status and privileges in Tunisia and the turning over of civil and police functions to the Tunisians. Economic, judicial and cultural matters also were covered. French colonists were to have a maximum of 3/7 of the membership in Tunisian councils.

Apr. 25—Prague radio reported Viliam Siroky, premier of Czechoslovakia, and Frantisek Zupka, head of Czechoslovak trade unions, had been dropped from the politburo of the Slovak Communist party. . . . In Britain Lady Megan Lloyd George, daughter of David Lloyd George and Liberal member of parliament for 22 years, joined the Labor party because she considered it "true to the radical tradition."

Bao Dai Displaced

Apr. 29—Civil war started in Vietnam, when the Binh Xuyen rebel forces fired mortar shells into the grounds of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's palace. About 100 people were killed in the battle that raged in Saigon streets. Rebels, who strongly oppose the U.S.-backed premier, controlled the police force until Apr. 26, when the premier appointed his own chief of police. A revolutionary committee supporting the premier entered the palace May 1, and announced the ouster of Bao Dai, South Vietnam's chief of state. Committee called on the premier to form a new government pledged to drive the French from the country and to defeat the rebels among other things. Rebels, May 3, were reported retreating from Saigon. U.S., May 6, reaffirmed its support of the premier and indicated it would not interfere if the people of South Vietnam decided to depose Bao Dai as chief of state. The premier said the return of Bao Dai was not acceptable. . . . Giovanni Gronchi, 67, member of the left wing of the Christian Democratic party, was elected pres. of Italy by a joint session of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate. He won through backing of the left wing Socialists and the Communists. Gronchi took office May 11, succeeding Luigi Einaudi.

Asian-African Conference at Bandung Votes for Self-Determination

A first conference of delegates from 29 Asian-African countries met Apr. 18-27, 1955 at Bandung, near Jakarta, Indonesia, and announced their aims as elimination of colonialism, independence and self-determination for all peoples, and membership for all nations in the U.N. The Bandung principles became the basis for political agitation in the Near East and Africa later in the year.

The Conference was initiated by 5 members of the Colombo group: India, Ceylon, Pakistan, Indonesia, Burma. Pres. Sukarno of Indonesia said the 2,000 delegates and official visitors represented 1.4 billion people, "the world's majority for peace and anti-colonialism." Important figures at the Conference were Chou En-lai, premier of Communist China, Prime Minister Nehru of India, and Sir John Kotelawala, premier of Ceylon. The U. S. was not represented officially.

Tension over Formosa was at its height when Chou En-lai unexpectedly started a conciliatory maneuver in a public statement that "The Chinese people are friendly to the American people and do not want a war with the United States. The Chinese government is willing to sit down and enter into negotiations with the United States to discuss relaxation of tension in the Far East and specifically in the Formosa area." He repeated this in Peking May 17.

In the absence of Secy. of State Dulles, Under Secy. Herbert Hoover, Jr., after telephonic conference with President Eisenhower, issued this statement:

The United States always welcomes any efforts, if sincere, to bring peace to the world. . . . Of course the United States would insist on Free China's participation as an equal in any discussion concerning the area. If Communist China is sincere there are a number of obvious steps it could take. . . . One of these would be to place in effect in the area an immediate cease-fire. It could immediately release the American airmen and others whom it unjustly holds. Another could be the acceptance of the outstanding invitation by the Security Council of the United Nations to participate in discussions to end hostilities in the Formosa region.

Conservative Republican leaders, who had been advocating military counteraction in the Formosa area, opposed treating with the Communists, but foreign and U.N. opinion favored taking the opportunity to avoid war. A strong desire for peace, sensed by the Administration, prompted Secy. of State Dulles to amplify the statement by saying bi-lateral discussion might be possible, though a cease-fire was a prerequisite.

Prime Minister Nehru, as a strong exponent of the "five principles of co-existence" agreed on by himself and Chou En-lai in 1954, attempted to keep the Bandung Conference free from debate over Communism. In this he failed. When the Conference vigorously attacked western colonialism Sir John Kotelawala asked that Communist colonialism be condemned equally, said Communist policy aimed at converting the free nations of Europe and Asia into satellites of Soviet Russia and Communist China, and demanded that, if the professions of co-existence were sincere, those nations disband parties in other countries that carried on subversive activities and took orders only from Moscow and Peking. He asked independence within 10 years for all dependencies and a 5-yr. trusteeship for Formosa, with an ultimate plebiscite.

Prime Minister Nehru condemned NATO as a powerful protector of colonialism. He said:

It is an intolerable humiliation for any nation of Asia or Africa to degrade itself by becoming a camp follower of one or the other of the power blocs. . . . We think they are both wrong [and] . . . are pursuing policies that are leading us to the brink of war.

Turkey, Pakistan, Iran supported NATO as necessary to security.

The resolutions finally condemned "colonialism in all its manifestations," but did not particularize. An Afghanistan resolution supporting the rights of Arab refugees in Palestine and asking territorial revisions was adopted, with Chou En-lai's support. The Conference asked France to grant self-determination and independence to Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco and supported the claims of Indonesia to West New Guinea. The Conference supported principles of the U.N., human rights, disarmament, prohibition of nuclear weapons, economic cooperation and urged aid for Asian-African countries from the International Bank and U.N.

UNITED NATIONS

Apr. 5—Union of South Africa withdrew from the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization because of the organization's "interference in South Africa's racial problems." The General Assembly voted Dec. 6 to drop the inquiry.

Apr. 12—Arkady A. Sobolov presented his credentials as permanent Soviet representative to the U.N., succeeding Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who died Nov. 22, 1954.

Apr. 18—Former President Truman, appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged that current threats to world peace be taken to the U.N. General Assembly. Committee, studying the possibility of revisions in the U.N. Charter, was urged by Truman to take cautious steps. He said the world would have been involved in unlimited warfare without the U.N. He opposed withdrawal of the U. S. or the expulsion of Soviet Union from U.N.; said there was no reason for concern that U.S. membership in the U.N. would curtail the Bill of Rights. He did not favor abolition of the veto in the Security Council. Former President Herbert Hoover recommended Apr. 21, that the U. S. remain in the U.N. even though the world organization "has not fulfilled all our hopes." In the past he had urged that either Russia or the free world resign from the U.N. because of Soviet opposition to the admission of new, eligible nations. He doubted that the charter could effectively be revised in view of the Soviet veto in the Security Council.

GENERAL

Apr. 6—Three bandits held up a branch of the Chase-Manhattan bank in Woodside, Queens, N.Y., and escaped with $305,243 in cash. Eleven persons, 10 of them employees, were locked in the vault.

Apr. 11—In Chicago, Adlai E. Stevenson called on the U.S. and its allies to condemn the use of force in the Formosa Strait. He also called for a united defense of Formosa until a final settlement had been made. An attempt by the U.S. to defend the Matsu and Quemoy Islands off the Chinese mainland probably would result in the U.S. standing alone and confronted with a spreading war, with disastrous consequences to all, he believed. Stevenson suggested that Russia state whether it wanted a settlement or an "unpredictable, perhaps limitless conflict started by an arrogant, foolhardy Communistic China either by design or by miscalculation." He asked U.N. action to condemn efforts to alter Formosa's status by force.

Apr. 16—At a dinner in Washington, Harry S. Truman criticized the Administration of "cynical behavior" and charged it with "playing partisan politics" with security, foreign policy, national resources and Civil Service. Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D.-Tex.) in whose honor the $100-a-plate testimonial dinner was given, called on Democrats to carry on an unbroken record of bipartisanship. Adlai E. Stevenson said the Democratic party must stand for social progress, civil freedom and peace.

Albert Einstein Dead

Apr. 18—Dr. Albert Einstein, who developed the theory of relativity that culminated in the atomic bomb, died in Princeton, N.J., 76. Death was caused by a rupture of the aorta. His body was cremated after vital organs, including the brain, had been removed for scientific study.

Apr. 20—Operation Minute Man, a surprise alert of 398,000 National Guardsmen was held throughout the U.S. The test, involving ground and air forces, was called a complete success.

Apr. 22—At a stockholders' meeting in Chicago, Sewell Avery, 82, retained control of Montgomery Ward & Co. Louis E. Wolfson, Florida financier, conceded, claiming only 3 of 9 seats on the board. Fight for control began in mid-1954. Avery resigned as ch. of the board May 9, and John A. Barr, 47, vice pres. and secy., succeeded. Admund A. Krider, pres., also resigned. Avery, who remained on the board of directors, had postponed his retirement until the fight for control of the firm had ended.

Apr. 23—Ford Motor Co. reported it would spend $625,000,000 for expansion in the next 3 yrs. In early January, the General Motors Corp. had announced it would spend $500,000,000 in 1955 for expansion. . . . Heiress Barbara Hutton, 42, won an uncontested divorce from her fifth husband, Porfirio Rubirosa, 45, in Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic.

Disasters

Earthquake in the southern Philippines, Apr. 1, killed 430 people. . . . New York Central passenger train bound for Chicago was derailed 15 mi. south of Albany, N.Y., by debris from a rock slide Apr. 2. About 35 persons were injured. . . . Fire in a theater near Liege, Belgium, killed 39 people, mostly children, Apr. 3. . . . A Mexican train fell into a 600-ft. canyon 50 mi. west of Colima, Mex., Apr. 3, killing 13 and injuring 90. . . . Air India Constellation, 15 aboard, including 11 Chinese Communist delegates to the Asian-African conference in Bandung, Indonesia, crashed in the South China Sea, Apr. 11. See May 27, page 104. . . . Landslide caused by torrential rains reportedly killed 73 persons in Sasebo, Japan, Apr. 16. . . . Earthquakes destroyed most of Velos, Greece, Apr. 12 to 21, killing 6 and injuring 100. . . . USAF B-29 bomber crashed in Okinawa, Apr. 28, killing 10.

May—1955

WASHINGTON

May 3—U.S. and Turkey signed the first atoms-for-peace pact. Agreement calls for the lease of up to 6 kilograms (13.2 lbs.) of enriched uranium to begin work on a research reactor in Turkey. Pact also provides for the exchange of unclassified information and for the use of radioactive isotopes in medicine, industry and agriculture.

May 10—U.S., Britain and France sent identical notes to the U.S.S.R. proposing an early meeting of heads of governments "to remove sources of conflict between us." They suggested preliminaries be discussed by the 4 foreign ministers in Vienna. The Soviet Union accepted through Molotov May 14. . . . House, 218 to 170 shelved a bill to give statehood to Alaska and Hawaii. Senate action was believed unlikely.

May 20—President Eisenhower invoked his first veto against the postal bill increasing wages 3.8% for 500,000. He said the measure discriminated between employees, repeated his suggestion that a 7.6% rise was the possible top, and added that postal rates making the department self-supporting and based on service to users were imperative. The Senate sustained him, 54-39. . . . The Government asked the Supreme Court to clarify its decree of Dec. 11, 1950, giving the U.S. title to submerged resources outside state boundaries. Under the Submerged Lands Act, 1953, 3-mi. boundaries or those existing when a state entered the Union were specified. Louisiana boundaries were "3 leagues" (10½ mi.) off coast.

May 21—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a drop of one-tenth of 1% in the Consumer Price Index between mid-March and mid-April, first changes since December, 1954. It was affected by a 4% drop in prices of used cars and one-tenth of 1% in rents.

May 25—President Eisenhower nominated Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, 53, to be Chief of Naval Operations, effective Aug. 16, 1955. He succeeds Adm. Robt. B. Carney, 60, who retires. Burke won a reputation for great courage and resource as head of a destroyer squadron in the Pacific. He was 93rd on the list of admirals. The President also reappointed Adm. Arthur W. Radford, 59, as chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, 57, as Air Chief of Staff for the second two-year terms. He had already named Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 53, as Army Chief of Staff, to succeed Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, retiring June 30. Adm. Burke was commander of the Atlantic destroyer force, hq. Norfolk, Va., when appointed. Because he ran his destroyers against the enemy at full speed Adm. Wm. F. Halsey called him "31-knot Burke."

Fulbright Market Inquiry

May 26—Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, J. M. Fulbright (D.-Ark.) ch., reported on stock market inquiry begun Jan. 14, 1955. It received 1,300 replies to questionnaires, heard 21 witnesses, Mar. 3-23. The majority report was approved by 8 Democrats, 3 Republicans; a minority report was presented by Sens. Capelhart (R.-Ind.), Bricker (R.-O.), Bennett (R.-Utah), Beall (R.-Md.). Highlights were the testimonies of John K. Galbraith, Harvard economics professor; Wm. McChesney Martin, Jr., ch. Federal Reserve Bd.; Bernard M. Baruch. During the hearings the market dropped $7 billion in values, but recovered. Galbraith favored abolishing margin privileges. Baruch believed in restraint, but not a complete cash basis for purchases. The majority report recommended that over-the-counter stocks be subject to same rules as listed stocks; State Dept., SEC and Canada should stop sales of worthless stocks to Americans; proxy voting should be investigated and raiding discouraged; the influence of brokers on speculation and of investment groups on buying should be studied. The Republican minority said the majority ignored the reason for the market rise—the prosperity of the country, citing personal income at 294 billion, construction contracts at $41.5 billion and employment at 61,700,000 persons.

FOREIGN

West Germany Regains Sovereignty

May 5—The Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) became a sovereign state when the ambassadors of France and Great Britain deposited in Bonn their governments' ratification of the Paris agreements, announced Oct. 23, 1954, ending the 10-year occupation. U.S. ratification was deposited Apr. 21 by Dr. Jas. B. Conant, then High Commissioner. The ratifications of Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg had been given earlier. The agreements gave sovereignty to West Germany, put the Allied troops on a contractual basis and implemented the conditions under which the Saar became a semi-autonomous body under the Western European Union, with French economic control.

The Bonn government issued a call on behalf of its 50,000,000 free citizens to the millions of Germans in East Germany "forced to live without freedom and without justice. . . . You belong to us, we belong to you. You can always rely on us, because, together with the free world, we shall never rest until you have recovered your rights as human beings and live peacefully united with us in one state." In West Berlin the Allied commandants modified controls to give the German administration wider powers in foreign trade, monetary policy, customs, emigration and other matters, but the concessions were considered inadequate by Mayor Otto Suhr.

In Washington President Eisenhower signed an order ending U.S. occupation of West Germany, transferring the High Commissioner's functions to the American ambassador, and defining the duties of Lt. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, commander of the 7th U.S. Army at Heidelberg.

In Brussels, May 5, France, Great Britain and West Germany deposited ratifications of the Western European Union, of which Germany became a member, thus getting authority to arm 500,000 men and manufacture arms, except for atomic, bacteriological and chemical weapons; guided missiles and warships above a limited tonnage. The 7 foreign ministers of WEU met for the first time in Paris May 7 to organize the Council. Harold Macmillan, British foreign secy., was chosen ch. for the first 2 mos.; Louis Goffin, Belgium, was made secy. gen. to head the secretariat in London.

West Germany, through its ambassador, Dr. Heinz L. Krekeier, presented the instrument of accession to membership in NATO to Secy. of State Dulles in Washington May 6. The republic became a full member May 9 at a meeting of the NATO Council in Paris, with Chancellor Adenauer representing West Germany, 15th member state. The flag of the republic—red, gold and black horizontal bars—was raised the same day at Rocquencourt SHAPE hq.

May 11—Giovanni Gronchi, left-wing Christian Democrat, was inaugurated president of Italy. Premier Mario Scelba presented his resignation, as customary; the president refused it.

Warsaw Treaty Signed

May 14—U.S.S.R., Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and East Germany signed a 20-yr. treaty of mutual defense in Warsaw to offset "remilitarization" of West Germany, the treaty to end when the European collective security treaty proposed by U.S.S.R. came into effect. Marshal Ivan S. Konev, deputy defense min., U.S.S.R., was made supreme commander of the military command. Bulganin, Molotov and Zhukov witnessed the signing; Peng Teh-hui, defense min. of Communist China, promised support.

Austrian Treaty of Peace

May 15—A treaty of peace with the republic of Austria was signed in Vienna by the foreign ministers of the Big Four: John Foster Dulles, U.S., Harold Macmillan, Britain, Antoine Pinay, France, and V. M. Molotov, U.S.S.R., and the foreign minister for Austria, Leopold Figl.

The treaty was signed 17 years after Hitler destroyed Austria's independence by the Anschluss, and 10 years after the close of the war, the delay being caused by obstructive tactics of the Soviet Union, which in the meantime exploited the industrial resources of Austria. It was initiated by the Soviet change in policy, Mar. 24, when Molotov invited Chancellor Julius Raab

Conservatives Win British General Election; Labor Heavy Loser

Sir Anthony Eden, British prime minister, won the "good working majority" he had asked when the British general election, May 26, 1955, gave the Conservative party a majority of 59 seats, not counting the Conservative speaker of the House, who does not vote. Previously the party had a majority of 18. The results:

Conservatives	324
Associates	21
Labor	277
Liberal	6
Sinn Fein	2
Total seats	630

The results showed a considerable falling off for the Labor party, which in 1951 polled 224,000 more votes than the Conservatives, and in 1955 942,000 under the Conservative total, and 1,578,000 under its own 1951 total. However, voting was proportionately less, only 76% of the electorate voting. No minister of the government was defeated, whereas the majorities of Labor leaders, including Clement Attlee, Aneurin Bevan and Herbert Morrison were reduced, as also was that of Clement Davies, Liberal leader. Sir Anthony Eden's district, Warwick-Leamington, increased his majority; he had first represented this constituency in 1923 when he was 26. Sir Winston Churchill's total at Woodford was below former figures because of redistricting. No Communists were elected out of 17 who ran, but their total votes increased. Two Sinn Feiners, Thomas Mitchell and Philip Clarke, were chosen after recounts in Mid-Ulster and at Fermanagh and South Tyrone. Both were serving terms in prison for raids on military barracks in Tyrone. The House of Commons on July 18 declared vacant the seat won by Mitchell. A Belfast court declared Clarke's election invalid, gave the seat to a Unionist.

Twenty-four women won seats, 10 Conservative, 14 Labor. The withdrawal of Megan Lloyd-George from the Liberal party did not affect its support.

The election was interpreted as a victory for Eden's policy of winning top American consent to a Big Four conference, reduction of taxes and controls and helping end the Indo-China war; also the increased prosperity, as well as the split in the Labor party.

Clement Attlee, leader of Labor, placed the defeat on apathy, especially among younger voters not acquainted with the issues. He denied Labor appealed to class prejudices, said Labor represented all classes. At the subsequent party meeting Attlee, 72, was unanimously reelected chairman and leader of the Parliamentary Labor party, with the endorsement of Aneurin Bevan, left-winger. Herbert Morrison, 67, was reelected deputy leader.

At the organization of the House W. S. Morrison, Conservative, was reelected speaker.

to Moscow for talks Apr. 11. U.S., Britain and France Apr. 5 issued a joint warning against bilateral agreements; said that if the Soviet proposals seemed to promise independence they should be discussed by the Big Four and Austria.

The Soviet Union made concessions in exchange for Austria's "honest neutrality" (Molotov). Austria agreed not to join any military alliance nor permit foreign military bases. The Soviet Union gave up claims to oil fields and refineries in exchange for deliveries of crude oil over a long period. It also gave up the Danube Shipping Co. For terms of treaty see Foreign Relations, p. 743.

May 19—National Army of Vietnam completed occupation of 180-mile strip around Quinhon given up by the Communists under the Geneva agreement, as the last French forces left Haiphong to the Communists. Widespread property destruction and a Communist underground were left behind in the Quinhon area, where 1,000,000 live.

Prime ministers of India and Pakistan completed their talks on Kashmir without agreement but providing for later conferences. There was scant hope that India would permit a plebiscite. . . . In Tehran, Iran, the military governor ordered destruction of the 165-ft. dome of the Baha'i Temple. The sect had been outlawed May 17 by the minister of the interior as inimical to Islam. There are an estimated 500 Baha'i groups in Iran, 40 in the United States. . . . In Rome Premier Mario Scelba and U. S. Ambassador Clare Luce signed an agreement by which Italy will receive $50,000,000 worth of surplus cotton, wheat and tobacco from the U. S. and make long-term loans of about $20,000,000 for assistance to children and $70,000,000 from the International Bank for depressed areas.

May 20—Soviet high commissioner for Germany, Georgi M. Pushkin, rejected an effort of U.S., British and French representatives to get a modification of highway tolls between Berlin and the West. Jas. B. Conant, U.S. High Commissioner, and ambassadors of Britain and France had called charges equal to 25c a mi. exorbitant, wanted issue studied by German experts. Soviet denied jurisdiction. Representatives of West referred the issue to their governments. Tolls, ostensibly levied for road damage, were considered a political measure to harass democracies. In June there was a 50% cut in tolls for passengers, and other cuts to 12½% for heavy truck traffic, but West Germany called the reductions trivial.

May 24—Soviet Union reported it had completed transfer to Communist China of Port Arthur, Manchurian naval base.

Sabotage on Airliner

May 27—A verdict of sabotage was reached by an Indonesian commission investigating the crash of a Constellation near Great Natuna Isl. in the South China Sea Apr. 11. It declared the cause "was an explosion of a time infernal machine placed in the starboard wheelwell." Plane was 5 hrs. out of Hong Kong, where bomb was believed to have been attached. Elements of a time bomb were said to have been recovered. Of 15 aboard, 12 died, including 11 Chinese Communist delegates en route for Bandung Conference. Three crewmen escaped. Immediately after bombing, the Chinese Communists in Peiping without evidence blamed the United States for the crash.

UNITED NATIONS

May 6—Great Britain asked the International Court of Justice at The Hague to order recognition of British sovereignty over the Falkland Islands, off the coast of South America, and reject the claims of Argentina and Chile. Argentina announced the 2 nations would not accept arbitration by the Court.

May 10—Under the auspices of the Mixed Armistice Commission in Jerusalem, Israel and Jordan agreed that any troops seized along the border would be treated as prisoners of war. Both nations were censored by the Commission for an incident on Mt. Gilboa, May 7.

May 11—Soviet news agency Tass published proposals on world disarmament for U.N. consideration. Soviet Union called for international control groups to watch all nations and prevent war preparations; withdrawal of troops occupying Germany; moves to end the East-West "cold war" and settlement of Far Eastern disputes by nations concerned. Security Council members were asked to dismantle bases on foreign soil.

May 25—Dr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart, Commissioner for Refugees, reported 13,642 refugees were given new homes in 1954-55; 5,315 in the U. S., 3,253 in Australia, 2,939 in Canada, 2,135 in Brazil.

GENERAL

May 2—Billy (Wm. Franklin) Graham, evangelist, concluded his Scottish crusade as "biggest evangelical event in history." With TV and telephonic hookups he reached 2,547,000 (est.) during 6 weeks. After Scotland he preached for the Queen of England and was her guest at luncheon. He then addressed audiences for 5 days in Paris and elsewhere in Europe.

May 3—Benjamin F. Fairless, on his 65th birthday retired from his $259,200-a-yr. job as ch. and chief executive of the U.S. Steel Corp. Roger M. Blough, 51, attorney and former high school teacher, succeeded Fairless, who became ch. of a new group, the executive advisory committee.

May 5—Nuclear explosion almost twice as powerful as the atomic bombs dropped on Japan was set off at Yucca Flat, Nev. A "capsule" town, constructed to learn the effects of the test blast, was severely damaged but stood up against the blast. An armored task force of tanks with men huddled inside, 3,200 yds from the explosion, rode out the blast with no injuries to the men. Shelters, including those of wood-beam construction were intact as were 7 of 10 test houses. Inhabitants outside bomb shelters might have been killed. Foodstuffs were not damaged by radiation.

May 10—USAF reported 12 to 16 Communist MIGs had attacked 8 sabre jets on a routine patrol over international waters near Sinuiju, North Korea. Two MIGs were downed; a third probably was destroyed; no USAF jets were damaged. Communist China May 11 declared the U.S. planes had violated its territory and suffered one plane down, 2 damaged.

May 20—U. S. Air Force dedicated the first of its offshore radar islands at Quincy, Mass., yard of Bethlehem Steel Co. The steel island, 200 ft. long on 3 sides, 20 ft., high, weighing 6,000 tons, was to be towed to Georges Bank, 100 mi. east of Cape Cod and fastened to the bottom 87 ft. above mean low water. It was to have radar and weather equipment and house about 70 technicians, to be served by helicopter and replaced at 30-day intervals. . . . Pvt. Wm. T. Marchuk, 38, Norristown, Pa., was sentenced to 12 years at hard labor by a U. S. Army court martial in Berlin for desertion, affiliating with the Soviet secret police and giving them confidential information. He was in an Army Intelligence unit in West Berlin when he disappeared in 1949. He served 5 years in a Russian prison camp. The sentence will be reviewed.

Atlantic Liners Hit by Strike

May 23—In 6 British ports 18,400 members of the National Amalgamated Stevedores & Dockers went on strike to get representation on the negotiating board of the Transport & General Workers Union, which they had left. The strike lasted 6 weeks and failed, but it tied up the Queen Mary, Britannic, Ascania, Mauretania, Empress of Australia, and other liners part of the time. Up to 170 ships were affected. Loss in wages was estimated at $3,000,000, while shippers had dock charges for idle ships and severe curtailment of exports. The Amalgamated objected to the terms made by the official union, effective May 30, which added a minimum of $5.60 a week, but did not shorten hours, reported as 70-hr. week for the catering staff and 56-hr. week for deck and engine room crews. . . . Albert Anastasia, 52, New York racketeer, pleaded guilty in Federal Court, New York, to evading taxes of $11,743 in 1946 and 1947. He was sentenced to 1 year in jail and a fine of $20,000 June 1.

May 25—Connecticut enacted a law providing life imprisonment for a second conviction for selling narcotics to minors, as well as for a third conviction for selling narcotics to anyone.

British Railmen Strike

May 28—The Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers & Firemen with 67,000 members in British Railways struck for higher pay. Services in England were reduced 20%. On May 31 Queen Elizabeth proclaimed a state of emergency and signed directives for expediting food supplies. The state opening of parliament was moved ahead to June 9 and the birthday parade postponed. The Associated agreed to accept the decision of the referee, Lord Justice Morris. The referee awarded increases in the basic wage of all but senior firemen, of from 25c to 75c a week. Adjustments were made later in mileage payments to footplate men and in increases to special-class signal men. It was estimated that the rise in pay will cost British Railway £700,000 ($1,960,000) a year.

May 30—Bill Vukovich, 36, professional auto racer of Fresno, Calif., died in a crash with 4 cars in the Memorial Day race, 500 mi., at Indianapolis Speedway. He had won it the two preceding years. His death was the 46th at the track in 46 years. Race was won by Bob Sweikert, 39, Indianapolis, at 128.20 mph, elapsed time 3 hr., 53 min., 59.53 sec. His take $76,138.63 from a $370,050 prize fund.

May 31—In the U.S. District Court, Washington, D.C., Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Dick Haymes was not subject to deportation on account of his 1953 trip to Hawaii because Hawaii "is a geographical part of the United States" and Haymes therefore did not re-enter the country "from a foreign port or place or from an outlying possession," as the Immigration Service contended.

Disasters

USAF flying tanker caught fire, crashed into the Atlantic off Iceland, May 4. Nine men believed killed. . . . Main exhibition floor of the New York Coliseum, under construction in New York City, collapsed while concrete was being poured, killing 1, injuring 51 workers. . . . Japanese ferryboat, Shun Maru, collided with a freighter in Japan's Inland Sea, May 11; 35 killed, 57 injured, 16 missing. . . . A tornado, May 25, demolished Udall, Kan., 80 dead, 300 inj. Another, same day, wrecked 36 blocks of Blackwell, Okla., 18 dead, 500 inj. Tornadoes caused damage May 25-27 in Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri; May 28 in Arkansas, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan. The American Red Cross devoted $1,000,000 to relief in tornado areas. . . . A storm, May 25, caused crash of USAF B-26, 60 mi. north of San Angelo, Tex., 15 dead. See Weather of 1955, p. 88.

June 10—President signed a bill giving 500,000 postal field workers an 8% pay rise. Consult 84th Congress, 1st Session, pp. 53-55. . . . Gordon Gray, pres., University of North Carolina, was named by President Eisenhower to succeed H. Struve Hensel, resigned, as Asst. Secy. of Defense for International Security Affairs, June 30.

June 11—AEC reported the hydrogen bomb may be constructed virtually in unlimited size from the cheapest atomic explosives. Commission also indicated that deadly amounts of radioactive fallout may persist for long periods. Data had been disclosed earlier in technical terms by Dr. Willard F. Libby, member of the AEC.

Adenauer Visits U.S.

June 13—Konrad Adenauer, West German Chancellor, arrived in the U. S. to discuss plans for the Big Four conference. He asked that U. S. and the Soviet Union convert disarmament control into reality at the Geneva meeting. He said the basis for a general European security system was limitation of armaments and expansion of WEU. Adenauer agreed with President Eisenhower that any proposals for a neutral Germany would be barred. . . . Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee rejected President Eisenhower's proposal to construct an atomic-powered merchant vessel to tour the world in the interest of peace. The Committee instead approved a "practical" atomic power plant that would lead to the development of an atomic merchant fleet. It approved $5,000,000 to carry out the President's plan to provide research reactors and fuel for friendly foreign nations at half their total cost.

June 15—Simulated hydrogen bomb attack theoretically destroyed 61 cities and killed 5,000,000 persons according to the Federal Civil Defense Administration. . . . Former Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett (R.-Calif.) was fined $5,000 for padding his office payroll in a salary kickback attempt. He received a suspended sentence of 4 mos. to 1 yr. and was put on probation for 1 yr.

June 22—Robert T. Stevens resigned as Secy. of the Army. Wilbur M. Brucker, 61, general counsel, Dept. of Defense, former governor of Michigan, was nominated by President Eisenhower for the post.

Decision on Passports

ruled unanimously that the State Dept. may not deny a passport arbitrarily or without a hearing, such denial depriving the applicant of liberty without due process of law. Max Schachtman, ch., Independent Socialist League of New York, was denied passport because his organization was on the Attorney General's subversive list; he was unable to get a hearing and sued. The district court dismissed his suit; the appellate court reversed the dismissal and remanded the case. It was indicated that the Attorney General's list, intended to guide Government hiring, was not a valid reason for refusing a passport.

June 24—Special aid totaling $19,200,000 was extended to Greece to meet economic damage following the earthquake. Reconstruction was provided by $7,500,000 from the Mutual Security program; $7,500,000 by proceeds from the sale of commodities, and $4,200,000 realized from such sales was extended as a loan. . . . President Eisenhower authorized the AEC to allocate 440 lbs. of enriched uranium to 22 nations. New allotments doubled the President's atoms-for-peace program.

June 28—Over 1,000,000 Government employees received a pay rise averaging 7.5%, retroactive to Mar. 1. Lowest rated employees who have been receiving $2,500 a yr. now receive $2,690 annually.

June 30—An order by Secy. of State Dulles made effective the establishment of the International Cooperation Admin., to carry on functions of the Foreign Operations Admins., except for certain ones given the Dept. of Defense. The Institute of Inter-American Affairs, the Office of Small Business and the Int'l. Development Advisory Board are part of ICA. John B. Hollister is director. . . . Commission on the Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government went out of existence after making 350 proposals intended to balance the Federal budget and reduce taxes. Former President Herbert Hoover headed the commission which finished 2 yrs. of study. Final report called for higher Federal power rates and a ban on new Federal steam-generating plants and transmission lines. . . . President signed a bill continuing the national debt limit of $281 billion for another year. According to the latest estimates, the debt now stands at $273.6 billion. . . . Burmese prime minister U Nu addressed a joint session of the Senate and the House and explained Burma's wish to remain neutral and avoid big power alliances. He and President Eisenhower in a joint statement affirmed their devotion to peace with justice and security.

FOREIGN

June 1—Rene Mayer, former French premier, was selected ch. of the High Authority of the European Coal and Steel Community, succeeding Jean Monnet of France, resigned 1954. . . . Habib Bourguiba, Tunisian leader in exile over 3 yrs., returned in triumph to Tunis. Autonomy from France had been won for Tunisia largely by Bourguiba and his neo-Destour party.

June 4—Walter Ulbricht, East German leader, reported that a conference at Warsaw, Poland, has set up a political consultative committee to coordinate the policies of Communist nations from the Elbe to the Pacific. He also said the Communist countries, including East Germany and China, would reorganize their 5-yr. plans. Soviet Union and its satellites agreed to a treaty of mutual friendship and defense. Yugoslavia asserted it would not join the Eastern bloc. Pact, signed May 14, included Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, East Germany and Albania.

Nehru Visits Russia

June 7—Jawaharlal Nehru, prime minister of India, arrived in Moscow on an official visit to the Soviet Union. On June 9, at a banquet in the Kremlin, Nehru and Russian Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin spoke of the steps their nations had taken to ease tensions and further the cause of peace, particularly in the Formosa area. Nehru said he sensed the desire for peace in the Soviet Union. India and Russia June 22 jointly called for a complete ban on nuclear weapons and a vast reduction of conventional armaments. Nehru and Bulganin expressed the earnest hope that the "legitimate rights" of Communist China on Formosa would be settled by peaceful means.

June 11—Hungarian Communist Politburo decreed that half of the country's agriculture must be collectivized by 1960. Resolutions of the party's executive committee favored reversal of policy of encouraging production by individual farmers.

Soviet-Japan Negotiations

June 14—Soviet Union, through Jacob A. Malik, its ambassador in London, offered Japan's emissary, Shunichi Matsumoto, a draft peace treaty. It called for renunciation of Japanese claims to Kuriles, South Sakhalin, Habomai and Shikotan Is., asked that waters between Japan and Korea and inland seaways be barred to all military craft except those of Japan and the Soviet Union; barred Japan from alliances or military coalitions directed against any power that fought Japan in World War II. The Soviet would support Japan's membership in U. N. In negotiations extending through Aug. 16 Japan was said to have asked for Kuriles, South Sakhalin and other islands, return of 10,000 nationals now held prisoner.

Reparations for Philippines

June 15—Republic of the Philippines agreed that Japan should pay $500,000,000 in indemnities and $250,000,000 in investment and development loans to satisfy World War II reparations asked by the Manila government. The amounts represented approximately 10% of the original Philippine reparation demand of 1948. The Philippine senate had refused to ratify the Japanese peace treaty until reparations were settled.

June 21—Two-man crew of a North Korean Air Force plane flew to Seoul and surrendered to U. N.

June 22—Premier Mario Scelba's government resigned and was requested by Pres. Giovanni Gronchi to remain in office until a new cabinet was formed. Antonio Segni, 64, Christian Democrat, became premier June 26, retaining 12 members of Scelba's 21-member cabinet.

See special article on revolt against President Peron in Argentina, p. 50.

UNITED NATIONS

June 5—Almost $1.5 billion was used by the U. N. and the U. S. Far East commands to rebuild and arm South Korea in the last 2 yrs.

Soviet Apologizes to Tito; Signs

Six high officials of the Soviet Union, led by Nikolai A. Bulganin, premier, and Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist party, flew to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 26, to make amends for 7 years of estrangement and abuse by negotiating an agreement on mutual aims and restoring normal relations. After 6 days of conference with Josip Broz, Marshal Tito, president of Yugoslavia, and his government, the officials issued a joint declaration. Chief objects agreed on:

Yugoslav-Soviet Relations—Recognition of peaceful co-existence and non-interference in internal affairs for reason of ideological, economic or social differences, with proviso that "questions of internal organization, or difference in social systems, and of different forms of socialist development, are solely the concern of the individual countries; facilitation of better economic relations; proposal to repatriate nationals according to their free decisions; effort to provide accurate information about the two countries and eliminate propaganda and misinformation that create distrust.

International Relations—Approval of U. N. membership for Communist China and satisfaction of its "legitimate rights" to Formosa; reduction and limitation of armaments; prohibition of atomic weapons and support for peacetime use of nuclear energy along U. N. lines; a general system of collective security including one in Europe, by treaty; settlement of the German question "on a democratic basis in conformity with both the wishes and interests of the German people"; condemnation of aggression and all attempts to subject other countries to political and economic domination; condemnation of the policy of military blocs as undermining confidence and creating danger of war. The reference to military blocs was intended for the NATO. The agreement also congratulated the Asian nations of the June 13—Mixed Armistice Commission found Egypt guilty of a "flagrant" violation of the armistice agreement in firing mortar shells at an Israeli truck near Al Auja, about 60 mi. south-east of Gaza on May 18. The U. N. truce team investigating the incident reportedly was fired on by Egyptians.

10th Anniversary of U.N.

June 20—The 60 members of the U. N. met in War Memorial Opera House, San Francisco, to observe the birth of U. N. there 10 years ago. (Charter was signed June 24, 1945.) Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov appeared in U. S. for first time in 9 years. Former President Truman was a special guest. President Eisenhower declared that a new kind of peace, with the atom as a productive servant rather than a killer, must be the objective during the second decade of the U. N. He asked rededication to U.N. ideals. Dr. Eelco van Kleffens, Netherlands, presided over the week-long meeting. U. N. Secy. Gen. Dag Hammarskjöld said recent developments in world affairs pointed to a better understanding among nations.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov condemned "closed military groupings" for aggravation of international tension and pointed to the Korean armistice, the state treaty with Austria, the conciliation with Tito, the Soviet talks with Japan as evidence of the peaceful Soviet intentions. He repeated proposals for disarmament. Antoine Pinay, French foreign minister, replied that only genuine security for all would bring peace, and that France was not prepared to abandon the security insured by NATO. Secy. of State Dulles pointed to the years of obstruction by the Soviets and said: "We cannot forget the existence of that apparatus known as international communism."

Molotov entertained delegates and mingled freely, exuding amiability. The foreign ministers of the Big 4 put in an evening discussing procedure at Geneva.

Agreement to Improve Relations

Bandung conference for their movement toward self-government and recommended assistance through the U. N. to underdeveloped areas.

Western observers interpreted the agreement as a major victory for Marshal Tito's independence. In June, 1948, Stalin, through the Cominform, condemned Tito for departing from the Moscow line and appealed to the Yugoslavs to "raise from below a new internationalistic leadership." Tito and his policies were openly blasted by the Soviet propaganda agencies. Tito held Yugoslavia in line, signed a nonaggression treaty with Greece and Turkey, obtained loans from the West, including the United States. When collective agricultural methods failed to work he modified them to suit needs.

On arrival Khrushchev apologized over a microphone for the broken relations, saying: "We ascribe the aggravations to the provocative role played by Lavrenti P. Beria and other recently exposed enemies of the people. We are ready to eliminate all obstacles standing in the way of complete normalization of relations between our states. The strongest ties are created among countries that base their actions on the teachings of Marxism-Leninism."

Marshal Tito did not respond, and reports from Belgrade indicated the public was not impressed by blame of the dead.

The Soviet delegation thus expected an agreement on government and Communist party levels. Marshal Tito held the conference to government matters and did not resume party relations. This was considered the first time that a Communist state had successfully maintained its national integrity against ideological domination. The Soviet concession to "different forms of socialistic development" was considered of far-reaching significance, since it reverses Stalinist practices. The Yugoslav position carried forward its active neutrality and non-alignment program.

GENERAL

June 1—Wisconsin Supreme Court cancelled the conviction of the Joe Must Go Club, fined by a circuit court on ground it used funds illegally for a political purpose. Club collected signatures on petition to recall Sen. Jos. R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.).

June 2—Virginia Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile ruled a county could not use its 1953 school bonds to construct non-segregated schools. Judge Bazile criticized the Supreme Court for its 1954 order ruling segregation in public schools unconstitutional and for its May, 1955, order saying integration must be on a "reasonable" local basis.

June 3—Albert Anastasia, Brooklyn racketeer, was sentenced in U. S. District Court, Camden, N. J., to 1 yr. in prison and fined $20,000 for income tax evasion.

June 7—Webb & Knapp, real estate firm, took a 1-yr. option to build a $100,000,000 Palace of Progress, for trade exhibits, atop the Pennsylvania Railroad station in New York City.

June 10—Lt. Gen. Isaac Davis White was named to command of 8th U. S. Army and Army in Far East, succeeding Gen. Lyman D. Lemnitzer, who advanced to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's post as comdr. of all U. S. forces in Far East and U. N. command. Gen. Taylor succeeded Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as Army Chief of Staff.

June 13—New Jersey Supreme Court, 4-3, upheld Jersey City in its suit to recover $15,000,000 from Frank Hague, ex-mayor, and 2 others for allegedly taking this amount from municipal workers. . . . U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Philadelphia, upheld conviction of Steve Nelson and 4 other leaders of Communist party for conspiracy to advocate the violent overthrow of the Government.

June 16—Louis Hoffner, 41, falsely imprisoned 14 years on charge of killing a bartender, was awarded $112,291 by N. Y. State Court of Claims.

June 20—James J. Moran, former first deputy fire commissioner of New York City, was convicted in Brooklyn Federal Court of evading payment of $131,307 in Federal income taxes. Moran presently is serving a prison term for extortion.

June 22—General Motors reported a new $500,-000,000 expansion program to produce automobiles and trucks. The program brings to $4 billion the amount set for postwar modernization of G. M. in the U. S. and Canada.

Soviets Attack U. S. Plane

June 24—U. S. announced 2 Soviet MIG planes fired on a U. S. naval patrol plane on routine flight over international waters in Bering Straits June 22. The naval plane did not have time to defend itself. Three crewmen were injured by gunfire and 4 by crash landing on St. Lawrence Is. (U. S.). At San Francisco Secy. of State Dulles protested personally to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov. The latter June 25 gave Dulles a reply saying there was an exchange of shots and probable carelessness on part of Americans, whereas Soviet had strict orders to avoid any action beyond limits of the Soviet state; the Soviet Government expressed regret and offered to compensate 50% of damage. While U. S. Government denied violation of Soviet territory, both President Eisenhower and Secy. Dulles were willing to accept regret and agreed July 7 to accept 50% payment. The President thought the incident a local occurrence, not a matter of policy, but Sen. Wm. F. Knowland (R.-Calif.) Republican leader, refused to accept it as an isolated incident. It was the first "regret" ever expressed by the Soviet Government.

June 27—An ordinance of Cedarhurst, L. I. banning airplane flights at altitudes of less than 1,000 ft. was ruled unconstitutional by a Federal court judge in Brooklyn, N. Y. The court ruled that air space was public domain. Law involved flights from International Airport, Idlewild.

June 30—Civil Service Commission was ordered by a Federal judge to delete from its records a finding of "reasonable doubt" of the loyalty of John Stewart Service. The judge said Service had been validly discharged from the State Dept., citing a law that gave the Secy. of State absolute discretion to dismiss employees in the interest of the U. S.

Disasters

A car crash at the Hawkeye Futurity race in Des Moines, Ia., June 5, killed Bob Slater, racing champion. . . . Swedish tanker Johannishus burned after colliding with Panamanian freighter Buccaneer in the English Channel, June 9; 19 seamen were lost. . . . USAF B-29 hit Mt. Teckberg, near Stuttgart, Germany, June 10, killing 10 men aboard. . . . At the annual 24-hr. auto race at Le Mans, France, June 11, a car driven by Pierre Levegh of France collided with one driven by Lancelotti of Britain and hurtled flaming over a dirt retaining wall into a crowd, killing 82, including Levegh, and injuring 78. . . . The British submarine Sidon sank June 16 off Portland Harbor, England, after a torpedo explosion; 13 of 56 crewmen were lost. A rescue worker was also killed. . . . Brazilian transport plane, London to Buenos Aires, crashed June 16, at the village of Cuatro Mojones, Paraguay, killing 14 of 24 aboard including John G. Dowling, newsman, son of Eddie Dowling. . . . During maneuvers in Germany, a U. S. Sabre jet and a British Lincoln bomber collided, killing all 6 crewmen in the bomber. Jet pilot parachuted to safety.

WASHINGTON

July 2—Secy. of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson withdrew his charges that Wolf Ladejinsky was a security risk. Ladejinsky, an agricultural attaché in Tokyo, had been cleared by the State Dept., and after his dismissal by the Agricultural Dept., the Foreign Operations Agency again cleared him and sent him to Southern Vietnam as a consultant on land reform problems.

Dixon-Yates Power Project Dropped When Memphis Offers to Build

President Eisenhower on July 11, 1955, ordered cancellation of the AEC contract with the so-called Dixon-Yates utilities group to build a private power plant at West Memphis, Ark., to produce 600,000 kw of electrical energy for TVA. He had directed the contract to be negotiated on June 17, 1954, and thereby precipitated a year of controversy over private vs. public power, which led to senatorial inquiries into the necessity for the order and the financial status of the project.

The President ordered cancellation after he was assured by Mayor Frank Tobey of Memphis, Tenn., that Memphis was ready to build its own plant. The President had said Feb. 17 that he favored local ownership of power. The request of TVA for appropriations to build a steam plant to supply power to AEC had been denied in 1954; instead the Bureau of the Budget had announced that Edgar H. Dixon, pres., Middle South Utilities, and Eugene A. Yates, ch., Southern Co., would organize Mississippi Valley Generating Co., to build a $107,250,000 steam plant at West Memphis, Ark., to feed needed power into TVA. An appropriation of $6,500,000 for transmission lines was added to the 1955 power appropriation bill by the House.

Democratic opposition to the Dixon-Yates project, which was attacked in the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy in 1954, gained headway after the Democrats controlled the 84th Congress. Sen. Estes Kefauver, ch., Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee, conducted hearings on the origin and financing of the proposed plant. He disclosed that Adolphe H. Wenzel, v.p. of First Boston Corp., an investment house, had been consulted and the house had given its advice on financing, both, however, acting without a fee. The State of Tennessee brought court action to force the SEC to alter its approval of the financing.

AEC ruled Nov. 13 that the Dixon-Yates contract had been invalid because of possible "conflict of interest" in its negotiation. Government would not pay settlement costs amounting to several million dollars. Edgar H. Dixon said the power company would go to court for its money.

July 6—Government reported it had lost $643,900,000 on price support operations for the first 11 mos. of the last fiscal yr. Losses were $419,500,000 during the previous full fiscal yr. As of May 31, the Agricultural Dept. indicated that the Government had $7,200,000 tied up in surplus farm crops. Another $4,890,000 in commodities were owned by the government, and another $2,300,000 were under loan.

Secretary Hobby Resigns

July 13—Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, first Secy. of Health, Education and Welfare, resigned effective Aug. 1, in order to assist her ailing 77-yr. old husband, ex-Gov. Wm. P. Hobby of Texas, in publishing of Houston Post. She was the second member of the Eisenhower cabinet to leave, first having been Martin P. Durkin, Labor, Sept., 1953. Marion Bayard Folsom, born McRae, Ga., 1893, Undersecy. of Treasury since 1953, was appointed successor.

July 16—F.H.A. reported attempt to recover $500,000 "unauthorized dividends" in an apartment development in Wilmington, Del., called windfall profit on F.H.A.-insured mortgage loan.

Government Savings Possible

July 17—Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government headed by former President Herbert Hoover, reported that a slash in red tape could save the Government and business over $15 million a yr. Adoption of all the Commission's proposals possibly could save enough money to balance the budget and reduce taxes. Additional savings were estimated at $100 million a yr. and the group called on the Eisenhower Administration to study recommendations by the Commission.

July 27—The indictment of Corliss Lamont for refusing to answer questions of the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations in 1953, then headed by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), was dismissed.

For Summit Conference at Geneva July 18-22, see pages 46-47.

FOREIGN

July 1—Transport and communications strike in Chile paralyzed 6 provinces and made 37,000 idle. Cause was discontent over cost of living. Army troops enforced martial law, ran a few trains to provide essential service. Strikers wanted wage scales comparable to those in private industry.

July 5—Antonio Segni, left-of-center Christian Democrat, reported formation of a left-of-center coalition govt., to replace that of Premier Mario Scelba, which resigned June 22. Segni and his cabinet are committed to loyalty to the West and to adhere to the Atlantic Pact and to the NATO. . . . Spanish govt. accepted a verdict by the Madrid Court of Appeals allowing Spaniards who are baptized Roman Catholics to contract civil marriage with non-Catholics. Verdict, rendered June 18, concerned a test case by a Protestant lawyer who held that previous decisions by the Spanish govt. violated constitutional provisions granting freedom of worship to all Spaniards.

U. S. Announces Plan to Launch Man-Made Satellite into Upper Air

Man-made satellites to encircle the earth over 200 miles above its surface became the object of serious Government planning July 29, 1955, when the White House announced approval "for going ahead with launching small earth-circling satellites as part of the United States participation in the International Geophysical Year." The project had the endorsement of the National Academy of Sciences and the National Science Foundation, which have charge of American participation in the International Geophysical Year. This is a program for intense study of the earth and its surroundings from Jan. 1, 1957 to July, 1958, by representatives of 40 nations.

The satellite idea grows out of the experiments with rockets and guided missiles. It is proposed to send a multiple rocket into the skies, where it will release a round object about the size of a basketball, which will circle the earth without being pulled into outer space. A first-stage rocket is expected to send the July 9—In northern Laos, govt. troops attacked Communist supporters of Laotian forces in violent fighting. The Big Three Western powers left the situation to the international control commission to settle.

July 10—Nehru, prime minister of India, on leaving London, said he was convinced the Soviet Union would seek a reduction of international tensions at the Geneva Conference. He believed the USSR wanted to concentrate on internal development and might prefer to discuss Asian problems informally.

Riots in French Morocco

July 15—A curfew was imposed in Casablanca to halt a wave of rioting that killed 17 persons in 24 hrs. Among the dead were 8 Europeans who had joined thousands of others in demonstrating against Gilbert Grandval, newly appointed Resident General in French Morocco. Casablanca was put under army rule July 16, after 30 had died. Nationalist demonstrations erupted in Marrakesh, Southern Morocco, July 21, marking the first official visit of Grandval. Nine demonstrators were reported killed, and the Glaoui, Pasha of Marrakesh, was fired upon by rioters. Nationalist riot swept the Arab quarter of Meknes, French Morocco, July 25, when Grandval arrived here. Fifteen Moroccans were killed in clashes with the police. Nine policemen reportedly were among the 40 injured. . . . Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin said that the Big Four Conference "can and must" resolve the major disputes at the meeting opening in Geneva July 18. President Eisenhower left Washington for Geneva expressing hope that the Russians believed in conciliation, tolerance and understanding.

Cardinal Mindszenty Freed

July 16—Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary was allowed to "interrupt" his term of imprisonment, according to the Budapest radio. Apparently he will have comparative freedom but cannot leave Hungary. He was sentenced in February, 1949, to life imprisonment on charges of espionage and treason.

July 20—Sixty persons were injured when demonstrators against the 1954 truce accords pillaged 2 hotels in Saigon, Vietnam. About 20 Americans lost personal belongings. Trapped by the anti-Communist riot were Mrs. Perle Mesta, former ambassador to Luxembourg, James A. Michener, author, and Angier Biddle Duke, former ambassador to El Salvador.

July 23—Theodor Heuss, pres. of West Germany, signed a volunteer bill empowering the govt. to recruit 6,000 troops as the first German contribution to NATO.

July 25—Refugee officials said 98 members of the East German People's Police defected to West Berlin during the Geneva conference. Over 25,000 young men have fled from East Germany since Jan. 1 to avoid military service.

July 27—Austria regained its sovereignty legally as France deposited its instrument of ratification of the Austrian state treaty in Moscow. Allied Council for Austria met in Vienna for the last device up 50 or more miles; then this rocket drops off and a second rocket projects it farther until it is 250 miles up. At this height the earth's gravity is weak but sufficient to keep the ball in its orbit. The ball will move at a speed of 18,000 miles per hr., and eventually drop back into the atmosphere and be consumed. By its performance scientists hope to acquire important atmospheric and extraterrestrial data.

Exact cost of the experiments is not known but estimates reach as high as $10,000,000. Although the Government has agreed to share the results of observations with the cooperating nations, including USSR, some military authorities called this unwise.

Prof. Homer E. Newell, Jr., U. S. Naval Research Laboratory and associated with the satellite project, in an address to the special committee of the International Geophysical Year in Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 9 said the United States would launch 6 to 10 satellites during the "Year."

time to end the control agreement under which Austria was ruled for 10 yrs. . . . In parliamentary elections in Israel, the Mapai (Labor) party received 32% of the vote compared with over 37% in 1951. The General Zionist Party fell from 16% to 11%. Principal gainers were 2 parties advocating force to maintain border security. It was impossible for any 2 parties to form a majority in parliament.

July 31—The Pakistan govt. reduced the value of the rupee by $\frac{1}{3}$, increasing the rate for the U.S. dollar from 3 rupees 8 annas to 4 rupees 8 annas. The devalued rate was the same as that of India and foreshadowed an India-Pakistan trade agreement, with lifting of tariff barriers.

UNITED NATIONS

July 5—The Technical Assistance Board in its annual report disclosed that delayed payment of pledges lowered expenditures from $17,818,000 in 1953 to $15,111,000 in 1954. Despite an increase of requests from undeveloped countries, more nations pledged a greater amount to the U.N. program.

July 13—U.N. statisticians reported that world population passed the 2,528 billion mark in 1954. At mid-1954, North America's population was estimated at 233,000,000, South America's at 121,100,000, Africa's at 216,000,000 and that of Asia and Europe, excluding Soviet territory, at 1,323,000,000 and 406,500,000. Population of the Soviet Union was given as 214,500,000 and that of Oceania as 14,200,000.

GENERAL

July 5—Charles L. Patterson, 49, railroad executive from Pittsburgh, was sworn in as ch. of the New York City Transit Authority. The former vice pres. of the Bessemer & Lake Erie said he intended to provide better subway and bus service without increasing the 15c fare. Patterson believed that the best way to prevent a further drop in the number of riders on municipally owned lines was better service. As of the fiscal year recently ended, passengers on the lines amounted to 1.8 billion, compared to 2.7 billion 8 yrs. ago.

July 6—Harold A. Stevens, 47-yr. old jurist in the Court of General Sessions in New York County, became the first Negro sworn in as a justice of the New York State Supreme Court.

July 6—Caryl Chessman, scheduled to die in the gas chamber of San Quentin Prison, July 15, won a reprieve for the 7th time. . . . The motion picture censorship law in Massachusetts was voided by the State Supreme Judicial Court. The statute was part of a Sunday law over 300 yrs. old. . . . Rebellious convicts at the Washington State Prison, Walla Walla, Wash., ended a 26-hr. revolt and released unharmed 9 hostages after being promised major concessions. Many prison employees objected to the agreement and refused to work.

Scientists Warn Against War

July 9—Nine eminent scientists, 7 of them winners of Nobel prizes, published an appeal to the nations to forswear the use of thermonuclear weapons (h-bombs) and to abolish war, because that way lies death for mankind. They asked scientists to assemble to appraise the destructive character of modern weapons and acquaint everyone with the danger, with the object that if this peril is understood, men collectively may avert it.

The statement was made public in London by Bertrand Russell, who explained that Albert Einstein signed it before his death, April 18, 1955. Signers besides Russell and Einstein were Percy W. Bridgman, Leopold Infeld, Hermann Joseph Muller, Cecil F. Powell, Joseph Rotblat, Hideki Yukawa and Frederic Joliot-Curie. Prof. Infeld is in Warsaw, behind the iron curtain, while Prof. Joliot-Curie of Paris is known for his Communist sympathies. Prof. Muller made the reservation that disarmament should not be limited to nuclear weapons but be "a concomitant balanced reduction of all armaments," and Prof. Joliot-Curie added that governments should renounce war "as a means of settling differences between states," and that "limitations of national sovereignty should be agreed to by all and be in the interests of all."

The scientists emphasized the danger from radioactivity and feared that if many H-bombs were used "there will be universal death—sudden only for a minority, but for the majority a slow torture of disease and disintegration." They pointed to the problem: "Shall we put an end to the human race, or shall mankind renounce war?"

They said people see the danger in the abstract, not as one directly affecting their own lives, their children and grandchildren. The scientists warned that the mere prohibition of modern weapons was not enough. They urged all governments to acknowledge publicly that nothing can be gained by a world war, and to find peaceful means of settling their disputes.

Six Nobel prize winners refused to sign the appeal, including Max Born, Niels Bohr and Otto Hahn; two Americans, Arthur H. Compton and Harold C. Urey did not respond to the invitation.

July 9—Roy W. Howard, editor of the N. Y. World-Telegram and Sun, was honored in Cincinnati, O. at a dinner marking his 50th anniversary with the Scripps organization. Charles E. Scripps, a grandson of the late E. W. Scripps, founder of the present Scripps-Howard newspapers, reported the establishment of the Roy W. Howard Award, to be given to members of the Scripps-Howard organization who show "unusual enterprise and initiative." Roy W. Howard received the first award, a plaque.

July 11—A lifetime ban was placed on any teacher who instructs racially mixed classes by the Georgia State Board of Education. A resolution provided that any teacher who refused to honor a request by "superior authority" to instruct mixed classes would be paid for the full term of his contract.

Agricultural Delegation Visits Russia

July 12—Thirteen American agricultural representatives left for a visit to Russia, where they hoped to spread goodwill with Russian farmers. Moscow reported that a farm delegation enroute to the U. S. had left the Russian capital, July 12.

July 13—Harvey M. Matusow, witness in Communist trials, was indicted by a Federal grand jury in New York, on 6 counts of perjury, charged with having lied when he accused former Asst. U. S. Attorney, Roy M. Cohn, of inducing him to testify falsely in 1952 at the trial of the 13 secondary Communist leaders.

July 14—The U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., ruled against segregation in city buses in a decision involving a Columbia, S. C., case. The court held the principle applied by the Supreme Court in outlawing public school segregation should be applied in cases involving transportation.

July 16—Los Alamos scientific laboratory was opened to the public, on the 10th anniversary of the detonation of the first atomic bomb, exploded at 5:30 A. M. at a desert test site near Alamogordo, N. M.

July 18—RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. and its assets were sold to the General Tire & Rubber Co. by Howard Hughes for $25,000,000 in cash, following negotiations between Hughes and Thomas J. O'Neill, v.p. of General Tire and head of the Mutual Broadcasting Co. and General Tele-radio, Inc., both companies controlled by General Tire. . . . In West Milton, N. Y., Lewis L. Strauss, ch., AEC, sent electricity generated by atomic energy into a private utility's lines, marking the first time in the U. S. that atomic energy has been commercially used. The power, 10,000 kw. came from the experimental reactor built by the General Electric Co. 2 yrs. ago. . . . Thousands of Roman Catholics from all over the world attended special masses in Rio de Janeiro, in preparation for the 36th International Eucharistic Congress, to be formally opened July 19, on the shores of Guanabara Bay.

July 20—In Detroit a Federal grand jury indicted the United Automobile Workers, CIO, on charges of violating the Federal Corrupt Practices Act in supporting Democratic candidates during the 1954 primary and general elections. Each count carries a $5,000 fine on conviction. The union termed the indictment political chicanery.

Atomic Submarine Launched

July 21—The Seawolf, second atomic submarine, was launched at Groton, Conn. A few hours earlier, the keel of the third atomic submarine was laid. Ceremonies, attended by 20,000 guests, were presided over by Charles S. Thomas, Secy. of the Navy and Lewis L. Strauss, ch., AEC.

July 23—Donald Campbell, 34, son of the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, drove a jet-powered boat, the Bluebird VII, at an average of 202.32 mph on Lake Ulswater in northwest England. Campbell regained for Britain the crown won by Stanley S. Sayres, American, in 1952.

July 24—Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams of New York, N. Y., reported that the first half of 1955 saw a 13% drop in major crimes from the figures of a year ago. The Commissioner announced his resignation. Stephen P. Kennedy succeeded to the $25,000 a yr. post.

Israeli Airliner Shot Down

July 27—A commercial Constellation aircraft of El Al Israel Airlines was shot down by Bulgarian military personnel, with death of 58, including several U. S. citizens. Bulgaria acknowledged responsibility and pledged compensation. The U. S. Government through the Swiss chargé d'affaires in Sofia protested the "brutal action" and demanded punishment of offenders and compensation to the U. S. and its citizens. . . . Three dishonorably discharged soldiers who denounced the U. S. 2 yrs. ago for life in Communist China, arrived in San Francisco and promised to "accept whatever punishment is coming to us." The prisoners, William C. Cowart, Lewis W. Griggs and Otho G. Bell, were arrested upon arriving in the U. S. and heard a summary of court-martial proceedings based on the alleged aid to the enemy after their capture in Korea.

Disasters

Eight Portuguese jet fighter pilots hit a peak in a fog at Coimbra, Portugal, July 1. All died. . . . A Chicago and Eastern Illinois train, carrying 110 passengers, was derailed at Papineau, Ill., killing a conductor, injuring 29, July 1. . . . Seven American teen-agers were killed in Banff, Alberta, July 11, by an avalanche on Mt. Temple, Canadian Rockies. . . . A helicopter crashed July 13, on the 15th and 16th floor setbacks of the Port Authority Building in New York City. Two in plane were injured. . . . Flying tanker loaded with jet fuel crashed and exploded near Merced, Calif., July 13, killing all 10 aboard. . . .

The Federal, New Haven railroad train, jumped the rails on a sharp curve south of Bridgeport, Conn., station July 14. The engineer was killed and 24 persons were injured. . . . A DC3 transport plane crashed in southern Mexico, July 14, killing 21 aboard. . . . A Braniff Airways plane crashed at Midway Airport, Chicago, July 17, killing 22 aboard and injuring 21. . . . In San Bernardo, Chile, July 17, a collision of 2 trains in the suburb of Santiago, killed 49.

August—1955

WASHINGTON

Aug. 1—Harold E. Talbott, Secy. of the Air Force since January, 1953, resigned office Aug. 1, 1955, because, he told President Eisenhower, he did not wish to be a source of embarrassment to the administration. He had been interrogated by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, Sen. John L. McClellan (D.-Ark.) ch., on his use of office stationery and telephone to recommend to possible clients the management engineering firm of Paul B. Mulligan & Co., New York, of which Talbott was a partner. The President accepted the resignation as "the right decision," and praised Talbott's accomplishments.

Talbott said that before the Senate confirmed his appointment he divested himself of various securities, and that the Senate agreed to retention of his business connection. In the hearings Talbott admitted he had mistakenly used Air Force stationery and telephone on Mulligan business. His Mulligan connections had paid him over $130,000 since he had come to Washington. He said he would disassociate himself from Mulligan. Chief testimony that industrialists had interpreted Talbott's recommendations as pressure came from Radio Corp. of America. The Democratic majority tried to make political capital out

American Airmen Released by Communist Chinese After Long Imprisonment

Misuse and exploitation of American prisoners by the People's Republic of China (Communist) for political purposes, led to repeated efforts during 1955 by the United States Government and the General Assembly, U. N., to obtain their release. On May 31, 1955, the Chinese released 4 airmen. On Aug. 1, 1955, at the opening of the talks between ambassadors of the U. S. and the Chinese Communists in Geneva, the Chinese leader, Wang Ping-nan, announced that 11 airmen, sentenced to prison Nov. 23, 1954, for "spying," would be free Aug. 3.

The 11 airmen were Col. John Knox Arnold, Jr., 41, Silver Spring, Md., Maj. Wm. H. Baumer, 32, Lewisburg, Pa., Capt. Eugene J. Vaadi, 33, Clayton, N. Y., Capt. Elmer F. Llewellyn, 29, Missoula, Mont., Lt. Wallace L. Brown, 28, Banks, Ala., Lt. John W. Buch, 35, Armathwaite, Tenn., T-Sgt. Howard W. Brown, 32, St. Paul, Minn., Airmen Steve E. Kiba, 22, Akron, O., Harry M. Benjamin, Jr., Worthington, Minn., Daniel C. Schmidt, 22, Portland, Ore., John W. Thompson, 3d, 23, Orange, Va.

At Nevada City, Calif., one of the airmen, Daniel C. Schmidt, 23, met his wife, Una, who had remarried while he was a captive, believing him dead. On Aug. 25, Schmidt dropped divorce plans.

The airmen were shot down Jan. 12, 1953, near Antung, north of the Manchurian border, during the Korean War. Three other occupants of the plane were killed. A Chinese tribunal condemned the men to prison for 4 to 10 years on the ground that they were spies and criminals. The U. S. Government called the charges utterly false and demanded that the men be freed. The Chinese tribunal persisted in calling them criminals even when announcing its decision to release them.

The release of the 11 airmen was welcomed by President Eisenhower and Secy. of State Dulles, while Secy. General Hammarhjold of the U. N. expressed his gratification in a telephone message from Sweden. Official India took satisfaction in the release because its delegate to the U. N., V. K. Krishna Menon, who had conferred with Peiping and Washington, was thought to have helped.

Four flyers of the U. S. Air Force, captured by Chinese Communists late in 1952 and early in 1953 and held prisoners since, were released at the Lowu border bridge May 31, 1955. They were Lt. Col. Edwin L. Heller, Wynnewood, Pa., Capt. Harold E. Fischer, Jr., Swea City, Ia., Lt. Roland W. Parks, Omaha, Neb., and Lt. Lyle W. Cameron, Lincoln, Neb.

The Chinese Communists reported by air that the men had violated the territorial air of China to engage in provocative activities inimical to the security of the republic, but that since they had admitted their crimes and expressed remorse the Communists ordered them to be deported. The airmen, after arrival at Hong Kong in good health admitted pleading guilty, but the U. S. State Dept. rejected the Chinese charges as unfounded.

The U. S. Government asserted between 50 and 60 Americans were held by the Chinese, some sentenced as "spies," others denied visas. The State Dept. listed 40 civilians Aug. 1. Two men shot down Nov. 29, 1952, and described as civilian employees of the AAF, were sentenced respectively to life and 20 years. Eleven Navy and Coast Guard airmen, missing since Jan. 18, 1953, were believed held.

As a result of negotiations in Geneva between U. Alexis Johnson, ambassador of the U. S., and Wang Ping-nan, ambassador of Communist China, the Chinese agreed, Sept. 10, to release first 10 and then 19 Americans held illegally in China, but accused of various crimes by the Chinese. Among them was Laurence R. Buol, flight chief for Civil Air Transport Co., who was captured in southwest China in 1950.

of the case but made clear the issue was not one of corruption but of impropriety.

The President, asked July 26 about the incident, recalled his earlier statement that the actions of a public servant had to be impeccable, both from the standpoint of law and of ethics. No illegality was charged here and the Secretary's duties had been "brilliantly performed." "For myself, I think the only way for a public servant is to avoid indiscretion that even leans in that way, or gives the appearance that an office might be used."

Donald A. Quarles, Asst. Secy. of Defense, in charge of research and guided missiles developments, was named Secy. of the Air Force. His home is Englewood, N.J. He said he would get rid of "modest stockholdings," but was beneficiary of an irrevocable pension of $10,000 a year from Western Electric Co. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) attacked the appointment as another from the ranks of big business. Quarles took office Aug. 12, when Secy. of Defense Chas. E. Wilson gave Talbott the Medal of Freedom, with a citation honoring Talbott's work for free world security.

Aug. 2—Cpl. Claude J. Bachelor, Kermit, Tex., sentenced to life imprisonment for disloyalty and collaboration with Chinese Communists, had his sentence reduced to 20 yrs. by review board of the Judge Advocate's office, USA. At the Korean armistice he elected to go to China, then recanted.

Loan Rates Increased

Aug. 3—Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System, in order to combat inflation because of easy money, raised the rediscount rate from 1 3/4% to 2% in New York, Philadelphia and other large financial centers. New York banks raised interest rates on brokers' loans on securities from 3 1/4% to 3 1/2%. . . . The 84th Congress, 1st Session, adjourned until January, 1956.

Aug. 5—With President Eisenhower present, Harold E. Stassen took the oath of office as U. S. Deputy Representative on the U. N. Disarmament Commission, and Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., qualified likewise as Deputy Secretary of Defense.

Aug. 17—Defense Department's Advisory Committee on Prisoners of War reported that of the 1,600,000 U. S. servicemen taking part in the Korean war, 7,190 became prisoners of war, and 2,730 died while in enemy hands. The committee reported that "death marches" killed at least 500, and ill treatment among other things accounted for the balance. . . . Adm. Arleigh A. Burke took command of the U. S. fleet and promised to make it even more powerful during the atomic age. Adm. Burke, 53, succeeded Adm. Robert B. Carney as Chief of Naval Operations.

Aug. 18—In New York City the House Un-American Activities Com. closed 3 days of interrogating actors on communism in the theater. It heard 23 witnesses, of whom 18 invoked the 5th and other amendments. George Hall, Toronto-born actor, named 8 persons whom he knew as fellow members in 1946 of a midtown branch of the Communist party, which he quit after finding it "a distortion of the simple truth of democratic processes." Rep. Francis C. Walter (D-Pa.) ch., commended Walter for his patriotism.

Code for Employees

Aug. 22—Secy. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks issued a code for guidance of departmental officials and employees (est. 45,000). It prohibits acceptance of gifts, loans or entertainment likely to influence duties; permits no private arrangement for profit that affects departmental work; condemns any conflict of interest; prohibits the employee from influencing matters involving a previous personal business interest, a current economic interest, or a prospective relationship. Employees may not give out unauthorized information and may not deal in stocks, bonds and commodities except for investment. They may not deal with former Government employees who have set up for themselves within 2 years and may not tutor for civil service tests.

Aug. 25—Secy. of the Treasury George M. Humphrey believed that tax cuts were possible in 1956 if additional revenue appeared and hoped the budget would be balanced by a combination of booming business and Government economies. Prospective budget deficit of $1.7 billion was termed the lowest deficit estimate in 5 yrs. Humphrey said that he would not wait for a surplus before asking for an income tax reduction.

Aug. 30—Senate Civil Service subcommittee, Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) ch., heard Joseph

L. Rauh, Jr., Washington attorney, speaking as natl. ch. of Americans for Democratic Action, say that the committee should stop "shadow-boxing and get along with this investigation." The subcommittee was investigating the Government's employee security-risk program. The A. D. A. proposed reforms in the security program and was joined by the American Jewish Congress represented by Will M. Waslow. Rauh recalled that Sen. Johnston had promised to get to the bottom of a charge by Vice Pres. Richard M. Nixon in the 1954 Congressional campaign that the Eisenhower Administration had ousted about 8,000 security risks, mostly appointees of the Truman Administration. . . . Government heard Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu of Japan outline a plan to rearm Japan and make it and the U. S. military partners. In 6 yrs. Japanese armed forces would total 200,000. Shigemitsu hoped that all or most U. S. troops would be withdrawn from Japan by 1958. He believed that Japan would need U. S. air power for a much longer time to insure its defense. An agreement, Aug. 31, was to allow Japan to share in Pacific defense after rearming. Negotiations included 6-yr. rearmament plan to be accompanied by a reduction in Japan's financial support of U. S. troops in Japan and the withdrawal of American servicemen, to be decided later.

FOREIGN

Aug. 2—Pres. Tito of Yugoslavia expressed his country's willingness to again enter into relations with the Soviet Communist party. He said Yugoslav friendly relations with the U. S. would not change. He believed Russian leaders had abandoned world domination and that there was no danger of a Soviet war against the West.

Aug. 4—Soviet Premier Bulganin, reporting to the Supreme Soviet on the results of the Geneva Conf. called it a major historical event with a turn in the relations of the Big 4, but condemned an idea that security depended on "a policy of military groupings." He said President Eisenhower's proposal for a check on armament by a mutual air reconnaissance and exchange of blueprints would have no real effectiveness, since both nations had vast territory in which concealment was possible and other countries were not included. Interpretation of his remarks as rejection of the proposal led him to assert Aug. 5 that he did not reject the proposal entirely, but would examine all such seriously.

Aug. 6—Expansion of American air bases in Japan, presumably to accommodate aircraft carrying nuclear bombs, was loudly opposed by leftwing groups. The Japanese government, describing the expansion as promoting defense, said it was essential to the country's interest. . . . Soviet newspapers printed statements by members of the U. S. agricultural group now touring the Soviet Union, saying U. S. farms were more highly mechanized and that productivity of farmland was greater in America than in Russia. The American standard of living for farmers exceeded that of Russian peasants.

Aug. 7—Mohammed Ali resigned as prime minister of Pakistan after losing his place as head of the Moslem League and was succeeded Aug. 11 by Chaudry Mohammed Ali, who headed a coalition of the Moslem League and the United Front party. Mohammed Ali was appointed ambassador to the U. S. The prime minister said national unity and political stability demanded the early framing of a constitution based on Islamic ideals. It should call for a federal republic with West Pakistan in one administrative entity and give both wings of Pakistan a maximum of provincial autonomy consistent with national security. He considered Kashmir "the great moral issue of our time," and proposed to consult all leaders, including those of Kashmir, on a peaceful settlement with India.

Aug. 8—Matyas Rakosi, Communist leader of Hungary, assured Marshall Tito, president of Yugoslavia, that he would work to strengthen relations between the two countries. This was in reply to denunciation of Hungary by Tito, in which he said the friendly overtures of the Soviet Union were not being followed by Hungary and other satellite countries, which had imprisoned persons favoring friendship with Yugoslavia.

Aug. 11—The Philippine legislature gave Pres. Ramon Magasaysay power to break up large estates for distribution to tenant farmers. . . . General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) admitted Japan. Reservation against Japan by 13 countries permitted these nations to withhold equal tariff treatment from a new member until they were satisfied that trading practices were put on a basis comparable to their own . . . A coalition govt. was formed in Indonesia with Burhanuddin Harahap heading the anti-Communist Moslem Masjumi party as premier. The govt. was pledged to continue Indonesia's neutral course. The Nationalist party, which has held the premiership for 2 years, and the Communists, opposed the Moslems . . . Japan's leading Communist and 2 of his aides ended 5 yrs. in hiding to lead a new Communist "peace." Police arrested them 2 hrs. after their appearance. Senzo Nozaka, Moscow trained, became Japan's leading Communist when Kiyuchi Tokuda died.

Aug. 12—USSR reported Soviet troops would remain in Rumania until the U. S. removed its forces from Europe and the Western military alliance was disbanded. Russian troops were to protect Rumania's "security" as agreed in the military alliance signed in Warsaw.

Communists to Reduce Armies

Aug. 13—The Soviet Union announced it would reduce its armed forces as a result of the "relaxation of international tension." The Soviet news agency Tass said 3 fighting services would be cut by 640,000 men by Dec. 15. Czechoslovakia and Rumania also announced plans to cut armies.

Indians Agitate for Goa

Aug. 15—Continued agitation among Indians, spurred by Communists and Socialists, to drive the Portuguese out of Goa, led groups of unarmed Indians to cross the border on this, their independence day anniversary. Portuguese border guards fired a warning volley; when the marchers persisted they shot into the crowd, killing a reported 22, injuring 31. In Bombay rioters attacked the Portuguese consulate and were beaten back by police; there also were demonstrations in Calcutta and Madras. Lisbon protested the "invasion"; Prime Minister Nehru deplored the brutality and India broke off diplomatic relations. India had asked Portugal to close its legation in New Delhi by Aug. 8, because Portugal had refused to consider negotiations leading to its withdrawal from Goa. The All-India Congress committee later adopted resolutions asking Indian nationalists to avoid demonstrations in Goa. Nehru said India did not wish to annex Portuguese possessions but wanted to see the end of colonial rule, leaving the people of the enclaves to decide their own future alignment. . . . Ten men of the illegal Irish Republican army broke into Arborfield army camp near London and stole 68 weapons and over 80,000 rounds of ammunition. Most of this was recovered by police Aug. 16. On Aug. 15, 3 Irish raiders were seized while attempting to break into an arsenal at Rhyl, Wales.

Sudan for Self-rule

Aug. 16—Parliament of Sudan asked that Britain and Egypt evacuate their troops from the Sudan in 90 days. (Britain, with 900 troops and Egypt with 500 agreed to be out of the country by Nov. 12.) Parliament also asked that arrangements be made at once for a constituent assembly to establish Sudan self-rule. Under a prior agreement 5 neutral nations were to supervise a plebiscite to determine whether Sudan became independent or joined Egypt in a union. Egypt had proposed that the Soviet Union be a member of the 5-nation board . . . Mutinous troops at Torit, Equatoria, Sudan, surrendered. . . . Russia announced 2,000 Soviet citizens would visit foreign countries, first since 1939. Certain foreign correspondents also were given permits to visit USSR.

Aug. 22—Dr. Jose Guillermo Trabaino, foreign minister of El Salvador, was elected first permanent secy. gen. of the Organization of Central American States (El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica, Nicaragua) in Antigua, Guatemala. Conference was brought to a close Aug. 24 when the nations voted an annual appropriation of $125,000 a year.

Aug. 24—Voice of America broadcast a report by Vladimir M. Matskevich, acting Soviet Agriculture Minister, to the Russian people on his tour of the U. S. Matskevich's remarks were tape-recorded in the Soviet Embassy. Broadcasts had been jammed by Russian interference; Matskevich's 3 min. statement also was jammed.

. . . To combat mild inflation, Australia planned no reductions in taxation. Net deficit on external transactions for fiscal yr. ending June 30, 1955, was £142,000,000 which reduced international reserves to $428,000,000. Exports decreased because of a drop in the price of wool.

Tunisia Gains Autonomy

Aug. 27—Tunisia, under French protection, ratified conventions restoring internal autonomy. France was to continue to direct Tunisia's external affairs and provide for its defense. Sidi Mohammed el Amin, the Bey of Tunis, was to be ruler after a constituent assembly had turned Tunisia into a constitutional monarchy.

Uprising in Morocco

During August negotiations between the French government of Premier Edgar Faure and nationalists and French officials of Morocco, Berber tribesmen attacked peaceful villages Aug. 19-21, murdering Europeans. Total deaths reported, 2,228, of which 1,396 were in Algeria, included 50 men, women and children killed at Oued Zem. The Foreign Legion suppressed the terror. Gen. Raymond-Francis Duval, French commander, was killed in an airplane crash Aug. 22. Nine battalions (1,000 troops) were despatched from France a week later. France called up 60,000 reservists in the 24-age group to fill gaps.

The uprising occurred on the second anniversary of the removal of the sultan, Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef, who was sent to Madagascar and succeeded by Sidi Mohammed ben Moulay Arafat, pro-French sultan unpopular with the nationalists, but backed by Berber chiefs. A conference between Premier Faure and Moroccan leaders was held Aug. 22 in Aix-les-Bains. It led to a delegation going to Madagascar to propose to the deposed sultan that he agree to the naming of a regency council, pending a movement toward independent representative government. Gilbert Grandval, resident general of Morocco, who had opposed concessions, resigned Aug. 31 and Lt. Gen. Pierre G. B. de Latour, res. gen. of Tunisia, was sent to Rabat to succeed him.

Representatives of the U. N. from 17 Arab, Asian and African nations, including Turkey, met Aug. 23 in New York and advised Sec. Gen. Hammarskjöld of their distress at the rioting and asked an end of reprisals.

The plan endorsed by Premier Faure included the removal of the pro-French sultan, Arafat, to be replaced by the regency council. The country would then work toward "a free sovereign state linked to France by an act of independence." The sultan in Madagascar, Youssef, gave his approval Sept. 10 and the French cabinet approved Sept. 12. Arafat was to go to Tangiers and Youssef to France.

UNITED NATIONS

Aug. 9—In an attempt to capture Communist members of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission, 200 South Koreans fought their way to Wolmi Island, but were driven off. Seven U. S. military policemen were injured protecting the truce inspection teams composed of representatives of Switzerland, Sweden, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Demonstrations began Aug. 6, in protests against Polish and Czechoslovak members, whom the South Koreans called Communist spies. Pres. Syngman Rhee and the U. N. Command acted Aug. 10, to avoid serious incidents. Secy. of State Dulles called for patience in South Korea. The neutral truce teams, Aug. 12, defied an order by Rhee to leave the country by Aug. 13. U. S. troops with gunfire and tear gas, threw back a 3,000-man attack, Aug. 12 at Kangnung. U. N. Command proposed Aug. 29, that the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission be disbanded.

Peaceful Use of Atom

Aug. 20—The first International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of the Atom met under U. N. auspices in Geneva Aug. 8-20, with over 1,200 representatives of 60 nations and U. N. agencies present. Dag Hammarskjöld, secy. gen. U. N., opened the conference. It grew out of President Eisenhower's 1953 proposal to make atoms work for human welfare. The U. S. delegation was led by Lewis L. Strauss, ch. AEC, and 4 other Representatives: Willard F. Libby, AEC, Isidor I. Rabi, prof. of physics, Columbia Univ.; Detlev W. Bronk, pres. Natl. Academy of Sciences and of Rockefeller Institute, and Shields Warren, scientific dir., Cancer Research Inst., Boston. Congressional advisers were led by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N. M.) and included Sens. Pastore, Hickenlooper and Hicken, and Reps. Durham, Hollifield, Cole, and Hinshaw. The delegation comprised 384, of whom 239 were scientists and engineers.

Exhibits of peaceful use of nuclear energy were shown, including an operating research reactor by the U. S., which was sold at the close of the sessions to the Swiss government for $180,000.

Sir John Cockcroft, dir., atomic energy research at Harwell, Eng., told the delegates that Britain 18 mos. before had completed a breeder reactor that produced twice as much fuel as it consumed. He said work was proceeding on fusion of the H-bomb for peaceful purposes. Homi J. Bhabha, pres. of the Conference and Indian atomic scientist, said the fusion of the H-bomb would be harnessed within 20 yrs. to provide unlimited industrial power.

The USSR showed a film of an electric power station operated since June, 1954, with nuclear energy and said a plant with 100,000 kw was under construction. Soviet delegate Lavrishev said the USSR was designing a reactor of up to 6,500 kw for Communist China, said there were reactors in Moscow and Leningrad, cyclotrons in Kiev and Leningrad, a synchrotron in Moscow and other apparatus in Kharkov.

Dr. Libby (U. S.) reported that radio active isotopes had saved the world possibly $1 billion in 10 years. The U. S. disclosed a new technology for using sodium for heat transfer at high temperature in reactors. A group to study technical aspects, comprising scientists from U. S., Britain, France, Canada, USSR and Czechoslovakia held closed sessions after the conference. Lewis L. Strauss reported that while the U. S. was ahead of the Soviet Union in atomic progress as disclosed at the conference, it was not developing enough scientists and engineers for the atomic age.

Egyptian-Israeli Clashes

Aug. 24—Egypt withdrew from talks with Israel concerning means to lessen tension on the Gaza border. Israel, according to an Egyptian statement wanted to remove international supervision and hold direct talks. Egypt said Israeli forces tried to involve Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U. N. truce chief, in strife. Israeli forces, using armed cars and field artillery, attacked an Egyptian outpost, killing an Egyptian officer and 2 soldiers, Aug. 22.

Aug. 26—Secy. of State Dulles, in an address before the Council on Foreign Relations in New York offered a program for bringing stability, tranquillity and progress to the Middle East. He recommended that the U. N. settle the problem of divided Jerusalem. He said development of water resources to create more arable land for the 900,000 Arab refugees from Israel as well as compensation due the Arabs from Israel could be financed by an international loan in which the U. S. would participate. To overcome fear and insecurity the U. S. was ready to join other nations in a treaty sponsored by the U. N. to prevent any effort by either side to alter boundaries by force. These boundaries, fixed in 1949, were not necessarily permanent; he said the U. S. was ready to cooperate in an effort to reconcile claims.

Israel reported, Aug. 26, that Egyptian ambush had killed an Israeli civilian and wounded a soldier in the Negev area. Egypt reported the deaths of 12 other Israelis. Peace prospects were dimmed by a shooting Aug. 28, that killed 4 Egyptians and 2 Israelis. Two Israeli and 4 Egyptian jet fighters met over the Gaza border, Aug. 29, in what was believed to be the first such battle since the signing of the armistice in 1949. A number of Israelis were slain as the U. N. truce commission reported Aug. 31, that Egypt had agreed to a cease-fire on the front near Gaza; Israel also was expected to agree.

Arms Controls Sought by U. S.

Aug. 29—U. S. called on the U. N. to back proposals by President Eisenhower to control atomic weapons and international armaments through aerial inspection and the exchange of military blueprints. The U. S. was prepared to submit a program, according to U. S. Rep. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

The opening session of the subcommittee on Disarmament, attended by Britain, France, Canada, the Soviet Union and the U. S., heard the ch. Arkady A. Sobolev of USSR assert a lack of confidence among the nations formed the greatest obstacle to a plan first suggested by USSR May 10 in London. This plan for inspection and controls was termed inadequate by the West. Meetings were resumed after the Big Four meeting in Geneva.

GENERAL

Aug. 8—Central Committee of World Council of Churches closed 8-day meeting at Davos, Switzerland, with a call for disarmament addressed to all member nations of U. N. It admitted the Silesian Lutheran org. (Czech) and the National Baptist Convention of America (Negro); postponed admission of the Russian Orthodox Org. Total membership now 167. It adopted plans for a $750,000 hq. in Geneva and accepted the invitation of the Hungarian Protestants to meet in Budapest in July, 1956.

Aug. 10—Hurricane Connie, with winds at 135 mph, raised havoc on the Atlantic Seaboard with torrential rainfall, floods, disrupted services, through Aug. 13. Hurricane Diane, Aug. 17, caused great floods and huge losses in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. For details consult Weather in 1955.

Aug. 12—Judge Jas. R. Agee of Superior Court, Alameda Co., Calif., ruled California's loyalty oath, adopted 1953, violates the guarantee of freedom of speech of the U. S. Constitution. The law requiring churches to sign the oath to qualify for tax exemption was attacked by First Methodist Ch., San Leandro, in test case. A prior effort in the California legislature to exempt churches was defeated.

Aug. 13—The United Steel Workers, C. I. O., at U. S. Steel American and Continental Can Co. won hourly wage rises of 13c to 21½c an hr. See Labor Review, page 56.

Aug. 18—U. N. Command protested that an unarmed U. S. training plane in the demilitarized zone of Korea had been downed Aug. 17 by Communist anti-aircraft fire. One of two men aboard the T-6 trainer was killed; the other was made a prisoner and on Aug. 23, was returned to the U. S. command.

Aug. 19—Sgt. Jas. C. Gallagher, Brooklyn, N. Y., was found guilty of the murder of 3 fellow-prisoners and collaboration with the enemy in North Korean prison camps. He was given dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of pay and life imprisonment at hard labor at an Army court martial on Governors Isl., New York. Five eyewitnesses described the beatings by Gallagher and death by exposure of helpless soldiers.

Aug. 22—The joint committee on charitable and philanthropic agencies of the New York State Legislature heard witnesses in New York on the subject of communist influences in 9 summer camps. David Greene, mgr. of Camp Lakeland, where children were said to be taught Communism, and numerous others took refuge in constitutional rights and refused information.

Aug. 23—The Consumers' Price Index rose in July for the second month in a row, to reach its highest point in 1955. Increase was .3%. About 850,000 union workers whose wages were connected to the index were to get increases in pay. About 650,000 auto workers were scheduled to receive 1c an hr. more in pay, effective Sept. 1.

London-New York Round Trip

Aug. 23—A British plane carrying two airmen figuratively achieved breakfast in London, lunch in New York and dinner in London. Capt. John Hackett, pilot, and Peter Money, navigator, flew an Electric Canberra PR 7 twin-jet photo reconnaissance craft from Croydon to New York, and return, in 14 h., 21 min., 45.4 sec., averaging 481.52 mph. Westward, 3,457.96 mi., with a 40 mph headwind, 7 hr., 29 min., 56.7 sec. average 464.12 mph. Eastward: with a 60 mph tailwind, 6 hr., 16 min., 59.5 sec., average 550.35 mph.

Aug. 24—Two USAF airmen and a British policeman were killed and 9 persons were injured when Napoleon Green, Chicago, 21-yr.-old U. S. airman, ran amok in the U. S. air base at Manston, Eng. Green seized a car and ran it into a crowded beach at Broadstairs, then killed himself. He was to face court martial for stealing. The U. S. Government agreed to pay all claims. . . . FBI arrested Elmer (Trigger) Burke in Folly Beach, S. C. Burke had been sought for a yr. after escaping from a Boston jail. The 37-yr.-old gunman was indicted in New York for the murder of Edward Walsh in 1952, and was wanted for questioning about other murders.

Aug. 26—Grand Encampment of Knights

Templar ended its 46th triennial conclave in New York with the installation of Walter A. DeLamater of Rhinebeck, N. Y., as the Most Eminent Grand Master and Louis R. Weber of Cleveland as Deputy Grand Master. The Knights Templar are members of the Christian religious order of Masonry. The organization comprises 1,600 commanderies with a membership of 400,000 in the U. S., Alaska, Mexico, the Philippines and the Canal Zone.

Truman Enters Political Battle

Aug. 27—Former President Harry S. Truman accused President Eisenhower of misrepresentation and demagoguery and the Republican administration of contributing little to the art of government "except perhaps in its use of publicity and advertising techniques," in an address before the Indiana Democratic Editorial Assn., French Lick, Ind. He said Democratic control of Congress exposed official corruption, stopped the "give-away of our resources to big business," and "put a stop to the wholesale violation of the Bill of Rights by some of its notorious inquisitors." He cited the $1 an hour minimum wage as a Democratic victory. He had offered his services to the Democratic National Committee to make a number of speeches. Paul Butler, ch. of the Committee said Democratic victory would depend on a "hard-hitting, fighting campaign."

Aug. 28—Penologists discussing the outbreak of prison riots were advised by the international committee of crime experts meeting in Geneva, Ky., Aug. 26, that convicts should be given "regular home leaves" to counteract the tension of prison life. Through Aug. 22, there were at least 5 prison riots in the U. S. Idleness and prison politics were called the major causes of unrest in penal institutions by Austin H. McCormick, professor of criminology at the Univ. of California at Berkeley.

Aug. 29—Aldo L. Icardi, former Army Lt., charged with the murder of Maj. William V. Holohan in Italy during the last war, was indicted for perjury for lying to a Congressional subcommittee about the crime. He pleaded not guilty to perjury charges Aug. 30 and was freed in $10,000 bond. Icardi was alleged to have administered poison to the major, and a third member of the OSS mission Carl G. LoDolce, was said to have shot him. Neither man can be tried for the crime. . . . U. S. S. Forrestal, supercarrier, moved into the James River and headed for sea for 5 days trial near Newport News, Va., but returned to port Aug. 31, because 2 of its 4 propellers failed to function after a main bearing melted.

Disasters

An American Airlines plane crashed near Newburg, Mo., Aug. 4, killing all 30 aboard. . . . In Gelsenkirchen, Germany, Aug. 4, an underground mine explosion trapped 25 miners and killed 16 others. . . . A Norwegian delegation of 10 women was among 25 persons killed in a Soviet airliner crash, Aug. 6, near Voronezh, Russia. . . . Explosion and fire in Andover, O., Aug. 10, killed 18 and injured over 15. . . . Two USAF Flying Box-cars, with 66 aboard, collided in midair Aug. 11, 30 mi. west of Stuttgart, Germany. All were killed. . . . An excursion schooner in Chesapeake Bay was wrecked by hurricane Connie, Aug. 12. Ten persons were drowned; 4 were missing and 13 were rescued. . . . Near Bourg St. Pierre, Switzerland, Aug. 13, 16 persons died as a sight-seeing bus, with 25 aboard, went over a precipice. . . . Four cars of the Frisco Railroad's Kansas City to Florida special jumped the tracks near Marked Tree, Ark., Aug. 19, killing 5 persons and injuring about 50. . . . A freight train hit a school bus with 40 children aboard, Aug. 22, at Spring City, Tenn., killing 10 and injuring 31, including the bus driver. . . . USAF C-119 crashed in flames, Aug. 23, into 3 houses near Charleston, S. C., killing 9 fliers and civilians. . . . Fire at the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Whiting, Ind., on Aug. 27, killed 2 and injured 40. About 1400 fled the blaze damaging over $10 million in property.

September—1955

WASHINGTON

Sept. 1—Government reported cash dividends by corporations were running 10% over those of a year ago. Payment in July amounted to $669,000,000, compared with $543,000,000 in July, 1954. Manufacturers, although running behind in mid-year shipments, maintained a high rate. . . . Hungary was ordered to end all propaganda activities in the U. S. Move was in retaliation for Hungarian arrests and hindrances of Americans in Budapest.

Record Employment Levels

Sept. 4—The number of persons employed in the U. S. reached 65,500,000 in August, according to Secy. of Labor James A. Mitchell. Total for July was 64,995,000 and for June 64,016,000. President Eisenhower praised America's workers for their contributions to the national welfare, but urged the nation to consider the situation facing workers over 45 who are unable to find employment. He said the arbitrary bar to full utilization of their abilities caused a waste of valuable skills and must be eliminated.

Sept. 6—AEC disclosed that its reservation near the southern end of the Salton Sea, Calif., was used to test the falling of various types of atomic bombs. No bombs have been detonated at the reservation, the only one of its kind in the U. S. Instruments record the action of dummy bombs as they are dropped from aircraft flying over the Salton Sea. . . . Defense Dept. planned an expenditure of $33 billion for fiscal 1956, $1 billion less than the estimate made 2 wks. earlier. In January, 1955, estimates for 1956 spending totaled $60 billion and the predicted federal deficit was $2.4 billion. It was said that if the armed forces reduced their expenditures, it would go far toward balancing the budget for the fiscal year, 1955-56. Major security items take 64c of every dollar in the Federal budget.

Employment and Income Record

Sept. 7—Government economists disclosed that incomes, jobs and building had reached a record high in 1955. Commerce Dept. reported an annual personal income rate of $304.5 billion in July, $14.5 billion over June, 1954. Census Bureau said employment reached a record total of 65,488,000 in August, a rise of 3,211,000 in a yr. Unemployment declined to 2,237,000 within the yr. According to a joint report by the Labor and Commerce Departments, new construction outlays totaled $27.05 billion for the first 8 mos. of 1955, a record.

Sept. 10—The Republican party was cautioned by President Eisenhower to avoid a one-man view in selecting a Presidential candidate, declaring the party overshadowed every individual in it. He said the party was too big and too well-manned to depend on the leadership of an individual. He addressed state chairman of the Republican party in Denver. . . . In Washington, D. C., segregation in public schools ended with the new school term, according to Dr. Hobart M. Corning, Superintendent of Education. In Delaware desegregation moved slowly. Maryland accepted desegregation with only a few incidents.

Legion Head Criticizes Fund

Sept. 11—Seaborn P. Collins, natl. comdr., American Legion, urged members to boycott the Fund for the Republic, set up, 1952, by the Ford Foundation. He said the fund was telling the American people communism was nothing to worry about. Collins considered Robt. M. Hutchins, fund director, unsuited to direct the project to mold public opinion. Hutchins said the fund has spent $2,500,000 to advance "understanding of civil liberties," and asserted it defended basic American principles. Irving Breakstone, former comdr., Illinois Dept. of the Legion, Sept. 18, praised the fund for supporting the Legions's Americanism program in Illinois.

Sept. 12—U. S. Army said 48 cases of suspected collaboration among former Korean war prisoners were dropped during the last 2 mos. Six others were cleared, leaving 54 cases pending trial or under investigation. Of 565 servicemen investigated, 429 were cleared or charges were dropped.

Sept. 14—Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R. Ind.) defended the trials abroad of U. S. military personnel for off-duty offenses. Approving the arrangement under NATO, Rep. Halleck said servicemen were being given "better breaks" than in courts-martial. Members of Congress who visited foreign countries had said American servicemen were being denied their constitutional rights.

Navy Resorts to Draft

Sept. 15—Lagging enlistments and loss of Korean war veterans forced the Navy to resort to the draft, the first since World War II. The call was for 10,000 men a mo. beginning in November. Army had been calling 10,000 a mo. since May, 1955.

Private Power for Hell's Canyon

Sept. 29—Federal Power Commission refused to order a rehearing on its decision of Aug. 4 giving authority to the Idaho Power Co. to construct 2 of the 3 hydroelectric power dams and installations in Hell's Canyon, Snake River, Idaho. The decision, long a subject of controversy between advocates of public and private power utilities, was challenged by National Hell's Canyon Assn., Natl. Rural Electric Cooperative Assn., and 8 public utility districts in the area to be served. They petitioned the Federal Court of Appeals, Washington, D. C., to annul the 50-yr. license granted private utilities. FPC had rejected a Federal project to develop water resources at a cost of $500,000,000.

Idaho Power Co. moved immediately to begin construction on Brownlee and Oxbow installations, placing order for mechanical equipment to be available for use in 1958. The 2 plants first to be constructed are Oxbow, with a dam 205 ft. high, 725 ft. long, initial power 151,000 kw, eventual capacity, 226,500 kw; and Brownlee dam, 395 ft. high, 1,320 ft. long, initial power, 360,400 kw, eventual capacity, 540,600 kw. The third project is Hell's Canyon dam, 320 ft. high, 860 ft. long; initial power, 272,000 kw, eventual capacity, 408,000 kw.

FOREIGN

Sept. 2—After 10 days of hostilities in the Gaza strip, an unofficial cease-fire was effected. Egypt and Israel unconditionally agreed to a cease-fire appeal by Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, head of the U.N. Truce Supervision Orgn. Cairo reported Sept. 5 the day after the pledge, that Israelis had violated the cease-fire line and 4 had been slain. Israel said the breach of the truce was an error.

Egypt withdrew its troops from the border of the Gaza strip, Sept. 20, but Israel occupied an area in Negev, Sept. 21, until Egypt reportedly withdrew from the zone and ceased interfering with Israeli attempts to survey the frontier.

Britain announced it would withdraw about 2,500 British and 1,000 African troops fighting the Mau Mau rebellion in Kenya during the next 4 months. British War Office declared the move was made possible by improvement in the situation. About 5,000 British and 7,500 African troops would be left to help police and security forces. Since October, 1952, almost 10,000 terrorists had been killed, 1,538 gave up and 24,188 were captured or held as suspects.

Sept. 3—Canadian police escorted a visiting Russian farm delegation through the Chatham, Ont., agricultural district to avoid demonstrations by anti-Communists. In Winnipeg, Sept. 1, 300 rioters rushed the visitors. Canadian officials said the incident had damaged Soviet-Canadian relations. Vladimir V. Matskevitch, head of the visiting group, said it was impossible to continue the visit when Russian delegates were threatened and insulted. Russians left Canada Sept. 11 and the U. S. Sept. 12.

Communists Cut Armed Forces

Sept. 3—Albania and Poland announced reductions in armed forces, following the Russian decision to cut military services in December. Both satellite nations said the men would be employed in industry and agriculture. They said the change was made to ease international tension and consolidate mutual trust. Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria reported similar intentions. A reduction of 20,000, Dec. 31, was scheduled by Hungary, Sept. 7.

Yugoslavia Gets Soviet Loans

Sept. 4—A Yugoslav economic delegation, Vukmanovic Tempo ch., closed a week's conference in Moscow by getting important economic aid from the Soviet Union. Loans and credits of $84,000,000 were agreed to, and credits were also available for 3 plants for agricultural purposes. The Soviet Union, as part of use of nuclear power for peaceful purposes, advanced a reactor and a cyclotron, as well as uranium and graphite, to be paid for in 2 yrs. The Yugoslavs considered the terms more favorable than any offered elsewhere and said the Soviet did not interfere with Yugoslavia's economic relations with other nations.

Sept. 4—In Chile, a strike in the public health services ended after 8 days, when Chile's Central Labor Union ordered the 30,000 workers to return, pending settlement of their demands, including pay increases of from 60% to 100% to offset inflationary cost of living. Only about 30% of the personnel returned to work. Strikers held that their labor union had reached an agreement with the govt. without consulting over 120 labor leaders in prison. Strikers said the stoppage would go on until the leaders were freed.

Disturbance Over Cyprus

Sept. 6—In Istanbul and Izmir, Turkey, anti-Greek rioting erupted, with thousands of young Turks smashing Greek store windows, wrecking interiors and overturning automobiles. Rioting flared after a stick of dynamite had exploded near the Turkish consulate in the Greek city of Salonika. Riots apparently were touched off by report that the birthplace of Kemal Ataturk had been damaged by the dynamite. Scores of casualties were listed.

Britain said, Sept. 7, that it would not grant the Greek demand for self-determination of Cyprus, and Greece said it would refer the matter to the North Atlantic Council. NATO Council met Sept. 8, to study the anti-Greek riots in Turkey. The Turkish delegate said measures had been taken to keep peace in the area. The council was concerned over the effects of the riots on the efficiency of the hq. of the Southeast European Command at Izmir. Field Marshal Sir John Harding, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, was named governor general of Cyprus and cmdr. of British forces on the island.

Moscow Treats With Bonn

Sept. 8—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano of the Federal Republic of Germany (West) reached Moscow on invitation to confer with Premier Bulganin, Secy. Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Molotov, Sept. 9-14. Adenauer called for genuine normalization of relations, specifying as major topics the release of German prisoners still in the Soviet Union and the unification of Germany. Bulganin said if prisoners were to be discussed East Germany should be represented, but Adenauer refused to consider this. It was said that members of the Adenauer group talked individually with persons from the East German govt.

Bulganin argued that 100,000 Soviet citizens were held in West Germany and should be repatriated, but later he gave a verbal promise to Adenauer to release 9,626 Germans held in the Soviet Union, whom he said were war criminals. Adenauer said he expected the eventual release of many more. The two nations agreed to regular diplomatic relations through permanent embassies, to aid the problem of German unification, and expected to arrange for trade relations.

Two reservations rejected by the Soviet were stated explicitly in a letter sent by Adenauer. He said that diplomatic ties did not imply recognition of "the present territorial situation by either side," since final boundaries must be determined by treaty with the 4 powers. Also that the Federal Republic reasserted its claim to represent the German regions presently outside its control.

Trouble in Morocco

Sept. 9—In Casablanca, French Morocco, a grenade thrown into a police wagon in the native quarter injured 6. Police machine-gunned a crowd, killing 5 and wounding 21. The grenade was believed to be the work of an organized terrorist group. France agreed, Sept. 10, that a sovereign state was to be set up in Morocco, permanently tied to France by an act of "interdependence." French cabinet decided, Sept. 12, to remove Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Moulay Arafa as the first step to solve the Moroccan crisis. A council of guardians of the throne was to be set up to organize a representative Moroccan govt. Sultan of Morocco resigned Sept. 30, but asked that powers be given to a member of his family.

Sept. 11—In Cambodian elections, former King Norodom Sihanouk and his Popular Socialist Rally party took 89 of 91 Natl. Assembly seats. Democrats were defeated, after winning every election since 1946. Cambodia formally declared its independence from France, Sept. 25, after almost 100 yrs. of association. Prince Norodom Sihanouk was named premier.

Sept. 13—France outlawed the Algerian Communist party for supporting the recent nationalist uprising in which about 1,500 persons were killed. . . . New Syrian govt. headed by Premier

Said Ghazzi, an independent, was formed. Former govt., headed by Sabri el Assali, ended Sept. 6, when Pres. Hashem el Atassi retired. New pres. was Shukri el Kouatly. . . . Premier Sami Bey es-Solh of Lebanon resigned after an attack on his foreign policy.

Soviet Spying in Australia

Sept. 14—Australia released a report on the case of Vladimir Petrov, former third secy. of the Soviet Embassy in Australia and disclosed a spy network endangering the free world. Inquiry said that Petrov, who defected to the West in April, 1954 had explained that Australia's Dept. of External Affairs had been a target in the Russian espionage setup. Moscow also asked Soviet officials in Australia for data on U. S. intelligence operations there and to obtain the French code from a cipher clerk in the French Embassy. Soviet plans failed after Petrov's defection. . . . Tahar ben Ammar was named first premier of Tunisia by the Bey of Tunis, under the new home rule agreement with France.

Sept. 15—Japanese Foreign Ministry reported that 3 of Japan's most notorious war criminals would be released. They were former Lt. Gen. Teichi Suzuki, former Col. Kingoro Hashimoto and former Finance Minister Okinori Kaya. They were sentenced 10 yrs. ago to life imprisonment by the U. S. and 7 other Allied powers.

East Germans in Moscow

Sept. 16—Premier Otto Grotewohl of East Germany arrived in Moscow, 2 days after Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany had left. East Germany was to be given a sovereign status like West Germany's and to receive other rights. Communist party secy. Nikita S. Khrushchev said Russia had no intention of abandoning communism. He warned the West that communism would win out. The Soviet Union signed a treaty with East Germany, Sept. 20, granting East Germany sovereignty and extending its control over borders and traffic between West Berlin and West Germany.

Concessions to Finland

Moscow welcomed also a Finnish delegation headed by Finnish Pres. Juho K. Paasikivi, and announced it was ready to give up the Porkkala naval base the Soviet Union occupied in Finland. It would withdraw naval and military forces in 3 mos. Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet defense minister, later said the Soviet had decided to liquidate its bases on foreign soil. He said other countries, namely the U. S., could follow the example. Negotiators agreed to extend the protocol evacuating Porkkala and the mutual defense treaty signed in 1948, for another 20 yrs.

Sept. 18—Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean, British diplomats, who disappeared in 1951, spied for the Soviet Union for a long time, according to the British Foreign Office. Both had ample opportunity to learn U. S. secrets. . . . Soviet Union announced an amnesty for those who collaborated with the enemy during World War II. Over half the prison population and hundreds of thousands of exiles were expected to benefit.

Sept. 19—Gov. Gen. Ghulam Mohammed of Pakistan, in ill health, resigned. Maj. Gen. Iskander Mirza, actg. gov. gen., succeeded. He said he would continue a democratic form of govt. and favored early merger of West Pakistan provinces into a single govt. Pakistan announced its formal adherence to the Pact of Mutual Cooperation signed by Iraq and Turkey on Feb. 24, 1955, and adhered to by the United Kingdom Apr. 5, 1955.

Egypt to Get Soviet Arms

Sept. 27—Gamal Abdel Nasser, premier of Egypt,

Heart Attack Hits President; Affects Politics and Business

President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack early in the morning of Sept. 24 while sleeping in the house of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, in Denver. He was taken to Fitzsimmons Army Hospital, with Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, White House physician, in attendance. The President suffered a coronary thrombosis, a possible blood-clot injury to heart tissue. On the Saturday afternoon before he had played 27 holes of golf. Col. Thos. W. Mattingley, heart specialist from Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, and Dr. Paul Dudley White, heart specialist, Boston, joined the staff.

After 48 hours Dr. White described tissue injury to an anterior heart wall as a "moderate" attack and said the President, who had been partially in an oxygen tent, was mending satisfactorily without complications and with good humor that made him "a wonderful patient." Dr. White's public exposition of the President's condition at a press conference was termed an unprecedented venture in medical education. Maj. John S. Eisenhower, USA, in civilian attire, visited his father and returned to Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon called a cabinet meeting for Sept. 30 to expedite routine business. By that day the President was able to initial 2 papers. As the President continued to progress different members of the Government went to Denver, but the physicians warned that the President still had "a long way to go" for complete recovery.

The effect of President Eisenhower's illness on business, politics and foreign relations was immediate and far-reaching. Political leaders of both parties, while cautious in public statements, thought the illness would take Mr. Eisenhower out of the 1956 race. This was looked on as a calamity by Republicans who had taken for granted that the President's wide popularity meant renomination and re-election. Democratic leaders declared no one would make political capital out of the President's illness. Atty. General Herbert Brownell, Jr. flew back from a vacation in Spain and after a conference said the President's condition was so encouraging that no opinion on delegation of some powers would be necessary. The Constitution is not clear on this point. See Constitution, p. 616, and amendment, p. 620.

On the stock markets prices broke Monday, Sept. 26, with a computed loss of over $12,000,000,000 in values, second only to the loss of Oct. 28, 1929. Fear of Democratic victory if Eisenhower did not run, with possibility of controls on business, price supports and continued debt financing affected the confidence of the financial community. Dow theory industrials were down to 444.56, off 31.89 points or 6.54%. Rails receded at 153.13, off 11.15 points or 6.79%. Transactions for the business day amounted to 7,720,000 shares, largest since July 21, 1933, when they were 9,572,000. This was attributed in part to the oversold condition of the stock market. Grain prices advanced on the belief that price supports would improve them. Temporary recoveries took place in subsequent days, but insecurity continued to affect market prices into the fall.

President Eisenhower's convalescence was rapid and on Nov. 11, 7 weeks after his attack, he was able to fly back to Washington. On arrival he said: "I am happy that the doctors have given me a parole, if not a pardon, and I expect to be back at my accustomed duties, although they say I must ease and not bulldoze my way into them." The President chose to stay at his Gettysburg farm at least 6 weeks and the Postmaster there vacated his office for the President's use. Members of the White House staff established offices there, including Sherman Adams, assistant to the President, James C. Hagerty, press secretary, and Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, personal physician.

announced that he had signed a "commercial agreement" with Czechoslovakia to exchange Egyptian cotton for military arms. Earlier in the month the deputy premier, Salem, reported that the Soviet Union had offered to supply arms to Egypt. Premier Nasser said the western nations had refused requests for arms for defense, adding that Egypt would not threaten or attack anyone else. Elsewhere he mentioned that Egypt had learned Israel was buying French war planes. Secy. of State Dulles and Foreign Secy. Harold Macmillan, Br., in a joint statement Sept. 28 said Britain and the U. S. had been trying to help nations provide for internal security without starting an arms race in the area. Geo. V. Allen, Asst. Secy. of State, went to the Near East to discuss the impasse. Secy. Dulles had two conferences with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in which he told Molotov that such delivery of arms would not help relax tension between the Soviet and the U. S. Obstacle seemed to have been U. S. demand that Egypt agree not to use arms for aggression, which Egypt considered limiting its authority.

Sept. 29—The first U. S. combat troops to be transferred from Austria to Italy passed through the Brenner Pass, between the two countries. About 5,500 troops were expected by Oct. 25, deadline for all U. S. troops to be out of Austria. New NATO force, the Southern European Task Force, was to be set up under the command of Gen. Clemente Priemeri of Italy. Russian troops also left Austria.

Sept. 30—Sweden dropped liquor rationing as its "part dry" law of 1914 ran out. Previously Swedes have been limited to 3 qts. a month.

UNITED NATIONS

Sept. 6—U. S. called for a new study of inspection and control of conventional and nuclear weapons. Harold E. Stassen, told the U.N. subcommittee on disarmament that the survey should be concentrated on the inspection of methods planned by the U. S. and Russia for the "delivery" of atomic weapons, including the strategic air forces of both countries. Stassen and Arkady A. Sobolev, Soviet representative, agreed no methods existed to determine atomic stock piles and secret production. The growing production of atomic energy for peaceful purposes could be switched, according to Stassen, to the accumulation of atomic munitions. U. S. has continually maintained that effective inspection must form the foundation for any plan to limit armaments. Sobolev's statement of the danger of surprise attack was seen by the West as an encouraging sign that Russia was aware of the danger of nuclear weapons.

Stassen Wants Inspection

Sept. 9—The Soviet Union questioned the U. S. plan for the exchange of military blueprints between the nations. Sobolev inquired if the U. S. meant to postpone arms reduction to the future. Stassen rejected the Russian's implication that the limitation of armaments had been dropped in favor of mutual inspection within the U. S. and the Soviet Union. The West has maintained that inspection must precede the Soviet program for immediate cuts in armed strength and the future outlawry for nuclear weapons.

Truce inspection teams left South Korean ports of entry, following an agreement between the U.N. and the Communists. South Korea had accused the Polish and Czechoslovak members of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission of spying for the Communists. A total of 61 members out of 79 was removed.

Sept. 13—Food and Agricultural Org'n. said food production in Russia, China and Eastern Europe was slightly better than before World War II, but the average man was eating less than before the war. Progress in Western Europe was "spectacular." Many parts of the world still faced the problem of providing food equivalent to pre-war levels. U. S. continued to pile up large surpluses.

Sept. 20—General Assembly convened, electing Jose Maza, of Chile, as pres. Assembly voted to postpone until 1956, the question of replacing Nationalist China with the Communist Chinese delegation. Russia introduced the resolution, was opposed by the U. S. and defeated 42 to 12 with 6 abstentions.

Sept. 21—The Steering Committee of the General Assembly refused, 8 to 5, to recommend a discussion of conditions in Algeria to the General Assembly.

Proposals for Cyprus

The Steering Committee of the General Assembly voted down a proposal by Greece to discuss self-determination for Cyprus. The vote: For, 4—Soviet Union, Poland, Egypt, Mexico. Against, 7—U. S., Britain, France, Chile, Luxembourg, New Zealand, Norway. Abstaining, 4—Nationalist China, Ethiopia, Haiti, Thailand. The result was resented by Greek spokesmen but supported by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. delegate, on the grounds that this was an occasion when "quiet diplomacy is far more effective than public debate." Negotiations earlier in September in London between British, Greek and Turkish foreign ministers led to Greek dissatisfaction with the British proposal, which offered "internal self-government compatible with strategic requirements" but not self-determination. The British government, friendly toward larger representation for the people of Cyprus, stressed the needs of the international situation. Cyprus had a population 80% Greek and 20% Turkish. Turkey made clear that the island is important to the security of Anatolia.

The new constitution proposed by the British foreign minister, Harold Macmillan, called for an assembly, with a quota of seats for the Turkish minority; departments in the hand of Cypriots except for ministry of foreign affairs, defense and public security, which would be controlled by the governor, with several portfolios reserved for the Turkish Cypriots; a chief minister chosen by the assembly, with approval of the governor. A tripartite conference was to examine British proposals for the constitution, including guarantees for the Turkish population and closer links between Cyprus and Greece, Turkey and Britain. Whereas the Greek Cypriots in London refused to discuss self-government without future self-determination, the Turkish minister refused to discuss self-government unless the demand for self-determination were withdrawn.

Arab-Soviet Bloc Defeats France

Sept. 29—By one vote the General Assembly decided to investigate conditions in Algeria, over the protest of France that this was an internal matter. The Steering Committee's motion to bar debate on Algeria was lost, 28 to 27, with the Arab bloc, smaller nations and the Soviet bloc voting against the motion, and the other large powers, including Britain, France and the U. S. voting against it. The Arab nations declared France held Algeria only by force, whereas the French considered it an integral part of France.

Antoine Pinay, French foreign minister, said the vote was a violation of the charter, a piece of "international demagoguery." With Ambassador Herve Alphand and the other members of the French delegation he formally left the meeting. Pinay said "My government will consider null and void any recommendation the Assembly might make in this connection." Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. delegate, said a debate on Algeria would involve consideration of "fundamental changes in the constitution of France," and might become "a grave danger to the future of the U.N." The French cabinet Oct. 2 approved the withdrawal of the delegation. As the Soviet bloc voted against France, the cabinet postponed the projected visit of Premier Edgar Faure and M. Pinay to Moscow. France would not withdraw from the Security Council but would discontinue furnishing colonial information. France returned Nov. 25 when U.N. dropped the inquiry.

GENERAL

Sept. 2—Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu, met with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur in New York, 10 years after Japan's surrender. Gen. MacArthur disclosed he had strongly opposed trying Shigemitsu and said Emperor Hirohito had offered to take full responsibility for all acts by Japanese military men and statesmen. The Soviet Union had included Shigemitsu on the list of war criminals and threatened to leave the trials if Shigemitsu were not included. The foreign minister was convicted of responsibility for the treatment of war prisoners and received a 7-yr. sentence, the lightest given to 25 main war criminals. Gen. MacArthur paroled Shigemitsu, who had served 2 yrs.

Sept. 3—A survey conducted by the Nat'l. Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People was made public showing that 11 of the 17 southern states where school segregation was required by law, some action had been taken to comply with the Supreme Court ruling of May 31, to go ahead replaced the retiring Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, effective after Jan. 1.

Oct. 18—Individual incomes of Americans in 1954 ran at the approximate level of 1953. Average income last year of 50,000,000 men was $3,200. For 28,000,000 women, the figure was about $1,200.

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, 56, former prisoner-of-war in Korea, retired from the Army, effective Oct. 31, after serving 32 yrs. . . . Vice President Richard M. Nixon answered a Democratic charge that the Eisenhower administration favored big business, saying wage-earners had it better today than ever before and praised economic policies of the Administration as being progressive and humanitarian. He spoke at the annual dinner in New York of the New York group of the Investment Bankers Assn. of America. . . . FCC authorized the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. to begin work on the Air Force's $2.4 billion aircraft warning system, Semi-Automatic Ground Environment System, SAGE. It would link all military warning systems. Project was to be completed in 10 yrs.

Farm Income Drops

Oct. 19—In the third quarter of 1955, farm income dipped sharply. The growing political issue, registered a 5% net drop, according to the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Farm income had dropped from $10.8 billion in the second quarter to $10.2 billion in the third quarter. Since the first quarter, the annual rate has declined over 11%. . . . National output in the U. S., for the third quarter of 1955, reached $392 billion, a record, according to preliminary estimates by the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Gross natl. figure was $7.2 billion higher than the second quarter. Consumer spending was at the annual rate of $256.5 billion, the highest in history.

Oct. 20—Administration plans for the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva were given bi-partisan support by party leaders. Congressional group believed however, that the first item on the agenda, German unification and European security, would take up much of the time. . . . Government dropped its 10-count perjury charge against Henry Grunewald, key figure in tax investigation scandals in 1953. New evidence, undisclosed by the Government, made it "inadvisable to go to trial."

Oct. 21—Consumers' Price Index rose .3% to the highest in a yr. Sept. 15 figure reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics was 114.9. Rise was laid mainly to higher prices for food, housing and apparel. Bureau also reported the purchasing power of factory workers had reached a peak—spendable weekly income of a worker with 3 dependents reached $71.55, and for a worker with no dependents $64.23.

U. S. Population Rises

Oct. 23—Population of the U. S. rose to 162,409,000 between 1950 and 1954, an increase of 7%. Census Bureau reported 6 states did not share in the increase—Alabama, Maine, Vermont, Arkansas, West Virginia and Oklahoma. These states decreased in population, but increases ranged from 1.1% for Kentucky to 31% for Nevada. Alaska showed a 62% rise, leading all states and territories. Population, on the average, increased 1.6% a yr. during a 4-yr. period.

Point Four in U. S.

Oct. 24—To aid economically depressed areas in the U. S. President Eisenhower planned to ask Congress for a domestic version of the Point Four technical assistance aid program, to extend "good times" to every section.

Oct. 25—Air Force announced it would have a vertical-lifting, man-bearing plane resembling a flying saucer. It denied the existence of previously sighted saucers, saying they were illusions or ordinary phenomena. Jet-flying aircraft was said to be in the readiness stage at the Ryan Aeronautical Co. in Calif.

Oct. 29—President Eisenhower backed the farm program of Ezra Taft Benson, Secy. of Agriculture. President said he would not endorse a return to high fixed price supports on basic crops. . . . U. S. disclosed results of its first inventory of defense properties. Total was $123.9 billion in goods and properties of the armed forces. Inventory did not include all subjects, including atomic energy figures and other assets.

Oct. 1—Mohammed ben Moulay Arafat, Sultan of Morocco, left his throne after resigning in September. He did not renounce his throne but delegated his powers to his cousin, Moulay Abdallah ben Moulay Abdel Hafid. By allowing the Sultan to name his own regent, a French plan to aid friendship between Morocco and the Paris govt., was temporarily upset. Regent, presumed unacceptable by the Nationalists, probably was the cause of tribesmen attacking French outposts near Fez. Attacks took place also in Casablanca and Marrakesh, and the department of Ocran suffered its first outbreak of violence since fighting began in French North Africa.

Premier Faure, before opening a lengthy debate saying a foreign drive was on against France, presumably against the French attitude in North Africa, dismissed 4 Gaullist aides. Premier said he was ready to fight for the Moroccan program, but some of his supporters believed France should come to terms with the Moroccan nationalists. Gaullists were told to resign if they did not agree with the Premier.

Reservists objecting to a transfer to North Africa mutinied in Paris and Rousen and were supported by about 1,500 civilians, many of them Communists. In Rouen, 50 members of the Republican Security Guard were wounded. Civilians protested the recall of reservists and the govt. policy in Algeria and Morocco.

Faure's program of reform and conciliation in Morocco was approved by the Natl. Assembly, 477 to 140. Premier overcame tactics by the Socialists, who sought to condemn his program. Usually in the Opposition, the Socialists later backed Faure. Terrorists killed 5 French soldiers and 8 civilians, Oct. 17, in Algeria. Faure received a vote of confidence, 308 to 254, Oct. 18, on his Algerian policy, when right wing deputies supported govt.

In Morocco, a 4-man regency council was named by Paris, Oct. 15, as a step toward settling the crisis. Major task of the council was to name a new premier. French troops were fired on Oct. 15, from the Spanish zone of Morocco, according to the French residency in French Morocco, calling untrue the Spanish claim of neutrality.

In Rabat, French Morocco, Fatmi ben Slimane, premier-designate asked if the throne council would interfere, before he went ahead with forming the country's first representative govt.

Thami el Glaoui, Pasha of Marrakesh, joined the nationalist parties and groups demanding the return of former Sultan Mohammed ben Youssef. France was stunned by Glaoui's stand.

Sultan Mohammed ben Arafat abdicated the Moroccan throne, Oct. 30, and backed his exiled predecessor, Mohammed ben Youssef.

Yugoslav Economic Policy

Oct. 2—Yugoslavia announced an economic policy to increase the standard of living by cutting investments for heavy industries. Agriculture and consumer goods were stressed instead of heavy industry, as in the Soviet Union. Govt. also said production would raise the standard of living and permit higher wages. Industrialization also was said to be responsible for a number of other economic ills, particularly in the larger cities. Yugoslavia sought to have some taxes reduced, over-investment curtailed and stabilization of the market to distribute national income. Policy also called for the elimination of farm collectives. . . . Rumania dropped the principle of collective leadership of the Communist party by making Premier Georgehe Gheorghiu-Dej, First Secy. of the party. Trying collective leadership for about 6 mos., Rumania dropped the Soviet-type plan, the 1st satellite to do so. Premier was replaced by Chive Stolca, a deputy.

Death of Greek Premier

Oct. 5—Death of Alexander Papagos, 71, premier of Greece, in Athens, resulted in the naming of Constantin Karamanlis, minister of communications and public works to succeed as premier. Karamanlis, 45, is a lawyer who carried out many construction projects in Athens. In outlining his policies, Karamanlis said he was determined to support the "just claims" of the Cypriotes. He also expressed indignation over the recent anti-Greek violence in Turkey, but he said existing alliances would be maintained. In addition he claimed measures would be taken to ease economic difficulties.

Oct. 7—With 2% of the vote for the election of a Brazilian pres. counted, the tally from the Oct. 3 elections gave Juscelino Kubitschek, Labor party, a substantial lead over Maj. Gen. Juarez Tavora. Kubitschek was termed the winner, Oct. 9.

Molotov Admits Error

Oct. 8.—Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov admitted he had erred when he said in February that only the foundations of socialism had been established in the Soviet Union. His view was said to be politically harmful and theoretically mistaken. Molotov had been criticized by the Communist party organ Kommunist. . . . Britain announced it had decided to cut its armed forces by 100,000 by March, 1958. Reduction, to begin in 1955, was to release more men for industry. Information came as Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden addressed a mass meeting at Bournemouth, Eng., following the Conservative party's annual conference. Britain's exports for the first 9 mos. of 1955, according to Sir Anthony, were £2.1 billion, an increase of 6% over a similar 1954 period. He said provisional figures for September trade showed a reduction in the gap between imports and exports had been reduced by £18,000,000, compared with August. Planning for reserve forces was to be revised and research for damage of an atomic attack was to be stepped up. Eden said there would be no changes in cabinet posts since economic and military planning would be a combined operation. . . .

Witnessed Hitler's Death

Adolf Hitler's personal pilot said he saw the dictator and his wife, Eva Braun, commit suicide in April, 1945. Pilot, Hans Baur, the first to say he was an eyewitness to Hitler's death, crossed the East German border after being imprisoned for years in Russia.

Heinz Linge, Hitler's valet, said Oct. 9, after his release Oct. 8, from a Russian prison, that he had helped to burn Hitler's body, after carrying it from the underground bunker where the dictator died. Eva Braun's corpse also had been burned. Linge said both were alone when they died, while Baur said he had seen the suicides.

Return of 750 prisoners of war aboard 2 trains by Russia, Oct. 9, marked an increase in the rate of return. Third train brought 30 former generals to the Lower Saxony frontier of Herleshausen. Thousands of persons lined the route of the trains in West Germany to welcome the seemingly dispirited men. Deputy Chancellor Franz Bluecher said the release by the Russians was an act of humanity and not political. Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin of Russia had promised in September to send over 9,000 Germans home by Oct. 20. Bluecher hoped a greater number would be released. . . . India disclosed a plan to reduce the 29 states to 16. All but 2 of the 14 language groups were to have their own states. Jawaharlal Nehru, prime minister, said the plan might become law within a year. No further need was seen for the state lines, set up by British rule, for reasons of military strategy.

Aneurin Bevan Loses Contest

Oct. 11.—Aneurin Bevan, left-wing Laborite, suffered defeat in a party contest. Hugh Gaitskell, right-wing's candidate, won the key post of party treasurer, by a vote of 5,476,000 to 1,225,000 for Bevan. Some delegates to the Labor party's annual convention in Margate, Eng., believed Bevan's political career had ended. Two apparently pro-Soviet resolutions of the party also were defeated. One of the resolutions said Britain should take the responsibility for negotiations with Russia and Communist China for a general agreement and co-existence. Britain was asked to proceed on its own rather than to follow the U. S. Bevan retained some prestige when 6 of his associates were elected to the Natl. Executive Committee. . . .

An amendment to commit the Labor party to support Russia's policy on Germany at the scheduled Geneva conference was rejected by Britons refusing to support Moscow's ideas on German unity. Among resolutions approved were those asking the party to call on the govt. to resume normal trade relations with Russia and Communist China; a call for further talks on the abolition of the hydrogen bomb, for admission of Communist China to the U.N.; withdrawal of the Chinese Nationalists from Formosa, settlement between Israel and the Arab states and the reunification of Germany. A resolution called for British disapproval of South Africa's racial policy. Among resolutions defeated was one saying that war was incompatible with socialism and therefore the party would adhere to pacifism. Meeting ended Oct. 14, with little accomplished, but agreement was reached on the necessity to reform the party.

Oct. 12.—West Germany's first report to NATO on its financial and economic ability to arm was rejected. NATO holding that West Germany's $2.14 billion was inadequate.

Oct. 13.—Over 1,000,000 persons turned out in Leningrad, Russia, to welcome the first visit of a British naval squadron since shortly after a World War II. According to crewmen, the attitude of the Russians was most cordial. Six of the vessels dropped anchor in the Neva River, and sailors were given shore leave. Meanwhile a Soviet naval squadron visited Portsmouth, Eng., on a 5-day goodwill tour. . . . Hungary announced suspension of the 15-yr. prison term of Roman Catholic Archbishop Josef Groesz, sentenced in 1951. Release came after the Hungarian Bishops' conference asked for his release. Four other priests also were to be freed.

Colombo Nations Meet

Oct. 14.—Colombo plan nations, meeting in New Delhi, India, reported that one of Asia's greatest needs was skilled men and technicians able to pass on to others their knowledge. Report paid tribute to the U. S. in the field of technical assistance. Since its inception in 1950, the plan has done much to better training facilities for almost 3,000 students in Asian countries. Britain reported, Oct. 18, that it would more than double its aid in technical assistance to Colombo plan nations, agreeing to spend $19,600,000.

Consultative Committee of the Colombo plan ended its meetings in Singapore, Oct. 21, after voting to continue the plan until 1961, in view of Asian problems. Committee said the level of food consumption was lower in South and Southeast Asia than before World War II, and below accepted standards of nutrition. Underemployment had been a major problem in many countries because of overpopulation. Famine and epidemics were other serious problems in areas of low living standards. . . . In West Germany, Otto Strasser, former political associate of Hitler, founded a new political party to press for a united, armed neutral Germany. Party was to participate in West German general elections, as the People's Movement for Unity and Freedom. . . . Provinces, tribal units and princedoms were merged in India into a single administrative unit with a population of 36,000,000 people. Merger eliminated semi-autonomous units of govt. and saved about $60,000,000 by eliminating duplicate costs of administration.

Egypt to Build Dam

Oct. 17.—Cairo authorities said Egypt would prefer to have the International Bank for Reconstruction & Development and the U. S. aid instead of having the Soviet Union finance the construction of the Aswan High dam. Russia was said to have offered to build the dam on the Nile River and to supply over $200,000,000 of the total $600,000,000 necessary. Egypt would repay in cotton and rice, at 2% interest over a 30-yr. period. U. S., to combat Communist infiltration, offered Oct. 20 to negotiate on financing of the dam and also development of the Jordan river valley. . . .

After 2 yrs. in exile, the Kabaka of Buganda, one of the kings of Uganda's 4 provinces, returned to his homeland. He had been banished to England, after a dispute over his power. Uganda is a tiny British protectorate below the Belgian Congo and Kenya. Two persons died in demonstrations welcoming the king. Kabaka signed a treaty with the governor of Uganda, carrying the Africans closer to self-government, by giving 30 of 60 seats in the protectorate's legislative council. East African Federation of Uganda, Kenya and Tanganyika was indefinitely postponed.

Oct. 18.—Japan and Burma agreed in Rangoon on terms of reparations and economic agreements. Japan was to pay Burma $20,000,000 in goods and services over a 10-yr. period, and was allowed to deal commercially with Burma.

Oct. 19.—Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, visiting the Netherlands Antilles and Surinam, signed a general amnesty for all prisoners in the Netherlands West Indies, on the second day of her scheduled 30-day stay. . . . Soviet Union was reported to be building a space ship, to cost an estimated $20,000,000. It was believed that Russia had completed 2 of the 3 rockets to propel the ship. First Soviet satellite was said to weigh 75 to 100 tons and have a range of 1,000 mi.

Oct. 20.—Egypt and Syria signed a mutual defense treaty in Damascus. Both nations agreed an attack against either would be regarded as an attack against both.

Saar Votes Against France

Oct. 23—The voters of the Saar rejected the statute of Europeanization agreed on after long negotiations between France and West Germany by a decisive vote of 422,434 against 201,973. The defeat expressed the strong feelings of the 3 pro-German parties, which had been repressed until the plebiscite and the leadership of the Heimattbund. The premier, Johannes Hoffman, closely associated with French policies, resigned, effective when a new parliament was elected. The proposed statute had been accepted by Chancellor Adenauer and the Christian Democrats of West Germany in a compromise with France over German sovereignty and security. Paris regarded the vote as a blow to French diplomatic prestige, and M. Francois-Poncet criticized the "shameless exploitation of national sentiment" by the extremist, Heinrich Schneider, former Nazi official, who was expected to lead a new campaign for self-determination and cutting off of all ties with France. France continues in control of economic and foreign policies of the Saar until a new plan is put into effect.

Vietnam Elects Diem President

Oct. 26—Ngo Dinh Diem was sworn in as president of Vietnam (South) following his smashing victory Oct. 23, when 95% of the voters favored him over the self-exiled ruler, Bao Dai, who lives on the French Riviera. The country was proclaimed a republic. In Saigon Cholon there were 150,000 more votes than registered voters, but the authorities explained that people from the provinces also voted there. Diem has had both moral and financial support from the United States, whereas a large French group that supported Bao Dai opposed him. In June, 1954, Bao Dai had appointed him premier, and later dismissed him, but he refused to go. The U. S. looked on Diem as the strongest anti-Communist leader in Vietnam. Both Britain and the U. S. recognized the republic.

Britain increased the purchase or sales tax 20% and raised the tax on business profits. House of Commons also planned an increase in postal rates and in charges for telephone services. Steps were reported necessary to fight inflation. In Vienna the parliament adopted a constitutional law, pledging the Austrian Federal Republic to remain forever a neutral state. Representatives of the Austrian peoples' party, the Socialist party and the four Communist members, voted approval.

Big Four Meet

Oct. 27—Big Four foreign ministers' conference began in Geneva. Consult article on pages 46-48.

Oct. 28—U. S. permitted travel by Americans to the Soviet Union and all but 2 of the East European satellites. Countries with which the U. S. maintained diplomatic relations were Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania and Hungary. In a memorandum from Britain, France and the U. S., the Russians were asked to end the Communist party's monopoly on communications to the Soviet people. Dulles said the U. S. would simplify export regulation as applied to the Soviet bloc. The 3 western powers asked for the elimination of censorship, opening of information centers among the 4 powers, discontinuation of jamming of broadcasts by Russia, increasing private tourist trade by establishing a reasonable rate of currency exchange, and other means to exchange ideas between the East and West.

UNITED NATIONS

Oct. 2—Egypt and Israel withdrew their armed forces from the El Auja demilitarized zone on the Sinai Peninsula frontier. Military observers of the U.N. supervised the withdrawal. Gen. E. L. M. Burns persuaded both nations to withdraw, preparatory to a proposal by the Mixed Armistice Commission which he heads, to define and possibly revise the agreement for guarding the commission's hq.

Oct. 6—Britain, France, Canada, Soviet Union and the U. S. headed a board of 16 nations assigned to draft a charter for an atoms-for-peace program. First 5 were to head a board of governors, by reason of their prominence in the atomic field. Five of the other nations were to be Australia, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Portugal and South Africa—the principal producers of uranium, thorium and other source materials. Six remaining members were to be elected from countries not possessing fissionable materials. After the first year all members of the board were to be elected annually, but the Big Four and Canada were expected to be permanent members.

Oct. 7—Jose Maza, pres. of the General Assembly, said the cold war may be drawing to a close, or at least becoming less grave. He said it was important to better creative and constructive co-existence.

South Africa Condemned

Oct. 12—General Assembly condemned South Africa's plans for racial segregation. Despite a change in govt., Special U.N. Commission on Racial Relations reported that the segregation issue (Apartheid) still was prominent in South Africa. Commission believed greater contacts between whites and colored would aid in settlement of issue. South Africa, protesting a discussion dealing with race segregation, in a committee of the General Assembly, walked out Oct. 24. Delegation reserved the right to return and take part in any voting on racial segregation.

Secy. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold was criticized for an attempt to intervene in the draft covenant on Human Rights concerning the self-determination of peoples. He had tried to have the self-determination issue referred to a temporary committee, calling a "right" what the colonial nations called a "principle."

Oct. 13—Soviet Union opposed the Republic of the Philippines for a seat on the Security Council, saying the seat belonged to the nations of Eastern Europe. U. S. backed the Asian republic against Yugoslavia. A deadlock in the General Assembly over the 2 nations resulted in Cuba and Australia being chosen to contest for the seat.

Arms Discussion Shifted

Oct. 21—Disarmament Commission left the discussion of arms limitation to the Big Four ministers meeting in Geneva. A Soviet proposal to discuss the issue was voted down. Nine nations called the Russian proposal an attempt to sabotage the Geneva conference.

Oct. 27—Despite rejection of 3 Russian amendments, the Soviet Union endorsed a resolution for the establishment of an international atoms-for-peace program. Vote was 53 to 0, with 6 abstentions in the Political and Security Committee of the General Assembly. Because Israel was one of the sponsors of the resolution, 6 Arab nations abstained.

Oct. 31—Soviet Union accepted under protest a 2% increase in its share of the U.N. budget. Present Soviet budget is 15.08%, second only to that of the U. S. Russia also voted for a new scale of assessments, approved by the Budgetary committee, 48 to 1. Quota of the U. S., which pays 1/3 of the budget, was unchanged. Cost of U.N. operations for 1956 was expected to be about $40,000,000. Dues were raised for the first time in U.N. history.

GENERAL

Oct. 4—The sun's light was used to power a rural telephone circuit near Americus, Ga. Solar rays were trapped to replace the usual battery power. The rays were harnessed for the first telephone call of the kind by the Bell Telephone Co. . . . Brooklyn Dodgers won the World Series. It was the first time the National League team won, defeating the New York Yankees of the American League, 4 games to 3. . . . New York State announced that automobile liability insurance coverage would be used to indemnify owners of insured cars for personal injuries caused by uninsured drivers. New coverage was to be added free to existing policies, but a premium of from $2.50 to $4.00 was to be charged when policies were renewed.

Vest Pocket Submarine

Oct. 6—A 20-ton vest pocket submarine, the X-1, was tested in Long Island Sound, off Deer Park, N. Y. The 50-ft. long, 5-man submarine was built by the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp. at Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y. Craft was designed for use in testing harbor defenses and for close-in attacks. . . . Paul A. Pfeffer, 23, went on trial in Queens County Court, New York City, charged with first-degree murder in the fatal beating of a handyman on Apr. 19. An earlier conviction of Pfeffer on a murder charge on Apr. 23, 1953, was set aside when John Roche, a convicted murderer, confessed to the crime.

Oct. 7—Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1952, criticized the Republican administration's "failures" in farm policy. Instead of eliminating surpluses, the Republican policy of flexible price supports was eliminating farmers, according to Stevenson, who spoke at the Wisconsin State Democratic Convention for 1955, held in Green Bay, Wis. Problems of taxation, conservation, foreign relations and civil liberties also were discussed. While Stevenson gave no indication that he would run for the 1956 Presidential nomination, his speech was considered pointing that way.

Oct. 10—Governor Geo. N. Craig of Indiana invoked martial law in 3 eastern parts of the state affected by a labor dispute involving the Perfect Circle Corp. Industry's New Castle foundry, scene of a bloody riot Oct. 5, was allowed to reopen by the governor. He said the United Automobile Workers, CIO, representing strikers, could station 5 pickets at each entrance of the company's 4 plants. During the riots, 8 persons were injured by gunfire.

Airways Order Jets

Oct. 13—Pan American World Airways said it had ordered 45 jet-propelled airliners, costing $269,000,000. Boeing was to provide 20 707 Stratoliners and Douglas 25 DC-8's. All the 575-m.p.h. planes were 4-engine and were capable of cutting flying time in half between major cities. The 100-passenger airliners were scheduled to go into service by the end of 1958.

United Air Lines, Oct. 25, ordered 30 Douglas jet planes costing $175,000,000. Plane contract was the largest cash commitment in the history of a single airplane contract. United planned to put the craft in service by November, 1959. National Airlines made a commitment to buy 6 DC-8's.

Oct. 14—Services in the Roman Catholic Mission of St. Cecilia near New Orleans, La., were suspended because parishioners refused to allow a Negro priest to say mass. The Vatican commended the Archbishop of New Orleans for condemning discrimination. Archbishop suspended services in the church of Jesuit Bend, where the incident occurred.

Oct. 16—Boeing 707 jet airliner flew 2,340 mi. from Seattle to Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland in 3 hrs. and 58 min., averaging 592 mph.

Oct. 17—Supreme Court ordered John D. Provo, a former Army sergeant, freed of treason charges, affirming a lower court opinion and making it unnecessary for Provo to again stand trial. The govt. was accused of having erred in not granting a speedy trial.

Oct. 18—The Atomic Energy Commission and the University of California jointly announced the discovery of a new atomic particle, the anti-proton, which may inaugurate a new era of nuclear research. The anti-proton, or negative proton, was described as "a nuclear ghost which has haunted the world's physicists for a generation." It is not a part of the atomic nucleus, which consists of only protons and neutrons, but

American Legion Convention Rejects Own Report Clearing UNESCO

The 37th national convention of the American Legion in Miami Oct. 10-13, 1955, elected J. Addington Wagner, 41, a Battle Creek, Mich., lawyer, national commander to succeed Seaborn P. Collins of Las Cruces, N. M. Wagner served as a naval officer in World War II and was wounded at Okinawa. He has been natl. vice commander and ch. of the Americanism Committee. Present were 3,164 delegates. They proposed 651 resolutions and adopted 377.

The principal debate centered on the Legion's investigation of UNESCO, described below. The convention voted birthday greetings to President Eisenhower, "our No. 1 Legionnaire"; opposed continued economic aid to India because India "actually is giving material aid to Communist Russia"; condemned Communist China for barbaric treatment of American prisoners and asked that it be denied a seat in the U. N.; endorsed the Bricker amendment to limit the treaty-making powers of the Executive; opposed U. S. participation in world government projects; asked U. S. withdrawal from the Korean Armistice Comm. It defeated a demand that Congress give $100 a mo. to every living World War I veteran over 60, of whom there are 3,154,000.

Continued attacks in Legion meetings against UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Org.) over several years led the Legion to appoint a committee to investigate charges that UNESCO was (1) atheistic, (2) communistic or subversive, (3) favorable and tending toward world government. The committee was composed of Jacob Ark, New York, past dept. commander; Paul M. Herbert, Ohio, past dept. commander; Rev. Gordon L. Kidd, New York, past dept. chaplain; Wm. G. McKinley, New Jersey, natl. executive committee; Mrs. Harold S. Burdett, New York, past natl. president, American Legion Auxiliary and Ray Murphy, Iowa, past natl. commander.

The committee worked 18 mos. and early in September, 1955, presented a report completely exonerating UNESCO and asserting that all charges rested on misinformation and misinterpretation. It said that accusations made in Los Angeles in 1951 had been found baseless by the Los Angeles Board of Education and by the New York Board, that allegations had been circulated by pressure groups and individuals whose aim was to discredit the U. N. The committee was disturbed "by an intolerance and implacability of attitude." It warned against name-calling because honest men differed with one another. It told the Legion that communism remains a deadly danger as an idea, but it "must be met with an idea of greater validity, the idea of the free man deriving his individual rights from God." The convention rejected the report.

A joint committee of the Americanism and Foreign Relations committees heard opinions on resolutions dealing with UNESCO, and decided that the members and/or the staff of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO had been out of bounds in its activities within the U. S., and urged that the commission be abolished. The commission is not UNESCO, but a lay commission created by Congress to advise the government on its UNESCO participation. The joint committee urged a Congressional investigation to determine if UNESCO is staying within the bounds outlined at the time the U. S. joined that agency. It further urged that if Congress should find UNESCO had overstepped the bounds, Congress should seek corrective action. The joint committee reaffirmed the previous Legion position of opposition to any UNESCO interference in U. S. schools or "world-government propagandizing" in the U. S. UNESCO was described as disseminating "subversive educational materials."

On Oct. 13 a resolution asking Congress to withdraw from the U. N. because it was "an infamous organization, evil from the start," was voted down overwhelmingly after a disabled veteran had declared "the only hope for a peaceful world rests with the United Nations."

Secy. of State Dulles told the Convention Oct. 10 that Soviet Communist doctrine used retreats and zigzags as tactics of conquest, so that no one could tell whether the new Soviet attitude marked a genuine change of purpose or a maneuver. "We have to have plans that fit either contingency." The U. S. could not rebuff a change for which the world longs, but must not expose itself to what could be a mortal danger. George Meany, pres., AFL, said his organization had flatly refused to exchange delegations with Communist countries. He saw no concessions of any consequence by the Russians.

is created after some event such as a high energy collision of nuclear particles. It had been generally accepted by theoretical physicists but had been questioned by experimental workers. . . . A visit to the New York Stock Exchange by 7 Soviet newspapermen was arranged by the State Dept. at the request of Moscow. Group said it wanted to see the "best of things" in American life. Keith Funston, pres. of the exchange, explained the workings of capitalist finance.

Oct. 20—In New York City, the Transit Authority told the Board of Estimate that it withdrew its request to replace the Times Square-Grand Central subway shuttle by a $5,000,000 moving platform. The moving shuttle for passengers had been called experimental and too expensive. . . . Southern Governors Council, meeting in Point Clear, Ala., elected Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tenn. as ch. for the coming year. Clement succeeded Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, Kentucky. Proposal that the Southern Regional Educational Board arrange a regional meeting on the development of industry through nuclear energy was adopted. Conference also urged a limit to Japanese textile imports. If President Eisenhower did not run for re-election, the 14 Democratic governors, of 16 attending, said there would be no bolting of the party.

Oct. 22—Middle-income housing development, financed by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, was dedicated. First group of 1,688 families to occupy the project moved into the 4 buildings on the lower East Side of Manhattan, Oct. 24. Full occupancy was scheduled for January, 1956.

Automation Defended

Oct. 25—Marshall G. Munce, representing the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, told a subcommittee of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report, headed by Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.), that demanding wage earners deprived the nation from realizing the gains in productive efficiency that automation makes possible. Subcommittee was studying the impact of the control of manufacturing processes by machines. Munce said reductions in prices would be impossible through automation if union leaders kept demanding higher wages. Ralph J. Cordiner, pres., General Electric Co., said automation would have a stabilizing and stimulating effect on the economy.

Oct. 26—St. Lawrence Corp., Ltd., and Abitibi Paper & Power Co., both of Canada, raised newsprint $5 a ton, making the price $127 a ton in Toronto and $131 delivered in New York. They were soon followed by other manufacturers. Crans-ton Williams, gen. mgr., American Newspaper Publishers Assn., described the rise as unnecessary, in view of the high earnings of producers and increasing costs of newspapers. Between them the two corporations serve 400 newspapers in the United States. The price of newsprint has doubled within 10 years. . . . Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., and Alexander Smith, Inc., announced consolidation under new name of Masco Industries, Inc., with hq in Amsterdam, N. Y. Smith closed its Yonkers plant in June, 1954 and developed its principal plant in Greenville, Miss. The two firms had total sales of $94,000,000 in the last year, compared with $68,000,000 for Bigelow-Sanford and $62,000,000 for Jas. Lees & Sons.

Wm. Woodward, Jr., Killed

Oct. 30—William Woodward, Jr., 35, was fatally shot near dawn in his Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y., home by his wife Ann, who said she had mistaken him for a prowler. Attempts to break into the house had occurred a short time previously. Woodward, killed by a shotgun blast at the door of his bedroom, was the owner of the racehorse Nashua, in Mineola, L. I., N. Y. Nov. 25, a Nassau County grand jury found no evidence of willful crime in the shooting. The finding ended the questioning of the victim's wife. There was no formal charge against Mrs. Woodward.

Disasters

Crash of a Fawcett Airline DC-4 in the Andes Mts. near Lima, Peru, Oct. 2, killed 19 and injured 16. . . . United Air Lines plane crashed into a mountain near Laramie, Wyo., Oct. 6, killing all 68 persons aboard the DC-4. It was the worst commercial airline disaster in the U. S. . . . A crude bomb exploded in the Paramount Theater, New York City, Oct. 9. No one was injured, but the bomb was the 24th to be placed in the city during the last 15 yrs. Moviegoers paid no attention to a muffled explosion, watching an action-packed film. . . . Large areas of the state of Punjab, India, were desolated by heavy floods, Oct. 9, after heavy rains killed 175 persons, around 8,000 cattle and ruined crops. Meanwhile, Pakistan also was hit by heavy floods. Toll in both countries reached 1,700, Oct. 13. . . . East coast of U. S. was lashed from Maine to Cape Hatteras by a gale, Oct. 14. Flood damage in upstate New York and Connecticut rivaled that of Hurricane Diane. Rail and road travel were disrupted, and 48 towns in Connecticut were hit. Deaths totaled 42 by Oct. 17. President told the governors of the New England states he would suggest, at the next session of Congress, some form of disaster insurance to be set up by the Federal government.

November—1955

WASHINGTON

Nov. 1—The Federal Reserve Board reported consumer credit in September, 1955, reached $34,293,000,000, or $5,437,000,000 higher than a year ago. Installment credit increased $544,000,000, automobile credit $382,000,000, modernization loans $22,000,000. Non-installment credit, chiefly charge accounts, rose by $113,000,000. There were some signs of slowing up, but not enough to warrant easing of credit.

Nov. 1—Secy. of State Dulles conferred with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Chief of State of Spain, at El Prado palace in Madrid on "the principal problems that affect the security and peace of the free nations," and reported "mutual understanding."

Nov. 7—Dept. of Defense delegated to the Army the task of purchasing thousands of items used by the Armed Services, in an effort to eliminate duplication of procurement.

Army Uses Automation

Nov. 8—Army authorities reported they would try automation, by using punch-card machines, to aid in assigning replacements to overseas duty. The system will eliminate the necessity for soldiers bound for Europe to stop for processing and assignment at replacement centers.

Nov. 10—The Government's controversial security and loyalty programs, a study of which was voted by Congress, to be investigated by a 12-member, bipartisan panel. Public representatives were to have an equal status with members chosen from Government branches.

Nov. 13—Production and services increased in the third quarter of 1955. Gross national product was at the annual rate of $391.5 billion in the 3-mo. period ending Sept. 30. Expenditures for durable goods totalled $37 billion, for non-durable items $127 billion.

Nov. 17—Federal Reserve Board approved an increase in the discount rate at 6 of the Federal Reserve Banks from 2½ to 2½½. Action was expected to follow in the 6 other banks. It was the fourth increase in 1955 in the interest rate. Move was to tighten credit and prevent inflation in a "runaway economy." Increase was approved effective Nov. 18, for Federal Reserve Banks in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Atlanta and San Francisco.

After a conference with President Eisenhower in Gettysburg, Pa., Rowland R. Hughes, Dir. of the Budget, said the Administration hoped to balance the budget in both the 1956 fiscal year and the next. Hughes refused to say if a balanced budget could be accompanied by a tax reduction. Budget for the 1956 fiscal year was approximately $6 billion. Balanced budget would be made possible by economies in many executive departments and not by cutting military expenditures.

Continue Fight for Peace

Nov. 18—Secy. of State Dulles gave a report on the Geneva meeting to the President, recuperating in Gettysburg, Penn. Secy. Dulles refused to comment on his talk with President Eisenhower. Washington authorities believed the conference was not wholly a failure since it had disclosed the rigidity of the Soviet diplomatic line and the limitations of Soviet foreign policy.

President Eisenhower pledged to continue the fight to establish a "just and durable peace," despite the failure of the Geneva conference. Secy. Dulles, who read the President's speech over a nation-wide radio and television broadcast, was optimistic over conference results, as was the President. Secy. Dulles did not believe the conference failure increased the threat of war and did not expect the Soviet tension to revert to the tactics of the cold war.

New Ruling on Segregation

Nov. 25—The Interstate Commerce Commission ruled that segregation of races on interstate trains and buses and in waiting rooms of stations is unlawful. It said: "The disadvantage to a traveler who is assigned accommodations or facilities so designated as to imply his inherent inferiority solely because of his race must be regarded under present conditions as unreasonable. He is entitled to be free of annoyances which almost inevitably accompany segregation, even though the rail carriers sincerely try to provide both races with equally convenient and comfortable cars and waiting rooms." The ICC returned its findings in two separate cases. One was initiated by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People against 13 railroads, operating principally in the South. The other was brought by Sarah Keys, New York City beautician. She charged that while serving as a Wac in 1952, she was refused further transportation by the Carolina Coach Company of Raleigh, N. C., when she refused a driver's demand that she move to the back of the bus. The ruling was to go into effect Jan. 10, 1956.

Conference on Education

Nov. 28—Addresses by President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon opened the White House Conference on Education. The President's talk was prepared at his Gettysburg farm and shown on film; the Vice President delivered his in person. The President said that in spite of the increase in population of 26,000,000 in 10 years school-rooms and qualified teachers had not increased in proportion. He said:

"If we depend too much on outside help, too much on the Federal Government, we will lose independence and initiative. But if the Federal Government doesn't step in with leadership and with providing credit and money where necessary, there will be a lack of schools in certain important areas. And this cannot be allowed."

"So this is a problem again where the private citizen, the locality, the state and the Federal Government all have a function to perform; all have a responsibility to meet—always in conformity with those two basic truths that education must be free and it must be good."

He added that education should not be controlled by any central authority. Vice President Nixon said: "I think we should recognize that some additional Federal activity and responsibility is inevitable and necessary in the field of education." He also warned against any kind of Federal program for the schools that would discourage or reduce the local or state contribution. He described as "nothing short of a national disgrace," the situation of "the most scandalously underpaid group of workers in the country—the nation's teachers. If this inequity is not corrected it could lead to national disaster."

Over 2,000 delegates and observers took part in 180 panel group discussions of the educational situation, at which major topics were financing new schools, increasing the number of teachers, and improving the quality of instruction.

FOREIGN

Nov. 1—Premier Moshe Sharett of Israel left Geneva for home after interviewing the foreign ministers of the Big Four on the threat of war in the Middle East. He protested to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov against the sale of arms to Egypt and warned that it might start a war there. His request to Secy. of State Dulles for arms to offset Soviet aid to Egypt was reported to have been ineffectual, but Israel planned to submit a list of needed arms to the United States. Foreign Secy. Macmillan of Britain was quoted as saying that heavy reinforcement of Israel would send other Arab states to the Soviet Union for arms.

Nov. 2—The Argentine provisional government of Maj. Gen. Lonardi announced that it had taken over temporarily the newspapers La Prensa and El Lider, which had been published by the General Confederation of Labor following their seizure by former President Peron. The Confederation had ordered a strike and withdrawn its order just before the government took the papers.

Nov. 3—In France, Premier Edgar Faure, with the support of 80 Communist votes, won a vote of confidence 311 to 211 in the Natl. Assembly. Vote insured a December election instead of a postponement to June, 1956. . . . In the El Auja demilitarized zone in Israel, Israelis reportedly killed 50 Egyptians and took 40 prisoners during intermittent fighting during the night. Egyptians killed an estimated 200 Israelis. Battling was for a strategic post in the demilitarized zone, which each nation asserted was in its zone. U.N. observers were kept from the area.

Ethiopians Win Right to Vote

Nov. 4—A new constitution for Ethiopia was promulgated by Emperor Haile Sellassie. It granted the people the right to vote for the first time and gave a liberal bill of rights. Universal vote was to elect a lower house of parliament. One of the most restricting sections of law in an absolute monarchy was voluntarily imposed on the Emperor, but he retains the right to dissolve parliament. While freedom of religion was established, the bill defines the Ethiopian Orthodox Church, founded in the 4th century, as the established religion.

Youssef Sultan of Morocco

Nov. 5—France formally recognized Mohammed ben Youssef as the Sultan of Morocco. His

Princess Margaret Puts Duty to Throne Above Love, Ends Romance

Princess Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, announced Nov. 1 that she would not marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend, RAF, air attaché in Brussels. Her statement:

I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

I have been aware that, subject to my renouncing my rights of succession, it might have been possible for me to contract a civil marriage. But, mindful of the Church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble and conscious of my duty to the Commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others.

I have reached this decision entirely alone, and in doing so I have been strengthened by the unflinching support and devotion of Group Captain Townsend.

I am deeply grateful for the concern of all those who have constantly prayed for my happiness.

The romance between the Princess and the Captain flowered in spite of his "exile" to Brussels for 2 years. He had been named equerry by King George VI in 1944 when Margaret was a girl of 14. He was the son of a lieutenant colonel and had won the Distinguished Flying Cross twice and the Distinguished Service Order. After the Princess passed her 25th birthday Capt. Townsend returned to England and for several weeks the two were together frequently. The decision of the Princess was believed based on the refusal of the Church of England, of which the Queen is the head, to sanction the remarriage of a divorced person who has a former spouse living. Capt. Townsend was the injured party in this divorce action and his former wife has remarried.

The decision was recommended by the Times of London and other conservative organs as conserving the dignity of the throne, but sharply attacked by other newspapers, led by Lord Beaverbrook's papers and the Manchester Guardian. The Sunday Express called Princess Margaret a victim of "brainwashing" and asked for the resignation of the Archbishop of Canterbury. It pointed to the inconsistency of the attitude of the Church of England, which permitted a divorced man (the present prime minister) to appoint prelates and denied comparable freedom to the Princess.

triumphant return to Rabat took place Nov. 16, when the pro-Nationalist ruler said he would work for independence. On Nov. 19, in Rabat, enemies of the Sultan caused disturbances that killed a caliph and 3 others at the entrance to the Sultan's palace. Five persons were injured. In a village near Meknes, 4 persons were killed and 26 wounded. On Nov. 20, 14 were killed. . . .

Russians Count Their Gains

Nov. 6—With revolutionary fervor Lazar M. Kaganovich, first deputy premier of the Soviet Union, outlined the aims of the Communist govt. on the 38th anniversary of the bolshevist coup. He cited diplomatic and industrial accomplishments and said the United States had between 3,500,000 and 5,000,000 unemployed and 13,000,000 working part-time. On the other hand the Soviet grain harvest reached 2,100,000 tons more than in 1954, the sown area had increased 27% and real wages 48% since 1950. He said the Soviet Union occupied second place to the U. S. in total volume of industrial production, but "we shall catch up with them and outstrip them economically." He cited the efforts of the Soviet Union to relieve international tension, mentioned its proposals for disarmament and the friendly relations fostered by visits of numerous heads of state to Moscow, the Austrian State treaty, the treaty with East Germany, and establishment of relations with West Germany; the withdrawal of troops from Port Arthur and Porkkala and the hopes placed on the visit of Bulganin and Khrushchev to India, Burma and Afghanistan. He said: "Every possibility exists for the cessation of the cold war and the establishment of lasting, firm and peaceful relations. Revolutionary ideas know no frontiers. The travel throughout the world without visas or fingerprints. If the 19th century was a century of capitalism, the 20th century is a century of the triumph of socialism and communism." All the important leaders of the Soviet govt. were present.

Brazilian Political Crisis

Nov. 8—Joao Café Filho, president of Brazil since the suicide of President Getulio Vargas in August, 1954, took a leave of absence in order to enter a medical clinic after a slight heart attack and turned over the duties of his office to Carlos Chachira Luz, speaker of the Chamber of Deputies. When Luz a few days later ran counter to the wishes of the minister of war, Lt. Gen. Henrique Teixeira Lott, the latter resigned and demanded action from Congress on the army's prerogatives. Congress deposed Luz and named Nereu Ramos, speaker of the Senate, acting president. In Brazil the action of the army was described as an anticoup, presumably intended to checkmate a developing coup led by the Café faction, the object of which was to impede the inauguration Jan. 31 of the leftist president-elect and vice president-elect, Juscelino Kubitschek and Joao Goulart.

Café returned from the clinic Nov. 20 and attempted to resume his duties as president, but was deterred by the army. On Nov. 24 he started action in the Supreme Court to have his legal powers confirmed. To forestall this the Congress voted a state of siege, a modified form of martial law, during which no changes in government can be made. A press censorship was established. While the action of Gen. Lott was considered upholding the honor of the army, it disturbed conservatives because it supported the plans of the leftists. Kubitschek was elected with only 300,000 plurality in a vote of 9,000,000. Since he was supported by 500,000 Communist party votes, his indebtedness is patent. Goulart represents the Labor party, which also is strongly nationalist. The Communist line is to attack the so-called North American "imperialists," meaning the United States.

Magsaysay Is Victor

Nov. 9—President Ramon Magsaysay's Nationalist party won a decisive victory in off-year elections, controlling many of the governorships and a handy majority of senate seats. The President's personal popularity affected the result favorably. Sen. Claro M. Recto, who attacked Magsaysay's policy of friendliness with the United States, showed losses from former vote totals.

Nov. 9—In Paris, Andre Dubois, prefect of police in Paris, was named French Resident General in Morocco, replacing Lt. Gen. Pierre Georges Boyer de Latour, who resigned. Appointment of Dubois was expected to renew negotiations on a more cooperative basis.

Nov. 10—The first native government of the Sudan fell when Premier Sayed Ismail el Azhari lost a vote of confidence over the budget and quit with his cabinet. The premier pointed out that the last British troops had left that day and the Egyptian troops the day before. Five days later the parliament reelected him premier.

New German Army Set Up

Nov. 12—The first 101 members of a new West German army received their certificates of appointment from Defense Secy. Theodor Blank in a ceremony held in a Bonn garage. . . . Nikita S. Khrushchev, head of the Soviet Communist party, declared Russia had developed a new twin-jet medium bomber with a range of over 3,000 miles. Bomber is the prototype of a jet passenger plane. He believed that Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and himself would use the jet passenger airliner to fly to London next spring. The announcement was made at a reception for Premier Einar Gerhardsen of Norway at the Norwegian Embassy in Moscow.

Nov. 13—Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi, provisional pres. of Argentina, was deposed by a revolution that installed Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu. See article, page 50.

Nov. 15—Poland disclosed a trade agreement with Yugoslavia to increase trade between the nations by 100% in 1956. Value of projected trade was put at $281,000,000.

Tunisia Toward Independence

Nov. 16—Tunisia negotiated with France conventions for internal autonomy, the first step toward independence. On Nov. 19, Tunisia's Neo-Destour party, moderately nationalist, unanimously elected Habib Bourguiba pres. of Tunisia for the next 2 yrs. By electing Bourguiba, the party supported a policy for the gradual move toward independence.

Nov. 16—Egypt extended its blockade of Israel to within a mile and a half of the Israeli port of Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba, cutting off all shipping to and from the East. . . . 46 Austrians returned to Vienna from up to 10 years' imprisonment in the Soviet Union. Among them was Alfred Sokolovsky, former Soviet liaison officer for the Vienna city administration, who was arrested by the Soviets last January.

Nov. 17—For the first half of 1955, West Germany reached the highest level of production ever attained in Germany, according to a report by the Orgn. for European Economic Cooperation. . . . Czechoslovakia reported industrial production had more than doubled since World War II. . . . Premier Hussein Ala of Iran was wounded by an assassin in Tehran. The assailant believed Islamic rules were not being properly obeyed.

India Welcomes Russian Leaders

Nov. 18—A warm welcome was given to Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin, USSR, and Nikita S. Khrushchev, Communist party chief, when they arrived by air in New Delhi, India. The visitors and their aides were greeted by hundreds of thousands of Indians, many of whom waved Russian flags.

Bulganin said Nov. 20, that Russia and the Western nations would find a solution to problems confronting them. He said the Soviet Union did not look forward to a return of the "cold war." Speaking at a banquet in New Delhi, the Soviet leader maintained his country would seek prohibition of atomic weapons, European collective security and the extension of contacts between governments. In India's parliament, Nov. 21, the Soviet leaders criticized the West for trying to create "war hysteria," forgetting the spirit of Geneva.

Baghdad Defense Alliance

Nov. 21—The first meeting of the 5-nation Baghdad defense alliance, called to plan mutual defense against Communist aggression, opened with an Iraq pledge to aid any Arab state threatened by Israel. Premier Nuri Said brought the Arab-Israeli feud into the meeting in his speech of welcome to British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and the premiers of Iran, Turkey, and Pakistan.

Launched originally by Turkey and Iraq, the defense chain along the Soviet Union's South Treaty Organization through the membership of Britain and Turkey in that Western line-up, and with Southeast Asia's Manila Pact (SEATO) via Pakistan and Britain. It was to be called Middle East Treaty Organization (METO).

The Pact nations expected to pattern the Baghdad organization on NATO and SEATO, including (1) A permanent council in Baghdad, probably consisting of the four nations' ambassadors to Iraq; (2) A military committee of the chiefs of staffs of the five countries; (3) An economic committee of representatives from each government, probably the economic counselors of their Baghdad embassies.

Delegates said a parent council of the Baghdad Pact also would be established, made up of the five foreign ministers. Their intentions are to work in full partnership and with a united purpose for peace and security in the Middle East, to defend their territories against aggression or subversion, and promote the welfare and prosperity of the peoples in that region. A meeting was scheduled for April, 1956, in Tehran.

The United States, for the time being, will confine its liaison to military and political aspects, possibly offering free aid in arms and other military equipment. One result of the Baghdad meeting is expected to be expansion of the British Middle East Development Division, now based on Cyprus.

The Soviet Union Nov. 26 notified Iran that by joining the Baghdad group it violated a section of the Soviet-Iranian treaty of 1921, in which Iran and the Soviet Union agreed to join no alliances or agreements directed against each other. The Soviet Union said this "contradicted good neighborly relations."

Rioting in Bombay

Nov. 21—About 300,000 textile workers demonstrating in Bombay, India, were fired upon by police, who killed 14 and wounded 300. Communist and other leftist trade unions touched off the riots in protest against a decision of the ruling Congress Party that Bombay City should become a federal unit. The Maharashtrians, Mahrattispeaking people who are to have their own state under a lingual redistribution plan, insisted Bombay should be their capital. They called a one-day strike led by a communist mill worker, S. A. Dange. Crowds tried to fight their way into the Legislature where the issue of Bombay City becoming a federal state was debated. The police fired and routed them.

Nov. 22—Six men were executed and 22 were given life imprisonment in Georgia, USSR, for conspiring to conceal the activities of Lavrenti P. Beria, late minister of internal affairs. It was the second group to be executed in connection with Beria's so-called treason. Latest executions were believed to be a continuation of the campaign by the Georgian govt. to eliminate the influence of Beria and his associates. The Georgian security officials were executed for reportedly conducting a "terroristic annihilation of honest Soviet citizens."

Russian Hydrogen Blast

Nov. 23—AEC announced the Soviet Union recently had detonated the largest nuclear device of its current test series. In the megaton range, indicating a power potential equal to millions of tons of TNT, the blast probably was a hydrogen bomb test. Moscow confirmed the H-bomb explosion Nov. 26 and said the bomb was detonated at great height. It was called Russia's most powerful weapon, based on Russian scientific advances.

Nov. 26—Rising violence in Cyprus culminated in grenade being hurled into a hotel ballroom, despite new powers assumed by the govt. to control riotous actions. Possession of explosives was punishable by death, but the grenade thrower was not apprehended.

France Dissolves Assembly

Nov. 30—After a vote of no confidence had been registered in the French Assembly against Premier Edgar Faure, President Rene Coty of France and a majority of the cabinet voted a decree dissolving the Assembly and calling a national election, probably Jan. 8. The decision signified a defeat of the forces led by M. Mendes-France, former premier.

UNITED NATIONS

Nov. 7—The Political Committee of the General Assembly voted unanimously, 59 to 0, to establish an international group to study the effects of atomic radiation on man's health and environment. The revised resolution, sponsored by the U. S., Britain and 6 other nations, was approved by the Assembly, which rejected Russian changes. An amendment supported by 20 Latin American countries added 4 more nations to the committee to make the scientific study. Britain and the U. S. joined 11 other nations in abstaining from the vote on the amendment, which 48 other countries approved.

South Africa Closes U. N. Office

Nov. 9—South Africa quit the General Assembly's 10th session, after a committee of the Assembly voted 37 to 7 to continue an inquiry into South Africa's race segregation policy. The walkout was the second by an Assembly member, France having withdrawn Sept. 30, after the U. N. had decided to investigate the Algerian question.

South Africa announced it would close its New York office of the U. N. apparently in retaliation for a "calculated affront" to the nation by the U. N. Trusteeship Committee. South Africa maintained the Committee had exceeded its authority in handling matters pertaining to South-West Africa, the U. N. may not go beyond those held by the League. On Dec. 6 the General Assembly voted to discontinue the investigation.

Nov. 12—Compromise budget was approved in Rome for the Food & Agriculture Orgn. pending later action by technical committees. Funds allotted were $6,600,000 for 1956 and $6,800,000 for 1957. Britain and the U. S. believed that lower

Son Kills Mother and Forty-three Others by Time Bomb in Plane

A mysterious explosion in a United Air Lines DC-6B over a beet field near Longmont, Colo., Nov. 1, killed 44 passengers and resulted in the disclosure of the greatest crime ever committed against an airplane. Two weeks' investigation by the FBI, Colorado state officials, the Civil Aeronautics Authority and explosives experts resulted in the arrest Nov. 13 of John Gilbert Graham, 23, who confessed that he had placed a dynamite time-bomb in the luggage of his mother, Mrs. Daisy King, in order to collect $37,500 in vending-machine insurance that he had taken out after seeing her on the plane.

Suspicion of an explosion inside the plane grew when a farmer told of seeing the craft explode in the sky before it fell. By studying fragments of material strewn over a considerable distance experts were able to find evidence of dynamite. Investigation of the backgrounds of the passengers led to Graham. It was learned that he operated a drive-in restaurant with his mother, and had been on probation as a check forger, his mother helping him to pay his debts. In addition to receiving a suspended 5-yr. sentence on this charge, he had served 60 days in jail in Lubbock, Tex., on an illicit liquor charge. Graham was married and the father of 2 children.

District Attorney Keating charged Graham initially only for the death of his mother because she was the primary victim. Both resided in Denver and it was within that jurisdiction that the plot was hatched. U. S. Attorney Donald E. Kelly relinquished Graham to state custody for trial on the more serious charges. The Government expected to try him on a technical charge of sabotaging a national defense utility—the airliner—if he were acquitted of murder. The Federal charge carries a maximum penalty of ten years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Other victims of the crash were Gurney Edwards, prominent attorney in Providence; Herbert G. Robertson, of Gibbs & Cox, a naval architectural firm in New York; Dr. Harold R. and more stringent expenditure of funds could reduce the budget to $6,400,000.

New Members for U. N.

Nov. 19—A controversy lasting several weeks developed over the admission of new nations to U. N. The two contesting blocs, the Communists on the one side and the Western nations on the other, agreed on a package deal if no veto interfered. Britain agreed to accept the admission of 5 Soviet satellites—Hungary, Bulgaria, Rumania, Albania and Outer Mongolia in order to have the Soviet Union approve 13 other countries—Italy, Japan, Ireland, Spain, Portugal, Austria, Finland, Ceylon, Libya, Jordan, Nepal, Laos and Cambodia. Britain refused to recommend North or South Korea and North or South Vietnam, believing, as did the U. S., that the U. N. should not admit divided nations. The United States objected at first to Outer Mongolia as a creature of Soviet chicanery, but finally decided to abstain from voting in order to get the other important nations into U. N. Nationalist China intended to veto it.

France Returns to U. N.

Nov. 25—France returned to the General Assembly after an absence since Sept. 30, over a decision to investigate French rule in Algeria. A compromise settlement introduced by India received a unanimous vote for dropping of issue.

GENERAL

Nov. 1—Lt. Gen. George P. Hays resigned as the New York member of the bi-state waterfront commission, at the request of Gov. Averell Harriman. The Governor announced the appointment of John P. McGrath, former New York City Corporation Counsel and Harriman's campaign manager in 1954. Gov. Harriman was criticized for dropping Hays, by Republicans, who charged a "sinister Tammany plan" intended to undermine the waterfront agency.

Vienna State Opera Opens

Nov. 5—The rebirth of the world of music in Vienna was signaled by the reopening of the State Opera, restored and embellished after its war-time bombing, March, 1945. In an official ceremony President Koerner gave a golden key to Dr. Karl Boehm, director. Beethoven's Fidelio was performed, and guests included Secy. of State John Foster Dulles, U. S. Ambassador to Italy, Clare Boothe Luce, Bruno Walter, Lotte Lehmann, Gian-Carlo Menotti and Dmitri Shostakovich. Stars were Martha Modl, Anton Dermota, Irmgard Seefried, Ludwig Weber, Paul Schoeffler. Conductor was Karl Boehm.

Nov. 8—American Airlines ordered 30 turbo-jet airliners from the Boeing Airplane Co. The line hoped to put the 707-Stratoliners into service by June 15, 1959. The planes travel up to 550 mph and will cost $135,000,000. National, United, Pan American and Eastern Airlines recently announced an expansion program involving the use of jets.

Nov. 9—In Greenwood, Miss., a Leflore county grand jury refused to indict 2 white half-brothers for the kidnaping of Emmett Till, Chicago Negro boy, who later was slain. The 2 men were acquitted of murder previously.

Nov. 10—Standard Oil (New Jersey), world's largest oil company, announced it would spend $1.2 billion in 1956 for expansion. Chrysler Corp., third largest automobile producer, said it would spend $1 billion over the next 5 yrs. Both firms expressed confidence in the economic outlook for 1956.

Stevenson is Candidate

Nov. 15—Adlai E. Stevenson in Chicago announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States. He said: "The task of the Democratic party is to make prosperity and peace not just a political slogan but an active search for a better America and a better world." He favored higher living standards and wider opportunities and a return of "wisdom and responsibility" to the conduct of affairs. Stevenson chose James A. Finnegan to manage his campaign. Finnegan since Jan., 1955, has been Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the cabinet of Gov. Geo. Leader, and has a record of successful vote-getting in Pennsylvania.

In Chicago Nov. 19 Stevenson told a Democratic rally that "moderation is the spirit of the times," but added that moderation must not be confused with stagnation and cited what he called lapses of the Republican administration. Gov. Averell Harriman (N. Y.) next day told a news conference that "there is no such word as 'moderate' in the Democratic party" and on Nov. 26 Gov. G. Menen Williams, (Colo.) derided moderation and declared Democrats "would be guilty of the most craven cowardice" if they allowed the 1956 campaign to "degenerate into a spineless and self-defeating formality." The Democratic governors said they would attack the Dulles foreign policy, which had the support of Sen. Walter F. George (Ga.) and other Democratic members of Congress; flexible farm support and the private power issue.

Nov. 20—In the first action of the kind by any Southern state, Maryland desegregated its Natl. Guard. No longer would Negroes be kept out of white units or whites out of Negro units, according to State Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord. Maryland Natl. Guard has 80 all-white units and 3 all-Negro units.

Pope Sees Vision

Nov. 21—Pope Pius XII confirmed a report that he had seen a vision of Christ during his desperate illness. In December, 1954, A Milanese magazine, Oggi, had printed a report of the Pope's experience after learning of it through the "indiscretion" of an intimate of the Pontiff. The vision was seen by the Pope when his illness reached a crisis and he was praying alone in his room. This marked a turning point in his sickness.

In Seattle, Wash., Gov. Averell Harriman of New York called the Eisenhower Administration incompetent and bungling in its handling of foreign affairs. He said only the Democrats "understand" people. Once again Gov. Harriman said he was not an active candidate for the Presidency.

Nov. 23—Heavy seas and high winds threatened 52 men, 37 of them visitors aboard the Texas Tower, a man-made radar island 110 miles from the Massachusetts shore. Rescuers from a tug below the tower used a crane to remove the men, who later were put ashore in Boston. The visitors had been marooned on the 8,000-ton platform for 5 days.

Nov. 26—In Rosslea, Northern Ireland, raiders blasted a police station with bombs, apparently to seize arms for the outlawed Irish Republican army. A policeman was wounded. Eamon de Valera, former prime minister of Ireland, previously told a meeting of the Fianna Fail party that it was folly to expect to bring Northern Ireland into the republic by force.

Nov. 26—Rep. Vera Buchanan, of McKeesport, Pa., Dem. died.

Octavius received title of Augustus (venerated) 27 B. C., called first Roman emperor. Romans victorious until 9 A. D., when Germans under Arminius defeated Varus. Augustus died 14 A. D.

Birth of Jesus Christ in Bethlehem.

B. C. and 1 A. D.

The year 1 B. C. is the first year before the beginning of the Christian era. The year 1 A. D. is the first year of the Christian Era. Jan. 1, 1 B. C. is just one year before Jan. 1, 1 A. D. The elapsed number of years between a date B. C. and the same date A. D. is one less than the sum of the years. The Christian era was calculated by the monk Dionysius Exiguus in the 6th century after Christ. He placed Jesus' birth on Dec. 25 in the year 753 of Rome, and decided 754 should be the first year of the Christian era. Biblical scholars reject his date because King Herod, who ordered the massacre of the Innocents, died in the Roman year 750, or 4 B. C. Since Jesus was alive at that time scholars place his birth at 4 B. C. or earlier.

Spanish-American War of 1898; United States Becomes Naval Power

Cuba was a subject of American concern for most of the 19th century. When South America broke from Spain, pro-slave influence in the U. S. headed back movements to free Cuba and Puerto Rico. In the 1840s a proposal to annex Cuba gained support. President Fillmore in 1852 refused to join Great Britain and France in guaranteeing Spanish authority in Cuba. The Ostend Manifesto, largely written by James Buchanan, asked the U. S. to buy Cuba or seize it. Fillbuster expeditions, outfitted in the U. S., carried arms to rebels and were crushed by Spain. Grant's administration made Spain an offer to buy Cuba, but was turned down. In 1873 the Virginius expedition was captured by the Spaniards and 50 members were shot, causing American protests. Maximo Gomez started a big revolt in 1895 and Valerian Weyler, Governor of Cuba, herded thousands of sympathizers into concentration camps. In 1897 Spain, on American urging, offered an armistice to discuss autonomy, but too late to appease the rebels.

The battleship Maine, Capt. Chas. D. Sigbee, sent to Havana in January to protect Americans, was blown up Feb. 15, 1898, 264 men, 2 officers dead. Commission headed by Capt. Wm. T. Sampson, U. S. Principal Events of World War I, 1914-1918:

Origins of the War—Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to Austrian throne, and wife, Duchess of Hohenberg, assassinated June 28, 1914, by Gavrilo Princip, Bosnian Serb terrorist, in Sarajevo, Bosnia.

This brought to head conflict between Austria and Serbia. Serbia for years had tried to get free of Austrian economic restrictions and win outlet to sea. Its territorial progress in Balkan Wars, 1912, 1913, with Russian diplomatic support, increased Austrian antagonism. Domination of Balkans, by Russia or Austria, was issue. In ultimatum to Serbia, July 23, Count Berchtold, Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, made 10 demands for apologies and suppression of anti-Austrian agitation. Serbia conceded all but two, which demanded Austrian police participation inside Serbia; latter asked issue be referred to The Hague peace tribunal. Austria demanded all or nothing.

Russia warned Austrian action was aimed at Russia; would support Serbia. France was allied with Russia. Germany, allied with Austria, backed Austria. Great Britain, France, Italy proposed mediation. No result. Great Britain, through Sir Edward Grey, foreign minister, July 26 proposed conference between France, Italy, Germany, Britain; Germany refused. Austria declared war on Serbia July 28.

Attempts to mediate continued. Germany demanded neutrality of Britain in event of war with Russia and France; offered to respect French territory but gave no promise on colonies; Britain refused to bargain. July 30, Austria now agreed to negotiate with Russia.

Russia mobilized in part, declaring Hungarian mobilization was directed against it; Germany mobilized, declaring such Russian action was against Germany. In this tense situation Britain continued efforts to stop general war. While Russia and Austria were conferring, Germany sent ultimatum to Russia demanding end of mobilization in 12 hours. The czar asked Austro-Serb quarrel be submitted to The Hague; no reply.

Germany declared war against Russia Aug. 1; against France Aug. 3. Germans entered Belgium, in violation of treaty, guaranteed by Britain. Britain asked Germany to guarantee neutrality of Belgium by midnight Aug. 4; Germany refused. Britain declared war Aug. 4. Italy, bound to Germany and Austria in Triple Alliance, proclaimed neutrality; had secret understanding with France not to join in any war against France. Italy declared war against Austria-Hungary May 23, 1915; against Germany Aug. 27, 1916. Turkey and Bulgaria joined Central Powers.

BIOGRAPHIES OF THE PRESIDENTS AND THEIR WIVES

George Washington

George Washington, first president, was born Friday, Feb. 22, 1732 (actually Feb. 11, O. S.), the son of Augustine Washington and Mary Ball, at Wakefield on Pope's creek, Westmoreland Co., Va. Col. John Washington, George's great-grandfather, came from Northamptonshire in 1657 or 1658; in 1685 he and an associate named Spencer bought 5,000 acres on the Potomac. In England the Washingtons had prospered in the wool trade and lived in a small Tudor manor house at Sulgrave from 1539 to 1610, when they suffered reverses. It was restored in 1914. George's father took the north 2,500 acres near Hunting creek in 1735 and built a house in which George lived from 3 to 6 years of age; when 6 the family moved to Ferry farm, near Fredericksburg. His father died in 1743 when he was 11. He studied mathematics and surveying and when 16 went to live with his half-brother Lawrence, who had inherited the Potomac farm and built Mount Vernon, the original house having burned. George surveyed the lands of William Fairfax on the Shenandoah, keeping a diary. He accompanied Lawrence to Barbados, West Indies, contracted smallpox and was deeply scarred. Lawrence died in 1752 and George acquired his property by inheritance and purchase and added the 2,500 acres held by the Spencers. He valued land and when he died owned 70,000 acres in Virginia and 40,000 acres on the Great Kanawa and environs.

Washington's military service began in 1753 when Gov. Dinwiddie of Virginia made him lieutenant of militia. He clashed with the French and had to surrender Fort Necessity, July 3, 1754. He was an aide to Braddock and helped organize the retreat after the fatal ambush of July 9, 1755. He helped take Fort Duquesne from the French in 1758.

After his marriage to Martha Dandridge Custis, 1759, Washington lived at Mount Vernon, bred horses and cattle, raised fruit and practiced crop rotation. In 1773 he enlarged the house. During the stamp act agitation, 1765, he supported the protesting Virginians. Although not at first for independence, he stood out against British exactions and took charge of the Virginia troops before war broke out. He was made commander-in-chief by the Continental Congress June 15, 1775 and took command at Cambridge July 3.

The successful issue of a war filled with hardships was largely due to his leadership. He was resourceful, a stern disciplinarian, and the one strong, dependable force for unity. He favored a federal government and became chairman of the Constitutional convention of 1787. He helped get the Constitution ratified and was unanimously elected president and inaugurated, April 30, 1789, on the balcony of New York's Federal hall at Broad and Wall Sts., now marked by his statue. In New York his mansion, near Franklin Sq., was the scene of formal dinners and levees. His pew in St. Paul's chapel is preserved.

His birthplace, Wakefield, was burned in 1780. On Feb. 22, 1932, a new Wakefield, built by donations, was dedicated as the George Washington Birthplace Monument, administered by the National Parks Service. The older Washingtons are buried there. It is 34 miles from Fredericksburg, Va., on State road 3, and five miles from Stratford Hall, birthplace of Robert E. Lee.

Although a Federalist, Washington made Thomas Jefferson secretary of state (resigned 1793). He was reelected 1792, but refused to consider a third term and retired to Mount Vernon, 1797. He suffered acute laryngitis after a ride in snow and rain around his estate, was bled profusely, and died Dec. 14, 1799, aged 67. He was mourned here and abroad as one of the great men of his time. He was buried in a vault at Mount Vernon. (See article on Mount Vernon.) He willed Mount Vernon to his nephew, Bushrod Washington (1762-1829), associate justice, U. S. Supreme Court.

MARTHA WASHINGTON

Mrs. Martha Dandridge Custis Washington was born June 2, 1732, in New Kent Co., Va. In 1749 she married Daniel Parke Custis, wealthy planter, who died in 1757. She lived in the White House on the Pamunkey, site of McClellan's supply depot in 1862. (Her house had burned down and been replaced before the Civil War.) In 1758 Washington, hurrying to Williamsburg, was invited by the owner of Poplar Grove to meet "the prettiest and richest widow in Virginia." She was plump, small, had dark hair and hazel eyes. Washington fell, and on his return from taking Fort Duquesne they were married, Jan. 6, 1759. Martha had two children living, two having died in infancy. Her daughter Martha died at 17. Her son, Col. John Parke Custis, bought the 1,100 acres of Arlington in 1778, but died 1781, from wounds received at Yorktown. Washington adopted John's son, George Washington Parke Custis, who inherited Arlington and built the present house; his daughter Mary married Robert E. Lee there in 1831. Martha Washington managed her husband's plantations in his absence and in winter visited him at Valley Forge, Newburgh and other camps. She presided gracefully at official levees as Lady Washington. She died in 1802 and was buried at Mount Vernon.

John Adams

John Adams, 2nd president, Federalist, was born in Braintree (Quincy), Mass., Oct. 30, 1735 (Oct. 19, O. S.), the son of John Adams, a farmer and Susanna Boylston of Brookline. He was a great-grandson of Henry Adams who came from England in 1636. He was graduated from Harvard, 1755, taught school, studied law. In 1765 he argued against taxation without representation before the royal governor. In 1770 he defended the British soldiers who fired on civilians in the "Boston Massacre." He took part in the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts and the Continental Congress, seconded the independence resolution presented by Richard Henry Lee and with his cousin, Samuel Adams, signed the Declaration of Independence. He was a commissioner to France, 1778, with Benjamin Franklin and Arthur Lee; won recognition of the United States by The Hague, 1782; was first American minister to England, 1785-1788, and elected vice president with Washington, 1788 and 1792.

In 1796 Adams was chosen president by the electors, 71 to 68 so that opponents called him "president by 3 votes." The candidate with the second highest number of votes became vice president; this was Thomas Jefferson, his opponent. Intense antagonism to America by France caused agitation for war, led by Alexander Hamilton. Adams, breaking with Hamilton, opposed war but put the Navy on a fighting basis. The U. S. S. Constitution, the United States, both 44 guns, and the Constellation, 36 guns, and armed merchantmen bagged 84 French ships in an undeclared war. To fight alien influence and muzzle criticism Adams supported the Alien and Sedition laws of 1800, which led to his defeat for reelection. He died July 4, 1826, on the same day as Jefferson, and was buried in the First Unitarian church in Quincy, Mass.

ABIGAIL ADAMS

Mrs. Abigail Smith Adams was born at Weymouth, Mass., Nov. 23, 1744 (Nov. 12, O. S.), daughter of a Congregational minister and descendant of the Puritan divine, Thomas Shepard of Cambridge, Mass. She died at Quincy, Oct. 28, 1818. She had a daughter and three sons, one of whom, John Quincy Adams, became the sixth president. Often separated from John Adams during the Revolution, she joined him in Paris in 1784, and from 1785 to 1788 endured social slights at the court of St. James's, where Adams was our first minister. When New York was the seat of Washington's administration she lived at Richmond Hill, a manor house located where Charlton crosses Varick St. She was known for her sharp criticism of Adams' opponents.

Thomas Jefferson

Thomas Jefferson, 3rd president, was born April 13, 1743 (Apr. 2, O. S.) at Shadwell, Va., the son of Peter Jefferson, a civil engineer of Welsh descent who raised tobacco, and Jane Randolph. Jefferson was an agrarian, an expansionist; because he opposed the Federalists and centralization he was called a Republican, now synonymous with Democrat. His father died when he was 14, leaving him 2,750 acres and his slaves. Jefferson was graduated from the College of William and Mary at 20; read classics in Greek and Latin; studied law with George Wythe in Williamsburg; played the violin and rode horses. In 1769 he was elected to the House of Burgesses. In 1770 Shadwell burned and he began Monticello, near Charlottesville. In 1772 he married Martha Wayles Skelton. He was a member of the Virginia Committee of Correspondence and the Continental Congress and denied Britain's right to tax. Named a member of the committee to draw up a Declaration of Independence, he wrote the basic draft, 1776. He was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, 1776-79, elected governor to succeed Patrick Henry, 1779, re-elected 1780, resigned, June 1781, amid charges of ineffectual military preparation. During his term he wrote the statute on religious freedom. In the Continental Congress, 1783, he drew up an ordinance for the Northwest Territory, forbidding slavery after 1800; its terms were put into the Ordinance of 1787. He was sent to Paris with Benjamin Franklin and John Adams to negotiate treaties of commerce, 1784; made minister to France, 1785, he made treaties with France and Prussia, studied architecture, gardening and the French Revolution, whose leaders consulted him.

Washington appointed him secretary of state, 1789. Jefferson's strong faith in the consent of the governed, as opposed to executive control favored by Hamilton, secretary of the treasury, often led to conflict; Dec. 31, 1793, he resigned. He was the Republican candidate for president in 1796; beaten by John Adams, he became vice president. He opposed Adams' alien and sedition laws with the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions, reiterating the basic rights of states. In 1800 Jefferson and Aaron Burr received equal votes for president, so the House of Representatives voted Jefferson in, with the help of Hamilton, who preferred Jefferson to Burr. Adams did not wait to see Jefferson inaugurated, but when Jefferson was re-elected in 1804, even Adams voted for him. Jefferson cancelled levees and titles and ignored diplomatic precedence. He turned Federalists out of office. He opposed a strong navy. By fighting those who feared to give power to the people he made democracy work. He considered John Marshall's Supreme Court reactionary. Big events of his administration were the Louisiana Purchase, 1803, and the Lewis and Clark Expedition. He established the University of Virginia and designed its buildings. After the Library of Congress was burned by the British he sold Congress 13,000 vols. for $23,950. He was 6 ft. 2, temperate in debate, practically a Unitarian in religion, though not a church member. He died July 4, 1826, on the same day as John Adams and was buried at Monticello, which, after various vicissitudes, passed to the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation in 1923.

MRS. THOMAS JEFFERSON

Mrs. Martha Wayles Jefferson, daughter of John Wayles, was 23 and the widow of Bathurst Skelton when she married Jefferson Jan. 1, 1772. She bore Jefferson six children at Monticello, two of whom lived to maturity. Martha, 1772-1836, married Thomas Mann Randolph, Jr.; Mary (Marle) 1778-1804, married her cousin, J. W. Eppes. Mrs. Jefferson's father's large farm and slaves became part of the estate. She died Sept. 6, 1782.

James Madison

James Madison, 4th President, Republican, was born Mar. 16, 1751 (Mar. 5, O. S.) at Port Conway, King George Co., Va., the eldest of 12 children of James Madison and Eleanor Rose Conway. His great-grandfather, James Taylor (1674-1729), was also the great-grandfather of Zachary Taylor. Madison was graduated from Princeton, 1771, studied theology, 1772, sat in the Virginia Constitutional convention, 1776, where his resolution on religious freedom was voted down; was a member of the Continental Congress and of the Annapolis convention, 1786, where he and Hamilton proposed the Constitutional convention. He was chief recorder at that convention in 1787, and supported ratification in the Federalist papers, written with Hamilton and Jay. In 1785 he carried Jefferson's statute on religious liberty through the Virginia assembly. He was elected to the House of Representatives in 1789, helped adopt the Bill of Rights and fought John Adams' alien and sedition laws. He favored agrarian policies with Jefferson and in 1801 became Jefferson's secretary of state. In 1803, when the Louisiana Purchase was consummated, he insisted on free navigation of the Mississippi, which he had already urged on Jay in 1780.

Elected president in 1808, Madison was a "strict constructionist," opposed to the free interpretation of the Constitution by the Federalists; he vetoed federal funds for state improvements, but changed in his second term. Madison inherited the conflict with Britain over its orders in council and impressment of American seamen, which had led to Jefferson's embargo act and injured American commerce. He was reelected in 1812 by the votes of the agrarian South and recently admitted western states. Caught between British and French maritime restrictions, Madison drifted into war, declared June 18, 1812, unaware that Britain had cancelled the orders two days before. While the war was inconclusive, it opened the way to peaceful negotiations. Madison successfully advocated a tariff to protect industry, a national system of roads and canals and a strong military organization. He retired in 1817 to his estate at Montpelier (now Montpelier), Va., built 1760, with a portico suggested by Jefferson. There he edited his famous papers on the Constitutional Convention. He became rector of the Univ. of Virginia, 1826. He died June 28, 1836, and was buried near his home.

DOLLY MADISON

Mrs. Dolly Payne Madison, first social leader in the White House, was born May 12, 1768, in North Carolina, the daughter of John Payne, a Virginia Quaker, who later freed his slaves. She grew up in Hanover County, Va. Her first husband, John Todd, died in 1793. She married Madison Sept. 15, 1794, and when he became secretary of state in 1801, became hostess for Jefferson in the White House. She presided at the first inaugural ball in 1809. She is supposed to have rescued Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Washington from the White House when the British came Aug. 24, 1814, but the actual deed is ascribed to others who turned the portrait over to her. She helped edit Madison's highly important records of the Constitutional Convention. From 1817 to 1837 she lived at Montpelier, Orange Co., Va. (now Montpelier, privately owned). She returned to Washington as a welcome, but impecunious, social leader, in 1837. Congress bought her husband's records in 1837 for $30,000, and other papers in 1848, for $25,000. She took part in the dedication of the Washington monument and sent the first personal message over S. F. B. Morse's telegraph wire. She was respected for her tact and intelligence by presidents from Washington to Polk. In old age she suffered from the wastefulness of a son. She died July 12, 1849, aged 81, and is buried beside Madison near Montpelier.

James Monroe

James Monroe, 5th President, Republican, was born April 28, 1758, in Westmoreland Co., Va., the son of Spence Monroe and Eliza Jones, who were of Scottish and Welsh descent, respectively. He attended the College of William and Mary, fought in the 3rd Virginia regiment at White Plains, Brandywine, Monmouth, and was wounded at Trenton. He studied law with Thomas Jefferson, 1780, was a member of the Virginia house of delegates and of Congress, 1783-86. His law office in Fredericksburg, is now the James Monroe Memorial Foundation. He opposed ratification of the Constitution by Virginia, 1788; was U. S. Senator, 1790; minister to France, 1794-96; four times governor of Virginia, 1799-1802, and 1811. Jefferson sent him to France as minister, 1803, to join R. R. Livingston in buying the Isle of New Orleans from France and East and West Florida from Spain. Exceeding instructions, he signed a treaty for all of Louisiana. (Navigation of the Mississippi was one of his demands as early as 1783.) He was also sent to Madrid, 1804, and London, 1805, to settle disputes, with few results. He ran against Madison for president in 1808. He was chosen member of the Virginia Assembly, 1810-1811; secretary of state under Madison, 1811-1817, also secretary of war Sept., 1814-Mar., 1815.

In 1816 Monroe was elected president; in 1820 reelected with all but one vote, this being cast for John Quincy Adams so that only Washington might have unanimous election. Monroe's administration became the Era of Good Feeling. He obtained the Floridas from Spain and suppressed the Seminoles; settled boundaries with Canada and eliminated border forts; supported the anti-slavery position that led to the Missouri Compromise. (In 1801 he had proposed settling Negro slaves in Africa. Monrovia, Liberia, was named for him.) In July, 1823, the U. S. served notice on Russia that it would oppose any Russian colony on this continent, after Russia had prohibited fishing on the northwest coasts. On Dec. 2, 1823, Monroe announced the Doctrine, that the U. S. would consider its safety endangered if European powers had authority on this hemisphere or attempted colonization. First half had been suggested by George Canning, British foreign minister, to curb Spain; U. S., rejecting proposal for joint declaration, issued it also as warning to Russia. Monroe owned Ash Lawn, 5 mi. from Charlottesville, Va., 1799-1825; inherited Oak Hill, Loudon Co., Va., from his uncle Jos. Jones, 1806. The mansion, replacing Jones' cottage, was designed by Jefferson and executed by Jas. Hoban, White House architect. He moved to New York, 1830, to be with his daughters, and died there July 4, 1831, and was buried in Marble cemetery. In 1858 his remains were removed to Richmond.

MRS. JAMES MONROE

Mrs. Elizabeth Monroe was born in New York, 1768, the daughter of Lawrence Kortright, formerly British army officer. She married Monroe in 1786. They had two daughters, who married and lived in New York. She died 1830 at Oak Hill.

John Quincy Adams

John Quincy Adams, 6th president, independent Federalist, was born July 11, 1767, at Braintree (Quincy), Mass., the son of John and Abigail Adams. He was educated in Paris, Leyden, and Harvard, graduating in 1787. He served as American minister in the Netherlands, Berlin, St. Petersburg and London and helped draft the peace treaty of 1814. He had served as senator from 1803 to 1808 and his support of the Republican administration alienated the Federalists. President Monroe made him secretary of state, 1817, and he negotiated the cession of the Floridas from Spain, supported exclusion of slavery in the Missouri Compromise, and laid the base for the Monroe Doctrine, of which he, as much as Monroe, was the creator. In 1824 he was elected president by the House when Henry Clay threw his 37 votes to Adams, who had 84 against Andrew Jackson's 99. His expansion of executive powers was strongly opposed and he was beaten in 1828 by Jackson. In 1831 he was sent to Congress as representative and served eight terms with distinction and independence. He fought slavery, opposed the annexation of Texas and the war with Mexico; was responsible for the Smithsonian Institution. He had a stroke in the House and died in the Speaker's room, Feb. 23, 1848.

MRS. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

Mrs. Louisa Catherine Johnson Adams was born in London, Feb. 12, 1775, the daughter of Joshua Johnson, a Marylander who acted as American fiscal agent there. She married Adams July 26, 1797. Of their four children, George Washington Adams, John Q. Adams, Jr., Charles Francis Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams, Charles Francis became Free Soil candidate for vice president in 1848, member of Congress, minister to England during the Civil War and president of the Geneva Board of Arbitration. He was father of Charles Francis Adams, Henry Adams and Brooks Adams.

Andrew Jackson

Andrew Jackson, 7th president, originally Jeffersonian-Republican, later first Democrat, was born in the Waxhaws district, New Lancaster Co., S. C., Mar. 15, 1767, the posthumous son of Andrew Jackson, who came from County Antrim, Ireland, with his wife, Elizabeth Hutchinson, and two sons, in 1765. At 13 he joined the militia in the Revolution and when captured a British officer struck Andrew with his sword when the boy refused to shine his boots. He read law in Salisbury, N. C., moved to Nashville, Tenn., speculated in land, married and raised cotton at the Hermitage, originally a log house. In 1796 he helped draft the Constitution of Tennessee and for one year occupied its one seat in the national House. He was elected to the Senate in 1797, and again in 1823. He defeated the Creek Indians at Horseshoe Bend, Ala., 1814, and as major general, U. S. A., drove the British out of Pensacola. With 6,000 backwoods fighters he defeated Pakenham's 12,000 British troops at Chalmette, outside New Orleans, Jan. 8, 1815, losing only seven to the British loss of 2,000. In 1818 he fought so recklessly against the Seminoles in Florida that he endangered foreign relations. In 1824 he ran for president against John Quincy Adams and was voted down by the House, though he had the most votes; in 1828 he carried everything, the West rising to support "Old Hickory" and a liberal land policy. He was a noisy debater and duellist and introduced rotation in office or "spoils system." He was suspicious of privilege; ruined the Bank of the United States by depositing federal funds with state banks. Though "Let the people rule" was his slogan, he at times supported strict constructionist policies against the expansionist West. He killed the Congressional caucus for nominating presidential candidates and substituted the national convention, 1832, when he was reelected, with Martin Van Buren vice president. When South Carolina refused to collect imports under his protective tariff he ordered army and naval forces to Charleston. At the Jefferson Day dinner, 1830, he retorted to Calhoun's defense of liberty over the Union with "Our Federal Union; it must be preserved." He recognized the Republic of Texas, 1836. His party took the name of Democrat. He died at the Hermitage, June 8, 1845, and is buried there.

MRS. ANDREW JACKSON

Mrs. Rachel Jackson was the daughter of Col. John Donelson, a surveyor at Nashville, and first married Capt. Lewis Robards. Under the impression that Robards had obtained a divorce she married Jackson in Natchez in 1791. Robards did not get a divorce until 1793, when the Jacksons were remarried, but the ordeal affected her spirits. She died in 1828 after Jackson's election and never lived in the White House. Jackson adopted her sister's son, naming him Andrew Jackson, Jr. White House hostesses were his wife's niece, Mrs. Emily Donelson, and the adopted son's wife, Mrs. Sarah York Jackson, a Philadelphia Quaker.

Martin Van Buren

Martin Van Buren, 8th president, Democrat, was born Dec. 5, 1782, at Kinderhook, N. Y., the son of Abraham Van Buren, a Dutch farmer, and Mary Hoes. He was surrogate of Columbia county, New York, state senator and attorney general and a law partner of Benj. F. Butler in Albany. He was U. S. senator 1821, re-elected, 1827, elected governor of New York, 1828. He helped swing eastern support to Andrew Jackson in 1828 and was his secretary of state, 1829-31. In 1832 he was elected vice president. He was a consummate politician, known as "the little magician," and influenced Jackson's policies. In 1836 he defeated William Henry Harrison for president by 170 to 72 electoral votes. He inaugurated the independent treasury system, and was the first advocate of mutual insurance of deposits by banks. He advocated tariff for revenue only and opposed internal improvements at national expense. His refusal to spend land revenues led to his defeat by Harrison in 1840. He lost the Democratic nomination of 1844 to Polk because he opposed annexation of Texas. In 1848 he ran for president on the Free Soil ticket and lost. Thus he ran three times. He died July 24, 1862 at Kinderhook, N. Y.

MRS. MARTIN VAN BUREN

Mrs. Hannah Hoes Van Buren, born 1783, was a relative of Van Buren's mother and his classmate in school. She married in 1807, died 1819. Their son Abraham, 1807-1873, a West Pointer, was secretary to the President, an officer in the Mexican war and a New York resident. His wife, Angelica Singleton, cousin of Polly Madison, was White House hostess during Van Buren's term. Another son, John Van Buren (1810-1866), was elected attorney general of New York, 1845.

William Henry Harrison

William Henry Harrison, 9th president, Whig, who served only 31 days, was born in Berkeley, Charles City Co., Va., Feb. 9, 1773, the third son of Benjamin Harrison, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Educated at Hampden Sydney college, he later studied medicine under Dr. Benjamin Rush. Commissioned by Washington, he fought under Gen. Anthony Wayne at Fallen Timbers, 1794. He was secretary of Northwest Terr.,

1798; its delegate in Congress, 1799; first governor of Indiana Terr., and supt. of Indian affairs. With 900 men he routed Tecumseh's Indians at Tippecanoe, Nov. 6, 1811. A major general, he defeated British and Indians at Battle of the Thames, Oct. 15, 1813. He served Ohio in Congress, 1816; as senator, 1824; was minister to Colombia, 1840, when 68, he was elected president with John Tyler, 294 to 60, on a "log cabin and hard cider" slogan. He caught pneumonia during the inauguration and died April 4, 1841. He was buried in North Bend, O.

MRS. WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON

Mrs. Anna Symmes Harrison, daughter of Col. John Cleves Symmes, chief justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court and Revolutionary veteran, was born in Morristown, N. J., 1775 and died 1864. She did not leave her North Bend, O., home for Washington and Mrs. Jane Findlay Harrison, wife of her son, Col. W. H. Harrison, Jr., stayed in the White House during Harrison's illness. Another son, John Scott Harrison, 1804-1878, was member of Congress and father of Benjamin Harrison, 23rd president.

John Tyler

John Tyler, 10th president, independent Whig, was born Mar. 29, 1790, in Greenway, Charles City Co., Va., son of John Tyler and Mary Armistead. His father was governor of Virginia, 1808-11. Tyler was graduated from William and Mary, 1807; member of the House of Delegates, 1811; in Congress, 1816-21; in Virginia legislature, 1823-25; governor of Virginia, 1825-26; U. S. senator, 1827-36. In 1836 he was defeated for vice president on a states' rights Whig ticket. In 1840 he was elected vice president on a Whig ticket with Harrison and succeeded him. He favored pre-emption, allowing settlers to get government land; rejected a new bank bill and thus alienated Whig supporters except Daniel Webster, his secretary of state; refused to honor the spoils system. He signed the resolution annexing Texas, Mar. 1, 1845. He accepted renomination, 1844, but withdrew before election. He condemned South Carolina's nullification and secession and as Virginia's commissioner to Buchanan tried to keep Fort Sumter neutralized. He was president of the peace congress called in Washington by Virginia, 1861. After its failure he supported secession, sat in the provisional Confederate congress, became a member of the Confederate House, but died, Jan. 18, 1862, before it met. He is buried in Richmond.

MARRIAGES OF JOHN TYLER

When 23 John Tyler married Letitia Christian of Cedar Grove, Va., born 1790, daughter of a planter. She was an invalid and died in the White House, 1842. She was an Episcopalian. Of her children Robert Tyler, 1818-1877, married Priscilla Cooper, daughter of a tragedian; presided in the White House. On June 28, 1844, in New York, Tyler married Julia Gardiner, born 1820, daughter of David Gardiner of Gardiner's Island, N. Y., a Catholic. She died in 1899. Her son Lyon Gardiner Tyler, became president of William and Mary, 1893; died 1935. Another, David Gardiner Tyler, judge, member of Congress and Confederate veteran, died 1927. A third son, Robert Fitzwalter Tyler, died 1927 at Richmond, aged 70.

James Knox Polk

James Knox Polk, 11th president, Democrat, was born in Mecklenburg Co., N. C., Nov. 2, 1795, the son of Samuel Polk, farmer and surveyor of Scotch-Irish descent, and Jane Knox. He went to Maury Co., Tenn., 1806; was graduated from the University of North Carolina, 1818; member of the Tenn. state legislature, 1823-25, known as "Napoleon of the Stump." He served in Congress 1825-39 and as speaker 1835-39. He supported Jackson and Van Buren, but was always expansionist. He was governor of Tennessee, 1839-41, being defeated 1841, '43. In 1844, when both Clay and Van Buren announced opposition to annexing Texas, the Democrats made Polk the first dark horse nominee because he demanded control of all Oregon and annexation of Texas. He won 170 to 105. James Buchanan was his secretary of state. He re-established the independent treasury system originated by Van Buren. His expansionist policy was opposed by Clay, Webster, Calhoun; he sent Zachary Taylor and an army to the Mexican border and when Mexicans attacked declared war existed. Abraham Lincoln, a Whig in Congress, opposed his war policy. Polk approved the acquisition of California, Utah and New Mexico (522,568 square miles) as part of America's "manifest destiny," but opposed retaining Mexico by force. He compromised on the Oregon boundary ("54-40 or fight!") by accepting the 49th parallel and giving Vancouver to the British. The Wilmot Proviso, outlawing slavery in new states, was debated in his term. Polk died in Nashville, June 15, 1849, and is buried on the capitol grounds there.

MRS. JAMES K. POLK

Mrs. Sarah Childress Polk was born in 1803 and married Polk Jan. 1, 1824. Her father was a wealthy planter near Murfreesboro, Tenn. She was educated by the Moravians. The Polks were Methodists and Mrs. Polk prohibited liquor and dancing in the White House. They had no children.

Zachary Taylor

Zachary Taylor, 12th president, Whig, who served only 16 months, was born Nov. 24, 1784, in Orange Co., Va., the son of Richard Taylor, later collector of the port of Louisville. His grandfather and James Madison's paternal grandmother were brother and sister. Taylor enlisted 1806; was commissioned lieutenant by Jefferson, 1808; fought in the War of 1812, the Black Hawk War, 1832, and the Seminole war, 1837. He became known as Old Rough and Ready. He settled on a plantation near Baton Rouge, La. In 1845 Polk sent him to the Rio Grande; when the Mexicans attacked him, Polk declared war. Taylor was successful at Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, May 8 and 9, 1846; occupied Monterey. Polk made him major general but gave many of his troops to Gen. Winfield Scott at Vera Cruz. Taylor, with 5,000 men, defeated Santa Anna's 20,000 at Buena Vista, Feb. 22, 1847. He defeated Scott at the Whig convention, 1849; was elected president over Martin Van Buren (Free Soil) with Millard Fillmore vice pres. He resumed the spoils system and though once a slave-holder worked to have California admitted as a free state. He died of typhus July 9, 1850, and was buried near Louisville.

MRS. ZACHARY TAYLOR

Mrs. Margaret Smith Taylor was born in 1788, the daughter of Walter Smith, Maryland planter. She married Taylor, 1810, died 1852. Of their daughters Elizabeth, Mrs. W. W. S. Bliss, was hostess of the White House; Ann married Dr. Robert Wood, asst. surgeon general, U. S. A.; Sarah Knox married Jefferson Davis, 1835, and died three months later. A son, Richard, 1826-79, served under Stonewall Jackson and became a Confederate general. He died in New York.

Millard Fillmore

Millard Fillmore, 13th president, Whig, was born Jan. 7, 1800, in a log cabin on a farm in Cayuga Co., N. Y., cleared in 1795 by his father, Nathaniel. He was apprenticed to a fuller and dyer; bought his freedom for $30 to study and became a teacher and postmaster in Buffalo, N. Y. He was counsellor of the state supreme court, 1829; in the state assembly, 1829-32; in Congress, 1833-35 and again 1837-43. He opposed the entrance of Texas as slave territory and voted for a protective tariff. He supported the appropriation of $30,000 for Morse's telegraph. In 1844 he was defeated for governor of New York. In 1848 he was elected vice-president and succeeded as president July 10, 1850. Daniel Webster was secretary of state until he died, 1852; then Edward Everett. Fillmore favored the compromise of 1850 and signed the Fugitive Slave Law. His policies pleased neither expansionists nor slave-holders and he was not renominated. In 1856 he was nominated by the American (Know-Nothing) party and accepted by the Whigs, but defeated by Buchanan. He was chancellor of the University of Buffalo. He died in Buffalo, Mar. 8, 1874.

FILLMORE'S TWO MARRIAGES

The first Mrs. Fillmore, 1798-1853, was Abigail Powers the daughter of Lemuel Powers, a Baptist clergyman of Stillwater, N. Y., and taught school in Cayuga Co. Owing to her poor health her daughter, Mary Abigail (1832-54) was the White House hostess. Their other child was Millard Powers Fillmore (1828-89). The second Mrs. Fillmore was Mrs. Caroline Carmichael McIntosh, born in Morristown, N. J., and widow of an Albany merchant. They had no children.

Franklin Pierce

Franklin Pierce, 14th president, Democrat, was born in Hillsboro, N. H., Nov. 23, 1804, the son of Benjamin Pierce, veteran of the Revolution and governor of New Hampshire, 1827. He attended Exeter and was graduated from Bowdoin, 1824. A lawyer, he served in the New Hampshire House, 1829-32; in Congress, supporting Jackson, 1833; U. S. Senator, 1837-42. He enlisted in the Mexican war, became brigadier general of volunteers and was wounded at Contreras. In 1852 Pierce was nominated on the 49th ballot over Cass, Douglas and Buchanan, defeating Gen. Winfield Scott, Whig. Though against slavery, Pierce was influenced by southern pro-slavery men (Jefferson Davis was his secy. of war) but he ignored the Ostend Manifesto that the U. S. either buy or take Cuba. He approved the Kansas-Nebraska act, leaving slavery to popular vote ("squatter sovereignty") 1854, and named a pro-slavery governor of Kansas. He signed a reciprocity treaty with Canada and approved the Gadsden Purchase from Mexico, 1853. He supported Commodore Matthew Perry's opening of Japan, 1854. Pierce died at Concord, N.H., Oct. 8, 1869.

MRS. FRANKLIN PIERCE

Mrs. Jane Means Appleton Pierce was born at Hampton, N. H., 1806, daughter of the Rev. Jesse A. Appleton, president of Bowdoin. The Pierces had three children; one died in infancy, one at 4 and one was killed in a railroad accident at 11. Mrs. Pierce died 1863.

James Buchanan

James Buchanan, 15th president, Federalist, later Democrat, was born of Scottish descent near Mercersburg, Pa., Apr. 23, 1791. He was a volunteer in the war of 1812; graduated from Dickinson, 1809; was in the Pennsylvania legislature, 1814-16; Congress, 1820-31; minister to Russia, appointed by Jackson; Senator, 1834-45; secretary of state under Polk, 1845-49, favoring the Mexican war and Texas annexation; minister to England, 1853. Signed the Ostend Manifesto favoring taking Cuba, 1854. Nominated by Democrats over Pierce and Stephen A. Douglas and elected 1856 over John C. Fremont (Republican) and Millard Fillmore (American-Know-Nothing and Whig tickets). The Dred Scott case, a victory for slavery, was decided when he took office. He favored Kansas as a pro-slavery state and endorsed the pro-slavery Lecompton Constitution. This lost him support of Douglas. The panic of 1857 hit the industrial North, spared the agricultural South. The Republicans now opened their fight against a nation "half slave and half free"; Douglas was challenged for the senate by Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln-Douglas debates, 1858. John Brown seized Harper's Ferry Oct. 16, 1859; was caught and hanged by U. S. Army. Buchanan's position was that no state had the right to secede from the Union, but that the Union had no power to coerce it. He died at Wheatland, near Lancaster, Pa., June 1, 1868, aged 77.

Buchanan was a bachelor. The mistress of the White House was his sister Jane's daughter, Harriet Lane, of Mercersburg. Her parents died when she was a child. She was an Episcopalian.

Abraham Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln, 16th president, Republican, was born Feb. 12, 1809, in a log cabin on a farm then in Hardin Co., Ky., now in Larue. He was the son of Thomas Lincoln (1778-1851), a descendant of Samuel Lincoln, who came with his wife Martha from Hingham, England, 1635, settled at Salem and Hingham, Mass., and had 11 children. Thomas, a carpenter, married Nancy Hanks, June 12, 1806. She was the natural daughter of Lucy Hanks, whose ancestor, Thomas Hanks, came from England to Virginia, 1644. Abe had a sister, Sarah, 2 years older, died 1821, and a brother, Thomas, died in infancy.

The Lincolns moved to Spencer Co., Ind., near Centerville, where Abe was 7. His mother died Oct. 5, 1818, aged 35. His father married Mrs. Sarah Bush Johnston, 1819; she had a favorable influence on Abe. He was 6 ft. 3 in. tall. Abe made two trips on flatboats to New Orleans, one via the Ohio-Mississippi, 1828, and one via the Illinois-Mississippi, 1831. In 1830 the family moved to Macon County, Ill., where Abe and a cousin split 3,000 fence rails. In 1831 they moved to Coles County. In New Salem, 1831-1837, Lincoln lost election to the Illinois General Assembly, 1832, but won four times later, beginning in 1834. He enlisted in the militia for the Black Hawk War, 1832. In New Salem he ran a store, 1833, surveyed land, 1834-36, was postmaster, 1833-36. Ann Rutledge, whom he is said to have loved, died near New Salem, 1835, aged 19.

In 1837 Lincoln was admitted to the bar and became partner in a Springfield law office. He began practice on 8th Judicial Circuit, 1839. He was a presidential elector, 1839, 1844, 1852, 1856. He failed of nomination for representative, 1843, but was elected to the 30th Congress, 1847. He opposed the Mexican war. He stumped New England for Zachary Taylor, 1848. He refused offices of secretary and governor of Oregon Terr., 1849. He opposed the Kansas-Nebraska Act and extension of slavery, 1854. When elected to the Ill. legislature, 1854, he declined in order to try for the Senate, but failed of election, 1855. He was proposed but not chosen for vice president at the first Republican convention, 1856, and he made 50 speeches for John C. Fremont, presidential nominee.

In 1858 Lincoln had Republican support in the Ill. legislature for the Senate but was defeated by Stephen A. Douglas, Dem., who sponsored the Kansas-Nebraska Act. The issues were debated by Lincoln and Douglas Aug. 21-Oct. 15 at Ottawa, Freeport, Jonesboro, Charleston, Galesburg, Quincy and Alton, Ill.

Lincoln was nominated for president by the Republican party over Wm. H. Seward, on an anti-slavery platform, at Chicago, May 18, 1860. He ran against Stephen A. Douglas, northern Democrat; John C. Breckenridge, southern pro-slavery Democrat; John Bell, Constitutional Union party. Lincoln got only 40% of the votes, but 180 electoral votes to 123. South Carolina seceded from the Union Dec. 20, 1860, followed in 1861 by 10 southern states.

Lincoln was inaugurated Mar. 4, 1861. Fort Sumter was attacked Apr. 12-14, and surrendered. Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers Apr. 15, and 500,000 May 3. On Sept. 22, 1862, 5 days after the battle of Antietam, he announced that slaves in territory then in rebellion would be free Jan. 1, 1863, date of the Emancipation Proclamation. He reached the highest degree of eloquence at Gettysburg National Cemetery, Nov. 19, 1863.

Lincoln was re-elected, 1864, over Gen. Geo. B. McClellan, Democrat. Lee surrendered April 9, 1865. On April 14 (Good Friday) Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth while attending a performance of Our American Cousin in Ford's Theater, Washington. He died the next day. His body lay in state in New York, Chicago and other cities before burial in Springfield, Ill. His estate reached $110,295, most of it saved from his annual salary of $25,000. His humanity, lofty concept of office and generous spirit made him the hero of the common man the world over.

MRS. LINCOLN AND FAMILY

Mrs. Mary Todd Lincoln was born in Lexington, Ky., 1818 and died in 1882. She was a daughter of Robert Smith Todd, a pioneer. Her half sister, Emily Todd, became the wife of Brig. Gen. Ben Hardin Helm of the Confederate Army, who was killed at Chickamauga. The Lincolns were married in Springfield, Nov. 4, 1842. Their married life was stormy and Mrs. Lincoln was accused of undue extravagance in the White House. In 1875 she was temporarily in a mental hospital. Of the Lincoln children, Edward Baker died in 1850, William Wallace in 1862, Thomas, "Tad" in 1871. Robert Todd Lincoln, born Aug. 1, 1843, in Springfield, studied law at Harvard, served in the Civil War, was secretary of war in Garfield's cabinet, minister to Great Britain and president of the Pullman Palace Car Co. He married Mary Harlan, dau. of Sen. Jas. Harlan (Iowa); she died 1937. Their children, since deceased, were Abraham (died at 17), Mrs. Chas. Isham, Mrs. Robt. J. Randolph. Robert Lincoln died July 26, 1926, at Manchester, Vt., and was buried in the National Cemetery, Arlington, Va. He gave the Library of Congress 18,356 Lincoln letters and documents, which were opened to the public July 26, 1947. Mrs. Robert Lincoln gave the Library the Bible on which Lincoln took the oath of office and the Lincoln family Bible. Her estate was estimated at $3,000,000.

Andrew Johnson

Andrew Johnson, 17th president, Democrat, was born in Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 29, 1808, the son of Jacob Johnson, porter at an inn and church sexton, and Mary McDonough Johnson, who had been a maid at the inn. His father died when he was 5. At 10 he was apprenticed to a tailor. At 16 he ran off to Greenville, Tenn. He became an alderman, 1828; mayor, 1830; state representative and senator, 1835-43; member of Congress, 1843-53; governor of Tennessee, 1853-57; U. S. Senator, 1857-62. He supported John C. Breckinridge against Lincoln in 1860. He had held slaves, but opposed secession and refused to follow Tennessee out of the Union. In March, 1862, Lincoln appointed him military governor of occupied Tennessee. In 1864 he was nominated for vice president with Lincoln on the National Union ticket to win Democratic support. He succeeded Lincoln as president April 15, 1865. In a controversy with Congress over the president's power over the South, he proclaimed, May 26, 1865, an amnesty to all Confederates except certain leaders if they would abolish slavery and ratify the 13th amendment. States doing so added anti-Negro provisions that enraged Congress, which intended to enfranchise all Negroes and disenfranchise former Confederates. Congress restored military control over the South. When Johnson removed Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war, without notifying the Senate, thus repudiating the Tenure of Office Act, the House impeached him for this and other reasons. He was tried by the Senate, which voted 35 for conviction, 19 for acquittal, lacking the two-thirds necessary to convict, May 26, 1868. He was a candidate before the next Democratic convention, but not nominated. He returned to the Senate in 1875, and in a strong speech, defended his course. He supported the Lincoln policies, but was a poor executive, and his attitude toward the South was called partisanship by the radical Republicans. Johnson died July 31, 1875, and was buried at Greenville, where his log-cabin tailor shop is now a state museum.

MRS. ANDREW JOHNSON

Mrs. Eliza McCordle Johnson was born in Leesburg, Tenn., in 1810, the only daughter of a widow in a mountain hamlet when Johnson married her. She helped him get an education. Their daughter Martha, born 1828, educated in Georgetown, D. C., was often a guest at the White House in Polk's administration. In 1857 she married Judge D. T. Patterson. She was mistress of the White House in place of her invalid mother. Another daughter, Mary, married Daniel Stover of Carter Co., Tenn., and had three children; after Stover's death she married W. R. Bacon of Greeneville. Mrs. Johnson died in 1876.

Ulysses S. Grant

Ulysses Simpson Grant, 18th president, Republican, was born on the farm of his father, Jesse R. Grant, a tanner, at Point Pleasant, O., April 27, 1822. He was descended from Matthew Grant, who reached Dorchester, Mass., 1630. Grant's mother was Hannah Simpson. Grant was named Hiram Ulysses, but on entering West Point, 1839, his name was entered as Ulysses Simpson and he adopted it. He was graduated in 1843; was 1st lieutenant, and captain under Gens. Taylor and Scott in the Mexican War; resigned, 1854, worked in St. Louis until 1860, then went to Galena, Ill., where his father sold leather and hardware. He became colonel of the 21st Illinois Vols., 1861, then brigadier general; took Forts Henry and Donelson; made maj. gen. of volunteers; fought at Shiloh. Took Vicksburg, became maj. gen. USA., and in Mar., 1864, lieutenant gen. He accepted Lee's surrender at Appomattox. In 1866 he was named General of the Army. President Johnson appointed Grant secretary of war when he suspended Stanton in defiance of the Senate, but Grant was not confirmed. He was nominated on the first ballot, May 30, 1868, and elected over Horatio Seymour, Democrat, 214 vs. 80 electoral votes. The 15th amendment, amnesty bill and civil service reform were events of his administration. The Liberal Republicans opposed him with Horace Greeley, also Democratic nominee, 1872, but he was re-elected. He vetoed the inflation bill, 1874. An attempt by the Stalwarts (Old Guard) to nominate him in 1880 failed. In 1881 the collapse of Grant & Ward, investment house, left him penniless. He began his Personal Memoirs, writing at Mt. McGregor, N.Y., while ill of cancer and completing them four days before his death in New York, July 23, 1885. The book realized over $450,000. Grant was buried in an imposing tomb on Riverside Drive, New York, where his wife also lies.

MRS. ULYSSES S. GRANT

Mrs. Julia Dent Grant (1826-1902) was the daughter of Judge Frederick Dent of St. Louis, son of a Revolutionary officer. She married Grant, Aug. 1848. Their children were Frederick Dent Grant (1850-1912), minister to Austria-Hungary, police commissioner of New York, major general, Spanish-American War; Ulysses, Jr. (1852-1929); Jesse R. (1858-1934); Nellie (1857-1922), who was married in the White House to Capt. Algernon Sartoris, 1874, and in 1912, a widow, married Frank H. Jones, Cleveland's assistant postmaster general.

Rutherford Birchard Hayes

Rutherford Birchard Hayes, 19th president, Republican, was born in Delaware, O., Oct. 4, 1822, the posthumous son of Rutherford Hayes, a farmer, and Sophia Birchard. He was descended from George Hayes, a Scot who reached Windsor, Conn., in 1680. He was raised by his uncle Sardis Birchard, educated in Norwalk, O., and Middletown, Conn., and graduated from Kenyon College, 1842, and Harvard Law school, 1845. He practiced law in Lower Sandusky, O., now Fremont; was city solicitor of Cincinnati, 1858-61. He was major of the 23d Ohio Vols., wounded at South Mountain; became brigadier general and major general by brevet, 1864. He served in Congress 1864-67, supporting Reconstruction and Johnson's impeachment. He was elected governor of Ohio, 1867 and 1869; beaten for Congress 1872; re-elected governor, 1875. He supported the merit principle in appointments, economy, prison reform and public libraries. In 1876 he was nominated for president over James G. Blaine and believed he had lost to Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat, 184 to 163 electoral votes. But Zachariah Chandler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, relying on Republican domination of the South, urged the validity of contesting 22 electoral returns from Florida, South Carolina, Louisiana; also Oregon. Frauds in Louisiana injuring Tilden were permitted to stand. Promises to withdraw troops from the South were reported used to suborn Democrats. The election was judged by an Electoral Commission, appointed by Congress, 8 Republicans and 7 Democrats, who refused to "go behind state returns" and by strict party vote elected Hayes by 185 over 184. Tilden's refusal to fight back was blamed by his party. The withdrawal of troops followed, but handicapped Republican rule, and as Hayes proceeded to reform civil service he alienated political spoils-men. He advocated repeal of the Tenure of Office Act that had led to Johnson's impeachment. He supported sound money and specie payments. Hayes died in Fremont, O., Jan. 17, 1893.

MRS. RUTHERFORD B. HAYES

Mrs. Lucy Webb Hayes, born 1831, was the daughter of Dr. James Webb of Chillicothe, O. She married Hayes Dec. 30, 1852. She was an advocate of temperance, as was Hayes, and did not permit alcoholic beverages in the White House. The Hayeses had eight children: Birchard A. (1853-1926); Webb C. (1856-1934); Rutherford P. (1858-1927); Joseph T. (1861-1863); George C. (1864-66); Frances (1867-1950); Scott R. (1871-1923); Manning F. (1873-74). Mrs. Hayes died June, 1889.

James Abram Garfield

James A. Garfield, 20th president, Republican, was born Nov. 19, 1831, in a log cabin at Orange, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio, the son of Abram and Eliza Ballou Garfield. His father, a canal contractor and farmer from New York, was descended from Edward Garfield, who reached Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630 and helped found Watertown, Mass.; his mother was a descendant of an owner of Providence Plantation. James was the youngest of four children; his father died in 1833 and his mother supported them. He worked as canal bargeman, farmer and carpenter; got an education at Western Reserve Eclectic, later Hiram College, and was graduated from Williams in 1856. He became professor of ancient languages and literature at Hiram, then principal. He was in the Ohio senate in 1859. Anti-slavery and anti-secession, he volunteered for the war, became colonel of the 42nd Ohio Infantry and brigadier general in 1862. He fought at Shiloh, was chief of staff for Rosencrans and was made major general for gallantry at Chickamauga. He entered Congress as a radical Republican in 1863; supported specie payment as against paper money (greenbacks). On the electoral commission in 1876 he voted for Hayes against Tilden on strict party lines. He was senator-elect in 1880 when he became the Republican nominee for President. He was chosen on the 36th ballot as a compromise between Gen. Grant, James G. Blaine and John Sherman. This alienated the Grant following but Garfield was elected and Blaine became his secretary of state. On July 2, 1881, Garfield was shot by an unbalanced office-seeker, Charles J. Guiteau, while entering the old Baltimore & Potomac station in Washington. He died Sept. 19, 1881, at Elberon, N. J., and was buried in Cleveland, O. Guiteau was hanged June 30, 1882.

MRS. JAMES A. GARFIELD

Mrs. Lucretia Rudolph Garfield was born in 1832, daughter of an Ohio farmer. Her mother was a descendant of Gen. Nathaniel Greene. She and Garfield were schoolmates and were married Nov. 11, 1858, when he was principal at Hiram, O. After his death a trust fund of $360,000 was raised for her and her children. She died March 13, 1918. Five children survived. James R. became secretary of the interior, 1907-09; Harry A. was president of Williams College; Irvin M. became a Boston lawyer and Abram G. a Cleveland architect; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Stanley-Brown, died Dec. 30, 1947.

Chester Alan Arthur

Chester A. Arthur, 21st president, Republican, was born at Fairfield, Vt., Oct. 5, 1830, the son of the Rev. William Arthur, from County Antrim, Ireland, and Malvina Stone Arthur, member of a New Hampshire family. He was graduated at Union College, 1848, taught school at Pownall, Vt., studied law in New York. In 1853 he argued in a fugitive slave case that slaves transported through New York state were thereby freed; in 1855 he obtained a ruling that Negroes were to be treated the same as whites on street cars. He helped organize the New York State militia, 1861; was made quartermaster general and equipped troops for the front. He was made collector of the port of New York, 1871. In 1877 President Hayes, reforming the civil service, ordered Arthur's resignation; he refused because he was not personally culpable, but was removed, 1879. This made Senators Conkling, Platt and the New York machine stalwarts enemies of Hayes. Arthur and the stalwarts tried to nominate Grant for a third term, 1880; when Garfield was nominated, Arthur received second place in the interests of harmony. On Sept. 19, 1881, he succeeded Garfield as president. He supported civil service reform and the tariff of 1883; arranged an unratified canal treaty with Nicaragua. He was defeated for renomination by James G. Blaine, 1884, but supported Blaine. He died Nov. 18, 1886, and was buried in Albany, N. Y.

MRS. CHESTER A. ARTHUR

Mrs. Ellen Lewis Herndon Arthur was born in Fredericksburg, Va., in 1837, the daughter of Commander William Lewis Herndon, U. S. N. She died in 1880. The Arthurs had three children, W. L. H. Arthur, who died in infancy; Chester Alan Arthur, Jr. (1865-1937) and Ella Herndon Arthur, born 1871 (Mrs. Charles Pinkerton). The mistress of the White House was Arthur's sister, Mary, Mrs. John E. McElroy of Albany, N. Y.

Grover Cleveland

Grover Cleveland, 22nd and 24th president, Democrat, was born in Caldwell, N. J., Mar. 18, 1837, the son of Richard F. Cleveland, a Presbyterian minister, and Ann Neale, daughter of a Baltimore merchant who had come from Ireland. He was named Stephen Grover, but dropped Stephen. He clerked in Clinton and Buffalo, N. Y., taught in the New York City Institution for the Blind; was admitted to the bar in Buffalo, 1859; ass't district attorney, 1863; sheriff, 1869; mayor, 1881; governor of New York, 1892. He was an independent, honest administrator who hated corruption. He was nominated for president over Tammany opposition, 1884, defeating James G. Blaine, 219 to 182. He enlarged the civil service, vetoed many pension raids on Treasury. In 1888 he was defeated by Benjamin Harrison, although his popular vote was larger. Re-elected over Harrison, 1892, by 271 to 145, he faced a money crisis brought about by lowering of the gold reserve, circulation of paper and exorbitant silver purchases under the Sherman act; he obtained repeal of the latter and a reduced tariff. An income tax was passed but declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, 1895. A severe depression and labor troubles racked his administration but he refused to interfere in business matters and rejected as crackpot theory, Jacob Coxey's demand for work relief of $20,000,000 monthly. He broke the Pullman strike with troops to move the mails, 1894. He rejected the platform of W. J. Bryan's silver Democrats, 1896, and supported the gold Democrats, Palmer & Buckner. He had part in the reorganization of the Equitable Life Assurance Assn. He died in Princeton, N. J., 1908.

MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND

Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland was born in 1864, the daughter of Cleveland's law partner in Buffalo, Oscar Folsom and Emma C. Harmon. She married Cleveland in the White House, 1886. They had five children, Ruth, Esther, Marion, Richard Folsom and Frances Grover. Mrs. Cleveland married, Feb. 10, 1913, Thomas J. Preston, Jr., an archaeologist in Princeton, N. J. She died Oct. 29, 1947.

Benjamin Harrison

Benjamin Harrison, 23rd president, Republican, was born at North Bend, O., Aug. 20, 1833. His great-grandfather, Benjamin Harrison, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence; his grandfather, William Henry Harrison, was 9th president; his father John Scott Harrison was a Member of Congress, 1853-57. His mother was Elizabeth F. Irwin. He attended school in a log cabin on his father's farm; was graduated from Miami Univ. 1852; admitted to the bar, 1853 and practiced in Indianapolis, Ind. As 2nd lieutenant he raised recruits and became colonel of the 70th Indiana Volunteer Infantry. He fought at Kenesaw Mountain, Peachtree Creek, Nashville, and on Sherman's march to the sea. In 1865 he was made brigadier general by brevet. He failed to be elected governor of Indiana, 1876; but became Senator, 1881, and worked for the G. A. R. pensions vetoed by Cleveland. In 1888 he defeated Cleveland for president, 233 to 168. He expanded the pension list greatly; suppressed the Louisiana lottery; signed the McKinley high tariff bill and the Sherman silver purchase act. He helped the admission of North and South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Wyoming, Republican states. He was defeated for reelection, 1892. He represented Venezuela in arbitration with Great Britain in Paris, 1899. He died at Indianapolis, Mar. 13, 1901, and was buried there.

HARRISON'S TWO MARRIAGES

Mrs. Caroline Lavinia Scott Harrison was born in 1832 in Oxford, O., the daughter of Prof. John W. Scott of Miami Univ. She married Harrison Oct. 29, 1853. She was the first head of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She died in the White House, 1892. Her son Russell B. became a mining engineer. Her daughter Mary married an Indianapolis merchant, James R. McKee; Mary's child, "Baby McKee", was a White House favorite and is now a New York businessman. She died in Greenwich in 1930. Harrison's second wife was Mrs. Harrison's niece, Mrs. Mary Scott Lord Dimmock, whose husband died in 1882. She was born in Honesdale, Pa., 1858, and died in New York, Jan. 5, 1948. She spent two years in the White House during her aunt's lifetime. She had one daughter, Elizabeth Harrison, born 1897, who married James Blaine Walker, Jr., great-nephew of Blaine.

William McKinley

William McKinley, 25th president, Republican, was born in Niles, O., Jan. 29, 1843, the son of William McKinley, an iron manufacturer, and Nancy Allison McKinley, and was the seventh of nine children. His father's family was Scotch-Irish from County Antrim; his great-grandfather fought in the American Revolution. McKinley attended school in Poland, O., and Alleghany College, Meadville, Pa., and enlisted for the Civil War at 18. He saw fighting at South Mountain, Antietam, Winchester and Cedar Creek. The state of Ohio nonored him with the tallest monument at Antietam, where he had been a doughboy. He rose to captain and in 1865 was made major by brevet. He studied law in the Albany, N. Y., law school; opened an office in Canton, O., in 1867, and campaigned for Grant and Hayes. From 1876 to 1890, excepting 1882, he served in the House of Representatives and led the fight for a high tariff to protect "infant industries," with reciprocal trade agreements (McKinley bill, enacted Oct. 1, 1890). Defeated on this issue in 1890, he was elected governor of Ohio, 1891 and 1893. He received 182 ballots for president in the Republican convention that nominated Benjamin Harrison in 1892. In 1896 he was elected president on a protective tariff, sound money (gold standard) platform over William J. Bryan, Democratic proponent of free silver. Chief factor was the astute vote-getting of Senator Marcus A. Hanna. McKinley was reluctant to intervene in Cuba on grounds of humanity, but the loss of the battleship Maine at Havana crystallized opinion. He demanded Spain's withdrawal from Cuba; Spain replied by declaring war. McKinley signed the American declaration Mar. 23, 1898. (Peace signed Dec. 10.) In the 1900 campaign he defeated Bryan's anti-imperialist arguments with the prestige of prosperity, "the full dinner pail" and the vigorous campaigning of Theodore Roosevelt, vice presidential nominee. McKinley was a Methodist, beloved for his conciliatory nature, but conservative (stand-pat) on business issues. He abhorred violence. The need to regulate the Philippines is believed to have inspired John Hay's Open Door Policy in Asia. On Sept. 6, 1901, while welcoming citizens at the Pan-American exposition, Buffalo, N. Y., he was shot by Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist terrorist. He died Sept. 14. His last words were: "It is God's way. His will, not ours, be done." McKinley, his wife and infant daughters rest in an imposing tomb in Canton. His favorite flower, the red carnation, was made the state flower.

MRS. WILLIAM MCKINLEY

Mrs. Ida Saxton McKinley, born 1847, was the daughter of James A. Saxton and Katherine DeWalt. She was cashier in her father's bank in Canton, O., when she married McKinley. Their two children died in childhood. Mrs. McKinley became an invalid through a nervous ailment, but presided in the White House and was with her husband when he was assassinated. She died in 1907.

Theodore Roosevelt

Theodore Roosevelt, 26th president, Republican, was born in New York City, Oct. 27, 1858, the son of Theodore Roosevelt, Collector of the Port, and Martha Bulloch, daughter of Maj. Jas. S. Bulloch, Roswell, Ga. He was descended from Claes Martensz van Rosenvelt, and his wife Janette, who reached New Netherland from Holland about 1650. Theodore was a fifth cousin of Franklin D. Roosevelt and an uncle of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. His mother was of Scotch-Irish, Huguenot stock and a Southern sympathizer. Roosevelt was graduated from Harvard, 1880, attended Columbia Law School briefly; sat in the New York State Assembly, 1882-84; ranched in North Dakota, 1884-86; failed of election as mayor of New York, 1886; member of U. S. Civil Service Comm. 1889; president, New York Police Board, 1895, supporting the merit system; Asst. Secy. of the Navy under McKinley, Apr. 19, 1897—May 10, 1898, during which he instituted naval target practice and instructed Commodore George Dewey to take Manila in the event of war with Spain. He organized the 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry (Rough Riders) as lieutenant colonel, Leonard Wood, col.; led the charge up Kettle Hill at San Juan and was made colonel by brevet. Elected governor, New York, 1898-1900, he fought the spoils system and achieved taxation of corporation franchises. Drafted for vice president, 1900, he became nation's youngest president at 43, when McKinley died at Buffalo, Sept. 14, 1901. As president he fought corruption of politics by big business; dissolved Northern Securities Co. and others for violating anti-trust laws; intervened in coal strike on behalf of the public, 1902; instituted Dept. of Commerce and Labor; obtained Elkins law forbidding rebates to favored corporations, 1903; Hepburn law regulating railroad rates, 1906; Pure Food and Drugs Act, 1906, Reclamation Act and employers' liability laws. He organized Conservation, mediated the peace between Japan and Russia, 1905; won the Nobel peace prize. He was the first to use the Hague Court of International Arbitration. By recognizing the new Republic of Panama he made Panama Canal possible, appointed

Col. Geo. W. Goethals head commissioner and began canal. He was re-elected, 1904, with 366 electoral votes vs. 140.

In 1908 he obtained the nomination of William H. Taft, who was elected; considering Taft's administration inimical to liberal policies he organized the Progressive party, June 22, 1912, and ran for president against Taft and Woodrow Wilson, in which Wilson obtained 6,293,097 votes, Roosevelt 4,119,517. He was shot during the campaign but recovered. He advocated recall of elected officials, referendum on legislation and recall of judicial decisions, which alienated conservatives. In 1916 he left the Progressives and supported Charles A. Hughes, Republican. A strong friend of Britain, he fought American isolation. In 1917 President Wilson refused to let him organize a division. His four sons served in World War I; two were wounded, one killed. He wrote on many topics—his Winning of the West is best known—was a naturalist and hunter and traced the River of Doubt in Brazil, 1913, now Rio Roosevelt. He was looked upon as certain nominee of the Republicans in 1920. He died Jan. 6, 1919, at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., now a national shrine, and was buried near the Roosevelt bird refuge there.

Woodrow Wilson, 28th president, Democrat, was born at Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856, as Thomas Woodrow Wilson, son of a Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Joseph Ruggles and Janet (Jessie) Woodrow, daughter of a Scotch Presbyterian minister. He was a grandson of James Wilson, a Presbyterian of Ulster who reached Philadelphia in 1807, became a printer and in 1808 married an Ulster Presbyterian girl, a shipmate. In his youth Wilson lived in Augusta, Ga., Columbia, S. C., and Wilmington, N. C. He attended Davidson College, 1873-74; was graduated from Princeton, A.B., 1879; A.M., 1882; read law at the Univ. of Virginia, 1881; practiced law, Atlanta, 1882-83; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1886 with "Congressional Government." He taught history and political economy at Bryn Mawr, 1885-88; at Wesleyan, 1888-90; was professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton, 1890-1910; president of Princeton, 1902-1910, during which he tried to introduce innovations of organization that were fought by the graduate dean and alumni; governor of New Jersey, 1911-13, during which he obtained a primary election law, an employers' liability law and other reforms. In 1912 he was nominated for president by the strategy of Wm. J. Bryan, who was out to defeat Champ Clark and Tammany. He won because the Republican vote for Taft was split by the Progressives under Theodore Roosevelt.

Wilson protected American interests in revolutionary Mexico and fought for American rights on the high seas as the first World War opened. His sharp warnings to Germany led to the resignation of his secretary of state, Wm. J. Bryan, pacifist, while his protests against British interference with American ships disturbed the Allies. In 1916 he was re-elected by a slim margin with the slogan, "He kept us out of war," over Charles Evans Hughes, supported by Theodore Roosevelt and strong pro-Ally groups. His offer to mediate in the war (Dec. 18, 1916) was rejected. When the Germans started unrestricted submarine warfare, contrary to pledges, he broke diplomatic relations. After four American ships had been sunk he asked a declaration of war; it was voted April 6, 1917.

Wilson proposed peace on the basis of his Fourteen Points Jan. 8, 1918, which the Germans accepted Nov. 11. He went to Paris to help negotiate the peace treaty, the crux of which he considered the League of Nations, also urged by Gen. J. C. Smuts, Lord Robert Cecil, Lord Phillimore, William H. Taft and Elihu Root. In the U. S. Senate Henry Cabot Lodge, William E. Borah and Hiram Johnson demanded reservations that would not make the United States subservient to the votes of other nations in case of war. Wilson refused to consider any reservations and toured the country to get support. At Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 25, 1919, he broke down and several days later suffered a stroke that made him an invalid. The treaty was rejected, Mar., 1920, by 49 to 35 (29 being sufficient to kill it). He made a public appearance on the day of Harding's inauguration, and formed a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, but did not practice. He won the Nobel peace prize, 1919. He died in Washington, Feb. 3, 1924, and was buried in the Episcopal cathedral there.

WILSON'S TWO MARRIAGES

Mrs. Ellen Louise Axson Wilson was born in Rome, Ga., in 1860, the daughter of the Rev. S. E. Axson and Margaret Hoyt. She married Wilson June 28, 1885, and died in the White House Aug. 6, 1914. They had three daughters: Margaret W., born 1886, member of a religious colony in Pondicherry, India, when she died in 1944; Eleanor B., second wife of William G. McAdoo, Wilson's secretary of the treasury, later divorced; Jessie W., who married Francis B. Sayre in the White House Nov. 26, 1913 and died Jan. 15, 1933.

Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson was born in Wythe-ville, Va., 1872, and was the widow of Norman Galt, a Washington jeweler, when she married Wilson, Dec. 18, 1915. She lives in Washington. Reference: My Memoir, by Edith Bolling Wilson.

Warren Gamaliel Harding

Warren Gamaliel Harding, 29th president, Republican, was born near Blooming Grove, now Corsica, O., Nov. 2, 1865, the son of Dr. Geo. Tyron Harding, a country doctor, and Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson. He attended Ohio Central College, Iberia, O., 1879-82; worked on the Daily Star, Marion, O., 1884, and a few years later bought the paper with a friend. He was state senator, 1900-04; lieutenant governor, 1904-06; defeated for governor, 1910; U. S. Senator, 1915. He was a regular, Old Guard Republican; supported Taft, opposed Federal control of food and fuel, voted for anti-Sterile legislation, woman's suffrage, Volstead prohibition enforcement act over President Wilson's veto and opposed the League of Nations as a loss of sovereignty. In 1920 he was nominated for president on the tenth ballot with Calvin Coolidge and overwhelmingly defeated the Democrats, James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt. (Harding, 16,138,000; Cox, 9,142,000.) He stressed a return to "normalcy"; worked for repeal of excess profits and high income taxes and a revision of tariff. On announcing ratification of treaties with Germany, Austro-Hungary, Nov. 14, 1921, he declared war officially ended July 2, 1921. His cabinet included Charles E. Hughes and Herbert Hoover. He called the International Conference on Limitation of Armament, Nov. 11, 1921-Feb. 1, 1922, and dedicated the Lincoln Memorial. He left for Alaska June 20, 1923; became ill on his return and died in San Francisco, Aug. 2, 1923. He was buried in Marion, O.

MRS. WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING

Mrs. Florence Kling Harding was born Aug. 15, 1860, the daughter of Amos O. Kling, a Marion, O., hardware merchant and later banker. She married first, Henry De Wolfe, and had a son, Marshall Eugene De Wolfe. She married Harding in 1891 and helped him on the Star. She died in Marion, Nov. 21, 1924.

Calvin Coolidge

Calvin Coolidge, 30th president, Republican, was born in Plymouth, Vt., July 4, 1872, the son of John Calvin Coolidge, a storekeeper, and Victoria J. Moor. His ancestors, John and Mary Coolidge, came from England to Watertown, later Cambridge, Massachusetts Bay Colony, in 1630. Coolidge was graduated at Amherst, 1895; admitted to the bar in Northampton, 1897; city councilman, 1899; city solicitor, 1900-01; clerk of the courts, 1904; member of the lower Massachusetts house, 1907-08; mayor of Northampton, 1910-11; State Senator, 1912-15; and president of Senate; 1914-15; lieutenant governor, 1916-18; governor, 1919; re-elected, 1920. In Sept., 1919, Coolidge attained national prominence by his action in the Boston police strike, during which he wired Samuel Gompers of the A. F. of L.: "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, anytime." This brought his name before the Republican convention of 1920, where he received 34 votes for president and was nominated for vice president by 6744 votes. He succeeded to the presidency on Harding's death, Aug. 2, 1923, the oath being administered by his father, a justice of the peace, in his home in Plymouth, Aug. 3, and again Aug. 17 before Justice A. A. Hoehling of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. He opposed the League of Nations; approved the World Court; vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill, which was passed over his veto. In 1924 he was re-elected by a huge majority with 15,718,789 over John W. Davis, Dem., 8,738,962, and Robert M. LaFollette, Prog., 3,322,319. He reduced the national debt by $2,000,000,000 in three years. He opposed the McNary-Haugen farm bill and price fixing, and supported his secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg, in the Kellogg-Briand treaties outlawing war. His dry, laconic remarks are often quoted: opposing reduction of Europe's war debt, "They hired the money, didn't they?" With Republicans eager to renominate him he announced, Aug. 2, 1927: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928." He became a life insurance director, wrote syndicated articles and died of a heart attack in Northampton, Jan. 5, 1933. He was buried on a Plymouth hillside.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE

Mrs. Grace Anne Goodhue Coolidge, of Northampton, Mass., was born in Burlington, Vt., Jan. 3, 1879, the daughter of Andrew I. Goodhue and Lemira Barrett. He was a steamboat inspector under Cleveland. She was graduated from the Univ. of Vermont, 1902; taught in the Clarke School for the Deaf, 1902-05, and became president of its board. She married Coolidge Oct. 4, 1905. The Coolidges had two sons: John B., born 1906, who married Florence, daughter of Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, and Calvin (1908-1924).

Herbert Hoover

Herbert Clark Hoover, 31st president, Republican, was born at West Branch, Ia., Aug. 10, 1874, the son of Jesse Clark Hoover, a blacksmith (1847-80) and Hulda Randall Minthorn (1848-83). His ancestor, Andrew Hoover, came to Pennsylvania from the Palatinate, 1738, and his great-grandfather settled in West Branch in 1854. Hoover grew up in the homes of his uncles in Indian Territory and Oregon, entered Leland Stanford, Jr., University (now Stanford) in its first class, 1891; A.B., Engineering, 1895. After brief experience in the U. S. Geological Survey and western mines he began in Western Australia his extraordinary career as a mining engineer in Asia, Europe, Africa and America, which made him a director of numerous British mining corporations and a millionaire early in life. In 1900, while chief engineer of imperial mines in China, he became food administrator for refugees at Tientsin during the Boxer rebellion. He was chairman, American Relief Committee, London, 1914-15; Comm. for Relief in Belgium, 1915-1919; U. S. Food Administrator, 1917-1919, mem. War Trade Council; ch., Supreme Economic Council; ch., European Relief Council. Secretary of Commerce, 1921-28; elected president over Alfred E. Smith, 1929; defeated for re-election, 1932. Initiated Boulder Canyon project (Hoover Dam); Reconstruction Finance Corp.; Supported relief measures in Farm Loan Bank, Home Loan Banks, Agricultural Credit Corp. Hoover gave his official salaries to charities and underpaid officials. President Truman appointed him co-ordinator of European Food program, 1946; German Food program, 1947; ch., Comm. on Organization of the Executive Branch, which he directed from 1947 to June 30, 1955, outlining many administrative reforms. He also served in many other advisory capacities. He founded the Hoover Library at Stanford University, Calif. His birthplace is a patriotic shrine.

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER

Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover was born in Waterloo, Ia., Mar. 29, 1875, daughter of Charles D. Henry, a banker. The family moved to Monterey, Calif. She was graduated from Stanford University 1898 and married Hoover in 1899. She died Jan. 7, 1944.

Sons: Herbert Hoover, Jr., b. 1903, consulting engineer, appointed Under Secretary of State, August, 1954. Allan Henry Hoover, b. 1907, director of mining corps., New York, N. Y., home, Greenwich, Conn.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 32nd president, Democrat, was born near Hyde Park, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1882, the son of James Roosevelt (died 1900) and Sara Delano (died 1941). His ancestor, Claes Martenszan van Rosenvelt, came to New Amsterdam from Holland in 1649. Claes' son Nicholas, a New York alderman in 1700 and 1715, had a son Johannes, from whom Theodore Roosevelt was descended, and a son Jacobus, from whom Franklin D. Roosevelt was descended. Roosevelt was graduated at Harvard, 1904; attended Columbia Law school, was admitted to the bar. He went to the New York Senate from his Dutchess county district 1910 and 1913. He voted for Woodrow Wilson at the 1912 Democratic convention; in 1913 Wilson made him assistant secretary of the Navy.

Roosevelt was nominated for vice president, to run with James M. Cox, July, 1920, at San Francisco, Alfred E. Smith making the seconding speech. From 1920 to 1928 he was a New York lawyer and vice president of the Fidelity & Deposit Co. In Aug., 1921, he was stricken with infantile paralysis, which paralyzed his legs. He learned to walk with leg braces and a cane and established the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation for helping those so afflicted.

Roosevelt presented the name of Alfred E. Smith to the Democratic convention of 1924 in New York, and 1928 in Houston, Texas, calling Smith the Happy Warrior. Smith was nominated in 1928 and defeated. Roosevelt was elected governor of New York, 1928 and 1930. In 1932 at Chicago W. G. McAdoo, pledged to John N. Garner, with both Smith and Roosevelt candidates, threw his votes to Roosevelt, who was chosen, alienating Smith. The financial crash, unemployment and the Democratic promise to repeal prohibition made his victory inevitable. He asked emergency powers, proclaimed the New Deal, and put into effect a vast number of administrative changes. Foremost was "pump priming," or use of public funds for relief and public works, resulting in deficit financing. He greatly expanded the controls of the central government over business and by an excess profits tax and pyramiding income taxes produced a redistribution of earnings on an unprecedented scale. The Wagner act gave labor many advantages in organizing and collective bargaining, at the same time denying equal privileges to employers. Government employes increased to several millions.

Roosevelt was a tremendous worker and traveler despite physical handicaps. By personal persuasiveness he held factions together. He was the first president to use radio for "fireside chats" on policies. When the Supreme Court voided his measures he demanded additional judges of Congress. It refused, but resignations soon enabled him to replace conservatives who had opposed him. He was the first president to break the third term tradition and was elected to a fourth term, 1945, despite failing health. The culminating event of his career was World War II. He was openly hostile to Fascist governments before the war and gave Britain substantial support, such as exchanging 50 destroyers for air bases, before Pearl Harbor made the United States a belligerent. He wrote the principles of fair dealing into the Atlantic Charter, Aug. 14, 1941 (with Winston Churchill) and in the Four Freedoms (Freedom of speech, of worship, from want, from fear) Jan. 6, 1941. He conferred with the heads of states at Casablanca, Jan., 1943; Quebec, Aug., 1943; Teheran, Nov.-Dec., 1943; Cairo, Dec., 1943; Yalta, Feb., 1945. He died at Warm Springs, Ga., April 12, 1945, aged 63, and was buried on his Hyde Park estate, where his house and library are in the care of the national government.

Harry S. Truman

Harry S. Truman, 33rd president, Democrat, was born at Lamar, Mo., May 8, 1884, the son of John Anderson Truman and Martha Ellen Young. Four grandparents were born in Kentucky and moved to Missouri in the 1840s. The Trumans came from England and the President's mother's grandmother from Northern Ireland, while an ancestor of his maternal grandfather, Solomon Young, came from Germany. A family disagreement on whether Harry Truman's middle name was Shippe or Solomon, after names of two grandfathers, resulted in his using only S. for his middle initial. He is a Baptist.

He attended public schools in Independence, Mo., worked for the Kansas City Star, 1901, and as railroad timekeeper and helper in Kansas City banks up to 1905. He joined the Missouri National Guard, 1905, and was rejected by West Point for defective eyesight. He ran his family's farm, 1906-17. He entered the Field Artillery school at Fort Sill, Okla., 1917; became 1st lieutenant, Battery F and captain, Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, 35th Div., A. E. F. He served in the Vosges, Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel actions and was discharged as major, 1919. He is a colonel in the Field Artillery Reserve. After the war he ran a haberdashery, became judge of Jackson Co. Court, 1922-24; attended Kansas City School of Law, 1923-25. He was defeated, then elected presiding judge.

Truman was chosen senator Nov. 6, 1934; reelected Nov. 5, 1940. In 1944 President Roosevelt suggested Wm. O. Douglas or Truman for vice president, the latter being chosen. On Roosevelt's death, Apr. 12, 1945, Truman was sworn in as President by Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone in the cabinet room of the White House. In 1948 he was reelected in the face of polls predicting his defeat; his personal energy overcame pessimism in Democratic ranks and lethargy among Republicans, and he defeated as well dissenting Democrats of the States Rights party.

Truman supported the Marshall Plan, ECA, the rehabilitation of Greece and arming of Turkey, and NATO, naming Gen. of the Army Eisenhower to the supreme command in Europe. He endorsed mutual hemisphere defense; devised Point 4 to help underdeveloped countries economically. He opened the United Nations conference by radio and participated with Stalin and Attlee in the Potsdam Agreement. He authorized the first use of an atomic bomb (Hiroshima, Aug. 6; Nagasaki, Aug. 9, 1945). He supported a policy of compromise between Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Communists. When the Communists attacked in Korea, June, 1950, he ordered support of the Republic, and when the U.N. called for armed aid he directed Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur to give it. He held the Army to limited objectives and ordered the Navy to keep Formosa from attacking the mainland. He removed MacArthur from his Far Eastern commands for publicly opposing this policy. He appointed John Foster Dulles, a Republican, to negotiate the treaty of peace with Japan and treaties of defense with Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines.

Truman established the Office of Defense Mobilization in 1950, approved high taxes to meet rearmament expense, instituted controls of materials and prices. He advocated higher wages when the cost of living index rose and won a higher minimum wage, increased social security and aid for housing. He vainly demanded civil rights legislation and repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. In 1952 he ordered seizure of steel companies, which had refused demands of CIO and WSB, and when overruled by the U. S. Supreme Court refused to use the Taft-Hartley law. He derided loyalty hearings and the Kefauver report on RFC extravagance and refused to remove members of his staff accused of sharp practices. He rebuilt the White House. Just before leaving office he issued an executive order creating a Naval reserve out of tidelands. In the campaign of 1952 President Truman travelled 18,000 miles in a special train making 211 speeches. He retired to Independence, Mo., with an office in Kansas City, Mo., and wrote his memoirs, of which Vol. I, Year of Decision, was out late in 1955 and Vol. II was to appear in 1956.

On May 8, 1955, Truman's 71st birthday, he broke ground for the Truman Memorial Library at Independence, Mo., to cost $1,750,000 and contain his official papers.

MRS. HARRY S. TRUMAN

Mrs. Elizabeth Virginia Truman was born Feb. 13, 1885, in Independence, Mo., the eldest of four children and the only daughter of David Wilcox Wallace. She and Mr. Truman attended the same grade and high schools in Independence, both being graduated in 1901. She attended Barstow, a girls' preparatory school in Kansas City, Mo., for a year. She and Mr. Truman were married June 28, 1919, soon after he returned from overseas. They have one daughter, Margaret, born 1924, a concert singer. Mrs. Truman and her daughter are Episcopals.

Dwight David Eisenhower

Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th president, Republican, was born Oct. 14, 1890, at Denison, Tex., the son of David Jacob Eisenhower and Ida Elizabeth Stover Eisenhower. His paternal grandfather descended from German Mennonites who left the Rhineland for Pennsylvania in the 1730s, moved to Kansas in 1878. His father met his mother at Lane University, a United Brethren college at Leocompton, Kan. When Dwight was 1 year old his parents moved to Abilene, Kan., where his father worked as a mechanic in a creamery. Dwight had 6 brothers, of whom 4 are living. He was graduated from Abilene high school and went to U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1911. In his class of 1915 were the later Generals Omar N. Bradley, Jas. Van Fleet, Jos. T. McNarney and Geo. Stratemeyer.

Eisenhower began his military career as 2nd lieutenant, 19th U. S. Infantry, at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He was a lieutenant colonel in charge of a tank corps at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa., in 1918. He was graduated from Infantry Tank School, 1922; Command and General Staff Sch., 1926; Army War College, 1928; Army Industrial College, 1933. He was asst. executive officer of the Asst. Secy of War, 1929-1933, and in the office of the Chief of Staff, 1933-35. He was on the American Military Mission to the Philippines, 1935-39 and during 4 of those years a major general on the staff of Gen. MacArthur. He was chief of staff, 3rd Div., later 9th Corps, 1940-41, and of the 3rd Army, 1941. After the Louisiana war maneuvers he was made chief of the War Plans Div., War Dept. General Staff, and then became asst. chief of staff, Operations Div. and held the rank of lieutenant general. He was made Commander of Allied forces landing in North Africa Nov. 8, 1942, and advanced to full general in Feb., 1943, and Commander in Chief of Allied Forces in North Africa. He became Supreme Commander, Allied Expeditionary Forces Dec. 31, 1943, and as such led the Normandy invasion June 6, 1944. He was given the temporary rank of General of the Army Dec. 19, 1944, which was made permanent in 1946. On May 7, 1945, he received the surrender of the Germans at Rheims. He was in command of the U. S. Occupation Force in Germany in 1945, and returned to serve as Chief of Staff, Nov. 19, 1945, to Feb. 7, 1948. From June 7, 1948, to Jan. 19, 1953, he was president of Columbia Univ., but he took leave of absence Dec. 16, 1950, to serve as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe to organize the forces of NATO.

Eisenhower resigned from the Army in June, 1952. He was nominated at the Republican convention in Chicago, July 11, 1952, by 845 votes out of 1,206. On Nov. 4 he was elected over Adlai E. Stevenson, governor of Illinois, by 442 to 89 electoral votes and 33,936,252 to 27,314,992 popular votes. He was inaugurated Jan. 20, 1953. Avoiding conservative and liberal extremes, he favored reduced Government spending, lower taxes, less Federal competition with private industry, continued foreign aid. After election he joined the Presbyterian Church. His favorite sport is golf. He owns a 189-acre farm near Gettysburg, Pa. Reference: Crusade in Europe, by Dwight D. Eisenhower; The Great American Heritage—the Story of the Five Eisenhower Brothers, ed. by Bela Kornitzer.

MRS. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower was born Mamie Geneva Doud in Boone, Ia., Nov. 14, 1896. Her home was in Denver when Eisenhower, then a 1st lieutenant of infantry at Fort Sam Houston, met her. They were married July 1, 1916. Their first son, Dwight Doud, died in infancy; their second is John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower, graduate of West Point and a major in the 3rd Infantry Div., on duty in Korea. John is married to Barbara Jean Thompson, and they have three children: Dwight David Eisenhower, II, Barbara Ann and Susan.

Presidents of the United States

Presidents are counted once when terms are consecutive. Cleveland, elected in 1884, defeated in 1888, elected in 1892, is 22nd and 24th president.

Vice Presidents of the United States

The numerals given vice presidents do not coincide with those given presidents, because some presidents had two different vice presidents. Thus, while Lincoln was the 16th president, Hannibal Hamlin, who was elected with him for his first term, was only the 15th vice president.

Presidents of the Continental Congress

WHO WAS THE FIRST PRESIDENT?

On Sept. 5, 1774, delegates from twelve states (Georgia was not then represented) met in Philadelphia and organized what has since been commonly called the Continental Congress. The members were Delegates, and the voting on all questions was by States (Colonies), each State having one vote. The Delegate in charge was styled President of the Congress.

The Continental Congress was in session, at various times and places, until March 2, 1789. One of its important acts was the drawing up, and adoption on July 4, 1776, of the Declaration of Independence, which was signed by "The Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled."

Between Nov. 15, 1777, and July 9, 1778, the Continental Congress adopted "Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union between the States."

These Articles gave to the Thirteen Colonies the name "The United States of America," but this designated a group of states acting together, not a nation. The Articles are sometimes called the First Constitution. They remained in force until the Constitution of the United States went into effect, Mar. 4, 1789.

George Washington was the first President of the United States under the Constitution. Others for whom the claim has been made were merely presiding officers of the Continental Congress.

The Articles of Confederation, though adopted by the Continental Congress in 1778, were not ratified by all of the States until March 1, 1781. Maryland being the last to assent. The Articles designated Congress as "the United States in Congress Assembled." Presidents of the sessions of the Continental Congress were:

Oath of the President; Judicial and Executive Officers

The Constitution directs that the President shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States." (Custom decrees the use of the words "So help me God" at the end of the oath when taken by the President-elect, his left hand on the Bible for the duration of the oath, with his right hand slightly raised.)

Federal judges and justices take the following oath or affirmation before performing the duties of office: "I, ———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent upon me as ——— according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeably to the Constitution and laws of the United States. So help me God."

CABINETS OF THE UNITED STATES

Secretaries of State

The Department of Foreign Affairs was created by Act of Congress July 27, 1789, and the name changed to Department of State on Sept. 15. Thomas Jefferson, the Minister to France, was appointed Secretary of State by President Washington Sept. 26, and took office March 21, 1790. John Jay, who had held the office of Secretary for Foreign Affairs since his appointment by the Ninth Continental Congress in March 1784, in place of Robert R. Livingston (appointed Jan. 1781), left it in September, 1789, when the U. S. Supreme Court was established with him as Chief Justice.

The Secretary of State is charged, under the direction of the President, with the duties appertaining to correspondence with the public ministers and the consuls of the United States and with the representatives of foreign powers accredited to the United States, and to negotiations of whatever character relating to the foreign affairs of the United States.

STATES OF THE UNION

Their Topography, History, Industries, Farm Products, Principal Cities, Railways, Airlines, Tourist Attractions

Statistical tables, elsewhere in The ALMANAC, cover by states, details of population, births and deaths, religion, agriculture, mining, manufacture, banking, finance, and other phases of activity.

Area of the states is that reported, 1955, by the Geography Division, Bureau of the Census; agricultural figures based on reports of the Dept. of Agriculture and state agencies.

Alabama

Cotton State, Yellowhammer State

CAPITAL: Montgomery. AREA: 51,609 sq. mi., rank, 28th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950) 3,061,743, rank, 17th. MOTTO: We Dare Defend Our Rights. FLOWER: Goldenrod. BIRD: Yellowhammer. TREE: Pine. ADMISSION: 22nd.

Alabama lies in the cotton belt of the Old South, bounded N. by Tennessee, E. by Georgia, W. by Mississippi, S.-E. by Florida, S. by Gulf of Mexico. In N., Tennessee river runs through Cumberland plateau and provides motive power at Muscle Shoals, a 37-mile stretch with fall of 134 ft., part of Tennessee Valley Authority. The Coosa valley lies to S., hemmed in by Piedmont plateau. Then follows the coastal alluvial plain. Coal underlies about 7,000 sq. mi. near northern Appalachian region.

Principal river in the Alabama, formed by junction of Coosa and Tallapoosa above Montgomery, joined by Tombigbee above Mobile and losing some waters to the Tensaw before entering Gulf. Mobile Bay is 30 mi. long, 8 mi. wide and Mobile is only seaport. Cheaha mountain, a state park, 5 mi. north of Oxford, is the highest point, 2,407 ft. Gulf State Park, in Baldwin county and Clear Creek falls, Winston county, are attractions. Also, 17 state parks, 4 historic sites, 8 state forests and 175 other forest tracts.

Alabama annually produces more than 500,000 bales of cotton lint. It has tobacco, sweet potatoes, sugar cane, peanuts, corn, oats, watermelon, beef cattle, hogs and dairy products. Florence, in the north, is a cotton center. Tusculum has a museum in the birthplace of Helen Keller.

Alabama has 26 institutions of higher learning, including Tuskegee Institute, Booker T. Washington's Negro school.

Alabama, first explored by De Narvaez, Spanish, 1528, is rich in historical markers and sites. Andrew Jackson defeated the Creek Indians at Talladega and Horseshoe Bend. The Confederate States were organized at Montgomery, Feb. 4, 1861, and Jefferson Davis took oath as president at State Capitol there Feb. 18. Davis' "first White House" is now a museum. The naval foundry at Selma, which served the Confederacy, is also commemorated.

Mobile, colonized by French 1699, ceded by Spain 1799 but not turned over till 1813, clears over 7,000,000 tons of shipping annually. Its carnival dates from 1704. Azalea Trail (February-March) and tarpon fishing are tourist attractions. It is terminal for Southern, Louisville & Nashville, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, Alabama, Tennessee & Northern railroads.

Birmingham, incorp. 1871, called "Pittsburgh of the South," started its industrial rise with DeBardeleben Coal & Iron Co., 1886; now has Ensley plant of Tennessee Coal, Iron and Ry. Co.; Woodward Iron Co., Sloss-Sheffield, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe Co. at Bessemer. Non-existent in 1861, it had only 38,000 people in 1900, but by 1930, 250,000, and 326,037 in 1950. It is served by 8 trunk line railroads and major airlines.

Arizona

Grand Canyon State

CAPITAL: Phoenix. AREA: 113,909 sq. mi., rank, 5th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950) 749,587, rank, 37th. MOTTO: Ditat Deus, God Enriches. FLOWER: Giant Cactus or Saguaro. BIRD: Cactus Wren. TREE: Palo Verde. ADMISSION: 48th.

Arizona, youngest state, was from 1863 to 1912 a territory formed out of the Territory of New Mexico, ceded 1848 by Mexico, with Gadsden Purchase added 1853. It is bounded E. by New Mexico, N. by Utah, W. by Nevada and California, S. by Mexico. Climate is very dry, in parts arid. It has average annual sunshine of 80%, rich mineral workings, rodeos, Hopi, Navajo and Yaqui ceremonialism. Phoenix, Tucson, Yuma and others attract many tourists.

It is noted for the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, an immense, vari-colored fissure 217 mi. long, 4 to 18 mi. wide at brim, 4,000 to 5,500 ft. deep, "the most sublime spectacle in the world." This is reached by Santa Fe Ry. to Grand Canyon, Ariz., Union Pacific to Cedar City, Utah. The state also has one of man's greatest water barriers, Hoover Dam (formerly Boulder) in Black Canyon of the Colorado, 726 ft. high, 660 ft. wide at base, 1,244 ft. long at top, creating Lake Mead, 115 mi. long. Vast reclamation projects built Roosevelt dam on Salt river (1911), Coolidge Dam on Gila (1929), Bartlett Dam on Verde (1939), Davis Dam (1951) on the Colorado.

Wellton canal, 21 mi., and Mohawk canal, 43 mi., carry water from Imperial dam of the Colorado to irrigate 75,000 acres near Yuma.

Nature has given Arizona the Painted Desert, extending for 30 mi. along U. S. 66; the Petrified Forest; Canyon Diablo, 225 ft. deep, 500 ft. wide, and Meteor Crater, 1 mi. wide, made by prehistoric meteor, also on U. S. 66. Highest mountain is Humphrey's Peak, 12,611 ft.

Biggest industry is agriculture, followed by mining and smelting copper. Gold, silver, lead, zinc, barite, molybdenum, vanadium, tungsten, manganese, uranium ore are found. Phelps Dodge Corp. operates largest open-pit mines: Bisbee (owns 12,750 acres); Morenci (9,290 acres); New Cornelia, Ajo, Magma (Superior). Inspiration and Consolidated and Miami (both in Miami) are large producers. The Arizona Gas & Chemical Corp. well near Navajo is the largest known source of helium, producing 80,000,000 cu. ft. of gas daily, 8.09% helium. Smelters produce electrolytic copper at Douglas and Miami.

Alfalfa, in some parts, yields 5 to 8 crops with aid of irrigation. Citrus fruits, dates, truck crops, cotton, wheat, cattle and sheep are raised, half of the latter by Navajos. By adapting old Spanish mission construction Arizona has developed a distinctive building style.

Arkansas

Wonder State

CAPITAL: Little Rock. AREA: 53,104 sq. mi., rank, 26th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950) 1,909,511, rank, 30th. MOTTO: Regnat Populus. Let the People Rule. FLOWER: Apple Blossom. BIRD: Mocking Bird. TREE: Pine. ADMISSION: 25th.

Arkansas, part of the Old South west of the Mississippi, an important cotton producing state, has large oil production, valuable thermal springs and is favored by sportsmen. Bounded N. by Missouri, W. by Texas and Oklahoma, S. by Louisiana, E. by Mississippi river with Tennessee and Mississippi opposite. It has Gulf coastal plain and Ozark National Forests preserve their beauty.

The state is drained by the Arkansas, St. Francis, White, Black, Ouachita, Little Missouri, Saline and Red River, which crosses south west corner. It has 20,052,926 acres of oak, hickory, gum, cypress and pine, the latter supplying paper mills. The state raises cotton, corn, soybeans, rice, spinach and alfalfa; apples, including the popular Delicious; peaches and grapes. Cottonseed oil and grape juice are profitable products. Arkansas produced 1,347,344 bales of cotton in 1954 (4th in the nation).

Natural gas was uncovered in 1888; oil in 1901; large refineries are located around El Dorado. Minerals have annual production value of approximately $125,000,000, two thirds in petroleum, natural gas and coal. The state supplies 98% of the nation's domestic bauxite ore and has the only diamonds mined in North America.

Arkansas has 24 institutions of higher learning—13 colleges and universities, one professional school, two teachers' colleges and a number of junior colleges.

Fresh-water fishing, duck-hunting in southeast lowlands, and recreations in seven state-maintained park areas invite visitors. Reservoir areas at Norfolk, Bull Shoals in the Ozarks, and at Nimrod, Ouachita, the Narrows and Blue Mountain in the Ouachitas are accessible. There are 47 hot springs in government-owned and operated Hot Springs National Park, near the city of Hot Springs, about 50 miles southwest of Little Rock. Spring water ranges from 95° to 147° F. and is piped in insulated conduits for baths and drinking.

Little Rock is served by the Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and St. Louis Southwestern railroads; also American, Braniff, Delta C.&S., and Trans-Texas air lines. Hot Springs is reached by Missouri Pacific and Rock Island railroads and Delta-C.&S. and Trans-Texas.

California

Golden State

CAPITAL: Sacramento. AREA: 158,693 sq. mi., rank, 2nd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 10,586,223, rank, 2nd. MOTTO: Eureka. I Have Found It. FLOWER: Golden Poppy. BIRD: Valley Quail. TREE: Redwood. ADMISSION: 31st.

California, largest of the Pacific states and second largest in the Union, in 1950 reported a 53.3% rise in population over the 1940 census. It increased 86.5% between 1930 and 1950 compared with a national growth of 22.7%. In January, 1955, the Bureau of the Census estimated that California had the largest increase of any single state between Apr. 1, 1950 and July 1, 1954, a total of 1,968,000, making the population 12,554,000, a gain of 18.6%.

It is bounded N. by Oregon; E. by Nevada and Arizona, with Colorado river along Arizona border; S. by Mexico, and 1,200 mi. of Pacific ocean on W. Greatest length, 780 mi.; width varies, 150 to 350 mi. Its extraordinary topography includes Sierra Nevada Mts., E. and S., parallel with Coast Range, with Great Valley between and luxuriant fruit-raising Imperial Valley to S.; Cascade Range and Klamath Mts. to N. Highest peak, Mt. Whitney, 14,495 ft., in S.; Mt. Shasta, 14,162 ft., N. of Sacramento Valley. Mt. Lassen, 10,435 ft., only active volcano in U. S., is 85 mi. from Shasta. There are 41 peaks over 10,000 ft. Death Valley, S.E., has lowest point in U. S., 282 ft. below sea level. Highest lake in U. S. is Tulainyo, 12,865 ft.

Principal river, Sacramento, runs from Mt. Shasta, meets San Joaquin, reaches sea in San Francisco Bay area. Most favored regions scenically are Yosemite Valley (Mariposa big trees); Lassen and Sequoia-Kings Canyon national parks; Lake Tahoe (on Nevada border), Sequoia redwoods (State park); Mojave and Colorado desert areas, San Francisco Bay, Monterey peninsula.

The climate of California varies according to distance from the ocean and altitude; mean temp. at San Francisco is 56°, summer mean 60°, winter 51°. Central Valley mean is 64°; may reach 110°.

Central Valley benefits from a vast irrigation system, The Tracy pumping plant lifts 2,000,000 gals. of water a minute up 200 ft. into the Delta-Mendota canal, which runs down the west side of San Joaquin valley to a pool at Mendota. Mt. Shasta dam holds 4,000,000 acre-feet of water.

California produces more citrus fruit and fresh vegetables than any other state. It is first in production of grapes, peaches, pears, apricots, olives, figs, lemons, avocados, walnuts, almonds, lettuce and melons; second in oranges. It leads in production of canned, dried and frozen fruits and vegetables, fish, and wine. In 1954 it was first in production of barley (69,898,000 bu.); 3rd in cotton (1,450,000 bales). On Jan. 1, 1955, the state had 1,769,000 sheep (3rd in nation), and 3,583,000 cattle, including 909,000 for milk.

Oil is the biggest mineral industry. Natural gas is also produced. The state is third in gold production, cause of its first great Gold Rush, started at Sutter's sawmill on American river by James Marshall, Jan. 24, 1848. Also produces silver, copper, lead, borax, quicksilver, tungsten, magnesite.

Manufacturing is the state's major industry, with a value added in 1953 of $8,192,972,000, 105% above the 1947 census level of $3,995,000,000. Transportation equipment, including aircraft, autos and ships is first in rank, followed by food products, fabricated metal products, machinery, chemical, lumber and petroleum products; primary metals, electrical equipment. Factory employment averaged 1,039,000 in 1954, 2.3% lower than in 1953. Motion pictures, television and radio are important service industries.

The 100-odd colleges and universities include major institutions such as Univ. of California, Stanford, Univ. of Southern California, California Institute of Technology.

The 13 national forests comprise one-fifth of the state. There are 53 state parks, 32 state-owned beaches, 19 historical monuments, 547,000 acres. Santa Catalina Island, 75 sq. mi., attracts tourists. The Tournament of Roses and the Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena are held annually. Jan. 1. Skiing and winter sports are featured in the N. Of historic interest are the restored Old Spanish Missions, built 1768-1823 from San Diego to Sonoma.

California, named by Cortez, 1535, was Alta (Upper) California under Spain. Mexico took over, 1822, ceded it 1848. California Republic (Bear Flag) at Sonoma, June 14, 1846, supported by Capt. John C. Fremont, U. S. A. Commander John D. Sloat raised U. S. flag at Monterey July 7, 1846. State admitted, Sept. 9, 1850.

Colorado

Centennial State

CAPITAL: Denver. AREA: 104,247 sq. mi., rank, 7th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 1,325,089, rank, 34th. MOTTO: Nil Sine Numine, Nothing Without God. FLOWER: Columbine. BIRD: Lark Bunting. TREE: Colorado Blue Spruce. ADMISSION: 38th.

Colorado, a Mountain state, is situated near the center of the western half of the U. S., bounded N. by Nebraska and Wyoming; E. by Kansas and Nebraska; S. by New Mexico and part of the Oklahoma panhandle; W. by Utah. It was part of the Louisiana Purchase and land ceded by Texas and Mexico.

A land of natural wonders, it has the western end of the Great Plains at the E., and the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains starting W. of center, with the Continental Divide sending waters E. to the Mississippi and W. to the Pacific. Immense mountain ranges, plateaus and peaks rise in W. with 52 peaks over 14,000 ft., and 1,500 over 10,000. Pike's Peak (14,109 ft.) was found by Lt. Zebulon M. Pike, 1806. Highest is Mt. Elbert, 14,431. Other peaks are Massive, 14,418; La Plata, 14,340; Blanca, 14,310; Uncompahgre, 14,301; Gray, 14,274; Torrey, 14,264; Evans, 14,260; Longs, 14,255. "Collegiate Peaks" in the Sawatch range are Princeton, 14,177; Yale, 14,172, and Harvard, 14,399. A spectacular wonder is Mt. of the Holy Cross, 13,986 ft., with a cross outlined in snow.

The Rio Grande and South Platte rise in Colorado and flow E. and S.E.; the Colorado, with the Gunnison its principal tributary, flows S.W.; the Arkansas S.E. into the Mississippi. The western rivers have cut great canyons; the Black Canyon of the Gunnison and the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas, 1,000 to 1,500 ft. deep. The highest suspension bridge in the world crosses the Arkansas 1,052 ft. above the river, its main span 880 ft. long; total exclusive of approaches, 1,260 ft. Estimated population, Jan. 1955, was 1,450,000.

Colorado owes its prosperity to its unparalleled supply of minerals and livestock. Miners and stockmen made Denver a metropolis, Queen City of the West. It serves the beet sugar industry. Colorado's principal railroads meet there—Santa Fe, Rock Island, Burlington, Union Pacific. Denver & Rio Grande Western, Colo. & Southern. Its airport receives transcontinental and regional air traffic.

Mining activities have produced billions of dollars of wealth (over 250 metallic and non-metallic minerals) and continue as a leading industry. Gold was found on the Platte, 1858, and "Pike's Peak or Bust" was the slogan of 1859 gold rush. Gold was found at Leadville at the headwaters of the Arkansas, 1860, silver and lead later; today zinc is the chief product. Climax, near Leadville, produces 72% of the world's molybdenum. The area has a reserve of 100,000,000 tons. Colorado has immense deposits of coal, ranging from sub-bituminous to true anthracite. In W. are vast oil shale deposits containing an estimated 300 billion bbls. Pueblo, "Steel City of the West," is the home of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp. and other important industries. State now ranks 9th in oil production. Western section, part of Colorado Plateau, has large uranium deposits which are among the richest in the world.

Cattle and sheep raising are extensive. Hay, wheat, corn, barley, oats, sugar beets, potatoes, peaches, apples and pears, are produced. Over 3,000,000 acres of irrigated farm land are highly productive.

Colorado has 6 state colleges and universities, with specialization in mines and metallurgy, 7 junior colleges and 7 private colleges.

The projected U. S. Air Force Academy will occupy 17,500 acres seven mi. north of Colorado Springs. Modern buildings of metal, stone and glass will be constructed, with educational and housing facilities for 2,496 men.

Tourist meccas include Rocky Mountain National Park, Garden of the Gods and Pike's Peak, Great Sand Dunes National Monument, Mesa Verde National Park (pre-historic cliff dwellings), Colorado National Monument and the hot mineral springs areas. The nation's two highest auto highways ascend to top of Pike's Peak and Mt. Evans. Eleven national forests have 13,715,332 ac. Colorado Springs, famous resort, and its suburb Broadmoor, lie near Pike's Peak, Garden of the Gods, Seven Falls. The home for veteran union printers (ITU) is located here. The Manitou & Pike's Peak Ry., about 9 mi. long, is a cog road to the summit of Pike's Peak.

Big game include deer, antelope, bear, elk, mountain lion, gray wolf, coyote. There are thousands of miles of trout streams and 2,000 fishing lakes.

Annual summer festivals in Central City and Aspen bring opera, theater and humanistic conferences to the old mining towns. The Denver Red Rocks open air theater seats 15,000. Rodeos are staged annually for tourists. Colorado State Fair is held in Pueblo last week in August. Skiing is a major winter sport.

Connecticut

Constitution State, Nutmeg State

CAPITAL: Hartford. AREA: 5,009 sq. mi., rank, 46th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,007,280, rank, 28th. MOTTO: Qui Transtulit Sustinet. He who Transplanted, Sustains. FLOWER: Mountain Laurel. BIRD: American Robin. TREE: White Oak. Fifth of the Original 13 States.

Connecticut, southernmost of the New England states, is bounded E. by Rhode Island, N. by Massachusetts, W. by New York, S. by Long Island Sound. Its broad central valley is drained by the Connecticut river, eastern plain and hills by the Thames system; the Housatonic flows from the foothills of the Berkshires in the northwest. Hills have hardwood timber, pines, camps, ski trails; there are 47 state parks of 16,663 acres, 26 state forests of 122,841 acres, over 1,000 lakes, many trout streams.

Adriaen Block, Dutch, explored the Connecticut, 1614. English from Massachusetts settled in 1630s. First practical constitution was the Fundamental Orders, adopted by Wethersfield, Windward and Hartford, 1638; gave superior powers to legislature. The royal charter of 1662 was exceptionally liberal; when Gov. Edmund Andros tried to seize it, 1687, it was hidden in the Hartford oak, commemorated in Charter Oak Place.

Free public schools estab. New Haven, 1642, Hartford, 1643. Compulsory education in elementary and Latin grammar schools estab. 1650. Education is crowned by Yale Univ., 1701, named for Elihu Yale, philanthropist, 1718. Trinity (Hartford) and Wesleyan (Middletown) have high standing. Famous preparatory schools are Taft (Watertown), Choate (Wallingford), Hotchkiss (Lakeville), Kent (Kent). U. S. Coast Guard Academy is at New London.

Poultry and dairy products give chief farm income; Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein and other dairy cattle are bred. Plains produce tobacco, potatoes, fruit and truck; shade-grown tobacco brings rich returns. Industry claims half of the employed population, the principal products in order of employment being aircraft engines, brass and copper products, ball bearings, builders hardware and typewriters. Fire arms, made since the American Revolution, come from Colt (Hartford), High Standard (New Haven), Winchester and Marlin (New Haven), ammunition from Remington Arms (Bridgeport). Eli Whitney's principle of interchangeable parts first applied here. Huge typewriter output comes from Royal Typewriter and Underwood Corp. (Hartford). Other well-known products: Brass articles by American (Ansonia and Waterbury), Scovill (Waterbury), Bridgeport Brass, Chase Brass & Copper Co. (Waterbury); Singer sewing machines for factory use (Bridgeport); helicopters by Sikorsky (Bridgeport); jet and other airplane engines by Pratt & Whitney (East Hartford); clocks by U. S. Time Corp. and Lux Clock (Waterbury); New Haven

Clock Co. (New Haven); Ingraham, Sessions (Bristol); Waterbury, Ingersoll (Waterbury); Seth Thomas (Thomaston).

The home offices of 61 large insurance companies are in the state. The main office of the New Haven railroad is in New Haven.

Construction is under way on the Connecticut Turnpike, to cost upward of $346,000,000, running 129 mi. from Greenwich to Killingly near the Rhode Island line and forming State's portion of the New England Thruway. Completion is expected late in 1958.

Delaware

First State, Diamond State.

CAPITAL: Dover. AREA: 2,057 sq. mi., rank, 47th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 318,085, rank, 46th. MOTTO: Liberty and Independence. FLOWER: Peach Blossom. BIRD: Blue Hen Chicken. TREE: American Holly. First of Original 13 States.

Delaware, next to Rhode Island the smallest state, is in the Middle Atlantic group, bounded N. by Pennsylvania; E. by New Jersey, Delaware Bay and Atlantic Ocean; S. by Maryland; W. by Maryland and Pennsylvania. It is partly sandy and wooded. Land becomes hilly in the Northwest with highest elevation 438 ft. Length, 96 mi., width 9 mi. to 35 mi.

The Delaware river drains the state and at Wilmington receives the Christina, augmented by the Brandywine. First seen by Henry Hudson, 1609, it was known to the Dutch as South river, whereas the Hudson was called North river. The Delaware is connected with Chesapeake Bay by a sea-level canal at Delaware City.

Capt. Samuel Argall called the present Cape Henlopen Cape de la Warre for the governor of Virginia, Lord de la Warre, who never saw it; the name was inherited by the state. First temporary settlement was by Dutch at Zwaanendael (Lewes) 1631, massacred 1632. Swedes under Minuit established New Sweden with Fort Christina at present Wilmington, 1638. They surrendered to the Dutch, 1655, who surrendered to the British, 1664, regained the land, 1673, lost it by treaty to the British, 1674. William Penn became proprietor, 1682. From 1704 the Delaware counties had a separate Assembly which met at New Castle, formerly called New Amstel.

Delaware has a large fishing fleet; menhaden, herring and rock are abundant; oysters, clams, crabs and lobsters are taken from the Bay. Fruit, produce, wheat and corn are raised; packing plants are located at Dover, Milford, Middletown and Smyrna. The broiler chicken industry produces the major agricultural income.

Wilmington contains over half of the state's population in its environs. In 1730-36 town lots were surveyed above old Fort Christina and named Wilmington after Thos. Willing; in 1738 it was changed to Wilmington. It is served by the Pennsylvania, Reading, and B. & O., and has a large Marine Terminal. Old Swedes Church, erected by Swedish Lutherans, 1698, now Prot. Episcopal, is thought to be oldest Protestant Church in continuous use. It is the world's center for manufacture of vulcanized fiber, glazed kid and morocco leathers, has the largest braided hose plant, largest single cotton dyeing and finishing works. Ship and auto building is active.

Delaware was the first state to ratify the United States Constitution (Dec. 7, 1787).

Wilmington is headquarters of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., one of America's greatest corporations, which maintains its executive departments and a number of its research laboratories here. Organized in 1802, with $36,000 capital for making gunpowder, it represented in 1954 an investment of $1,996,000,000, excluding an investment in General Motors, with sales of $1,687,600,000 and a profit of $252,000,000. In 1949 it split its shares four for one and now has 45,604,345 common outstanding. At the end of 1954 it had 149,414 stockholders and 84,494 employees, excluding those in government-owned plants. Seaford, Del., was its original nylon plant; it also has plants in Edge Moor and Newport, Del. A large office building, housing engineering personnel, and two research laboratories, are located near Newark, Del. Most of the other plants and laboratories are in New Jersey, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Michigan, Tennessee and Texas, a total of 72 in 26 states. The firm now produces some 1,200 products, including synthetic ammonia, alcohols and related products, cellophane, polyester film, dyes and other organic chemicals, neoprene synthetic rubber, tetraethyl lead, fluorine compounds, synthetic textile fibers, plastics, coated fabrics, photographic film, explosives, paints, lacquers and enamels, agricultural and industrial chemicals, pigments, titanium metal, and chlorinated hydrocarbon compounds for dry cleaning and metal de-greasing.

Florida

Sunshine State

Capital: Tallahassee. AREA: 58,560 sq. mi., rank, 21st. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,771,305, rank 20th. MOTTO: In God We Trust. FLOWER: Orange Blossom. BIRD: Mocking Bird. TREE: Sabal Palm. ADMISSION: 27th.

Florida, a South Atlantic State, discovered, 1513, by Ponce de Leon, is the farthest southeast of the U. S. Bounded N. by Georgia and Alabama, E. by Atlantic Ocean, S. by Straits of Florida, W. by Alabama and Gulf of Mexico, it is 500 mi. long, has a shore line of 3,751 mi., including the Ten Thousand Islands, based on mangrove growths in western section.

A major producer of citrus fruits and ideal vacation land, Florida has a population largely southern in the North whereas Miami, Palm Beach, and other coast resorts attract thousands of northerners. Within 30 years Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables, Hialeah, and others, constituting metropolitan Miami, have risen from 42,000 to over 495,484 pop., with a concentration of luxury hotels, elegant shops, fine houses and gardens.

Famed as resort cities because of the sub-tropical winter climate are St. Augustine, oldest city in U. S., founded 1565; Ormond Beach, Daytona Beach, Jacksonville, Pensacola, Key West, St. Petersburg, Sarasota, Tampa and Orlando. The uniform elevation of the state—the highest point is 345 ft.—has helped construction of thousands of miles of fine roads, including Miami-Key West highway, 170 mi., 20 ft. wide, with the longest causeway over ocean water to Key West, on the former right of way of the Florida East Coast Ry.; also Tamiami Trail, Miami to Tampa. Financing of $74,000,000 loan, June 7, 1955, heralded construction of 104 mi., Miami to Fort Pierce, of the projected Sunshine State Parkway, eventually to reach north of Jacksonville. Florida is reached by Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, Georgia, Southern & Fla., Louisville & Nashville, Southern railways, and several passenger steamship lines. Its principal cities are served by domestic air lines. Miami is served by 7 U. S. lines: Braniff, Guest, Delta-C. & S., Eastern, National, Pan American, Resort, and foreign lines.

Florida has a limestone base and coquina rock is found there. In the southern part is a vast swamp, the Everglades. Everglades National Park, 1,100,173 acres of land and water, was created in 1947. Phosphate rock for fertilizer is a major product. The greatest area is covered with long leaf and slash pine forests supplying turpentine, resin, pine oil, boxes and pulp.

One of the largest industries is citrus fruits which brings Florida an est. $200,000,000 annually. Fresh vegetables for winter markets are profitable. Cattle raising, mostly Brahma, is thriving, with 1,679,000 hd. reported in 1955. Sugar cane is raised in the Everglades region. Fishing is important; mullet, snapper, mackerel, shrimp, clams, turtles, crawfish, stone crabs, are sent north or processed. Sponges are fished near Tarpon Springs. Cigar-making flourishes at Tampa.

Florida has numerous lakes and springs and an annual rainfall of 53 in. and is subject to violent windstorms. It contains the second largest freshwater lake in the U. S., Lake Okechobee, 730 sq. mi., 35 by 32 mi., with a maximum depth of 14 ft. The Suwanee river flows through the northern part. There are 42 state parks, 85,000 acres; 4 state forests, 207,236 acres, 27 community forests, 2,972 acres. Castillo de San Marcos, Fort Matanzas and Fort Jefferson on Dry Tortugas, and DeSoto National Memorial at Bradenton are national monuments.

The state was acquired from Spain, 1819, ratified 1821; admitted to Union Mar. 3, 1845.

There are 23 institutions of higher learning, including Univ. of Florida (Gainesville); Univ. of Miami; Univ. of Tampa; Stetson Univ. (DeLand); Rollins College (Winter Park); Florida State University (Tallahassee); Florida Southern (Lakeland).

Georgia

Empire State of the South

CAPITAL: Atlanta. AREA: 58,876 sq. mi., rank, 20th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,444,578, rank, 13th. MOTTO: Wisdom, Justice, Moderation. FLOWER: Cherokee Rose. BIRD: Brown Thrasher. TREE: Live Oak. Fourth of the Original 13 States.

Georgia is in the South Atlantic group, bounded N. by Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina; E. by South Carolina and the Atlantic; S. by Florida; W. by Alabama. The N.E. is traversed by the Blue Ridge Appalachians, with Brasstown Bald, 4,784 ft., highest point in state. The N.W. has part of the Alleghenies, with High Point on Lookout range, 2,408 ft. alt. Stone Mtn. is a solid mass of granite near Atlanta, 1,686 ft. State is drained by the Savannah, Chatahoochee, Apalachicola, Coosa, St. Mary's, etc.; the Suwanee river rises in the Okefinokee swamp in the extreme Southeast.

In 1950, 198,191 farms totaled 25,751,055 acres; average, 129.9 acres. Cotton is the leading money crop (610,000 bales in 1954). Other principal crops: tobacco, peanuts, lupine, pecans, corn, oats, sweet potatoes, peaches, watermelons. On Jan. 1, 1955, hogs numbered 1,661,000; cattle, 1,439,000; mules, 140,000. The state is a leader in production of broilers and baby chicks. Large pine forests produce resin, turpentine and naval stores. Georgia is the largest producer of kaolin and china clay; also produces marble, barite, granite, limestone, cement, talc, bauxite, coal, iron, phosphate, manganese, mica, gold and precious stones.

Expansion of industry has been marked since 1942, particularly textiles, food processing, lumber products, printing and publishing, chemicals and apparel.

Atlanta, largest city, reported 331,314 pop., in 1950, and almost as many in its environs, with over 671,000 in its metropolitan district. Extension of city limits raised est. 1953 pop. to 458,350.

Georgia has 51 institutions of higher education—16 colleges and universities, including the University of Georgia in Athens (chartered in 1785, opened 1801).

The National Park Service maintains seven parks and there are 25 state parks with an area of 29,341 acres. Notable among them are the Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park, Chipley, on U. S. 27, 80 miles southwest of Atlanta near Warm Springs; Vogel State Park, at Blairsville, Jekyll Island, off Brunswick; and Veteran's, near Cordele.

Warm Springs is nationally known for the treatment of sufferers from infantile paralysis. It was here that Franklin D. Roosevelt overcame poliomyelitis.

Georgia was visited by DeSoto, 1540. It was a part of land granted to the lords proprietors of Carolina (1663 and 1665); became an independent colony under James Oglethorpe, 1732. Georgia ratified the Confederate constitution, Mar. 1861, was readmitted into the Union, July, 1870.

Idaho

Gem State

CAPITAL: Boise. AREA: 83,557 sq. mi., rank, 12th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 588,637, rank, 43rd. MOTTO: Esto Perpetua, Exist Forever. FLOWER: Syringa. BIRD: Mountain Bluebird. TREE: White Pine. ADMISSION: 43rd.

Idaho, a Rocky Mountain state, lies W. of the Rockies, bounded N. by Montana and British Columbia; E. by Montana and Wyoming; S. by Utah and Nevada; W. by Oregon and Washington. The Bitterroot Mountains and Continental Divide are between it and Montana; the Snake river is part of the Oregon line. The country was crossed by Lewis & Clark, 1805, exploited by fur companies; became part of Oregon Terr., 1848; Idaho Terr., 1863; state, 1890.

Full of timbered, rugged mountains and beautiful valleys, with extensive lava deposits in the Snake River area, Idaho is chiefly a farming, grazing, timber and mineral state. Mt. Borah in the Sawtooth Mts. is highest, 12,665 ft. The Snake river drains into the Columbia, runs through Hell's Canyon, which averages 5,510 ft. for over 40 mi., at one point 7,900 ft. deep, which exceeds the Grand Canyon, and 10 mi. from rim to rim at widest point. The Salmon (River of No Return) has many gorges and cascades. Coeur d'Alene is one of the finest lakes. The Snake is noted for several waterfalls—The Big Mesa, Idaho Falls, American, Twin Falls, Shoshone and Salmon.

Idaho's many irrigation dams impound more than 5,736,000 acre feet of water. Largest of these is American Falls Dam with a capacity of 1,700,000 acre feet.

Electricity for lights and pumps was produced by the Snake River "breeder reactor" near Arco, one of 4 atomic projects in Idaho, Dec. 29, 1951.

Gold was found near Orofino, 1860, and silver at Coeur d'Alene, 1884, started a stampede. Biggest products are, in order, lead, silver, gold, zinc, copper. Columbium-tantalum, thorium, ilmenite, magnetite, zircon and garnet are new products of Southwest Idaho. Westvaco Chemical (Pocatello) and Monsanto Chemical (Soda Springs) have large elemental phosphorus plants. Simplot (Pocatello) has a large super-phosphate fertilizer plant.

With 39% of its area in forests, Idaho produces much lumber, with the world's largest white pine lumber mill at Lewiston. Yellow pine, Douglas fir, white spruce, larch, hemlock abound; the Roosevelt Grove has cedars 1,000 years old; others are 3,000 years old. Of timber, 36% is in national forests, 21% state.

Idaho ranks high in wool production. At the beginning of 1955 it had 1,010,000 hd. of sheep and 1,328,000 cattle. It raises hay, barley, wheat, sugar beets and potatoes of unusual quality. Apples, lead orchard fruits; butter, cheese and condensed milk, field and garden seed are produced.

Hunting is greatly favored by sportsmen. There are wolf, lynx, moose, antelope, cougar, black or brown bear and grizzly bear, sometimes weighing 600 lbs.; 20,000 elk and 100,000 deer are normal numbers. Pheasants, grouse, duck and partridge abound; there is fine fishing and Lake Pend Oreille, with a 500-mile shoreline, is home of the world's largest trout, Kamloop rainbow.

Railways: Milwaukee, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Spokane International. Airlines: United, West Coast, and Western.

Illinois

Prairie State

CAPITAL: Springfield. AREA: 56,400 sq. mi., rank, 23rd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,712,176, rank, 4th. MOTTO: State Sovereignty, National Union. FLOWER: Violet. BIRD: Cardinal. TREE: Oak. SONG: Illinois. ADMISSION: 21st.

Illinois lies in the East North Central group, bounded N. by Wisconsin; E. by Indiana and Lake Michigan; S. by Kentucky and Missouri; W. by Missouri and Iowa. Lake Michigan touches the N.E. corner; the Ohio river flows on the S., the Mississippi on the W. border.

On July 1, 1953 estimated population was 9,003,000.

Illinois is almost uniformly level, the result of a glacial moraine, and the soil is alluvial. Forty-three crops are common to the state, led by corn, soybeans, wheat and oats. In 1954 Illinois led all states in soybean production (92,214,000 bu.); was second in corn (449,312,000 bu.), and raised much oats and rye. Beef and dairy cattle are important. On Jan. 1, 1955 it had 3,946,000 cattle, 550,000 sheep, and was second in hogs which numbered 6,778,000. The country's largest meat-packing industry at Chicago has the major plants of Armour, Swift, Wilson, as well as the largest stock yards. The primary grain exchange of the country is the Chicago Board of Trade.

The state ranks fourth in soft-coal output. Its industries include steel mills, foundries, machine shops, oil refineries, electrical machinery factories. It is a major producer of farm implements, railroad cars and equipment, and is a big publishing and printing center. The largest mail-order houses, Sears, Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Butler Bros. are in Chicago.

The state has 1,178 mi. of navigable waters. The Illinois river connects with the Chicago Drainage Canal to link the Lakes-to-Gulf Deep Waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi. The flow of the Chicago river is reversed to provide lake water for sanitary drainage of Chicago.

The state has 81 institutions of higher learning, including 69 colleges and universities, including Univ. of Illinois (Urbana-Champaign), Univ. of Chicago, and Northwestern (Evanston-Chicago). There are 63 State parks, memorials and conservation areas. The first-state tuberculosis sanitarium was built in 1951 in Mount Vernon.

Illinois State Fair, first held in 1853, draws an estimated 1,000,000 persons annually in August to one of world's largest agricultural expositions.

Illinois has many monuments and historic sites, including Lincoln's home and tomb in Springfield, the restored New Salem pioneer settlement, the ruins of Fort de Chartres, site of French military power. Joliet, Father Marquette, Tont, LaSalle, were 17th-century explorers there. It was part of the territory liberated by George Rogers Clark and ceded by the British to the U. S.; became Northwest Terr., Indiana Terr., and finally a state Dec. 3, 1818.

CHICAGO

Chicago is the second largest American city, with 3,620,962 (Census of 1950). About 6,000,000 live in its 6-county metropolitan area. This area produces 7.5% of the nation's manufactures, with about 14,000 establishments processing goods worth over $18.3 billion annually. Expenditures for industrial plants in the metropolitan area reached $231,683,000 in 1954, 60% over 1953. The area is one of the nation's leading steel producers.

Chicago is the country's greatest rail center, served by 41 railroads, of which 19 are trunk line roads. Trains arriving and departing average 1,770 daily, with 66,000 passengers from outside the city and 292,000 commuters. Waterborne traffic reaches 75,000,000 tons.

Two major airports and several smaller ones serve Chicago—Midway Airport and Chicago International Airport at O'Hare Field, 17 mi. N.W. of the Loop. Chicago is served by 12 major scheduled airlines: Air France, American, Braniff, British Overseas, Capital, Delta-C. & S. Eastern, Northwest, Pan American, TWA, United, Trans Canada; 3 feeder lines, 2 air freight lines and 1 helicopter service. Three major lines give international service, with immigration and custom inspection.

The Greyhound Bus terminal, with an average daily movement of 300 buses, is at Randolph. Clark and Lake Sts. Buses enter and leave two levels below street, using lower Wacker Drive.

The Chicago Board of Trade is the major grain exchange in the country, trading in futures averaging over 13 billion bu. annually. It is the largest corn market. The Midwest Stock Exchange was formed 1949 from the Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and Minneapolis-St. Paul exchanges. Chicago bank deposits and cash reserves show marked increases. In 1954 loans and discounts were $3,441,362,000; total deposits, $10,243,511,000; cash resources, $2,435,635,000; savings deposits rose from $1,107,778,000 in 1953 to $4,283,483,000.

Indiana

Hoosier State

CAPITAL: Indianapolis. AREA: 36,291 sq. mi., rank, 37th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,934,224, rank, 12th. MOTTO: Cross-roads of America. FLOWER: Zinnia. BIRD: Cardinal. TREE: Tulip. SONG: On the Banks of the Wabash. ADMISSION: 19th.

Indiana, a North Central state, is bounded N. by Michigan, and Lake Michigan; E. by Ohio and Kentucky; S. by Kentucky; W. by Illinois. Has Ohio river on S., Wabash on part of W.

A great manufacturing state (8,000 industries), this annually adds $3 billion in value. It has 200 coal mines averaging 23,000,000 tons. Six out of every 10 persons are employed in metal industries. It ranks 3rd in steel production, provides over 80% of all building limestone used in the U. S., makes 12% of the nation's household furniture, has a large brick and tile industry. Rubber processing and prefabricated houses are new industries.

Greatest steel production is in Calumet region—Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting. Gary was a sand dune in 1905 when U. S. Steel Corp. located its mills there; now has 133,911 pop. (1950). Corp. has 1,000 ovens, 12 blast furnaces, sheet and tin mills; unloads ore from Lake Superior mines automatically from vessels. Gary has Union Drawn Steel, Universal Atlas Cement, Sun Motor Co. (engines). Hammond has American Steel Foundries, Pullman Standard Car, American Maize Products. East Chicago has Inland Steel, Sinclair refineries. Whiting has Standard Oil of Indiana refineries.

There are 223 airports and these airlines: American, Eastern, Delta-C. & S., Piedmont, Slick, United, Lake Central, Ozark, TWA, Principal railroads: Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Monon, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Wabash. Indianapolis has famous Speedway where the 500-mi. motor sweepstakes are held on Memorial Day.

Diversified crops are combined with stock raising, with highgrade dairy farms in the northern lake region where muck soil produces potatoes, cabbages, onions, celery and cereal crops. In 1954 it was third in the nation in soybeans (46,128,000 bu.); fourth in corn and rye. Central Indiana is a meat-producing area. On Jan. 1, 1955, it was third in hogs and pigs with 4,566,000 hd., and had 2,054,000 cattle. There are extensive orchards. Indiana leads the nation in peppermint and spearmint oils and is second only to California in tomatoes.

Among 38 institutions of higher education are Butler Univ., Indiana Univ., Notre Dame Univ., Purdue Univ., Valparaiso Univ., Wabash College, Culver Military Acad. It takes high place in literature with Booth Tarkington. George Ade, Gen. Lew Wallace, Meredith Nicholson, Jas. Whitcomb Riley, Maurice Thompson, Theo. Dreiser, Lyman Abbott, George Fitch, Max Eastman, Gene Stratton-Porter, whose Limberlost area is a state park.

There are 16 state parks, 43,161 acres, 14 state forests, 96,161 acres, 4 well-stocked game preserves and 13 fish hatcheries, which provide millions of fish annually. Among 14 state memorials are the Vincennes memorial to George Rogers Clark, New Harmony (Rappite) community, Tippecanoe and other Indian battlefields, site of Lincoln's boyhood home, grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln in Spencer County, World War Memorial, Indianapolis, national office of American Legion.

The most valuable limestone quarries are at Bedford. Limestone sinkholes account for caverns in the south, including Wyandotte cave near Leavenworth, 3rd largest in U. S. The famous post-office, Santa Claus, is in Indiana.

The state constitution forbids issuance of state bonds, and all state expenses are met from current income.

Iowa

Hawkeye State

CAPITAL: Des Moines. AREA: 56,290 sq. mi., rank, 24th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,621,073, rank, 22nd. MOTTO: Our Liberties We Prize and Our Rights We Will Maintain. FLOWER: Wild Rose. BIRD: Eastern Goldfinch. ADMISSION: 29th.

Iowa, in the West North Central part of the Middle West, is bound N. by Minnesota; E. by Wisconsin and Illinois; S. by Missouri; W. by Nebraska and South Dakota. The Mississippi river flows along the entire E. line; the Missouri along three-fourths of the W. line. Its elevation is 480 to 1,675 ft. It is the heartland of American agriculture, possessing some of the finest soil in the world, and 25% of all Grade A soil in the U. S. The rolling prairie is 97% under cultivation.

Iowa leads the country in corn, with 10,286,000 acres in production in 1954, yielding 540,015,000 bu. Production of oats was 230,884,000 bu. (1st in nation); soybeans, 55,900,000 bu. (2nd); hay, 6,793,000 tons (2nd). On Jan. 1, 1955, the state led in hogs and pigs with 20,434,000 hd. and was second in cattle and calves, which numbered 6,279,000.

Other crops of value are red clover, timothy, alfalfa, potatoes, onions, popcorn. Grapes and peaches are among the fruits marketed. Holsteins dominate dairy cattle and much creamery butter is produced. Poultry ranks high in income. There are many cooperative grain elevators.

Iowa leads in per capita wealth, value of farm buildings and equipment, and has a high percentage of occupant-ownership of farms. Many industries process farm products or produce farm implements. Washing machines, railroad car equipment, furnaces, motor car accessories, vending machines, office furniture, are produced. Iowa developed the pearl button industry from Mississippi river clamshells. Some coal is mined.

Iowa's institutions of higher learning include 22 colleges, 24 junior colleges, a state university and two state colleges. The state leads the nation in literacy—99.2%. Best known institutions are the Univ. of Iowa, Iowa City; Iowa State College, Ames; Iowa State Teachers, Cedar Falls; also Coe at Cedar Rapids; Drake Univ., Des Moines; Grinnell College at Grinnell.

There is no state debt, hence no state property tax. There are 8 state forests, 13,469 acres; 88 state parks, 28,369 acres. Eighteen of the state's larger lakes cover 29,689 acres.

Principal railroads serving the state are Chicago & North Western, Burlington, Rock Island, Chicago Great Western, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Milwaukee, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Wabash. Its shippers easily reach the livestock markets of Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha and Chicago. Airlines are United, Braniff, Ozark.

Marquette and Joliet reached Iowa, 1673. Julien Dubuque, 1788, obtained a grant from the Spanish to mine lead at present Dubuque. The first apple orchard was planted in 1799. Lewis and Clark touched Iowa in 1804. The land was part of territory ceded by Spain to France and sold by France in the Louisiana Purchase, 1803; Terr. of Missouri, 1812; Terr. of Michigan, 1834; Terr. of Wisconsin, 1836; Terr. of Iowa, 1838; state, 1846.

Kansas

Sunflower State

Kansas, a West North Central state, part of the Great Plains, is an oblong bounded N. by Nebraska, E. by Missouri, S. by Oklahoma, W. by Colorado. The Missouri river flows past its N.E. corner for about one-fourth of the boundary. Kansas is 411 mi. long by 208 mi. wide, rising from 750 ft. above sea level in the E. to nearly 4,000 ft. in W. It is the exact geographical center of the U.S.

The principal drainage is by the Kansas and Arkansas rivers, flowing E. and S.E., the Kansas meeting the Missouri at Kansas City, Kans. The rainfall averages 26 in., but summers are torrid in some sections. Spring floods have caused heavy damage in recent years.

Kansas has 48,489,418 acres in farm and pasture land, produces the most winter wheat, about one-fifth of the nation's supply (176,208,000 bu. in 1954.) Corn and grazing lands are in E., wheat and cattle lands in the W. Other farm products are alfalfa, potatoes, fruits, barley, oats, grain sorghums, flax, dairy goods, poultry. Meat packing is an important industry. It had 4,341,000 cattle, Jan. 1, 1955, including 545,000 milch cows. The American Royal Horse and Live Stock Show in Kansas City (Mo.) in October is a national feature. Kansas City, Kans., although contiguous with Kansas City, Mo., maintains a separate corporate organization. It has the second largest stockyards and packing plants in the U. S., with 11 meat-packers, including Armour, Swift, Wilson.

The state is served by transcontinental and regional airlines. The principal railroads are Santa Fe, Burlington, Rock Island, Chicago Great Western, M-K-T, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and Frisco.

Wichita is the nation's third largest aircraft center in employment; ranks first in production of personal aircraft. Major producers are Boeing, Beech, Cessna. Municipal Airport now is utilized largely as a USAF training base.

Kansas ranks fifth in petroleum production, having in S.W. a part of largest known gas reserve in the world. Other leading mineral products include cement, stone, coal, zinc, salt, clay, sand and gravel and lead.

Coronado in 1541 headed a Spanish troop in a vain search for wealth at Quivira. France claimed all territory drained by the Mississippi through LaSalle, 1682. France ceded this to Spain, 1763, and received it back, 1800. In 1803 the U. S. obtained Kansas through the Louisiana Purchase. Lewis and Clark reached Kansas, 1804, and Zebulon Pike, 1806. During the fight over slavery Kansas was rent between free-soilers and pro-slavery men. Here John Brown fought his first battles against slavery. Kansas furnished one-fifth of her men for Union armies in the Civil War. Frontier posts were at Fort Leavenworth, now site of the U. S. penitentiary; Fort Riley and Fort Scott.

Kansas has produced many influential leaders. From Carry Nation, whose wrecking of saloons represented Kansas views on liquor, to Dwight D. Eisenhower they have captured national attention. William Allen White, Ed W. Howe, Henry J. Allen, Arthur Capper rose with journalism. The Eisenhower home, a national shrine, and Eisenhower Museum are in Abilene.

There are 5 state colleges, 2 municipal universities, 14 private colleges, 14 public junior colleges and 6 two-year colleges. Kansas has a rural health program, social welfare agencies, and has modernized mental and penal institutions. In 1948 after a referendum it repealed its 68-year-old law forbidding liquor manufacture and sale.

Kentucky

Blue Grass State

CAPITAL: Frankfort. AREA: 40,395 sq. mi., rank, 36th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,944,806, rank, 19th. MOTTO: United We Stand, Divided We Fall. FLOWER: Goldenrod. BIRD: Cardinal. ADMISSION: 15th.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky, in the East Central group, is bounded N. by Indiana and Ohio; E. by West Virginia and Virginia; S. by Tennessee; W. by Missouri and N.W. by Illinois. Originally part of Fincastle County, Va., it became Kentucky County, Va., in 1776; independent state, 1792. Its first permanent settlement was at Harrodsburg, site of fort and base of operations of Gen. George Rogers Clark. Daniel Boone, 1769, Col. Richard Henderson, 1775, Simon Kenton, 1771, were early settlers. Many came over Wilderness Trail through Cumberland Gap.

Kentucky rises from an elevation of 300 ft., at the Mississippi, to over 2,000 ft. in the Cumberland and Pine mountains in the E. The southeast is mountainous with limestone valleys. About one-fourth of the state is still forested with fine hardwoods in the E. part. Cumberland National Park preserves great wooded areas. Oak, hickory, walnut, sycamore, tulip, pecan, ash, maple, willow, gum, rhododendron and laurel trees abound; also dogwood and Cypress in west.

Principal resources are bituminous coal, petroleum, natural gas, fluorspar, natural cement, rock asphalt and clay. Coal mining is a major industry. Tobacco products, meat packing, woodworking, flour, cotton goods are produced. Agriculture gets biggest income from tobacco, burley and dark (461,388,000 lbs. in 1954, second only to North Carolina). It also raises corn, wheat, oats, hemp, potatoes, fruits. Horses top livestock and poultry raising is extensive.

Greatest of all the Tennessee Valley Authority's chain of dams is the $115,000,000 Kentucky dam, 20 mi. from the juncture of the Tennessee and the Ohio at Paducah. It rises 211 ft. from bedrock and stretches 8,700 ft. across the river.

Kentucky has 37 institutions of higher learning including 13 colleges and universities.

There are 25 state parks and shrines, 3 state forests totaling about 31,000 acres, and 5 community forests.

Louisville, founded 1780, is Kentucky's largest city, famous for Kentucky Derby, held since 1875 in May. City is market for burley tobacco; its major industries are cigaret-making, meat packing, distilling. For years Henry Watterson influenced Democratic politics in South through the Courier-Journal. Louisville is served by nine railway lines and is headquarters of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. Airlines: American, Eastern, Delta-C. & S., Ozark, Piedmont, TWA.

Lexington, in heart of Bluegrass country, is seat of Univ. of Kentucky and Transylvania, oldest college west of Alleghenies (1780). Has a large tobacco market and holds annual trotting races. Near Lexington are horse farms famous for thoroughbreds, including the Calumet, Castleton, Coldstream, Walnut Hall, Greentree.

In Paducah, where Irvin Cobb Hotel is named for city's favorite son, dark fire-cured tobacco, livestock, fruit are marketed; June strawberry festival is held. A $500 million Atomic Energy Commission plant is located outside the city.

Mammoth Cave, discovered in 1799, is located in a national park, 50,696 acres, on State 70, 40 mi. from Bowling Green. It is 10 mi. in circumference; its Echo river is 360 ft. below surface. Inside the park is Floyd Collins Crystal Cave, named for discoverer who died there, 1925.

Fort Knox, repository of the nation's gold reserve, also contains the George S. Patton, Jr., Military Museum of World War II equipment.

Many historic places have been preserved or restored. Pioneer Memorial park at Harrodsburg has replica of Fort Harrod (1777) and Lincoln Marriage Temple, enclosing log cabin in which Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, parents of Abraham Lincoln, were married June 12, 1806. Abraham Lincoln National Park, 110 acres, 3 mi. S. of Hodgenville, has a Greek memorial enclosing log cabin reputedly Lincoln's birthplace. Obelisk in Fairview marks birthplace of Jefferson Davis. Federal Hill, 1 mi. E. of Bardstown, is called My Old Kentucky Home. It was the inspiration for Stephen Foster's song of that name, became Kentucky's state song. The old State House of Frankfort is the home of the Kentucky Historical Society and houses State Museum and Archives.

Louisiana

Pelican State

Capital: Baton Rouge. AREA: 48,523 sq. mi., rank, 30th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,683,516, rank, 21st. MOTTO: Union, Justice, Confidence. FLOWER: Magnolia Grandiflora. BIRD: Pelican. ADMISSION: 18th.

Louisiana, in the South Central region, is bounded N. by Arkansas and Mississippi; E. by Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico; S. by the Gulf; W. by Texas. The Mississippi flows along part of its E. boundary, then enters the state and creates the lush Delta region, center of sugar planting. Rolling pine hills, bluffs on the Mississippi, a vast alluvial plain and coastal marshes, with the Mississippi river, behind levees, are features of the topography.

Louisiana is rich in historical relics and traditions, with Spanish-French backgrounds, pirate lore, fashionable French society in the 18th century, picturesque customs today. Pineda, 1519; de Vaca, 1528; De Soto, 1541; LaSalle, 1682, were early explorers. New Orleans was founded 1718. Louisiana became a French crown colony under Louis XV, 1731; was ceded to Spain, 1763, returned to France, 1801; sold by Napoleon to U. S. Dec. 20, 1803 (with large territory to North and Northwest). State admitted to Union, April 30, 1812; seceded Jan. 26, 1861, and joined Confederacy; readmitted June 25, 1868.

With 7,409 sq. mi. under water, Louisiana marshes supply most of the country's muskrat furs; it has opossum, raccoon, mink, otter; many wildfowl, including wild turkeys, and a huge amount of fresh and salt water fish, with a large shrimp and oyster catch. Tarpon, mackerel, sea trout, flounder and many other species are found along the coast. Lake Ponchartrain, 625 sq. mi., is the nation's third largest natural lake.

Louisiana leads in the production of sugar cane, early spring strawberries, sweet potatoes, sugar cane syrup. Other important crops are rice, corn, cotton, potatoes, truck vegetables, citrus fruits, perique tobacco, and pecans. The state ranks high in lumber production, kraft paper mills consuming large amounts of slash pine.

The principal mineral products are petroleum, natural gas, natural gasoline. The petrochemicals industry is expanding. There are rich sulphur deposits and four of the largest salt mines in the world. New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Lake Charles, the 3 largest ports, together handle more than 54,000,000 tons of freight annually.

Louisiana has 23 institutions of higher learning including Tulane University, New Orleans, founded in 1834; Louisiana State, Baton Rouge, (1860).

From 1760 to 1790 about 4,000 Acadians, expelled by the British from Nova Scotia in 1755, settled near Bayou Teche. Their descendants are known as Cajuns. Other settlers included Royalists who fled the French Revolution, 1789-1792.

Railways: Rock Island, Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Louisiana & Arkansas, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Southern, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Texas & Pacific, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio. Airlines: Capital, Delta-C. & S., Braniff, Eastern, National, Pan-American, Southern, Trans-Texas, TACA.

NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans is famous for the Mardi Gras carnival on the day preceding Ash Wednesday. It also has the Midwinter Sports Carnival, a 6-day event climaxed by the Sugar Bowl football game on New Year's Day.

A new Union Passenger Terminal, municipally owned, was dedicated in New Orleans May 1, 1954, as part of a public improvement costing $57,000,000, nearly one-half of which was borne by railroads. The improvement included a station plaza, elimination of 144 grade crossings, 22 grade separation structures at intersections and an expressway over the filled-in Basin Canal.

New Orleans is developing a civic center which will have an 11-story City Hall, partly of glass. It authorized a new Mississippi river bridge with a 1,575 ft. cantilever span, to be completed in 1958. It will cost $55,000,000 and tolls will be applied to bond issues.

Moisant International Airport handles around 800,000 passengers annually. Callender Airport is being developed as part of a U. S. military training center.

Maine

Pine Tree State

CAPITAL: Augusta. AREA: 33,215 sq. mi., rank, 38th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 913,774, rank, 35th. MOTTO: Dirigo. 1 Guide. FLOWER: Pine Cone. BIRD: Chickadee. ADMISSION: 23rd.

Maine, largest of the 6 New England states, is farthest N.E., touches only one state—New Hampshire. Bounded N. by Quebec, Can.; E. by New Brunswick, Can., and Bay of Fundy; S. by Atlantic; W. by New Hampshire and Quebec. West Quoddy Head, Long. 66° 57' is farthest E. point, Eastport farthest E. city in the U. S. The straight coastline of 250 mi. is so irregular that bays and inlets extend it to 2,379 mi. Passamaquoddy Bay has average tide of 20 ft. Mount Cadillac, 1,532 ft., is highest seacoast point N. of Brazil.

Visited by Sebastian Cabot, 1496; temporary settlement, Popham, 1607; permanent, Monhegan, 1622. First ship in America built at Popham, 1608, the Virginia, 30 tons. First chartered town Gorgeana, now York, 1641. Under Massachusetts until 1820, when it became state. Canada boundary settled by Webster-Ashburton treaty, 1842.

With over 16,000,000 acres of forests, Maine produces wood products from ships to toothpicks. Ancient stands of white oak exist here. White pine leads; red spruce is used for pulp and paper; hemlock, balsam fir, ash, birch, maple, tamarack are plentiful. Shoes, oil-cloth, textiles are produced in quantity.

Maine produces 75% of the nation's blueberry crop, and 90% of canned blueberry pack. Aroostook potatoes lead the nation's production. It grows apples (McIntosh, Delicious, Northern Spy), sweet corn, peas, beans. The poultry industry is increasing. Mineral products include cement, feldspar, slate, granite, manganese, beryl, lead, copper, zinc, tourmalines, opals, sulphur, molybdenum, and others.

Maine produces 75% of the nation's domestic soft shell clams; packs over 2,000,000 cases of sardines and produces over 20,000,000 lbs. of lobsters annually.

The higher institutions of learning are led by Univ. of Maine, Bowdoin (1794), Colby and Bates.

Maine is a great recreation center, this industry earning an est. $225,000,000 in 1954. Summer temperatures average 60° to 70° at seacoast; frost is possible at night, Oct. to May. Ten mountains over 4,000 ft. are led by Katahdin, 5,273 ft. Fishing and hunting are important; there are over 2,500 lakes, 1,300 wooded islands, and over 5,000 streams. Moosehead Lake is 40 mi. long and 2 to 10 mi. wide. Biggest rivers are Penobscot, 350 mi. long; St. John, 211 mi.; Kennebec, Androscoggin, Saco. Deer, grouse, black bear abound; game fish include Atlantic salmon, brook trout, small mouth bass, bluefish, tuna.

Maine is ideal for winter sports, with many fine skiing facilities, floodlighted at night.

Acadia National Park is located on Mount Desert Island. Baxter State Park, 162,939 acres, contains Mt. Katahdin and was donated by former Gov. Percival P. Baxter. Public land totals 353,287 acres. Bar Harbor is a famous summer resort.

Maryland

Old Line State, Free State

Capital: Annapolis. AREA: 10,577 sq. mi., rank, 41st. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,343,001; rank, 24th. MOTTO: Fatti Maschilli, Parole Femine. Manly Deeds, Womanly Words; and Scuto Bonae Voluntatis Tue Coronasti Nos, With the Shield of Thy Good-will Thou Hast Covered Us. FLOWER: Black-eyed Susan. BIRD: Oriole. TREE: White Oak. SONG: Maryland, My Maryland. Seventh of the Original 13 States.

Maryland, a South Atlantic state, is bounded N. by Pennsylvania, N. and E. by Delaware and the Atlantic, S. and W. by Virginia and West Virginia. Potomac river runs on W., where District of Columbia takes segment out of state. Chesapeake Bay (first explored 1524) bisects state. Chesapeake Bay Bridge, 7,727 mi. over-water span, was opened July 30, 1952, linking Delmarva Peninsula to the mainland (Kent Island-Sandy Point). Eastern shore is flat; Piedmont plateau of Appalachians in W. has some of the oldest rocks known to man. Backbone Mt., 3,360 ft., is highest peak.

First settled, 1634, at St. Mary's by Leonard Calvert, bro. of Cecilius Calvert, 2nd Lord Baltimore, whose father had patent from Charles I. Settlement was Catholic, but Maryland maintained religious tolerance during Puritan-Cavalier disputes.

Chesapeake Bay has 200 kinds of fin and shell-fish, oysters accounting for three-fourths of the fishing industry. Crabs, clams, diamond-back terrapin abound. Ocean City is headquarters for game fishing. Maryland produces sweet potatoes, melons and truck and cans huge tomato crop. Also wheat, corn, poultry and livestock, especially Ayrshire and Aberdeen-Angus breeds. Dairy industry is largest agricultural revenue producer. State produces broilers, turkeys and tobacco.

Maryland has a canning crop of 240,000 tons annually, worth $75,000,000, with tomatoes leading. Leading industrial products are transportation equipment, chemicals, apparel, fabricated metals.

The Baltimore & Ohio R.R. began with horse power, 1830. Peter Cooper's Tom Thumb, steam locomotive weighing 1 ton, was built here. By 1831 the railroad turned to steam. Today B. & O. Pennsylvania and Western Maryland are chief railroads.

The University of Maryland (1808-12) on Mar. 25, 1955, dedicated its Glenn L. Martin Institute of Technology, including with its aero research foundation, an investment of over $27,000,000. Other educational institutions: Johns Hopkins Univ. (estab. 1893), St. John's (1784), Goucher College. U. S. Naval Academy is at Annapolis.

Famous racing events include Preakness, at Pimlico track, Baltimore; Grand National Steeplechase at Hereford; Maryland Hunt Club Steeplechase at Glyndon; and meets at Bowie and Laurel. Gibson Island is center for yacht races. Fox hunting retains English manners, including "blessing of the hounds." Duck hunting is a favorite sport.

Famous historic sites include Fort McHenry, Baltimore, restored, where in 1814 waved the flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the Star Spangled Banner; Antietam Battlefield near Hagerstown (1862); Barbara Frietche's house, Frederick (1862); South Mountain (1862); Edgar Allan Poe house, Baltimore; State House, Annapolis, 1772, oldest in America still in daily use, where Washington resigned his commission as Commander-in-Chief, and which houses the only flag carried in the Revolution and the War of 1812. The U. S. frigate Constellation, originally built at Baltimore, 1797, will be restored and given a permanent berth at Fort McHenry.

BALTIMORE

Baltimore, pop. 949,708 (1950) is one of the major shipping ports of the U. S., served by 86 regular general cargo shipping lines. The port averages 275 scheduled monthly sailings to more than 225 foreign and domestic ports.

Friendship International Airport, 3,200 acres, is served by Allegheny, American, Capital, Colonial, Eastern, National, TWA, United and Slick. The city also is served by six railroads.

Baltimore had the first organized Methodist church, 1784, and the first Roman Catholic cathedral, 1806. The first U. S. smallpox hospital was founded 1769. It now has major plants of Bethlehem Steel (shipbuilders and largest tidewater steel manufacturing plant); American Smelting & Refining, Mathieson Chemical Co., Armco Steel.

Can-making industry produces 2½ billion cans annually, third largest in U. S.

Construction of a twin-tube tunnel under the Patapsco river between east and southeast Baltimore was begun in 1955. It will link U. S. 1 and 40, major route between Philadelphia and Washington, bypassing the heart of Baltimore.

Massachusetts

Bay State, Old Colony

CAPITAL: Boston. AREA: 8,257 sq. mi., rank, 44th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 4,690,514; rank, 9th. MOTTO: Ense Petit Placidam Sub Libertate Quietem. By the Sword She Seeks Peace, but Peace Only Under Liberty. FLOWER: Mayflower. BIRD: Chickadee. TREE: Elm. Sixth of the Original 13 States.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, one of the 6 New England states, is bounded E. by Atlantic ocean, N. by Vermont and New Hampshire, S. by the Atlantic, Rhode Island, Connecticut, W. by New York.

From the sands of Cape Cod, 65 mi. long, the coastal plain rises to uplands separated by Connecticut river, thence west to Housatonic river, Berkshires, Hoosacs and Taconics. Greylock, 3,491 ft., is highest peak. Mt. Williams is 3,040 ft.. Mt. Spruce in Hoosacs, 2,588 ft. Hoosacs are cut by Boston & Maine Ry. tunnel, 25,000 ft.

Estimated population in 1954 was 4,954,000.

It led in the American Revolution and has had paramount influence on American education, industry, religion, literature, law and culture.

Norsemen may have visited Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard or Nantucket, c. 1,000 A.D. First English settlement, Plymouth, 1620; Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1630. War of Independence began April 19, 1775, at Lexington and Concord. Bunker Hill, was fought June 17. Washington took command in Cambridge, July, 1776.

Strong convictions were characteristic of Massachusetts. Freedom of worship was demanded by Puritans, but tolerance not granted: Roger Williams and other non-conformists were expelled; Quakers and Baptists were persecuted; in Salem witchcraft delusions developed. The earliest churches were Congregationalist, later Unitarianism developed. Mary G. Baker Eddy founded Christian Science at Lynn, 1867; Mother Church is at Boston. Abolition flourished before Civil War. Heavy immigration of Irish, Italians, Poles, Czechs brought many Catholics to Puritan Boston.

The state had the first tax for free schools and first school at Dedham, 1649, but no uniform system until 1840. Harvard College, nucleus of University, founded 1636, has been educational leader for 300 years, with largest endowment today. High esteem attaches to Williams, Clark, Brandeis, Amherst, Boston Univ., Boston College, Radcliffe, Mt. Holyoke, Smith, Wellesley, Holy Cross, Andover Theological, Tufts, Simmons, Hebrew Teachers', Massachusetts Institute of Technology (Boston), Univ. of Massachusetts, and Worcester Institute of Technology.

Massachusetts pioneered in shoes, textiles and tools for them. The Bay State produced more than a fifth of the nation's shoes in 1954, out-ranking all states in total production. Lynn, shoe capital of East, produced shoes by handicraft, 1635 to 1848. Haverhill, Brockton are also shoe centers. Francis Cabot Lowell perfected power loom, 1822, started U. S. cotton cloth manufacture at Lowell, where Textile Institute gives instruction. Paper is an important industry, with plants located in Fitchburg, Holyoke, Dalton, Pittsfield, Springfield, Framingham and Boston. The state also has become important in research and development of electronics.

Agricultural products based on marketing receipts in order of importance are poultry, dairy products, greenhouse products, truck crops, cranberries, tobacco, apples, potatoes and hay. Others are corn, tomatoes, lettuce, celery, strawberries, buckwheat and maple sugar.

Gloucester schooners fished the Grand Banks for cod. They now use Diesel-powered trawlers and the city is the state's leading port in total poundage landed. Marblehead is a famous yachting center. Clipper ships were built by Donald McKay and Currier at Newburyport.

Concord is the great literary shrine, where Hawthorne, Thoreau, Emerson, the Alcotts, Channing wrote. Here also Ephraim Bull developed the Concord grape.

There are 70 state forests, 170,000 acres, 140 community forests, 50,110 acres. The beaches are popular throughout the East. Cape Cod, with summer theaters, sports and an artists' colony at Provincetown, is popular with vacationists.

In May, 1954, a $239,000,000 bond issue was sold to finance a 4- to 6-lane expressway from Boston to the New York state line near West Stockbridge.

BOSTON

Boston, filled with historic memorials, named after Boston in Lincolnshire, England, is the great cultural, industrial, fishery and wholesale center of New England. Crowding 1,000,000 pop., it is the hub of 83 cities and towns with 2,657,000 pop., including Cambridge, Lynn and Somerville. The fourth largest wholesale market (after New York, Chicago and Philadelphia), Boston handles over half of all New England output. It is the largest wool market and one of the three largest rubber manufacturing centers in the U.S.; major distributor of woollens and worsteds, shoes, furniture and sea food. It is the largest fish-shipping port.

Summer Tunnel carried 11,080,966 vehicles in 1954, an average of 30,359 per day.

The city is a leading financial center. The "open-end" type of investment trust originated there; now more than 30 Boston companies in the field have assets exceeding $2.4 billion, over one-third of total assets for this type of investment in the U. S. The Public Library has 33 branches. Railroads: Boston & Maine, New York Central, New Haven.

Logan International Airport, built on land dredged out of Boston harbor at a total cost of $60,000,000, has the nation's longest runway, 10,022 ft.; 2 of 7,900 ft. and one of 7,000 ft., serving over 1,500,000 passengers a year. The airlines are Air France, American, BOAC-British, Eastern, Flying Tiger, Italian Air Lines, Mohawk, Northeast, Pan American, Provincetown, Slick, Trans-Canada, TWA, United.

Michigan

Wolverine State

CAPITAL: Lansing. AREA: 58,216 sq. mi., rank, 22nd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 6,371,766, rank, 7th. MOTTO: Si Quæris Peninsulam Amœnam Circumspice. If You Seek a Pleasant Peninsula, Look About You. FLOWER: Apple Blossom. BIRD: Robin. ADMISSION: 26th.

Michigan, a North Central state, is divided by Lake Michigan into two parts. The northern peninsula is bounded N. by Lake Superior, with Canada opposite; S. by Wisconsin. Southern peninsula is bounded W. by Lake Michigan, with Wisconsin and Illinois opposite; E. by Lake Erie, Lake Huron and Ontario, Canada; S. by Indiana and Ohio. Michigan has access to four out of the five Great Lakes; has longest state shore line. The Sault Ste. Marie Ship Canal (Soo), connecting Lakes Huron and Superior, leads canal traffic.

Ground was broken May 7, 1954, for the five-mile long Mackinac Bridge to span the Straits of Mackinac that separates the lower and upper peninsulas. It will have a center span of 3,800 ft., hanging between 552-ft. towers, second only to the 4,200-ft. suspension on span of the Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco, and a 26,444-ft. four-lane roadway.

The state was originally explored by the French and many names (Detroit, Mackinac, Sault Ste. Marie) are of French origin. Etienne Brulé (1618), Jean Nicolet (1634), Père Allouez (1666), Père Marquette (1668) and Louis Jolliet (1669) were early visitors. France was ousted by Britain, 1763. French and Indian troubles left their mark. Under the Ordinance of 1787 Michigan Terr. embraced part of other western states.

Michigan has rolling clay loam, with flat plains S.E., 573 ft. above sea level rising to Porcupine Mts. in Upper Peninsula, 2,023 ft. The peninsula's hard and soft wood once led in timber and it is now engaged in reforestation.

The Lake Superior iron-ore belt produces 13% of the country's iron ore. Copper is found in free state in Keweenaw region. Limestone provides a great cement industry, with the country's largest cement mill at Alpena. There are large salt deposits, which yield bromine, calcium chloride, iodine and other chemical products. Since 1920 Michigan has developed an oil industry.

Michigan leads the world in production of motor vehicles and parts; also leads the U. S. in employees, wages and value-added-by-manufacture in this category, with more than 50% of the U.S. totals. Next highest categories are machinery, except electrical; fabricated metal products, primary metal industries, chemicals and allied products, food products, paper, printing and publishing, furniture and fixtures.

Michigan ranks second in value of small fruits grown and produces over 50% of the sour cherry crop of the country. Apples, peaches, pears, plums, grapes and cherries average over 300,000 tons a year. Many migrant workers come from the south central states, more than half being naturalized Mexicans from Texas. Strawberries and asparagus come in May, cherries in June and July, with about 30,000 laborers employed in the Traverse City area. Migrant workers begin to leave before the beet sugar crop is ripe in November, hence 40% of this crop is now harvested mechanically.

Michigan also produces large quantities of corn and hay. It had 2,003,000 hd. of cattle Jan. 1, 1955, including 963,000 milch cows. Turkeys are important.

The 20 colleges and universities of first rank are led by the Univ. of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and Michigan State College, East Lansing. Important also are Wayne Univ., University of Detroit, Western Michigan College, Michigan State Normal, Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

Michigan is one of the great resort states of the middle west, with trout streams and over 11,000 lakes and a resort income of $400,000,000 a year. There are 16 state fish hatcheries. Isle Royale in Lake Superior has a national park of 133,760 acres. The state has 159 licensed airports and landing fields, 107 military and emergency fields and seaplane bases. Principal railroads: Ann Arbor, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & North Western, Detroit & Mackinac, Detroit & Toledo Shore Line, Detroit, Toledo & Ironton; Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic; Lake Superior & Ishpeming, Milwaukee, New York Central, Pennsylvania, and Soo Line.

DETROIT: MOTOR CAR CAPITAL

Detroit, the motor car capital of the world, was the fur trading post of the strait (de troit) founded by the Frenchman Cadillac in 1701. From 1900, when it had 285,704 people, it was raised by the motor car industry to the fifth largest city in the U.S. with 1,849,568 in 1950 and a total of 3,016,197 in its metropolitan district. It is the third largest manufacturing city.

Motor vehicles and equipment constitute the chief Detroit industry, with major plants of General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, and Packard in the area. Wayne county in 1954 reported an average of $79,000 hourly-paid workers with average pay of $2.27 hourly and $91.76 weekly. Median income of a Detroit family was about $7,450. The factory payroll, $2.2 billion in 1954, was 241% over 1940.

Construction contracts awarded in Wayne County in 1954 totaled $422,667,000.

In 1955 Detroit opened a large part of its new express highways and interchange system, to be completed in 1956. The Edsel Ford and John Lodge Expressways are joint projects of the city, Wayne County and the state, and will cost nearly $200,000,000.

Minnesota

North Star State. Gopher State.

CAPITAL: St. Paul. AREA: 84,068 sq. mi., rank, 11th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,982,483, rank, 18th. MOTTO: L'Etoile du Nord, Star of the North. FLOWER: Moccasin Flower. BIRD: American Goldfinch (unofficial). TREE: Norway Pine. ADMISSION: 32nd.

Minnesota, one of the North Central states, is bounded N. by the provinces of Manitoba and Ontario, Canada; E. by Wisconsin and Lake Superior; S. by Iowa; W. by South and North Dakota and a small area of Manitoba. The headwaters of three great river systems are within its limits: the Mississippi, which flows along part of the Wisconsin boundary and has the Twin Cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis, at the head of navigation; the Rainy River and Red River of the North, reaching Hudson Bay; and the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system emptying into the Atlantic.

Despite the fact that it is an inland agricultural state, it has a port, Duluth, which vies with Philadelphia for second largest tonnage in the U.S. Two-thirds of the state are rolling prairie, the highest point, the Misquah hills, being 1,630 ft. above Lake Superior and 2,230 ft. above sea level. Known as the "land of 10,000 lakes" Minnesota has a multiplicity of waterways in N.E., that make vacationing an important industry.

Minnesota provides nearly 70% of the nation's iron ore, chiefly from open pit mines, shipped from Duluth in vessels like tankers to the steel mills at the foot of Lake Michigan. Manganiferous ore is also mined. Foods as a group lead all manufacturing. Minnesota's top industry in value added by manufacture is non-electrical machinery, followed by printing and publishing, meat packing, electrical machinery, paper and allied lines, grain mill products (including flour), fabricated metal products, apparel, dairy products. Many creameries are cooperative on the Rochdale plan.

As sources of farm income, crops rank in order: corn, soybeans, flaxseed, wheat, oats and barley. In 1954 Minnesota ranked first in production of butter (270,020,000 lbs.); second in oats (181,685,000 bu.) and flax (9,432,000 bu.); third in milk (8,600,000,000 lbs.), corn, and hay.

The state had on Jan. 1, 1955, 3,939,000 cattle, including 1,496,000 milch cows (3rd in nation), valued at $386,002,000.

Minnesota is famous for its contribution to surgery and medicine; the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, founded by Wm. J. and Charles H. Mayo, is world famous and the Mayo foundation for Medical Education & Research cooperates with the Graduate School of the Univ. of Minnesota. Of the 42 institutions of higher learning, 15 are colleges and universities. The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and the St. Olaf college choir, Northfield, have high rank. There are 26 state parks and many recreational facilities. Minnehaha Falls (93 ft.) was celebrated by Longfellow.

French traders and missionaries first penetrated Minnesota. Father Hennepin, 1680, named the Falls of St. Anthony. France ceded the land E. of the Mississippi to Great Britain, 1763; Britain to U.S., 1783. It became part of Northwest Terr. Land W. of Mississippi was part of Louisiana Purchase, 1803. Henry R. Schoolcraft found source of Mississippi in Lake Itasca, July 13, 1832. Statehood came May 11, 1858.

MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis has a population of 521,718 with 1,116,509 in the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area. Food processing leads with machinery, precision instruments, printing next. Its flour production is famous and third, after Buffalo and Kansas City, Mo. It is hq. for General Mills, International, Pillsbury, Commander-Larrabee and Russell-Miller. Its chemical industry processes a large flax crop for linseed oil and oil cake.

Minneapolis has 10 trunk line railways, including Burlington, North Western, Great Northern, Omaha, Northern Pacific, Great Western, Milwaukee, Soo, Rock Island, Minneapolis & St. Louis. It has 5 airlines—Braniff, Capital, North Central, Northwest, Western, and Far-East connections, making Wold-Chamberlain Field rank high in activity. Barge lines on the Mississippi import 500,000 tons a year, about one-half gasoline.

ST. PAUL

St. Paul, the capital, is notable for diversified industry and surface, water and air facilities. It is served by 9 railroads having one-quarter of nation's mileage, a municipal airfield and 5 airlines, and is the third largest motor truck center. River barge freight in 1954 totaled 1,859,098 tons.

Payrolls approximate $550,000,000 annually. Products include printing, adhesives, abrasives, paper products. It has airplane, oil refining, railroad equipment, outdoor apparel, food processing, refrigerator, machinery, fur, brewing and motor vehicle assembly industries. South St. Paul is nation's second largest livestock market.

The Minnesota State Fair and Winter Carnival are held here.

Mississippi

Magnolia State

CAPITAL: Jackson. AREA: 47,716 sq. mi., rank, 31st. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,178,914, rank, 26th. MOTTO: Virtute et Armis, By Valor and Arms. FLOWER: Magnolia. TREE: Magnolia. BIRD: Mocking Bird. ADMISSION: 20th.

Mississippi is a South Central state in the Deep South, bounded N. by Tennessee; E. by Alabama; S. by Louisiana and Gulf of Mexico; W. by Louisiana and Arkansas. Mississippi river forms W. boundary. State's maximum is 330 mi. long, 180 mi. wide. The Tennessee River hills in N.E. average 650 ft., sloping down W. to Black Prairie, cotton-growing soil. The Delta is an alluvial plain in N.W., between the Mississippi and the Yazoo, producing cotton. The S. part of Mississippi grows long-leaf yellow pine.

Mississippi was crossed by DeSoto, 1540, and colonized by Iberville, French, 1699. It was held by French 1699-1763; English 1763-1779; Spaniards, 1779-1798, when the U.S. took over and gradually moved Indian tribes across the river. With Alabama it formed the Terr. of Mississippi. Its settlers fought in the Battle of New Orleans, 1815. Admitted to Union, Dec. 10, 1817. A large plantation state, it was the second to join the Confederacy. The state has highest percentage—88.5—of native-born population in U.S. (1950).

Mississippi, one of the largest producers of cotton, ranked second in U.S. in 1954 with 1,575,000 bales. A century of one-crop farming and erosion exhausted much of the soil and led to introduction in the 1930s of diversification, crop rotation and soil conservation. Agriculture produces pecans, sweet potatoes, soy beans, peanuts, sugar cane, corn, rice, wheat, oats and fruits. Tung nuts are crushed for tung oil, which, with turpentine and resin, supports paint and varnish production. Dairying has become second to cotton in farm income and much poultry and livestock is produced.

Biloxi has a large seafood canning industry, operating over 900 deep-sea trawlers for shrimp and oysters.

The state produces much hardwood lumber and slashpine products, including fibre board, kraft paper, newsprint. Pulpwood users include Masonite at Laurel, Flintkote at Meridian, U.S. Gypsum at Greenville, International Paper Co. (Natchez and Pascagoula), Johns-Manville (Natchez).

Natural gas reserves are estimated at 2.4 trillion cu. ft. There are 103 producing oil and gas fields, comprising 2,171 producing wells. Other minerals are clays, fuller's earth, bentonite, bauxite.

Industrialization is being encouraged by the state's BAWI (balance agriculture with industry) plan which increases availability of land and buildings for manufacturing plants and aids employment. From 1940 to 1954 manufacturing employment rose from 56,872 to 94,600.

Mississippi has 10 colleges and universities, 2 teachers colleges, 18 junior colleges and others. It has 10 state parks of 10,972 acres. Gulfport and Pascagoula are the principal ports. Gulfport holds an annual yacht regatta and a mackerel rodeo in July. Biloxi has a Mardi Gras in February, and Pass Christian, a tarpon rodeo. Natchez is famous for its formal antebellum houses, open in March and April. The mile-long Iversville Memorial bridge at Biloxi Bay and Vicksburg National Military park are of interest to tourists. Chief rys.: Illinois Central, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, Southern, St. Louis-San Francisco, Louisville & Nashville, Columbus & Greenville, Mississippi Central. Airlines: National, Delta-C & S., Southern.

Missouri

Show Me State

CAPITAL: Jefferson City. AREA: 69,674 sq. mi., rank, 18th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,954,653, rank 11th. MOTTO: Salus Populi Suprema Lex Esto. The Welfare of the People Shall Be the Supreme Law. FLOWER: Hawthorne (crataegus mollis). BIRD: Blue Bird. ADMISSION: 24th.

Missouri, a Middle Western state, is bounded N. by Iowa; E. by Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee; S. by Arkansas; W. by Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska. The Mississippi river flows along nearly the entire E. boundary for 545 mi. The Missouri flows along the N.W. corner and crosses the state, joining the Mississippi above St. Louis. Missouri has 1,937 mi. navigable.

The state was first settled by the French who founded Cape Girardeau, St. Louis, and Ste. Genevieve.

The home state of ex-President Truman, Missouri has endeared itself to Americans by its river lore, folk tales and especially by Mark Twain's creations, Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, whose statues stand in Hannibal, boyhood home of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain). The author's home is preserved. His birthplace, in Florida, Mo., has been moved to a public park. The farm birthplace of Jesse James, notorious bandit (1847-1882), is near Excelsior Springs. A log cabin built by U. S. Grant is preserved near St. Louis.

The state has level fields, rolling prairie, wooded hills and rugged highlands. The black soil N. of the Missouri was levelled by glaciers and produces big corn crops. The central W. section is part of the Great Plains and produces forage. The delta area, S.E., including the famed Boot Heel, produces much long staple cotton. The Ozark Highlands are filled with weathered rocks, water gaps, sinkholes and springs, including Big Spring, flowing 252,000 gals. daily.

Missouri produces corn, hay, soybeans, cotton and cotton seed, wheat and oats. On Jan. 1, 1955, it had 3,910,000 cattle, including 1,034,000 milch cows; 3,610,000 hogs and pigs, 718,000 sheep, 126,000 horses and colts. Its minerals include: lead, cement, coal, grindstones, limestone, marble, iron, copper, barite, cobalt, bismuth, manganese and tungsten.

Industry is led by food and kindred products, followed by transportation equipment, apparel, chemicals, leather products, printing and publishing, fabricated metals, machinery, electrical machines; stone, clay and glass products.

There are 54 institutions of higher education, including 16 colleges and universities. The Univ. of Missouri at Columbia has the country's first School of Journalism, founded 1908 by Walter Williams. There are 25 state parks of 60,519 acres, 7 state forests, 121,000 acres; and 8 national forests.

Twenty-three trunkline railroads serve Missouri; there are over 7,100 mi. of main line rails.

ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, 8th largest city in U.S., had 856,796 population in 1950 and a total of 1,681,281 in its metropolitan district. The city is limited to 61 sq. mi. It is a great manufacturing and distributing center, producing 3,300 different products and best known for alloy castings, airplane parts, beer, chemicals, drugs, electrical machinery, shoes, refrigerators, railroad cars. Settled, 1764, by a French fur trader, it is the largest raw fur market. It is served by 18 trunk line railroads, including B. & O., Burlington, Rock Island, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, M-K-T, Nickel Plate, St. Louis-San Francisco, Mo. Pacific; also St. Louis Southwestern; Washash; Gulf, Mobile & Ohio. It reaches the entire Mississippi Valley with water transportation and is served by these airlines: American, Braniff, Continental, Delta-C & S., Ozark, TWA, Eastern. Of 8 bridges, the most famous is Eads (1874) 6,220 ft. long, with a channel span of 520 ft.

KANSAS CITY

Kansas City is headquarters of a large livestock and meat-packing industry and an important seat of auto assembly and steel manufacturing; ranks among the top ten garment manufacturing centers. Metropolitan Kansas City ranks first as a stocker and feeder market, hard wheat market, and sorghum grains market. It stands second as a cash wheat market and in flour production. Also second as a primary wheat market and as a futures wheat market.

It is served by 12 major trunk line railroads and its international inland air terminal is used by Braniff, Central, Delta-C & S., Continental, Ozark, Slick and TWA. The American Royal Live Stock and Horse Shoe is held here annually in October.

Montana

Treasure State

CAPITAL: Helena. AREA: 147,138 sq. mi., rank, 3rd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 591,024, rank, 42nd. MOTTO: Oro y Plata. Gold and Silver. FLOWER: Bitterroot. TREE: Ponderosa Pine. BIRD: Western Meadowlark. ADMISSION: 41st.

Montana, a Rocky Mountain state, is bounded N. by Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, Canada; E. by North and South Dakota; S. by Wyoming and Idaho; W. by Idaho. It contains the country's largest copper mines, vast cattle and sheep ranges and mountains with picturesque recreation areas.

Copper mining dates from 1880 when Marcus Daly first exploited it; its biggest smelter is at Anaconda. Great Falls, Billings and Butte are important centers. Lead and zinc are mined in quantity, also some gold and silver; cement, silicate, asbestos, phosphoric acid are produced. Oil and natural gas have become important. There are vast coal deposits. Butte, which has yielded over $2½ billion worth of copper in 50 years, has 2,700 miles of tunnels, and is described as "a mile deep, a mile high." The only sapphire mines of consequence in the country are in Montana.

In 1954 the state ranked second in spring wheat (42,952,000 bu.), third in barley (33,332,000 bu.). On Jan. 1, 1955, it had 1,606,000 sheep and lambs (4th in nation) and 2,441,000 cattle. It produces apples, sugar beets, flaxseed, potatoes. There is a large timber industry in yellow pine, and much Douglas fir.

The Continental Divide runs through the western third, the highest mountain is Granite Peak, 12,850 ft., near the southern boundary. Glacier National Park, on the Divide, 1,534 sq. mi., is a recreational wonderland, with 60 glaciers, many lakes and streams with all kinds of trout, etc., hotels and camps. (Great Northern Ry.) Fort Peck Dam on the Missouri and Hungry Horse Dam on the South Fork River in the northwest, contribute to recreation and irrigation.

There are 11 national forests, 40 game reserves. Principal rivers are Missouri, Yellowstone and Clark Fork of Columbia, which is fed by the Blackfoot and Bitterroot. Southern Montana has yielded ancient mammals, primates, and dinosaurs, including skeletons of huge Tyrannosaurus, Triceratops and Stegosaurus.

Important historical site is Custer Battlefield National Cemetery, in Big Horn Country (near Hardin), site of defeat of Custer by Sioux, June 25, 1876. Dead, estimated at 276, but only 265 are listed on monument. First whites to visit Montana were the French Verendryes, father and sons, 1743; Lewis and Clark, 1805. Land E. of the Continental Divide was part of Louisiana and Dakota; the W. part was in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Railways: Burlington, Great Northern, Milwaukee, Northern Pacific, Soo, Union Pacific; the last reaches West Yellowstone, gate to Yellowstone National Park. Airlines: Frontier Northwest, Western.

Nebraska

Cornhusker State

CAPITAL: Lincoln. AREA: 77,227 sq. mi., rank, 14th. POPULATION (Census of 1950), 1,325,510, rank, 33rd. MOTTO: Equality Before the Law. FLOWER: Goldenrod. TREE: Elm. BIRD: Western Meadowlark. ADMISSION: 37th.

Nebraska, a West North Central state, is bounded N. by South Dakota; E. by Iowa and Missouri; S. by Kansas and Colorado; W. by Colorado and Wyoming. The Missouri river runs along the E. line. The W. part lies in the foothills of the Rockies, with high table lands broken by low ridges, near Wyoming and South Dakota. Then comes about 15,000 sq. mi. of grassy sand hills; thence the prairie slopes gently eastward to the Missouri. Three river systems, the White, Platte, and Niobrara, drain E. into the Missouri. The Big and Little Blue systems empty into the Republican river which empties into the Kansas, a tributary of the Missouri.

Estimated population in 1954 was 1,372,741.

Nebraska is a great wheat, corn, forage and livestock state, also raising much oats, clover, wild hay and sugar beets. On Jan. 1, 1955, it had 5,016,000 hd. of cattle worth $466,488,000. It ranked 4th in winter wheat and hay, 5th in rye.

The large production of livestock has developed a major packing house industry in Omaha, where Cudahy, Armour, Wilson and Swift have large processing plants.

Omaha is the largest butter-making city in the country and a big distributor of wheat and corn. Incorporated 1857. Omaha lies on the W. bank of the Missouri. It has a large lead refinery of American Smelting & Refining Co., a large ammonia-urea plant of Allied Chemical & Dye Corp., head office of Union Pacific Ry., Creighton Univ., Omaha Univ. The Ak-Sar-Ben festival, in October is its famous carnival. Omaha is served by the U. P., Burlington, C. B. & Q., Santa Fe, North Western, Milwaukee, Rock Island, Chicago Great Western, Illinois Central, Mo. Pacific, Wabash. Airlines: Braniff, United, Western.

Nebraska has had a unicameral or one-house legislature since 1937, with 43 members elected on a nonpartisan ballot. All electric power facilities are state or municipally owned. It has one state university at Lincoln, one municipal university, 2 sectarian universities, 12 sectarian colleges, 4 state teachers' colleges. There are many state-supported fishing and recreation centers. Arbor Lodge State Park, 44 mi. from Omaha, is a memorial to J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor Day, which is observed as a legal holiday on his birthday, Apr. 22. Boys' Town is 11 mi. W. of Omaha.

Nebraska land was touched by Coronado's expedition of 1541 and entered via the Missouri by French fur traders about 1700. It was part of Louisiana Purchase, 1803; visited by Lewis and Clark, 1804-1806. Stephen H. Long came on the first steamboat, 1819. Father De Smet, missionary, came in 1836. The Union Pacific began its transcontinental railroad at Omaha, 1865, uniting with the Central Pacific at Promontory, Utah, May 10, 1869. The Territory of Nebraska was created by the Kansas-Nebraska act, May 30, 1854; the state joined the Union Mar. 1, 1867. Mormon Pioneer Memorial bridge, erected by Omaha, marks the site where the Mormons crossed the Missouri by ferry in 1846.

Nevada

Sagebrush State, Silver State

CAPITAL: Carson City. AREA: 110,540 sq. mi., rank, 6th. POPULATION (Census of 1950), 160,083, rank 48th. MOTTO: All for Our Country. FLOWER: Sagebrush. BIRD: Mountain Bluebird (unofficial). TREE: Piñon. Song: Home Means Nevada. ADMISSION: 36th.

Nevada belongs to the Rocky Mountain group and is bounded N. by Oregon and Idaho; E. by Utah, Arizona; S. and W. by California. Although smallest in population, it has arrested national attention, first by its Comstock Lode and fabulous mines, which yielded over $1 billion in silver and gold after 1859; its free silver projects in national politics and latterly by legalized gambling and its lenient divorce laws, requiring only 6 weeks' residence, which make Reno and Las Vegas divorce centers.

Lying in the Great Basin of the Rockies, Nevada has many arid areas and much alkali soil, but where irrigation proceeds its agricultural production increases. It was the first state to profit by the Federal Reclamation Act of 1902, the Newlands project, since 1903 irrigating 87,000 acres, where alfalfa, cantaloupe, truck, poultry, especially turkeys, thrive. The Humboldt-Lovelock project, since 1936, has reclaimed a large area for grain, alfalfa and dairying. Some of the waters of Lake Mead, impounded by Hoover (Boulder) Dam on the Colorado, also irrigate Nevada. This dam, 25 mi. southeast of Las Vegas, draws an estimated 1,000,000 visitors annually.

Nevada's largest waters are Pyramid Lake and Lake Tahoe. Large streams include the Humboldt, Carson, Walker, Truckee, some of them partially drying up in summer. Trout streams abound with mackinaw, silver, rainbow, blackspot trout. Recreational areas and camp sites are provided in 11 state parks, total 23,000 acres. Rodeos are popular events in a state that raises many cattle and sheep. Virginia City is a relic of the Comstock mining days. Lehman cave, a national monument, has fine stalactites; Gypsum cave, near Las Vegas, has fossils; Lovelock cave was a shelter for primitive man.

Sierra Nevada range forms the western boundary and Boundary Peak, 13,145 ft., is highest mountain. Lowest elevation is 800 ft., near Colorado river. Great mining centers have been Tonopah, Goldfield and Eureka. Today copper, zinc, gold, tungsten are principal minerals. Anaconda Copper Company's open-pit mining plant at Yerington treats about 11,000 tons of ore daily.

Yucca Flat, in southern part, is a proving ground for nuclear weapons.

The Univ. of Nevada, at Reno, has an important mining school. Reno and Carson City are favored by artists and sculptors. Nevada, explored by John C. Fremont, 1843-45, was part of Brigham Young's Utah Territory until 1861, then Nevada Territory, with later additions from Utah and New Mexico. It was then largely inhabited by miners and was the basis of Mark Twain's story, Roughing It. It became a state Oct. 31, 1864.

Principal railroads are Southern Pacific, Union Pacific; Western Pacific, Nevada Northern. Airlines: Bonanza, TWA, United, Western.

New Hampshire

Granite State

CAPITAL: Concord. AREA: 9,304 sq. mi., rank, 43rd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 533,242, rank, 44th. MOTTO: Live Free or Die. FLOWER: Purple Lilac. TREE: White Birch. Ninth of the Original 13 States.

New Hampshire, one of the 6 New England states, is bounded N. by province of Quebec, Canada; E. by Maine and Atlantic ocean; S. by Massachusetts; W. by Vermont. It is a land of high mountains, picturesque lakes, swift rivers and a vast forest domain. Because of its favorable climate it is a popular vacation land in summer; its freedom from hay-fever irritants in the north endears it to health-seekers. Its slopes provide excellent winter ski trails.

New Hampshire was visited by Samuel Champlain at the mouth of the Piscataqua, 1605; first settled at Portsmouth and Dover Point (now Dover), 1623, 3 years after Plymouth, Mass. It was called after Hampshire, 1629. It declared its independence June 15, 1776 and contributed to the victories at Bennington and Saratoga.

One-third of the state is over 2,000 ft. above sea level. Highest land in Northeast U.S. is the Presidential range of the White Mountains, with Mt. Washington, 6,288 ft. (First cog ry. in world opened 1869); Mt. Jefferson, 5,717 ft.; Mt. Adams, 5,798 ft. White Mountain National Forest (1911) protects 719,247 acres of woods, mountains, drives, and trails, of which 49,128 acres are in Maine. State-owned are Crawford Notch, Dixville Notch and Franconia Notch, the last near Profile, or Cannon, Mtn., 4,077 ft. (with Hawthorne's Great Stone Face); Whiteface, 3,985 ft.

Merrimack river flows 105 mi. through state; is formed by Pemigewasset and Winnepesaukee rivers at Franklin. Concord, Manchester, Nashua also are in this valley. Connecticut river forms west, Vermont, boundary. Portsmouth is state's only port. Principal industries, including mills using electricity from water power in Merrimack valley, are textiles, paper, leather goods, machinery, printing.

New Hampshire shared the educational pioneering of Massachusetts Bay from 1642; established first free public library at Dublin, 1822. It has Univ. of N. H., Durham; Dartmouth (1769), Phillips Exeter (1781), St. Paul's, Colby Junior College. The MacDowell Colony at Peterborough, estab. 1908 in honor of Edward MacDowell, composer, has given summer haven to many authors and composers.

Soil and climate make the state exceptionally favorable for berries, apples, peaches; poultry and dairying is extensive. Lumbering is large industry, under supervision. Feldspar, mica, beryl, abrasive garnets, granite, copper, lead, magnetite and some gold are produced. Important rivers are Boston & Maine, Canadian National, Central Vermont, Maine Central. Airline: Northeast.

New Jersey

Garden State

CAPITAL: Trenton. AREA: 7,836 sq. mi., rank, 45th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 4,835,329, rank, 8th. MOTTO: Liberty and Prosperity. FLOWER: Violet. BIRD: Eastern Goldfinch. TREE: Red Oak. Third of the Original 13 States.

New Jersey, one of the Middle Atlantic states, is bounded N. by New York, E. by New York, the Hudson river and the Atlantic ocean; S. by the Atlantic and Delaware Bay; W. by Delaware Bay, Delaware and Pennsylvania. One of the earliest lands to be settled by the Dutch early in the 17th century, it was the scene of much action in the American Revolution, developed iron furnaces and grist mills, and became a great industrial state.

There are low mountains in the N. W., and rolling hills leading down to a coastal area with many waterways and inlets. The Delaware river runs along its W. line. Its shipping facilities make it a large freight terminal. It divides authority over tunnels and bridges with the Port of New York Authority and the state of Pennsylvania. Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, Perth Amboy and Camden handle shipping for foreign parts. New Jersey contributes a huge figure to the total tons of New York Harbor.

Highest point in High Point, Sussex County, 1803 feet, Delaware Water Gap, in the Kittatinny Mts., is 900 ft. wide between mountain sides, 1,600 ft. high.

Represented in 90% of all industries, its more than 12,000 factories employ 323 classifications of labor. The state ranks first in the U.S. in dollar value of chemical products and has many laboratories for physical and chemical research. Important are electrical machinery, food products, textile products, apparel, transportation equipment, primary metal industries; petroleum and coal products, fabricated metal products.

Chief crops are corn, peppers, asparagus, beets, eggplant, lima beans and potatoes. The principal fruits are apples, blueberries, cranberries, cherries, grapes, peaches, raspberries and strawberries. New Jersey holds high rank in the poultry industry, dairying and the processing of vegetables, especially tomatoes. The first dairy cattle artificial insemination project in America was launched in Hunterdon County; also the common-carrier shipment of day-old baby chicks, now a multi-million-dollar business nationally.

Among New Jersey's institutions of higher learning are: 4 universities, including Princeton and Rutgers, the state university; the Institute for Advanced Study; 26 colleges; 8 professional and technological colleges.

Atlantic City, Ocean City, Cape May, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Wildwood, attract hundreds of thousands each year. There are 22 state parks of almost 20,000 acres; 10 state forests with more than 60,000 acres.

New Jersey's many points of historic and scenic interest include the Palisades, massive vertical wall of rock rising more than 500 feet above the Hudson river; Morristown National Historical Park, Gen. Washington's winter camp site.

The state's network of modern highways has the highest ratio of multi-lane mileage in the nation. Included are the 118-mile New Jersey Turnpike, Garden State Parkway (165 miles, Paramus to Cape May). Newark had the first great air terminal in the U.S.

Chief railways: Pennsylvania, Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Erie, Lehigh, West Shore, B. & O., Reading.

New Mexico

Land of Enchantment

CAPITAL: Santa Fe. AREA: 121,666 sq. mi., rank, 4th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 681,187, rank, 39th. MOTTO: Crescit Eundo. It Grows as it Goes. FLOWER: Yucca. BIRD: Road Runner. TREE: Piñon. ADMISSION: 47th.

New Mexico, a Rocky Mountain state, is bounded E. by Oklahoma and Texas, N. by Colorado, S. by Texas and Mexico, W. by Arizona. Its N.W. corner is the only spot where four states meet (Colo., Ariz., Utah, N.M.). It was part of land ceded by Mexico, 1848; made Territory of N.M., 1850; increased by Gadsden Purchase, 1853; lost Arizona, 1863; became state, 1912.

Explored by Nuna de Guzman, 1528; De Vaca, 1536; Fray Marcos de Niza and Estevan, 1539; Coronado, 1540-42. Called New Mexico on map, 1583. Colonized by Onate, 1598, with first church at San Juan pueblo. Santa Fe made royal capital by Spanish governor de Peralta, 1610. Under Spain 1821, Mexico till war of 1846. Has citizens of Spanish-Mexican descent, non-Spanish Americans, Mexicans, Apache, Navajo, Ute and Pueblo Indians, latter living in 18 pueblos (villages).

San Juan, largest river, crosses N.W. corner for 100 mi. Rio Grande runs through west center to Mexico, irrigates vast areas through Elephant Butte dam and Hall Lake, 40 mi. long; Caballo, El Vado, and Carson dams. Pecos, in E., supplies Carlsbad reclamation system. Water is also stored by Canadian, Cimarron, Gila, San Francisco rivers. Wheat, corn, beans, cotton, grow in eastern section; sheep are raised in S.W., many by Indians. Over 1,000,000 hd. cattle are raised annually. Value of agricultural products averages $300 million annually. National forests cover 13,281 sq. mi. Douglas fir, ponderosa pine and spruce are cut for timber.

Climate is dry and invigorating. Annual rainfall, 7 to 16 in. Mean temp. 50°, reaching 100° on plains in summer. Mountains rise to 13,160 ft.

Most awe-inspiring natural wonder, Carlsbad Caverns (Santa Fe Ry. to Carlsbad) are visited by more than 500,000 annually. Discovered 1911, now national park, they have 3 levels and largest natural cave "room" in world, 1500x300 ft., 300 ft. high. Enchanted Mesa is near Acoma pueblo, "Sky City." Chaco Canyon has many pueblo ruins of 1,000 A.D.

Oil and natural gas create new values in S.E. and N.W. Potash mining was started 1931 near Carlsbad; state now is first in production. Two large open-pit copper mines at Santa Rita are operated by Nevada Consolidated Copper Co. Ore is smelted at El Paso, Tex. There are vast gypsum deposits. Other mining is for gold, silver, zinc, lead, manganese, copper, beryl, molybdenum, uranium, pumice.

Santa Fe and Taos have attracted large artist colonies. Albuquerque (estab. 1706) has State Univ., with Indian pueblo architecture. There are 6 higher colleges, one professional school, one state military institute. Chief railroads: Santa Fe, So. Pacific, Rock Island, Colo. & Southern. Airlines: Continental, TWA.

New York

Empire State

CAPITAL: Albany. AREA: 49,576 sq. mi., rank, 29th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 14,830,192, rank, 1st. MOTTO: Excelsior, Ever Upward. FLOWER: Rose. 11th of the Original 13 States.

New York, since 1820 the most populous state, is bounded N. by Canada (partly separated by St. Lawrence River), Lake Ontario, Lake Erie; W. by Canada, Lake Ontario, Lake Erie, Pennsylvania; E. by Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut; S. by the Atlantic ocean, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is mountainous in the E., level or hilly in middle and W. Mt. Marcy, 5,344 ft., in the Adirondacks, is the highest.

The state has 263 landing facilities, thousands of miles of rails and a great network of hard-surfaced roads, to which cross-country highways are being added. Completion of the state's new Thruway, stretching 427 miles from Buffalo to New York, was projected for late in 1955.

Industrial and agricultural activities of the state are extensive, and of 453 types of manufactures in the U.S. listed by the Bureau of the Census, 430 are represented in New York, which leads in clothing, printing, rugs, carpets, furniture and photographic equipment. It has high rank in textiles, paper, steel, chemicals, tools, electrical equipment, scientific instruments. New York City is the U.S. financial center.

Dairying leads farming; cheese has a large output. Milch cows Jan. 1, 1955, numbered 1,627,000 (second in nation), value $168 hd. New York is the second largest producer of grapes and maple sugar, and produces cabbages, broccoli, corn, potatoes, hay, oats, wheat, barley, apples, peaches, pears, and cherries. It led in buckwheat in 1954 with 900,000 bu.

New York has 125 institutions of higher education, more than 5,000 elementary schools, and 1,270 public high schools, junior high schools and academies. The United States Military Academy is located at West Point, N.Y.

For specific information about New York, its officials and laws, consult Index under State of New York.

North Carolina

Tar Heel State, Old North State

CAPITAL: Raleigh. AREA: 52,712 sq. mi., rank, 27th. POPULATION (Census of 1950), 4,061,929, rank, 10th. MOTTO: Esse Quam Videri. To Be, Rather Than To Seem. FLOWER: Dogwood. BIRD: Cardinal. 12th of the Original 13 States.

North Carolina, a South Atlantic state, is bounded N. by Virginia; E. by the Atlantic ocean; S. by the Atlantic, South Carolina and Georgia; W. by Tennessee. It has three types of topography: the Coastal Plain, the Piedmont, which reaches an elevation of 1,000 ft. and includes the Blue Ridge, and the Appalachian Highlands. Mt. Mitchell, 6,684 ft., is tallest peak east of Mississippi. The chief rivers are Cape Fear, Broad, Catawba, Yadkin, Roanoke, Tar, Neuse, Chowan, Pamlico. Pamlico Sound covers 1,860 sq. mi. Lake Mattamuskeet has 30,000 acres.

Verazano visited the coast, 1524. Lucas Vasquez de Allyn came in 1520 and 1526. DeSoto led an expedition into the Great Smoky Mts. in 1540. Sir Walter Raleigh sent expedition to Roanoke Is., 1548; colony was settled 1585, 1587. Virginia Dare, first white child born of English parents on American soil, Aug. 18, 1587.

Once predominantly agricultural, North Carolina has developed many industries since World War I. It normally leads the U.S. in textiles, cigarettes and wooden furniture. It is an important producer of paper and pulp, chemicals, electronic components and aluminum. New plants produce rayon, nylon, dacron and other fibres, and cellophane. It has the world's largest cigarette paper factories, producing 52% of the nation's cigarettes, the largest plants being those of R. J. Reynolds in Winston-Salem, Liggett & Myers and American Tobacco Co. in Durham, and American in Reidsville. They attract over 100,000 visitors annually.

Discovery of the "flue curing" method of ripening and coloring bright tobacco in Caswell County about 1857 boomed production of this type of leaf, referred to as "Virginia tobacco." Invention of the Bonsack cigarette machine in Durham, 1884, launched mass production.

Farming remains a basic industry and only one city, Charlotte, has over 100,000 pop. North Carolina has the largest rural population of any state; exceeded in number of farms only by Texas. Three-fourths of all flue-cured tobacco in U.S. is grown there. Total production, flue-cured and burley, in 1954 was 935,611,000 lbs. Other principal crops: corn, cotton, 360,000 bales; and peanuts. Livestock and poultry production has increased.

More than 300 minerals and rocks are found, 70 of commercial importance. The state produces nearly all the nation's output of kaolin, 70% of ground and scrap mica, 35% of feldspar, and is a large producer of tungsten, pyrophyllite, granite, and gravel. Forests cover 18,536,000 acres.

Fishing includes 25 kinds of food fish, menhaden and shellfish, valued at $10,000,000 a year. There are 635,000 acres of game refuge, with bear, deer, raccoon, opossum, quail and rabbit, as well as brant, duck, geese. There are 10 national parks and forests, 16 state parks. Great Smoky Mountains National Park of 461,000 acres is half in N.C., half in Tennessee. Clingman's Dome reaches 6,642 ft. Blue Ridge Parkway, 3,000 to 6,000 ft.; Cape Hatteras National Seashore park, 28,000 acres, is being developed. There is also Nantahala National Forest, 377,000 acres, with trout streams; Pisgah National Forest, 474,504 acres. Notable monuments: Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Is., site of first colony (restored) and annual play, The Lost Colony; Kill Devil Hill monument, where Wrights in 1903 made first engine-propelled airplane flights; Guilford park, site of Revolutionary battle. The state's annual tourist income is estimated at $300,000,000.

There are 59 institutions of higher education, including the Univ. of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Duke Univ., 3 teachers' colleges, 23 junior colleges. Duke Univ., Durham, is heavily endowed from the Duke tobacco fortune through the Duke Endowment (see Foundations). The state operates the largest school bus fleet in the world (approx. 6,750 buses).

North Dakota

Sioux State, Flickertail State

CAPITAL: Bismarck. AREA: 70,665 sq. mi., rank, 16th. POPULATION (Census of 1950), 619,636, rank, 41st. MOTTO: Liberty and Union, Now and Forever, One and Inseparable. FLOWER: Wild Prairie Rose. BIRD: Western Meadowlark. TREE: Elm. ADMISSION: 39th or 40th, with South Dakota.

North Dakota, in the West North Central group, is bounded N. by Canada; E. by Minnesota; S. by South Dakota; W. by Montana. It is drained in part by the Missouri river and in part by the Red river, which flows between North Dakota and Minnesota. The surface in the eastern two-thirds is a vast rolling plain, with moderate rainfall helping large crops.

In the western part of the State are the Bad Lands, so named originally by the Indians and settlers because they impeded travel.

The geographic center of North America is in Pierce County, 16 miles south and 7 miles west of Rugby.

Over 90% of the state's 45,000,000 acres is in farms and agriculture is North Dakota's principal industry, with 68% of farm income coming from crops. Livestock products, in order of importance, are: beef cattle, dairy products, hogs, poultry, sheep and wool.

The state led in 1954 in production of spring wheat (64,920,000 bu.), durum wheat (4,976,000 bu.), flaxseed (24,624,000 bu.), and rye (4,466,000 bu.); was second in barley (67,568,000 bu.). It raises corn, oats and hay. Cattle on Jan. 1, 1955 numbered 1,937,000.

A large section of the western part is underlaid with lignite coal, and there are large quantities of sand and gravel and natural gas. Oil was discovered in the Williston Basin in 1951. By the end of 1954, 433 wells were producing and production for the year totaled 5,878,000 bbls. valued at $12,400,000. Refineries are in operation at Williston, Dickinson and Mandan, with a capacity of 33,500 bbls. per day. Bi-products from a large gas processing plant at Bioga are piped to Fargo. Garrison Dam on the Missouri River approx. 77 mi. north of Bismarck, is one of the world's largest rolled earth fill dams; its reservoir, capacity 23,000,000 gals., forms a lake 200 mi. long.

North Dakota has 12 institutions of higher education—four colleges and universities, five teachers' colleges and three junior colleges.

Explorations in what is now North Dakota were made as early as 1738-1740 by French-Canadians. The Lewis and Clark expedition (1804-1805) passed through the territory and established Fort Mandan.

Fort Abraham Lincoln, now a state park near Mandan, was the starting point, May 17, 1876, of Gen. George Custer and his troops for the battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana where Custer and all his men were killed June 25.

Theodore Roosevelt once lived on a ranch near Medora. His log cabin stands on the Capitol grounds in Bismarck. Medora is the headquarters for the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park and site of the popular de Mores Historic House Museum.

The Turtle Mountains of North Dakota are known for the great variety of song birds found in the area. A joint American-Canadian Commission set aside 2,200 acres on the northern border of these mountains to be known as the Peace Garden, commemorating the continuous peace between Canada and U.S.

Chief railroads are Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Milwaukee, and Soo. Airlines: Braniff, North Central, Northwest, Frontier.

Ohio

Buckeye State

CAPITAL: Columbus. AREA: 41,222 sq. mi., rank, 34th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 7,946,627, rank, 5th. MOTTO: None. In 1866 adopted Inperium in Imperio. Government within a government; repealed in 1868. FLOWER: Scarlet Carnation. BIRD: Cardinal. TREE: Buckeye. ADMISSION: 17th.

Ohio, easternmost of the North Central group, is bounded N. by Michigan and Lake Erie, E. by Pennsylvania and West Virginia, S. by West Virginia and Kentucky, W. by Indiana. It is a great agricultural, manufacturing and distributing center, served by all the important east-west railroads of the northern U.S., airlines and Great Lake vessels.

Eight presidents have come from Ohio—W. H. Harrison, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, B. Harrison, McKinley, Taft, Harding—all but W. H. Harrison born in the state.

George Rogers Clark defeated the Indians at Piqua, 1780; thereafter Ohio had British-Indian raids and battles; Gen. Anthony Wayne defeated Indians at Fallen Timbers Aug. 20, 1794, imposed Treaty of Greenville, 1795. Oliver Hazard Perry defeated British on Lake Erie near Put-in-Bay, Sept. 10, 1813. As governor of Northwest Territory, Gen. Arthur St. Clair sat at Marietta (1789) and Cincinnati (1791). Columbus became capital in 1817.

Large coal and salt deposits, and some oil and gas in N.W., started industries. With opening of canals, the Ohio-Miami-Erie in Ohio and the "Soo" in Michigan, Ohio products moved rapidly east and ore from Lake Superior supplied its steel mills. Ohio has 25,000 producing oil wells and a 50,000,000 bbl. reserve.

In 1954 Ohio was 7th in winter wheat (68,294,000 bu.), 6th in soybeans (23,172,000 bu.); it also raises corn, oats, tobacco and grapes.

The 241-mi. new Ohio Turnpike running across the state from the Pennsylvania Turnpike to Indiana, was due to be opened Dec. 1, 1955.

CLEVELAND

Cleveland, largest Ohio city and 7th largest in U.S., had 914,808 pop. by Census of 1950, with 1,465,511 in metropolitan area. Cuyahoga county showed a gain of 14.2% over 1940. The city is a big steel, electrical, tool and die center and has also become increasingly important in the automobile industry. It has 7 General Motors plants employing 18,000, 4 Ford plants with 15,000 employees; hq. of Republic Steel, employing over 11,000 in 5 mills and fabricating divisions; Thompson Products (auto, aircraft and electronics parts); White Motor Co., General Electric (lighting division), American Steel & Wire, Jones & Laughlin, Alcoa Aluminum, Chase Brass & Copper, and Lincoln Electric (welding). Two large Standard Oil refineries are located in Cleveland, where John D. Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler and S. V. Harkness started the company. It has Case Institute of Technology and Western Reserve.

Cleveland is a big port, handling much iron ore, and is served by 8 railroads, including B. & O., Erie, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania; 11 airlines including Allegheny, American, Capital, Eastern, Northwest, Flying Tiger, Slick, Trans Canada, Trans World, Lake Central and United; 8 intercity bus lines and 150 motor freight lines. It transacts 21% of Ohio's retail sales.

Cincinnati is a world leader in production of machine tools, playing cards, soap and electrotypes; also famous for chemicals, clothing, jet engines, watches and many other manufactures. Metropolitan area, with population of 972,000 (est. 1955), includes Hamilton County, Ohio, Kenton and Campbell Counties, Ky. Xavier Univ., Univ. of Cincinnati and its Symphony Orchestra are centers of culture. In addition to New York Central, Pennsylvania and B. & O., it is served by Southern, C. & O., Norfolk & Western, and Louisville and Nashville, using one of the nation's finest railway terminals, completed 1933. Its airlines are American, Delta-C. & S., Lake Central, Piedmont, TWA, and Slick.

Columbus, the capital, is third city of state in population, has a flourishing manufacturing industry and Ohio State Univ.

After B. F. Goodrich started making fire hose at Akron in 1870 (and sold out for little) with Goodyear coming in 1898 and Firestone later, Akron became the rubber capital of the world.

Toledo, on Lake Erie, world's largest coal shipping port, has large oil refineries; in the 1890s it led with municipal utilities and had the first industrial peace board. It pioneered with Willys-Overland, Champion Spark Plug, Libby-Owens, Ford Glass, Owens-Illinois Glass, Owens-Corning Glass and Electric Auto-Lite. The Anthony Wayne high-level bridge, 3,801 ft. with approaches, crosses the Maumee in Toledo.

In Dayton Orville and Wilbur Wright produced their first successful airplane, opening a new era in world history. Their hangar and an airplane museum are at Wright Field, Air Force headquarters. Paul Lawrence Dunbar, poet (1872-1906), lived here. Delco Light and Frigidaire originated here and it is headquarters for National Cash Register.

Oklahoma

Sooner State

CAPITAL: Oklahoma City. AREA: 69,919 sq. mi., rank, 17th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,233,351, rank, 25th. MOTTO: Labor Omnia Vincit—Labor Conquers All Things. FLOWER: Mistletoe. BIRD: Scissortailed Flycatcher. TREE: Redbud. SONG: "Oklahoma." ADMISSION: 46th.

Oklahoma, in the West South Central group, is bounded N. by Colorado and Kansas; E. by Missouri and Arkansas; S. by Texas; W. by Texas and New Mexico. It is a vast rolling plain sloping S. and E., with a mean elevation of 1,300 ft. Highest point is in the Panhandle, N.W., 4,978 ft. The western plains are treeless, but the Ozark Mountains in East are heavily wooded; farther west are the Wichita Mountains. The Ozark plateau has underlying limestone. The Arkansas River flows E. across the northeastern part of the state and the Red River along the S. line.

Oklahoma, part of the Louisiana Purchase, 1803, was known as Indian Territory after it became the home of the Five Civilized Tribes—Cherokee, Chickasaw, Chickasaw, Creek and Seminole—when they were forced west by President Andrew Jackson and his successors, 1823-1846. The land was also used by Comanche, Osage and other plains Indians. As white settlers pressed west land was opened for homesteading by runs and lottery, a run being a race for a claim at a specific time. The first run took place Apr. 22, 1889; the most famous was the run to the Cherokee Outlet, 1893. Oklahoma was admitted to the Union Nov. 16, 1907. In 1906 the citizens had voted to call the state Sequoyah, after the Indian who created the Cherokee alphabet, but Congress refused. The state placed Sequoyah's statue in the National Capitol.

Originally a plains state, Oklahoma changed radically with the sinking of oil wells from 1901 on. Oil and natural gas became Oklahoma's greatest income producers, gave Oklahoma City and Tulsa metropolitan status. The Glenn pool, S. of Tulsa, started big production, 1905; Cushing field, 1915, yielded 305,000 bbls. daily. The Seminole field, 1928, was one of the biggest. Oil derricks stand in front of the state capitol. Indians retained royalties and profited as individual owners and tribes.

Large refineries at Tulsa and Ponca City produce lubricating oils, liquid gasoline, aviation gasoline and by-products. The Oklahoma Geological Survey and the Schools of Geology and Petroleum Engineering at the Univ. of Oklahoma have improved oil production.

Oklahoma has the largest reserve of asphalt and 10,000 sq. mi. with underlying coal. Strip mining is practiced as well as shaft mining. Lead, zinc, gypsum, selenite are produced in quantity. Industries include oil tools, glass, flour, cotton products, lumber, creameries, meat packing. Biggest crops are winter wheat (second in 1954 with 70,770,000 bu.), rye, corn, cotton and sorghum. Cattle, swine and sheep are important. State had on Jan. 1, 1955, 3,182,000 cattle worth $213,194,000. Rainfall averages 33.39 in. annually. Several large reservoirs were built in recent years on the Grand, Illinois and Red rivers. The Arkansas is joined in the state by the Salt Fork, Cimarron, Grand, Verdigris and Canadian. Denison Dam, at the juncture of the Washita and Red rivers, formed Lake Texoma (93,080 acres). The Ouachita National forest covers 176,000 acres; there are 12 state parks and national wildlife refuges in the Wichita Mtns., and Great Salt Plains.

Chief railways: Frisco, M-K-T, Santa Fe, Rock Island, Mo. Pacific, Kansas City Southern. Airlines: American, Braniff, Central, Continental, Ozark.

Oregon

Beaver State

CAPITAL: Salem. AREA: 96,981 sq. mi., rank, 9th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 1,521,341, rank, 32nd. MOTTO: None (The Union appears on state seal). FLOWER: Oregon Grape. BIRD: Western Meadowlark. TREE: Douglas Fir. ADMISSION: 33rd.

Oregon, a Pacific Coast state, is bounded N. by Washington, E. by Idaho, S. by California and Nevada, W. by the Pacific ocean. It is 395 by 295 mi. in extent, with the Columbia river on its N. line, the Snake river on the E. Portland, Salem, Oregon City and other cities lie in the fertile Willamette Valley with the Coast range at the W. and the Cascade range at the E. The Blue Mts. and the Wallowa Mts. are in the N.E. section. Tallest are the Cascades, with Mt. Hood at N. rising 11,245 ft.; Mt. Jefferson, 10,495 ft.

Capt. Robert Gray in the Columbia, with sea letters from President Washington, reached the river named after his ship May 11, 1792 and claimed it for U.S. President Jefferson sent Lewis & Clark there, 1804-06. John Jacob Astor's fur depot, Astoria, founded 1811, was taken by the British, 1813, restored 1818. The S. frontier with Spain was settled 1819. A provisional govt. was established in Champoe, May 2, 1843. U.S. title was established 1846 and Oregon admitted into the Union Feb. 14, 1859.

Oregon has large fishing interests, especially in salmon; raises much fruit; operates many canneries; raises wheat, corn, hay, berries, sugar beets, potatoes, bulbs and nursery products. Major farm industries are cattle and dairying, sheep and hogs, poultry, turkeys.

Barge lines operate on the Columbia river and its main tributaries, the Willamette and Snake, and over 50 steamship lines call at the Port of Portland. Chief exports are lumber and wheat.

Bonneville dam provides navigation facilities and electric power (4,406,265 kwh in 1954). McNary dam, dedicated by President Eisenhower Sept. 23, 1954, further facilitates navigation on the upper Columbia. Leading manufactures are light metals, wood products, pulp and paper, machinery, chemicals and textiles.

Oregon has two distinct forest regions, Douglas fir W. of the Cascade Mts., and western pine to the E. Timber cut averages over 8 billion board ft. annually, usually largest in U.S. Great areas have become national forests. Pacific Crest Trail runs through them, touching Crater Lake, a body of sapphire blue water in a former volcano, 6 mi. in diameter and 2,000 ft. deep. State forests cover 720,000 acres; city and county-owned forests, 160,944 acres. Oregon has two national parks: Crater Lake and Oregon Caves National Monument. There are 156 state park units totaling 55,063 acres.

There are 19 colleges and universities, including Univ. of Oregon at Eugene; Univ. of Portland, Willamette Univ. (Salem), Reed College (Portland), Oregon State (Corvallis), and Portland State College.

Railways: Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific; Spokane, Portland and Seattle. Airlines: Alaska, Northwest, Pan American, Pacific Northern, Southwest, United, West Coast, Western.

Pennsylvania

Keystone State

CAPITAL: Harrisburg. AREA: 45,333 sq. mi., rank, 32nd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 10,498,012, rank, 3rd. MOTTO: Virtue, Liberty and Independence. FLOWER: Mountain Laurel. BIRD: Ruffed Grouse. TREE: Hemlock. Second of Original 13 States.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is one of the Middle Atlantic states and is bounded N. by New York and Lake Erie; E. by New York and New Jersey; S. by Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia; W. by West Virginia and Ohio. The Delaware river is on the E., the Allegheny unites with Monongahela at Pittsburgh to form the Ohio. The Appalachian mountains extend through the middle of the state running southwest.

In 1954 population was estimated at 10,755,000.

One of the great manufacturing and mining states, Pennsylvania produces nearly one-third of the nation's steel. Pittsburgh is the center of the greatest metal production. Its supplies of iron ore come mostly from Minnesota. Electrical goods and equipment are made in Pittsburgh in large quantity. Pennsylvania leads in knitted goods and textiles produced from synthetic fibers.

Gross registered tonnage of total vessel movements of Delaware ports in 1954 was 111,854,048 (Delaware Riverport Authority).

The annual bituminous coal output averages 100,000,000 tons; anthracite, more than 30,000,000 tons. The state produces coke, high-grade petroleum, iron ore, pig iron, steel for rails and structural purposes, lime, cement, slate.

Pennsylvania was second in production of buckwheat in 1954 (693,000 bu.). Other important crops are cigar leaf tobacco, mushrooms, winter wheat, rye, oats, corn, potatoes, tobacco, apples, peaches, and grapes.

It has 101 institutions of higher education—76 colleges and universities, including Univ. of Pennsylvania, founded 1740; Univ. of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Bryn Mawr, Swarthmore, Lehigh, Dickinson, Drexel Institute, Temple, Bucknell, Penn State.

There are 46 state parks, 113,580 acres, state forests totaling 1,833,529 acres, 10 historical parks, and picnic areas. State-owned park, forest, fish and game land totals 2,874,836 acres.

The Articles of Confederation were adopted at Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia. The Declaration of Independence was written and signed and the Constitution of the United States drawn up in the former State House, now Independence Hall, home of the Liberty Bell.

Charles II of England, March 4, 1681, granted land to Wm. Penn, the Friend (Quaker) to pay debts owed Penn's father. Penn made a treaty with the Indians, 1632, and called the land Pennsylvania (Penn's Woods) for his father.

The Commonwealth is rich in historic landmarks, including Valley Forge and the battlefield of Gettysburg, now national shrines. The site of Benjamin Franklin's print shop is marked at 135 Market St., Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike, 327 mi. including extensions, stretches from Philadelphia to the Ohio line. Total cost, $211,500,000.

Railways: B. & O., Jersey Central, Lackawanna, Lehigh, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Erie, Pennsylvania, Reading, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Western Maryland, and others. Airlines: Allegheny, American, Capital, Colonial, Lake Central, Northwest, Eastern, Resort, National, Pan American, United, TWA, Slick, Flying Tiger.

PITTSBURGH

A great reconstruction project is transforming down-town Pittsburgh, where municipal, state, Federal and business interests are cooperating in a $2 billion project to be completed in 1958. The Golden Triangle and the historic Point at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers have been cleared; a 36-acre park covers the site where Fort Pitt, frontier outpost, once stood. On the adjoining 23 acres of Gateway Center, financed by the Equitable Life Assurance Society, three cruciform office buildings, 20 to 24 stories tall, are hq. for Westinghouse Electric, Jones & Laughlin, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, National Supply and other large corporations. A 14-story state office building will be completed in 1956; 2 other buildings, Bell Telephone and People's Bank, also are being built in Gateway Center. The Univ. of Pittsburgh has started a $30,000,000 building program for a health and medical center; building programs also are being completed by Duquesne and Carnegie Tech.

The Aluminum Company of America has erected a 30-story office building using aluminum window frames and walls, the latter in prefabricated sections near the 42-story 525 William Penn Place Bldg. (U. S. Steel-Mellon Bldg.). Mellon Square, gift of the Mellon foundations, has an underground garage for 900 cars. The Parking Authority has been erecting a number of multi-level garages, one holding 776 cars. The new Penn-Lincoln parkway takes U.S. 30-22 on the eastern outskirts, a toll-free expressway costing $130,000,000.

The nation's first full-scale atomic power plant now building will be operated by the Duquesne Light Co. in conjunction with the A.E.C. It will produce a minimum of 60,000 kw.

Greater Pittsburgh Airport, opened June, 1952, cost $33,500,000, and is said to be the second largest in the country, next to Idlewild.

A planned campaign against smoke and floods has resulted in considerable smoke abatement. Seven new dams and reservoirs protect downtown Pittsburgh from injurious floods.

PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, important port and heart of the rich industrial Delaware River Valley, has shared largely in the estimated $6 billion worth of improvement projects begun since World War II. The roster of new construction is headed by Penn Center, a group of modern office buildings to be built near City Hall at an estimated cost of $100,000,000. Others under construction or planned are a new $15,000,000 terminal building at International Airport, a $90,000,000 bridge across the Delaware, new expressways, $23,000,000 worth of new piers, and many new industrial plants. A $12,500,000 program also is planned to restore historical properties near Independence Hall.

The port is served by three major railroads which maintain a belt line along the waterfront, with spurs to most piers. Total tonnage of port traffic has doubled from 34,000,000 tons in 1938.

Rhode Island

Little Rhody

CAPITAL: Providence. AREA: 1,214 sq. mi., rank, 48th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 791,868, rank, 36th. MOTTO: Hope. FLOWER: Violet. BIRD: Rhode Island Red. TREE: Maple. 13th of Original 13 States.

Rhode Island, one of 6 New England states, is the smallest state—48 mi. long, 37 mi. wide. It is bounded N. and E. by Massachusetts, W. by Connecticut, S. by the Atlantic ocean. U.S. surveys give land area as 1,214 sq. mi.; state surveys, 1,487, which includes over 200 sq. mi. in Narragansett Bay, extending 28 mi. inland. Land area includes island of Rhode Island, reported by Verranzano as similar to the island of Rhodes (1524) and so designated officially 1644, and Block Island, 11 sq. mi. State was named Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, 1776.

Rhode Island is distinguished historically for its battle for freedom of conscience and action, begun by Roger Williams, founder of Providence, exiled for religious dissent from Mass. Bay Colony, 1636. Wm. Coddington, John Clark, other religious exiles founded Pocasset, now Portsmouth, 1638, and Newburyport, 1639. First Baptist church in U.S. at Providence, 1639. First charter, 1644; second charter from Charles II, 1663 O. S. (1664). Rhode Island gave protection to Quakers, 1657; to Jews from Holland, 1658.

Battle for individual rights brought resistance to British impressment of seamen, 1765, and to unjust taxation by burning of revenue vessel Gaspee, 1773. Rhode Island denounced allegiance to British King, May 4, 1776, antedating Declaration of Independence. Ratified Constitution, May 29, 1790, 13th of original 13. Rhode Island had prohibition of liquor in 19th century, repealed it 1889, and refused to ratify the 18th (Prohibition) amendment.

Oldest structure, arched Stone Tower at Newport, once called 17th century mill, is believed to antedate English settlers.

Rhode Island produces granite, limestone and graphite. All major classes of manufacturing are represented, engaging about 43% of working force. Largest single industry is textiles, dating back to Samuel Slater's cotton mill built in 1790 (adapted from Arkwright spinning frame). The state also pioneered in jewelry and silverware manufacture. Gorham silversmiths started at Providence. Geo. H. Corliss developed steam engines and tools. Of importance is manufacture of jewelry, metal products, and rubber goods.

Agriculture has large output, in order by market receipts: dairy products, poultry products (notably Rhode Island Reds), forest, nursery and greenhouse products; also truck farming and potatoes.

Much of New England's oil enters through Providence, major trade center.

Education is led by Brown Univ. (1769) and 9 other institutions of higher education, Naval War College is at Newport, Naval Air Sta. at Quonset.

Newport became famous as the summer capital of society in middle of 19th century, when industrial magnates built showy mansions. Easton's Beach and Bailey's Beach are noted resorts and Ocean drive is a showplace. Horse racing is featured at Narragansett Park and Lincoln Downs; fishing and yacht racing are popular sports.

South Carolina

Palmetto State

CAPITAL: Columbia. AREA: 31,055 sq. mi., rank, 39th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,117,027, rank, 27th. MOTTO: Dum Spiro Spero—While I Breathe, I hope, and Animis Opibusque Parati—Prepared in Spirit and Resources. FLOWER: Yellow Jessamine. BIRD: Carolina Wren. TREE: Palmetto Palm. Eighth of the Original 13 States.

South Carolina, a South Atlantic state, is bounded N. by North Carolina; S.E. by the Atlantic Ocean; S.W. by Georgia. There are about 190 mi. on the Atlantic. The Blue Ridge Mtns. come into the northwest corner for 500 sq. mi., with Sassafras Mtn., 3,548 ft., highest point. The Piedmont plateau follows, dropping down to the Low Country, where cotton and tobacco are raised. The climate in the west is cool, the central part medium, the seacoast subtropical and humid. The mild winters make the state a winter resort.

South Carolina ranked 4th in tobacco production in 1954, producing 144,270,000 lbs. Cotton production was over 500,000 bales (500 lbs. each). It also produced corn, oats, sweet potatoes, peanuts, peaches, beef cattle, hogs and mules. Paper pulp is produced and yellow pine lumber is cut. Useful minerals include stone, clay, gravel, phosphate rock, manganese, gold.

Textiles occupy 75% of industry. Industries have been aided by power from hydroelectric plants on the Santee, Saluda, Savannah and other rivers. A 200,000-acre tract along the bank of the Savannah River in Aiken and Barnwell Counties is devoted to the government's hydrogen fuels project, begun in 1951.

There are many incentives to hunting and fishing, with no closed season on fish. The Francis Marion National forest, 243,383 acres, and the Sumter, 296,074 acres, preserve timber lands. There are 21 state parks, 44,599 acres; 6 forests, 130,691 acres. Santee Dam, 7.84 mi., is world's longest earthen dam.

The state has 33 institutions of higher learning, led by the Univ. of South Carolina at Columbia.

South Carolina played an important part in American beginnings. It was first settled by Spaniards, 1526 and 1566; was given by Charles I to Robert Heath as Carolina, 1629; had first royal governor, 1730. It left Britain, 1775. Charles Pinckney helped frame the Constitution of the U.S., 1787, proposed more than 30 of its provisions. The state seceded Dec. 20, 1860, and the Civil War began with the Confederate attack on Fort Sumter Apr. 12, 1861. It suffered severely when Sherman burned Columbia and marched through it to the sea. Readmitted to Union, 1868.

Many historic churches and white-pillared houses are to be found in Charleston, Columbia and Beaufort. Famous are the gardens in the environs of Charleston: Magnolia, Rummymede, Middleton Place, Summerville, Edisto, Cypress, Oaks, open January to May, and the famous Azalea festival in April.

Railways: Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard, Southern. Airlines: Delta-C. & S., Eastern, National, Southern.

South Dakota

Coyote State, Sunshine State

Capital: Pierre. AREA: 77,047 sq. mi., rank, 15th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 652,740, rank, 40th. MOTTO: Under God, the People Rule. FLOWER: Pasque. BIRD: Ringneck Pheasant. TREE: Black Hills Spruce. ADMISSION: 39th or 40th with North Dakota.

South Dakota is bounded N. by North Dakota; E. by Minnesota and Iowa; S. by Nebraska; W. by Wyoming and Montana. The Missouri river drains all but the extreme N.E. corner. The Black Hills are in the West and Southwest. Harney Peak, 7,242 ft., is the highest point in U.S. east of the Rocky Mtns. Near the Black Hills are the Bad Lands, 1,000,000 acres, with fossil deposits. The rolling prairie falls to lower levels in N.E., where Big Stone Lake, 967 ft. alt., is the lowest point.

South Dakota is site of the Missouri Basin dam and reservoir improvements, now on the way. Two of the largest dams and reservoirs in the country are the Oahe, 6 mi. above Pierre and at Fort Randall on the southern border.

In 1954 the state ranked second in the nation in durum wheat (497,000 bu.) and rye (2,450,000 bu.); third in spring wheat (21,907,000 bu.) and flaxseed (5,598,000 bu.). Oats, corn and hay also are raised. On Jan. 1, 1955, the state had 3,301,000 cattle, 1,066,000 sheep, and 1,524,000 hogs. Packed meat, butter and cheese are leading products.

The state leads in gold production, and at Lead is the largest gold producing mine in the United States. Silver is produced in quantity. The principal mineral products in order of value are gold, stone, cement, sand and gravel. Other minerals are feldspar, mica, lithium, uranium, bentonite.

South Dakota has 8,400 square miles in Indian Reservations—the Rosebud, Cheyenne River, Pine Ridge, Standing Rock and Crow Creek-Lower Brule.

South Dakota has 16 institutions of higher learning—including seven state colleges and universities. There are 41 state parks, 77,272 acres; largest is Custer, 69,004 acres; also four state forests, 84,000 acres.

Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills has an altitude of 6,200 feet. Sculptured on its granite face are the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. The busts of these figures by Gutzon Borglum are proportionate to men 465 feet tall. In 1948 Korczak Ziolkowski, sculptor, commenced work on a gigantic figure of Crazy Horse (Sioux leader who routed Custer), 500 ft. tall, 400 ft. long, on Thunder Head Mountain, 8 mi. from Rushmore.

Discovery of this area dates back to 1743 when the first white men, the Verendrye brothers, Frenchmen, came in search of a route to the Pacific. South Dakota was admitted to the Union, 1889, together with its twin state, North Dakota, after 28 years as a part of Dakota Territory. South Dakota Historical Society asserts both states can be 39th or 40th state, since President Harrison intentionally shuffled the proclamations before signing.

Tennessee

Volunteer State

CAPITAL: Nashville. AREA: 42,244 sq. mi., rank, 33rd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,291,718, rank, 16th. MOTTO: Agriculture, Commerce. FLOWER: Iris. BIRD: Mockingbird. TREE: Tulip Poplar. ADMISSION: 16th.

Tennessee, in the East South Central group, is bounded N. by Kentucky and Virginia; E. by North Carolina; S. by Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia; W. by Arkansas and Missouri. The Mississippi flows along the western boundary.

The state is divided into three geographical sections: East Tennessee with the Great Smoky Mts. (6,642 ft.) on the east, Great Valley and Cumberland Mts. to the west; the Central Basin surrounded by a Highland Rim; West Tennessee, plateau region sloping westward to the Mississippi R. bottoms. Principal cities are Nashville, noted for its educational institutions; Memphis, industrial center and cotton market; Knoxville, hq. for TVA; Chattanooga, with its famous Lookout Mtn.; Oak Ridge, atomic energy capital.

Tennessee has a large lumber production, with oak, yellow pine, gum, poplar, hickory and cedar. It leads the South in variety of minerals with coal leading in value. It has cement, stone, ferro-alloys, phosphate rock, zinc and clay.

Formerly an agricultural state, Tennessee now is industrial, with manufacturing payrolls twice farm income. In 1954 there were approx. 4,000 plants with over $2.8 billion invested and payrolls amounting to over $860,000,000. Principal industries are chemicals, textiles, foods, apparel, printing and publishing, metal working and lumber products. Bowaters Southern Paper Mills has $55 million invested. The Arnold Engineering Development Center for airplane research, occupies 41,000 acres near Tullahoma.

Tennessee's agricultural output is about equally balanced between field crops and livestock. Twenty-seven leading crops in 1954 aggregated $318,645,000: Cotton, $108,370,000; corn, $64,774,000; tobacco, $62,902,000; hay, $40,641,000.

Tennessee has 53 institutions of higher learning, including 28 colleges and universities, among them Univ. of Tennessee (Knoxville), Vanderbilt, Fisk, Meharry Medical.

There are 17 state parks covering 127,000 acres, 13 state forests totaling 143,752 acres, and 20 state-owned lakes, hatcheries and game preserves totaling 315,864 acres.

Norris Dam, 27 miles north of Knoxville on the Clinch river, creates a beautiful lake covering 34,200 acres; shore line over 800 miles. Other dams in Tennessee are Pickwick Landing, Chickamauga, Watts Bar, Fort Loudoun, Douglas, Cherokee and Watauga. The TVA system of dams has provided a series of lakes 650 miles long, which, with tributary projects, comprise around 600,000 acres of water in the Tennessee Valley area, comprising 49,910 sq. mi. overall, aiding economic and recreational welfare.

Tennessee has at least three natural wonders—Reelfoot Lake, the reservoir basin of the Mississippi River formed by an earthquake (1811); Lookout Mountain, a rock-faced promontory carved by the currents of the Tennessee River and overlooking Moccasin Bend, at Chattanooga; and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park which is about equally divided between this state and North Carolina.

Explored by DeSoto in 1541, Tennessee was first settled in 1757. Originally a part of North Carolina, the area now comprising this state was ceded to the United States in 1784, but existed for a time as the State of Franklin. It was included in the Territory South of the Ohio, 1790. It became a state June 1, 1796.

Texas

Lone Star State

CAPITAL: Austin. AREA: 267,339 sq. mi., including 3,695 water, rank, 1st. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 7,711,194, rank, 6th. MOTTO: Friendship. (Carrying out meaning of Indian word, Tejas, friends, from which Texas derives name.) FLOWER: Bluebonnet. TREE: Pecan. BIRD: Mockingbird. SONG: Texas, Our Texas. ADMISSION: 28th.

Texas, one of the West Central states of the South, is bounded N. by New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas; East by Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Gulf of Mexico; S. by Gulf and Mexico; W. by Mexico and New Mexico. The Rio Grande flows for 800 miles between Mexico and Texas. It is the largest state, 773 x 801 mi. at widest points, 1/12 of area of U.S. Bureau of the Census estimated Texas had second largest increase in U.S. between Apr. 1, 1950 and July 1, 1952, of 447,000, gain of 6.2%, making total of 8,189,000.

Texas is the only state that was an independent republic, recognized by the U.S. and other powers, before annexation. It never had territorial status but entered as a state.

Coast explored by Alvarez dePineda, 1519; land crossed by Coronado, 1541. First missions founded, 1659, 1690. LaSalle estab. Fort St. Louis, 1685. Texas became a Spanish province, 1691, Mexican state, 1821; revolted, 1835. It lost the Alamo battle Mar. 6, 1836, defeated Mexicans at San Jacinto, Apr. 21, 1836 and became Republic of Texas; voted for annexation to U.S. 1845, admitted Dec. 29, 1845. Seceded and joined Confederacy, Feb. 1, 1861. Freed all slaves, June 19, 1865. Readmitted to Union, Mar. 30, 1870.

Irrigation has reclaimed vast areas and developed an important citrus fruit area near the Rio Grande. Lake Texoma, formed by the Red River N. of Denison, covers 93,080 acres and a 580 mi. shoreline and serves four states. Large reservoirs have been developed on the Pecos, Brazos, Trinity, Canadian, Colorado rivers.

Texas ranks first in beef production, with cattle raised on great ranches in the South and West. It specializes in shorthorns—Herefords crossed with Brahmas. It is first in sheep raising and wool; its Angora goats yield the biggest mohair crop. The largest state fair in the U.S. is held annually in Dallas for 16 days early in October.

Texas leads in no. of farms, those in east and central parts producing cotton, sorghum, oats, wheat, barley. Truck farming yields the nation's biggest spinach crop; tomatoes, potatoes. The state was first in cotton, 1954, with 7,700,000 acres producing 3,920,000 bales (500 lbs. each). Pecans are a large business; peaches are the biggest fruit crop, followed by apples, pears, dates, figs and all sort of berries. The largest rose-growing center in the world is near Tyler.

Petroleum refining leads Texas industry, with chemical industry second, metals third, followed in value by oil field tools, flour and lumber. The nation's biggest oil production, growing annually, has been developed in West, East Central and Southwest Texas, while the Panhandle in the West has great quantities of natural gas, which is used throughout Texas and piped north. The heart of the industry is around Houston, which has enormous refining capacity. Helium is produced at Amarillo in the Panhandle. The state leads in sulphur and has a great chemical industry. Texas' 14 ports are led by Houston, Port Arthur, Galveston and Beaumont.

There are more than 600 airports, including 55 major USAF bases. Major airports are in Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and El Paso. Greater Fort Worth International Airport, opened in 1953, has 5-acre terminal building, loading areas for 17 4-engine planes, 6,400 ft. main runway, and 300,000-gal. fuel storage capacity.

Texas has 126 institutions of higher education: 40 colleges and universities, 5 professional schools, 3 teachers colleges, 46 junior colleges. The Univ. of Texas is at Austin. Important schools are Baylor, Rice, Southern Methodist, Texas Western, Texas Agricultural & Mechanical, Texas Christian Univ., Texas Technological College, Univ. of Houston.

Big Bend National Park is located in the Big Bend of the Rio Grande in West Texas. Near Houston is San Jacinto State Park. San Jacinto Monument, highest memorial shaft in the nation, and Museum of History. Here also is permanently anchored the U.S. battleship Texas.

HOUSTON

Houston, largest city in South, and nation's second largest port tonnage-wise, had 596,163 pop. in 1950, and over 805,000 in its metropolitan district, jumping to 14th place in the nation (from 24th in 1940). Est. population of the metropolitan area in 1954 was 1,000,000. The Houston Ship Channel, 58½ mi., brings Gulf shipping to its door. The $28½ million Gulf Freeway, toll free, opened in 1952, stretches 50 mi. from the city to Galveston. It is heart of oil industry of 14 counties, producing 20% of the state's crude and 9% of the nation's, with crude oil reserves of the area 2.3 billion bbls., or 11% of U.S. Area has 15 refineries with capacity of approx. 800,000 bbls. daily. Investment in refineries making 100-octane gasoline and in synthetic rubber exceeds $200,000,000. Houston is focal point for Gulf Coast chemical empire.

Houston is center for agricultural products. It is a big cotton shipping port and warehouses can store 2,250,000 bales. The Houston area produces 87% of rice grown in Texas. Milling of rice and flour is a large industry.

The Sam Houston Coliseum can seat up to 16,000. The new Rice Institute stadium seats 70,000. Texas Medical Center, 163 acres, to cost $100,000,000, will include hospitals and research laboratories. The Univ. of Houston has over 13,000 students.

International Gateway Airport, 2,000 acres, has 4 runways 4,500 ft. long, and is served by Braniff, Delta-C&S., Continental, Eastern, International, Mid-Continent, Pan American, Pioneer, Trans-Texas, Slick. Six major railways reach Houston.

Utah

Beehive State

CAPITAL: Salt Lake City. AREA: 84,916 sq. mi., rank, 10th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 688,862, rank, 38th. MOTTO: Industry. FLOWER: Sego Lily. BIRD: Seagull (unofficial). TREE: Blue Spruce. ADMISSION: 45th.

Utah, in the Rocky Mountain group, is bounded N. by Idaho and Wyoming; E. by Wyoming and Colorado; S. by Arizona; W. by Nevada. The Wasatch Mts. run N. and S. between the Great Basin and the Colorado river drainage area. The highest peak is King's Mtn., 13,498 ft. The greater part of the state is a plateau, 6,000 ft. alt., with rivers useful for irrigation. The Great Salt Lake, in the N.W., has 4,218 ft. alt., no known outlet, and a salt density which varies from 20-25%, second only to the Dead Sea. Its area varies slightly—is estimated at an average 2,000 sq. mi. A 30-mi. bridge crosses the lake. The Great American Desert lies in the N.W. corner and reaches into Nevada.

The climate is dry, stimulating and wholesome, warm in summer, rather cold in winter and the sky is clear and cloudless 300 days a year.

The state's income from agriculture has increased in recent years. The principal livestock items are dairy products, turkeys and poultry products, lambs and wool. Alfalfa, wheat, sugar beets, barley and potatoes are the chief crops.

Utah's principal mineral products are copper, coal, zinc and lead, gold, petroleum, sulphur and salt; also uranium, vanadium, semi-precious stones, marble, and onyx. Large-scale oil development is on in the Uintah basin in N.E. Utah.

Since World War II, Utah has become an important factor in the steel market. The giant Geneva Steel Mills has a current capacity of 1,300,000 tons per year.

With development of the A-bomb, S.E. Utah has become an important area in the production of uranium of which it is a leading source. The resultant program of highway development will increase accessibility of the area's scenic spots: Monument Valley, Natural Bridge, Arches National Monument; also Valley of the Goblins, Cathedral Valley, Upheaval Dome, Deadhorse Pt.

There are 10 institutions of higher learning, including Brigham Young Univ. and Univ. of Utah.

The Latter-day Saints number 68.8% of all church membership (census of 1950). The Mormons reached Utah July 24, 1847, from the Midwest. Salt Lake City, the capital, has several structures built by the church, among them the Tabernacle, seating 12,000 and the Temple.

For coloring and unusually eroded formations the canyon country of south-western Utah and northern Arizona is remarkable. The canyons themselves are stupendous in size and formation, and of brilliant hues. It is in this country that Zion and Bryce Canyon National Parks and Cedar Breaks National Monument are situated. One of the most spectacular scenic attractions in the state is Rainbow Bridge, near the junction of Colorado and San Juan rivers. National ski events are held in Alta, Snow Basin and Ecker Hill. Bonneville Salt Flats, W. of Salt Lake City, is a famous motor speedway.

Utah is served by the Denver & Rio Grande, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Western Pacific and Utah Rys. Airlines reaching Salt Lake City are Flying Tiger, Frontier, United and Western.

Vermont

Green Mountain State

CAPITAL: Montpelier. AREA: 9,609 sq. mi., rank, 42nd. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 377,747, rank 45th. MOTTO: Freedom and Unity. FLOWER: Red Clover. TREE: Sugar Maple. BIRD: Hermit Thrush. ADMISSION: 14th.

Vermont, one of the 6 New England states and the first to join the Union after the original 13, is bounded N. by the province of Quebec, Canada; E. by New Hampshire, S. by Massachusetts, W. by New York. The E. boundary runs 200 mi. along the Connecticut river, the New Hampshire line extending to the original low water line on the west bank. On W. lies Lake Champlain, 100 mi. long.

Chief features of topography are the Green Mountains, running N. and S. down middle of state, with Mt. Mansfield, 4,393 ft., highest. Six peaks rise over 4,000 ft., 21 over 3,500 ft., including Mt. Killington, 4,241 ft., Mt. Ellen, 4,135 ft., Camels' Hump, 4,083 ft. Taconic Mountains, in S.W. include Equinox, 3,816 ft. Granite hills, E. of Green Mountains, contain important stone quarries near Barre. Mt. Monadnock, in E., is 3,200 ft.

Vermont ranks high in marble, granite, talc and asbestos; also has slate, mica, chlorite, iron, manganese, lignite, lime, and clay.

It has a cool summer climate, with 110 to 160 days between frost. The Long Trail is famous for hiking and camping. Mt. Mansfield State Forest has many ski slopes. Its 48 state forests and forest parks contain 83,660 acres. Green Mountain National Forest comprises nearly 500,000 acres. Timber cutting is supervised and game refuges are protected. Vermont has a 10-day season for deer. Muskrats, skunks, raccoons, fox, mink provide pelts. The waters have speckled, rainbow, steelhead trout; pike, pickerel, catfish, perch and salmon.

Dairying produces milk in bulk for New England and New York markets. Turkeys are raised in large quantities. Apples are featured among orchard fruits; corn, potatoes, hay are large crops. St. Johnsbury and St. Albans are the centers of the maple sugar industry. Franklin county produces 200,000 gals. of syrup annually. Paper-making is important.

The area was visited by Samuel de Champlain 1609, and had its first permanent settlement at Fort Dunmer near Brattleboro, 1724. New Hampshire exercised jurisdiction and land west of the Connecticut became known as the New Hampshire Grants. In 1764 the Connecticut river was made the boundary between New Hampshire and

New York. Though comparatively few, the settlers resented interference. The Green Mountain Boys, organized by Ethan Allen, 1770-71, took Fort Ticonderoga with 83 men May 10, 1775. Crown Point fell May 12, the two forts yielding 150 cannon for besieging Boston. The Boys fought with distinction at Bennington and Saratoga.

In 1777 the colonists declared their independence, adopted a constitution, the first giving universal manhood suffrage without property qualifications, elected a governor. They chose the name Vermont, suggested by Dr. Thos. Young, Philadelphia, from Vert-Mont (Green Mountain). The controversy over land grants was settled 1790. Vermont ratified U.S. Constitution Jan. 1791, entered Union, Mar. 4, 1791. Vermonters were intense anti-slavery men and supported Lincoln over their native son Stephen Douglas. The state is strongly Republican and reveres Calvin Coolidge as its best representative. It has 14 institutions of higher learning, including Univ. of Vermont at Burlington and Middlebury College.

Vermont is served by the Central Vermont, Rutland, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Maine Central and Canadian National. Airlines are Northeast and Colonial.

Virginia

Old Dominion

CAPITAL: Richmond. AREA: 40,815 sq. mi., rank, 35th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 3,318,680, rank, 15th. MOTTO: Sic Semper Tyrannis. Thus Always to Tyrants. FLOWER: American Dogwood. BIRD: Cardinal. Tenth of the Original 13 States.

The Commonwealth of Virginia, one of the South Atlantic states, is famous for its colonial culture, statesmen, historic estates, and battlefields on which the fate of the nation was decided in the 18th and 19th centuries. It is bounded N. by West Virginia and Maryland; E. by Maryland and the Atlantic ocean; S. by North Carolina and Tennessee; W. by West Virginia and Kentucky. It was first settled, 1607, at Jamestown, by English colonists and named for Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen. It had the first democratic legislature in the House of Burgesses, 1619, became a center of resistance to the British Stamp Tax and provided the leadership that led to American independence and the writing of the Constitution of the United States.

The Coastal Plain, known as the Tidewater, consists of four peninsulas averaging 70 miles in length and 10 to 15 miles wide, formed by Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac, Rappahannock, York and James rivers. The central part of the state, the Piedmont, rises to the Blue Ridge Mountains. Between this range and the Alleghenies lies the Shenandoah valley, an excellent farming region. Extending far to the west is Southwest Virginia which includes mountains 5,000 feet high, and many fertile valleys. Highest point is Mt. Rogers, 5,719 ft.

Virginia was the 3rd largest tobacco producer in 1954 (166,565,000 lbs.). Other crops are corn, winter wheat, apples, peanuts. Smithfield hams from peanut-fed hogs are world famous. Livestock, dairying and turkey-raising are important industries and the Piedmont is noted for its thoroughbred horses.

Virginia's principal mineral products are coal, stone, sand, gravel and zinc; also titanium, cement, clay, feldspar, gypsum, lead, manganese, mica, pyrite, and salt.

Leading manufacturing centers are Richmond, Hopewell, Norfolk, Roanoke and Lynchburg. Leading industrial products are cigarettes, chemicals, furniture, lumber, cotton textiles and ships. Newport News, at the mouth of the James River, has one of the largest shipbuilding plants and great coal piers. Hampton Roads is the major port of entry.

The state lists 45 institutions of higher education, including 20 colleges and universities, 5 professional schools, and 15 junior colleges.

Eight state parks have a combined area of over 24,000 acres. Within the 6 state forests of over 45,000 acres lie a 9th park and three recreational areas. Other recreational facilities include the Shenandoah National Park in the Blue Ridge Mountains through which runs the Skyline Drive of 107 miles, and many seashore resorts. Best known of the latter is Virginia Beach, on the Atlantic Ocean.

Virginia seceded from the Union Apr. 17, 1861, and Richmond became the capital of the Confederate States. The state suffered severely as the chief battleground. It was readmitted to the Union Jan. 26, 1870.

Virginia was the birthplace of 8 presidents: Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Madison, Tyler, William H. Harrison, Taylor and Wilson—the last 3 elected from other states. It has many historic shrines, including Washington's birthplace, Wakefield; home and grave at Mount Vernon; Jefferson's Monticello, near Charlottesville and the Univ. of Virginia he designed; R. E. Lee's grave at Lexington and birthplace at Stratford; many famous battlefields. All roads have historic markers. Colonial Williamsburg, restored by John D. Rockefeller, is the most extensive restoration in the country; also site of the College of William and Mary (founded 1693).

Chief rys.: Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard, Southern, C. & O., Norfolk & Western, B. & O., Pennsylvania, Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, Virginian, Clinchfield. Airlines: American, Capital, Eastern, National, Piedmont.

Washington

Evergreen State

CAPITAL: Olympia. AREA: 68,192 sq. mi., rank, 19th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 2,378,963, rank, 23rd. MOTTO: Al-ki. Bye and Bye. FLOWER: Rhododendron. TREE: Hemlock. BIRD: Willow Goldfinch. ADMISSION: 42nd.

Washington, northernmost of the Pacific states, occupies the N.W. corner of the U.S., bounded N. by British Columbia, Canada; E. by Idaho; S. by Oregon; W. by the Pacific ocean. The Columbia river is on its S. line for 300 mi., and is its principal source of hydroelectric power and salmon fisheries.

The Cascade Mts. extend N. from Oregon in the W. third of the state, with highest peak, Mt. Rainier, 14,408 ft. The Olympic Mts. rising to 8,000 ft., are on Olympic Peninsula between the Pacific and Puget Sound, with Mt. Olympus 8,150 ft. Puget Sound is 80 mi. long, 8 mi. wide. Three railway tunnels go through the Cascade Mts. While much of the state employs irrigation, the heaviest rainfall in the U.S. is registered at Wynooche, in the Olympic Mts., averaging 141 in.

Puget Sound, on which Seattle, Tacoma, Everett, Olympia and other important cities are situated, is a great commercial center. It is the nearest American gateway to the ports of Asia, handles the bulk of the shipping to and from Alaska and has a heavy trade via the Panama Canal. Seattle is the chief port.

Washington produces large quantities of winter and spring wheat and the state ranks very high in apples, hops, dry peas, small fruits, filberts, pears, apricots, sweet cherries.

Forest products are important; included are plywood, paper, pulp, hardboard, Ponderosa pine and Douglas fir doors, red cedar shingles.

Manufacturing has increased greatly with use of hydroelectric power. Payrolls have increased for work in forest products, food processing, particularly canning and preserving; aircraft; chemicals, including the large government plants at Hanford. Although the canned salmon industry has been decreasing, fisheries remain second only to California and Massachusetts, with halibut, crab, albacore, tuna, rock cod prevalent.

Principal mineral products in order of value are cement, coal, sand and gravel, stone. Gold, silver, lead, mercury and zinc also are mined. Also found are clays, antimony, arsenic, tungsten and platinum. Aluminum refining is important.

There are 23 institutions of higher education—12 colleges and universities, with Univ. of Washington at Seattle.

The nation's largest reclamation project in the Columbia River basin includes Grand Coulee dam, Bonneville dam, McNary dam, and Chief Joseph dam.

The state has two national parks, Mt. Rainier and Olympic National Park. Washington also has 75 state parks, 54,594 acres; two state forests, 290,000 acres, and 13 community forests, 90,016 a.

Railways: Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Milwaukee, Spokane, Portland & Seattle, Spokane International. Airlines: Alaska, Trans-Canada, United, West Coast, Western, Flying Tiger.

West Virginia

Mountain State

CAPITAL: Charleston. AREA: 24,181 sq. mi., rank, 40th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950),

2,005,552, rank, 29th. MOTTO: Montani Semper Liberi. Mountaineers Always Free. FLOWER: Rhododendron. Max. BIRD: Cardinal. TREE: Sugar Maple. ANIMAL: Black Bear. ADMISSION: 35th.

West Virginia lies on the W. border of the Middle Atlantic states, bounded E. by Virginia; N. by Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland; S. by Kentucky and Virginia; W. by Kentucky and Ohio. It shared the political fortunes of Virginia until the outbreak of the Civil War, 1861, when 40 western counties of Virginia voted against secession and adopted a state government at Wheeling, choosing the name West Virginia Nov. 27. On June 20, 1863, West Virginia was admitted to the Union as the 35th state. The first engagement of that war took place at Philippi, June 3, 1861.

The terrain is mountainous, including part of the Appalachians. The E. section drains into the Potomac river; the W. into the Ohio. The climate is moderate.

The state is heavily industrialized and a large producer of bituminous, smokeless Pocahontas and cannel coal. Wheeling and Weirton are big steel centers; there is oil refining and lumber production. Other products are coke, chemicals, coal tar derivatives, pitch, creosote, naphtha, phenol, toluene, chlorine, carbon. Silica is used in glass and bottle making. Textiles, pottery and chinaware are produced. One of the largest producers of hardwood, its forests have yellow poplar, birch, ash, oak, spruce, hemlock and walnut.

Chief agricultural products are corn, oats, wheat, hay, potatoes, apples, peaches, plums and grapes.

West Virginia has 25 institutions of higher education—nine colleges and universities, and a number of teachers' and junior colleges.

The tourist industry has quadrupled since 1946, amounting in 1954 to more than $200,000,000.

There are 19 state parks and 10 state forests providing all types of recreational and vacation facilities. Camping sites and trails are available in the Monongahela National Forest. White Sulphur Springs in Greenbrier County is a famous resort.

West Virginia is served by 10 trunk line rys., including Penn., N. Y. Central, Norfolk & Western, C. & O., E. & O., Virginian, Western Maryland Rys.; also by American, Allegheny, Capital, Eastern and Piedmont airlines.

Wisconsin

Wisconsin, a Midwestern state, in the East North Central group, is bounded N. by Lake Superior and Michigan; E. by Lake Michigan; S. by Illinois; W. by Iowa and Minnesota. The Mississippi and St. Croix rivers are on the W.

Wisconsin was part of New France, discovered by Jean Nicolet, 1634, and visited by French explorers and missionaries, chiefly through Green Bay. The French recruited Indians for the British wars, but surrendered the land, Sept. 8, 1760, to the British, who ceded it to the U.S., 1783. The British were not completely dislodged until 1815. Wisconsin was part of Northwest Terr., Indiana Terr., Illinois Terr., Michigan Terr., until Apr. 20, 1836, when it became Wisconsin Terr. It became a state May 29, 1848.

Wisconsin has great dairy production, including cheese, butter, evaporated milk. In 1954 the state ranked first in milk production with 16½ billion lbs., 13% of the nation's total, with 2,656,000 cows and heifers reserved for milk. It has more marketing and purchasing cooperatives and creameries on the Rochdale plan than any other state. In 1954 it led the country in hay production, 7,948,000 tons; it was 4th in oats with 127,336,000 bu.; produced 96,360,000 bu. of corn for grain; and had 112,000 horses and colts on farms, in addition to hogs, sheep and beef cattle.

The Door County peninsula produces large crops of cherries and apples. Wisconsin ranks first in beans, green peas and sweet corn for processing; second in cranberries. The state also produces maple sugar.

Nationally known industries include S. C. Johnson, Horlick, J. I. Case at Racine; Nash-Kelvinator, Simmons, at Kenosha; Pabst, Blatz, Schlitz, Miller breweries and Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., Milwaukee. Superior, terminus of Great Northern Ry., has great ore and lumber docks and iron works. Oshkosh is known for overalls, trucks, motors and luggage.

Wisconsin has pioneered in much progressive legislation. Passed first statewide primary election law and one of earliest corrupt practices acts; contributed to ad valorem taxation of railroads, income tax, vocational education, progressive handling of delinquent children. State passed first workmen's compensation law, first complete labor code and first unemployment compensation act.

Wisconsin has 10,000 mi. of trout streams, 8,500 lakes with sturgeon, muskellunge, pike, bass, perch, smelts. Hunting includes deer, bear, red fox, raccoon, partridge, geese, ducks in season, regulated by the Conservation Commission.

The state has 39 institutions of higher learning, led by the University of Wisconsin, centered in Madison.

There are 282,450 acres of recreational areas, including 29 state parks, 7 state forests, 2,018,944 acres of national forest lands and numerous historical and scenic sites. Airports: 123 commercial and municipal plus 8 seaplane bases. Airlines: American, Capital, Flying Tiger, North Central, Northwest, Ozark, United, Railways: Burlington, North Western, Milwaukee, Soo, Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, Green Bay & Western.

Wyoming

Equality State

CAPITAL: Cheyenne. AREA: 97,014 sq. mi., rank, 8th. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 290,529, rank, 47th. MOTTO: Cedant Armæ Torqæ. Let Arms Yield to the Gown. FLOWER: Indian Paint Brush. BIRD: Meadowlark. TREE: Cottonwood. ADMISSION: 44th.

Wyoming, a Rocky Mountain state, is bounded N. by Montana; E. by South Dakota and Nebraska; S. by Colorado and Utah; W. by Utah, Idaho and Montana. With a mean elevation of 6,000 ft., it is a broad plateau crossed by the Rocky Mts., highest of which is Mt. Gannett, 13,785 ft. The Teton range, 40 mi. long, with 11 major peaks, presented an almost insuperable barrier to early explorers.

The rivers flow in all directions: the Green river to the southwest, the Yellowstone and Snake rivers to the northwest, the Big Horn to the north, and the North Platte, Sweetwater and Laramie rivers to the southeast, none navigable.

The climate is typical of the rarefied air of high elevations, with rather severe winters and pleasant summers. Annual mean precipitation 12-15 inches.

Great mineral resources, not fully developed, include coal, petroleum, bentonite, iron, copper, uranium, phosphate, sulphur and a variety of nonmetals. The state's coal resources are several times greater than those of any other state. The principal mineral products in order of value are petroleum, coal, natural gas and natural gasoline. Uranium production has begun. Casper is headquarters for oil companies.

Sixty-five percent of Wyoming's people gain their livelihood directly or indirectly from farm or ranch. Crops include beans, corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, sugar beets, hay and alfalfa. On Jan. 1, 1955, Wyoming had 1,999,000 sheep and lambs (2nd in nation), and 1,072,000 cattle. Dairying and cheese are important in several sections.

Wyoming is a direct beneficiary of the Missouri River Basin Project, and receives both irrigation and power through dams and plants. Boyesen, Kendrick, Shoshone, Seminoe are some of the projects either completed or on the way.

The University of Wyoming is in Laramie. One junior college is in Casper.

The first guaranty of equal suffrage to women in the United States was contained in the Act of 1869 of the Territorial Legislature of Wyoming.

Yellowstone National Park, estab. 1872, has 3,472 sq. mi., over 3,000 geysers and springs, including Old Faithful, discharging 15,000 gals. of hot water 120 ft. high hourly. Grand Teton National Park with great mtns., 12,000 ft. alt., comprises 310,000 acres; an additional 25,000 acres is devoted to the National Elk Refuge. The annual Frontier Days at Cheyenne, last full week in July, is state's biggest rodeo. The tourist industry is the third largest in the state.

Major railways in Wyoming are Chicago & North Western, Burlington, Union Pacific, Colorado & Sou. Airlines: Frontier, United, Western.

District of Columbia

POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 802,178. AREA: 69 sq. mi. MOTTO: Justitia Omnibus. Justice to All. FLOWER: American Beauty rose. The City of Washington is co-extensive with the District of Columbia.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the Federal Government of the United States. Its area was originally 100 square miles taken from the sovereignty of Maryland and Virginia. Virginia's portion south from the Potomac was ceded in 1846 back to that state. It lies on the west central edge of Maryland on the Potomac, opposite Virginia.

Estimated population in 1954 was 840,000. To insure that the national capital should be free from local control, the Constitution provides that Congress shall exercise exclusive legislation therein. After various experiments, Congress (in 1878) created the present form of government, which consists of a commission of three members, two residents of the District appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and one detailed from the corps of engineers of the Army. Each House of the Congress has a Committee on District of Columbia, and taxation current and for improvements is chiefly borne by the residents.

Residents of the District of Columbia, as such do not vote on either national or municipal matters. Persons residing in the District of Columbia appointed to governmental positions do not give up their voting residence in the States. The laws of the various States permit them to vote as residents of such States.

Proposals for a "federal town" for the deliberations of the Continental Congress were made in 1783, four years before the adoption of the Constitution that gave the Confederation a national government. Rivalry between northern and southern delegates over the town appeared in the First Congress, meeting in New York in 1789. John Adams, presiding officer of the Senate, cast the deciding vote of that body for Germantown, Pa. In 1790 Congress compromised by making Philadelphia the temporary capital for ten years. The Virginia members of the House wanted a capital on the eastern bank of the Potomac; they were defeated by the Northerners, while the Southerners defeated the Northern attempt to have the nation assume the war debts of the 13 original states, the Assumption bill fathered by Alexander Hamilton. It is recorded that by diplomatic methods Hamilton and Jefferson arranged a compromise; the Virginia men voted for the Assumption bill, and the Northerners conceded the capital to the Potomac. President Washington chose the exact site after visiting many others in October, 1790, and personally persuaded landowners to sell their holdings to the government at $25, then about $66, an acre. The capital was named Washington.

Washington appointed Pierre Charles L'Enfant, a French engineer who had come over with Lafayette, to plan the capital on an area not over 10 miles square. The L'Enfant plan was considered grandiose, for streets 100 to 110 feet wide and one avenue 400 feet wide and a mile long on the Potomac pastures seemed foolhardy. But Washington endorsed his plans. When L'Enfant ordered a wealthy landowner to remove his new manor house because it obstructed his vista, and demolished it when the owner refused, Washington had to step in and dismiss L'Enfant.

On Sept. 18, 1793, the corner stone of the north wing of the Capitol was laid by President Washington. The occasion was expected to drum up sales of city lots, but there were few purchasers. Washington bought several lots. In the next few years Robert Morris and others invested. By 1799 the Senate wing of the Capitol had been roofed, the walls of the President's house were up and the Treasury building was ordered. On June 3, 1800, President John Adams moved to Washington and on June 10, Philadelphia ceased to be the temporary capital.

The Mount Vernon Memorial Highway begins at the Arlington Memorial Bridge, on Columbia Island, and extends approximately 15 miles along the Virginia shore of the Potomac to Washington's home, Mount Vernon.

In Alexandria the highway passes Christ Church, where Washington and Lee worshipped, and many other places of historic and patriotic interest. Below Alexandria the highway passes Wellington, the former home of Tobias Lear, secretary to the first President, and Fort Hunt, one of the Civil War defenses of the National Capital. Across the Potomac is Fort Washington, designed by L'Enfant and still an active military reservation.

The District of Columbia has 25 institutions of higher learning—10 colleges and universities, including George Washington University, Georgetown University; six professional schools, one teachers college, six junior colleges. Consult also Washington, D. C.

Commonwealth of Puerto Rico

CAPITAL: San Juan. AREA: 3,435 square miles. POPULATION: (Census of 1950): 2,210,703. FLAG: Three red, two white horiz. stripes; white star in blue triangle at mast. SONG: La Boriniquena.

Puerto Rico with the Atlantic Ocean on the north and the Caribbean Sea on the south, is the easternmost island of the West Indies Group known as the Greater Antilles, of which Cuba, Santo Domingo and Jamaica are the larger units. It lies about 1,600 miles southeast of New York, 500 miles north of Venezuela. Roughly rectangular in shape, it is about 100 miles long by 35 miles wide, including the small islands of Vieques, Culebra and Mona.

The soil of the coastal plain is fertile and largely under cultivation, but irrigation is needed in the south; an extensive system has been constructed by the Government. The climate is mild, with a mean winter temperature of 73.4 degrees and a summer temperature only 5.5 degrees higher.

Puerto Rico formerly was administered under the Organic Act of Puerto Rico (March 2, 1917), which with its amendments granted Puerto Ricans American citizenship.

President Truman, on Aug. 5, 1947, signed an act giving Puerto Rico the right to choose its chief executive by popular vote. An act of 1950, affirmed by special election, June 4, 1951, permitted Puerto Rico to draft and pass its own constitution. A constitution closely following that of the United States was approved by a vote of 88 to 3 in a constitutional convention Feb. 4, 1952, and ratified by a popular vote of 373,418 to 82,473 March 3, 1952. President Truman signed, July 3, 1952, a Congressional resolution approving the new constitution, elevating Puerto Rico to the status of a free commonwealth associated with the United States, effective July 25, 1952.

Legislative power is vested in a Legislative Assembly, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives, whose members are elected by direct vote. Eight senatorial districts elected two Senators each, and 40 representative districts one member each; also 11 Senators and 11 Representatives at large. Its Resident Commissioner in the U. S. Congress does not have a vote; the inhabitants do not vote for President.

Executive power is vested in a Governor elected by direct vote. There are 8 executive departments each headed by a Secretary: State, Justice, Education, Health, Treasury, Labor, Agriculture and Commerce, and Public Works. The governor is Luis Muñoz Marín (elected Nov. 2, 1948, re-elected 1952), first Governor of Puerto Rico to be chosen in a general election.

The judiciary is vested in a Supreme Court and lower courts established by law.

Cultivation and processing of sugar constitute the major source of income and employment. Tobacco, coffee, coconuts, fruits and vegetables are other agricultural products. The needlework industry is important, and rum, beer and cement are produced. The government is promoting industrialization, and more than 300 factories are in operation. Electric power rose from 174 million to 850.8 million kilowatt hrs. 1940 to 1954. A multiple-purpose hydroelectric project is under way in the southwest, est. cost, $32,000,000. A rural electrification program and plans to supply portable water to 160,000 rural families are under way.

The island has more than 85,000 motor vehicles, 23 radio stations, 3 TV stations, airport facilities, 40,000 telephones and a telegraph system. A new international airport outside San Juan, costing $15,000,000, was opened May 20, 1955. San Juan, with modern hotels, is the principal tourist center.

Puerto Rico is one of the most densely populated agrarian countries in the world, with more than 643 inhabitants to the square mile, although an average of 36,354 persons migrated to Continental U.S. annually in the 1944-53 decade. Municipalities over 50,000 (Census of 1950): San Juan-Rio Piedras, 367,846; Ponce, 126,455; Mayaguez, 87,038; Caguas, 60,132. The death rate from tuberculosis has decreased to 90.6 per 100,000 in 1952 compared with 260.2 in 1940.

Public school education is free and compulsory at the elementary level. In 1952, 65.5% of the population under 18 was in school. Literacy rose from 68.5% in 1940 to 75.7% in 1950. There are five institutions of higher learning with enrollment of 15,400 of which 86.8% are at the University of Puerto Rico in Rio Piedras. Although Spanish is the popular language, most of the people speak English. The Roman Catholic religion is predominant.

Puerto Rico (or Boriquen as it was called by its original native Indians) was discovered by Columbus, Nov. 19, 1493. Ponce de Leon conquered it for Spain, 1509, and established the first settlement at Caparra, across the bay from the present site of the capital city. He was the island's first governor general. Ruled by Spain until 1898, it was seized by Major Gen. Miles in the Spanish-American war and ceded to the United States by the Treaty of Paris, Dec. 10, 1898.

ORGANIZED TERRITORIES OF THE UNITED STATES

Alaska

CAPITAL: Juneau. AREA: 586,400 sq. mi. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 128,643. FLOWER: Forget-me-not. BIRD: Willow Ptarmigan. SONG: (unofficial): Alaska, My Alaska. Territory Since Aug. 24, 1912.

Alaska, an Organized Territory, occupies the N. W. part of North America N. of 51° N. Lat., including all islands off the coast, among them the Aleutians, Kodiak, St. Lawrence, Nunivak and Pribilofs. It is bounded N. by Arctic Ocean, E. by Yukon Terr., Can., and British Columbia, Can.; S. W. by Pacific Ocean; W. by Bering Sea and Arctic. Southeast Alaska is a narrow strip between Canada and the Pacific Ocean and includes Alexander archipelago.

Alaska was discovered by Vitus Bering, a Dane employed by Russia, who found Bering Strait in 1728 and Alaska 1741, dying there Dec. 8, 1741. British explorers Cook, Vancouver and Mackenzie visited the western coast in 1776, 1791-94 and 1793 respectively. Alexander Baranov, Russian governor, 1790-1819, established his office at Sitka. By treaty with Britain and U. S., Russia was restricted to west of the 141st meridian.

Russia is reported to have offered Alaska to the U. S., 1855. Negotiations were opened, 1859, when President Buchanan offered $5,000,000, which Russia turned down. In 1866 Pacific coast fishery interests prompted renewed negotiations. William H. Seward, secretary of state under President Johnson, bought Alaska for $7,200,000. Opponents called it "Seward's Folly." Treaty was signed Mar. 30, 1867, announced by the President June 20, 1867. Transfer of territory took place Oct. 18, 1867 at Sitka. Alaska was called a district until Aug. 24, 1912, when it became an Organized Territory.

Alaskans voted for statehood in 1946, 9,630 for, 6,822 against. Congressional action is pendings. Alaska is governed by a legislative assembly of 16 senators, elected for 4 years, 24 representatives, elected for 2 years; Congress reserves certain legislation. A delegate is elected biennially to Congress, but has no vote. The governor is appointed by the president. Police and land departments were created in 1953. The white population has been growing by immigration in recent years. There are about 33,000 Eskimos, Indians and Aleuts.

Most of Alaska's vast forests (hemlock, spruce, etc.) are national forest reserves comprising 21,000,000 acres. Alaska's first pulp mill is in Ketchikan. It will utilize 1,000,000 acres of forest lands at the rate of 150,000,000 board feet annually. Fisheries produce salmon, halibut, herring and shellfish; the seal industry center is on the Pribilofs. Canning and salting fish is a big industry. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service supervises salmon, fur seals, protects spawning grounds, stops poaching. The U. S. Bureau of Reclamation is conducting the Eklutna project, 30 mi. N. E. of Anchorage, primarily to supply electric power from a 30,000-kwt. plant, irrigation to come later. A 621-mi. pipeline from Haines to Fairbanks via parts of British Columbia and Yukon Terr. was begun in 1954. It will aid U. S. and Canadian defense plans.

Gold is still produced in quantity and the only tin mines of North America are here. Platinum, antimony, tungsten are found. Hard and soft coal are mined; natural gas and petroleum resources are being systematically explored. Marble, barite, graphite, gypsum, sulphur are found.

Estimated population (1954) is 151,900. Population of chief towns (1950 Census): Anchorage, 11,254; Fairbanks, 5,771; Juneau, 5,956; Ketchikan, 5,305.

Air transportation has played an important part in development of Alaska. Fairbanks, principal city of the interior, is the northernmost air center on the continent. Eleven certified scheduled air carriers serve it: Northern Consolidated, Alaska, Wlen-Alaska, Pan American, Canadian Pacific, Pacific Northern, Cordova and others.

The highway system totals 3,482 mi. comprising 1,000 mi. of primary roads, 1,200 mi. of secondary roads, and more than 1,300 mi. of local roads. The Alaska Highway gave the country its first land link with the United States. The Alaska Railroad, ocean vessels, and river steamboats also operate. The Yukon, 1,800 mi., is the chief river. Mt. McKinley, 20,300 ft., is the highest peak in North America; Mt. McKinley National Park, 3,030 sq. mi., also has Mt. Foraker, 17,395 ft., Mt. Blackburn, 16,523 ft., and others. The Valley of 10,000 Smokes near Katmai is named because of vapor discharges. The Japanese current warms the coast and temperatures average about 60° in summer and rarely fall below zero. In the interior temperatures may reach 70° below zero and 100° above.

Univ. of Alaska near Fairbanks, is the Territory's only institution of higher education.

Hawaii

Paradise of the Pacific

CAPITAL: Honolulu. AREA: 6,423 sq. mi. POPULATION: (Census of 1950), 499,794. MOTTO: Righteousness Perpetuates the Life of the Land. FLOWER: Red Hibiscus. SONG: Hawaii Ponoi.

The Territory of Hawaii consists of 20 islands, 9 inhabited, in the North Pacific ocean, longitude 154° 40'—160° 30' W.; latitude 22° 16'—18° 55' N. It is over 2,000 mi. from its nearest mainland point, San Francisco. The principal islands are Hawaii, the largest, with 4,021 sq. mi.; Oahu, Kahoolawe, Lanai, Maui, Molokai, Kauai and Niihau. Kure or Ocean and Palmyra are part of the group. Outlying islands, included in area and census figures but not under the jurisdiction of the territory are Baker, Canton, Enderbury, Howland, Jarvis, Johnston, Midway and Wake, area 35 sq. mi. Hawaii was formerly annexed by voluntary action of its citizens and a Congressional resolution of July 7, 1898. The Territory was established June 14, 1900.

The islands are volcanic. Highest point is Mauna Kea, on Hawaii, an extinct volcano, 13,784 ft. above sea level, rising from the land more than that distance below sea level. Its twin is Mauna Loa, 13,680 ft., largest active volcano in the world. Always active is the "pit of eternal fire" on Kilauea, a volcano 4,090 ft. up on Mauna Loa, one of the great spectacles of nature. These two volcanoes are in Hawaii National Park, 245 sq. mi. Tourists, using airplanes, fly over volcanoes.

Hawaii's population was estimated in 1955 at 491,756. Honolulu, pop. (1955), 252,158 (county, 98,347), capital and chief port is on Oahu, as is Pearl Harbor, U.S. Naval base.

Hawaii has a governor appointed by the President for 4 years; he must have resided three years in the islands. The President also appoints a secretary, 3 justices of the supreme court, 9 justices of circuit courts and several other officials, all confirmed by the U.S. Senate. District judges are appointed by the chief justice. One delegate to Congress is elected every two years; he has floor privileges but may not vote. The territory voted for statehood in 1940, 39,413 for, 19,911 against. Congressional action is awaited. A constitution providing for an elected governor and a bicameral legislature, a senate of 25 and a house of 51, was signed by delegates to the Constitutional Convention, July 22, 1950.

In 1954, 1,068 ships cleared Honolulu Harbor with 9,344,426 gross tons. The city also is the principal airport, with 266,583 flights during 1954 carrying 733,337 persons between Hawaii and other terminals. The Territory has 16 airports.

Largest industries, in order, are: sugar, pineapples, livestock, fishing. Sugar production annually is approx. 1,100,000 tons worth about $148,000,000. Pineapples, 29,000,000 crates of fruit and juice in 1954 were valued at $108,000,000, and tourists spent an est. $50,000,000.

While the pure Hawaiian strain is decreasing, part-Hawaiians show the largest increase of any racial group.

As of Jan. 1, 1955, there were 198 public schools, 105 private schools; the University of Hawaii had 4,671 students.

OTHER REGIONS ADMINISTERED BY U. S.

Canal Zone and Panama Canal

The Canal Zone, in effect a U.S. Government reservation, is a strip of land extending 5 mi. on either side of the axis of the Panama Canal on the Isthmus of Panama, and is under the jurisdiction of the United States by treaty with the Republic of Panama. Through it runs the Panama Canal, connecting the Caribbean Sea with the Gulf of Panama of the Pacific Ocean. The Caribbean port is Cristobal, formerly part of Colon; the Gulf port is Balboa. Adjoining Balboa are the administrative center of Balboa Heights, and Ancon. The terminal cities of Colon and Panama belong to the republic.

The Canal Zone has an area of 648 sq. mi., of which 371 sq. mi. are land. Gatun Lake, 163.4 sq. mi., is used by the Canal. Jurisdiction extends to Madden Dam on the Chagres river.

The Canal Zone Government deals with administration, including sanitation and health. The Canal is operated and regulated financially by the Panama Canal Co., a government body. Both are headed by Brig. Gen. John S. Seybold, USA, who is governor of the Zone and president of the company.

A French syndicate under Ferdinand de Lesseps failed to complete a canal, 1880-89, and a second French company failed in 1899. The U.S. bought their rights and offered Colombia compensation for a canal zone, but Colombia failed to ratify the treaty Oct., 1903. Panama declared itself independent of Colombia Nov. 3, 1903, and was recognized by President Theodore Roosevelt Nov. 6. American naval vessels prevented Colombia from landing troops. On Nov. 18 Panama granted the Canal strip to the U.S. by treaty, ratified Feb. 26, 1904, compensation $10,000,000, with annual payments of $250,000 after 9 years, and a guarantee of Panama independence. The canal was opened to traffic Aug. 15, 1914. In 1921 Colombia accepted $25,000,000 compensation from the U.S. for the loss of Panama. In 1936 the U.S. agreed to pay Panama $430,000 a year and withdrew its guarantee of independence. A new basic treaty, signed Jan. 25, 1955 is described below.

Only military units, civilian employees of the Government and their families, are allowed in the Canal Zone. The 1954 population was 38,953, excluding uniformed personnel of the Armed Forces.

THE PANAMA CANAL

The Panama Canal is a lock and lake canal, crossing the Isthmus of Panama from the Caribbean Sea in a southeasterly direction to the Gulf of Panama of the Pacific Ocean. It is 50.72 mi. long, at least 300 ft. wide at the bottom of excavated channels, 110 ft. wide in lock chambers, which have a usable length of 1,000 ft. Depth varies, but is not less than 41 ft. in sea-level sections.

On the Atlantic slope the Canal follows the former valley of the Chagres River; on the Pacific, that of the Rio Grande. Dams were built across these valleys to form lakes on which the ships are floated, and connection between the two valleys, through the intervening divide, was made by excavating Culebra Cut (officially named Gaillard Cut).

The summit elevation, i. e., the surface of Gatun Lake and of Gaillard Cut, which is an artificial arm of the lake, is normally 85 feet above sea level, and the bottom of the Cut was normal depth of 40 feet above sea level, giving Gatun Lake is 23 $\frac{3}{4}$ miles long, and the Cut is 8 miles long.

The locks serve to raise ships from the sea to the summit level, or to lower them to sea after they have crossed the Isthmus. On the Atlantic side the lift is made at Gatun Locks, which have 3 steps or chambers, called lower, middle, and upper. On the Pacific side, one step is made at Pedro Miguel Lock, at the Pacific end of Gaillard Cut, and two at Miraflores Locks, about a mile to the south.

In 1954 a total of 10,145 transits were made (5,021 from the Atlantic to the Pacific and 5,124 from the Pacific to the Atlantic). Of these, 9,006 were ocean-going commercial vessels with 39,095,067 tons of cargo. Tolls on commercial vessels amounted to $33,302,000; Government ships, $3,889,000. From 1914-1954 the Canal has handled 233,841 transits of all types.

NEW CANAL ZONE TREATY

A new treaty regulating relations between the United States and Panama was signed in Panama City, Jan. 25, 1955, effective Aug. 23 after ratification by the U.S. Senate, July 29, and by Panama. The last revision of treaty relations had been the General Treaty of 1936.

Principal among concessions made by the United States was an increase in the annuity paid Panama for use of Panamanian territory for Canal Zone purposes from $430,000 to $1,930,000 yearly. Panama had asked $5,000,000 during negotiations. In addition, the United States returned to Panama about $24,000,000 worth of real estate no longer needed by the Canal Zone administration. Local and American employees of the company which operates the canal were guaranteed equality of pay and opportunity.

Under the treaty Panama is enabled to levy income taxes on Panamanian citizens and those of third countries employed by Canal Zone agencies; United States citizens and members of the armed forces are exempt.

Panama agreed to permit the United States to build a contemplated military road across the isthmus, from which civilian traffic may be excluded, and granted the United States rights to about 19,000 acres in the Rio Hato region for military training and maneuvers for a period of 15 years. It agreed to lower by 75% taxes on liquor consumed in the Canal Zone.

Virgin Islands

CAPITAL: Charlotte Amalie, formerly St. Thomas. AREA: 132 square miles. POPULATION: (Census of 1950): 26,665. FLOWER: Yellow Elder.

The Virgin Islands form the most easterly U. S. territory in the Western Hemisphere. They comprise about 50 islands lying east of Puerto Rico, 1,500 miles southeast of New York, in the eastern Caribbean Sea. The three largest, St. Thomas, St. John and St. Croix are inhabited. Formerly known as the Danish West Indies they were purchased from Denmark for $25,000,000 (proclaimed Mar. 31, 1917). They are part of a numerous group of islands discovered by Columbus in 1493 and named Las Virgenes for St. Ursula and her associates. Approximately 80 per cent of the population is of Negro descent.

St. Thomas, most populous and cosmopolitan, has the principal harbor and the seat of Government. It is situated 40 miles east of Puerto Rico, about the same distance from the Northern shore line of the group's largest island, St. Croix.

Congress conferred citizenship upon the natives in 1927 and, under the Organic Act (June 22, 1936) universal suffrage was granted to all who could read and write the English language. Education is compulsory and there are 31 schools in the three main islands. English is universally spoken.

The islands are comprised of two municipalities, St. Thomas-St. John and St. Croix. Under the revised Organic Act, approved July 22, 1954, legislative power is vested in a unicameral house of 11 Senators, elected for two years. The Governor, appointed by the President, has certain veto powers. The islands are under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior. The governor is Walter A. Gordon, apptd. Aug. 19, 1955.

The islands have a workmen's compensation law, minimum wage and hour act, a full employment act and stringent anti-discrimination laws.

The U. S. Supreme Court voided the Territory's short-residence divorce law in a 5-to-3 decision April 11, 1955.

Rum and bay rum are the chief exports. The islands also produce sugar, bay oil, lime juice concentrates, molasses and hides. Some livestock is raised. St. Thomas and St. Croix are served by the Caribbean and Pan American airlines and several steamship lines. The islands are increasingly popular as a resort area. Mean winter temperature is 78°, summer, 82°.

Guam

CAPITAL: Agaña. AREA: 206 square miles. POPULATION (Census of 1950): 59,498.

Guam, the largest of the Mariana Islands, now an unincorporated territory, was ceded to the United States by Spain by Article Two of the Treaty of Paris (Dec. 10, 1898). It is 30 miles long and four to eight and one-half miles wide. Distance from Manila, 1,499 miles; from San Francisco, 5,053 miles, in the typhoon belt of the Western Pacific.

The United States has developed harbor facilities, airfields and other installations to make Guam one of the most important of the chain of bases in the Pacific. It now is the principal Pacific base of the USAF Strategic Air Command. The port of entry is Apra. Guam also is reached by Pan American World Airways.

Following fifty years' rule by the U. S. Navy, the island came under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior July 1, 1950. The island is administered under the Organic Act of Guam, approved Aug. 1, 1950. The unicameral Guamanian Congress, elected biennially by permanent residents, possesses powers similar to those of an American state legislature.

The natives are a mixed race called Chamorros, with the Malay strain predominating. Language is Chamorro, but Spanish and English also are spoken with English the official language. The Catholic church predominates. Elementary education is compulsory.

Exports include copra and coconut oil. All manufactured products are imported from the States and imports exceed exports by about four to one.

Magellan discovered the group of islands, March 6, 1521, while on his voyage around the world and named the group Ladrones. The islands were colonized (1668) by Spanish missionaries who renamed them the Marianne Islands, in honor of Maria Ana of Austria, Queen of Spain.

American Samoa

CAPITAL: Pago Pago, Island of Tutuila. AREA: 76 square miles. POPULATION (Census of 1950): 18,937.

American Samoa, comprising the islands of Tutuila, Anuuu, Manna Islands (Tau, Olosega and Ofu), and Rose Island, a coral atoll, became a possession of the United States by virtue of a convention with Great Britain and Germany (Dec. 2, 1899, confirmed in 1900 and 1904). Another, Swain's Island, was annexed in 1925. Formerly under jurisdiction of the Navy, since July 1, 1951 it is administered by the Department of the Interior. The United States maintains a high powered radio station on Tutuila which reaches the United States, New Zealand, Australia, Honolulu and other islands in the Pacific. The station is open for commercial traffic.

Pago Pago, in Tutuila, is a valuable harbor and a United States Navy coaling station. It was ceded to the United States by the native king, 1872.

American Samoa is 4,150 miles from San Francisco, 2,276 from Hawaii, 1,565 from Auckland and 4,619 from Manila via San Bernardino Strait.

Tutuila has an area of 40.2 square miles. Tau has an area of 14 square miles and the islets of Ofu and Olosega four square miles with a population of a few thousand. Swain's Island has an area approaching two square miles and a few hundred people.

The chief product and export is copra. Taro, breadfruit, yams, coconuts, pineapples, oranges and bananas also are produced for commercial purposes. About 70 per cent of the land is forest.

The natives are of a high type of the Polynesian race. Local laws prohibit foreigners from buying their lands.

Education is compulsory between 7 and 15.

Wake and Midway Islands

Wake Island, with sister islands, Wilkes and Peale, lies in the Pacific Ocean on the direct route from Hawaii to Hong Kong, about 2,000 miles west of Hawaii and 1,290 miles from Guam. The group is $4\frac{1}{2}$ mi. long, $1\frac{1}{2}$ mi. wide and totals about 2,000 acres.

The United States flag was hoisted over Wake Island, July 4, 1898, by Gen. F. V. Greene, commanding Second Detachment, Philippine expedition. Formal possession was taken Jan. 17, 1899.

The Midway Islands, acquired in 1867, are a group in the North Pacific, 1,200 miles northwest of the Hawaiian Islands, and generally grouped with the latter geographically. The area of the group is 28 square miles.

Wake and Midway are reached by Pan American World Airways.

Kure Island, on the westerly edge of the Hawaiian group, of value as an air base, was placed under control of the Navy by Presidential order Feb. 21, 1936.

Johnson and Kingman's, in the Pacific, also are under control of the Navy.

Howland, Jarvis and Baker Islands, south of the Hawaiian group, also of value as air bases and owned by the United States, were settled and equipped as aerological stations by young Hawaiians acting under the Federal Division of Territories and Insular Possessions.

Canton and Enderbury Islands

The United States and Great Britain agreed April 6, 1939 on a system of joint control and administration of Canton and Enderbury Islands of the Phoenix group in the Central Pacific, about half way between Hawaii and Australia. The formula applies for fifty years and thereafter indefinitely unless modified or terminated. Each government is represented by an administrative official and the islands are "available for communications and for use as airports for international aviation, but only civil aviation companies, incorporated in the United States or America or in any part of the British Commonwealth of Nations for the purpose of scheduled air services." The United States is permitted to build and operate an airport on Canton that will be open to use by British aircraft and civil aviation companies on equal terms.

Islands Under Trusteeship

CAROLINES, MARIANAS, MARSHALLS

The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, comprised of 625 islands in the western Pacific Ocean, including the Caroline, Marshall, and Mariana Islands (except Guam), which were formerly under Japanese mandate, has been placed under the trusteeship system of the United Nations by an agreement approved by the Security Council April 2, 1947, and by the United States government July 18, 1947. Dept. of the Interior took charge July 1, 1951. All of the Mariana Islands except Rota have been transferred to Navy administration.

Germany seized many of the islands in 1885 while the others were under Spanish rule until the Spanish-American War, 1898, when Spain sold them to Germany. After the outbreak of World War I, 1914, Japan took over administration of the islands "to protect the interests of the Western Allies" and later the mandates over them were awarded to Japan. In the period between the two wars, Japan fortified all of the larger islands in violation of its mandates and it was from there that it launched the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

The total population of the Islands is estimated at 85,000, with only a small percentage of white settlers. Most of the islands are volcanic and picturesque, with luxuriant vegetation, but only a few of them are self-sustaining. The others depend on the United States for their sustenance.

(a) As the State of Ohio; (b) as the State of Tennessee; (c) as the State of Louisiana; (d) the organic act for Missouri Territory of June 4, 1812, became effective the first Monday in December (7th), 1812.

Origin of the Names of the States and Territories

Alabama—Alibama was an Indian tribe of the Creek confederacy. Alibamu comes from Choctaw words meaning "I clear the thicket."

Alaska—From Eskimo, meaning great lands.

Arizona—Spaniards called the region arida zona, or dry belt. The name is also ascribed to similar Pima Indian words, ari, small, and zonac, spring, i.e., lack of water.

Arkansas (pronounced Arkansaw)—Algonquian name of Quapaw Indians.

California—Bestowed by the Spanish Conquistadores, being the name of an imaginary island, near the earthly paradise, in "Las Serges de Esplandian," a romance of chivalry written by Montalvo, 1510. Baja California (Lower California, Mexico) was first penetrated 1533. The state later was Alta (Upper) California.

Colorado—Spanish, meaning red.

Connecticut—From Indian, Quonectacut, or Long River.

Dakota—An Indian word meaning allies, or allied, designating the Dakota tribes.

Delaware—Named for Lord de la Warr of England, governor of Virginia, who entered the bay, 1610.

District of Columbia—Named for Columbus by the Federal Commissioners who laid it out in 1791.

Florida—Named by Ponce de Leon on Pascua Florida, Feast of Flowers, Easter Sunday, 1513.

Georgia—Named for King George II of England.

Hawaii—English spelling of Ohwyhee, where Capt. Cook was killed by the natives, 1779.

Idaho—Indian words, Edah hoe, or Light on the Mountains.

Illinois—French name for Illini, an Indian tribe exterminated by Iroquois on Starved Rock. Illini means men.

Indiana—State of the Indians.

Iowa—Named after a Sioux tribe called Ioways or Alakouez, "sleepy ones," by settlers.

Kansas—Named after a Sioux tribe called People of the South Wind.

Kentucky—From a Wyandot word, Ken-tah-ten, meaning land of tomorrow.

Louisiana—Part of the vast territory called Louisiana by Robert, Cavalier de la Salle in 1682 for Louis XIV of France.

Maine—From Maine, an ancient province of France, south of Normandy, owned by Queen Henrietta Maria, wife of King Charles I.

Maryland—Named for Queen Henrietta Maria.

Massachusetts—Algonquian, from Massadchu-eset, meaning "Great-hill-small-place," a place near the big little hills.

Michigan—From Algonquian word Michi, great, and Gama, water, applied to Lake Michigan. Michi comes from the same root as Missi in Mississippi.

Minnesota—Two Sioux words—"sky-colored water."

Mississippi—From Algonquian words meaning Great River, first written by Tonti as Michi Sepe, later by Fr. Labatt as Missipi. Marquette added another "s". In France it was spelled with one "p" at the time of the Louisiana Purchase.

Missouri—From a Sioux tribe of that name.

Montana—Spanish for mountain country.

Nebraska—From an Otos Indian word meaning Flat River, referring to the Platte River.

Nevada—Spanish, meaning snow-clad.

New Hampshire—Named (1629) after the County of Hampshire, England, by the patentee, Capt. John Mason of the Plymouth Council.

New Jersey—The Duke of York of England, 1664, granted to Lord John Berkeley and Sir George Carteret a patent to the present boundaries to be called Nova Caesaria, or New Jersey, Caesarea, or Caesaria, was the ancient name of the island of Jersey which Carteret had administered.

New Mexico—A term applied by the Spaniards in Mexico to territory north and west of the Rio Grande in the 16th century. Mexico comes from the Aztec word Mexitli, their war god.

New York—So called in honor of the Duke of York who got the patent from his brother King Charles II, of England and sent an expedition and took possession of New Netherland, 1664.

North Carolina—The patent granted by King Charles I, of England (Oct. 30, 1629), to Sir Robert Heath, his Attorney-General, of the territory between the 31st and the 36th parallels of north latitude from the Atlantic Ocean to the South Seas, decreed its name to be "Carolina or Province of Carolina" from Carolus, Latin for Charles. Under the name of Carolina this territory was under a new patent (dated March 24, 1662-3) granted by King Charles II, of England to the Earl of Clarendon and others.

North Dakota—Dakota is a Sioux word meaning alliance of friends.

Ohio—Iroquois name, denoting great.

Oklahoma—Choctaw word for "red people."

Oregon—Various origins of the name have been suggested as follows: Origanum, a wild sage found on the coast; Orejon, or Oregones, a Spanish name for big-eared (Indian) men; Orgon, a river in Chinese Tartary; Oyerun-gen, a Shoshone Indian word for "place of plenty"; Aura aqua, Spanish word meaning gently falling waters; Ouragan, a French word for hurricane; Wau-re-gan, an Algonquian word for "beautiful water."

Pennsylvania—William Penn, the Quaker, who was made full proprietor by King Charles II in 1681, suggested Sylvania, or woodland, for his tract. The king's government owed Penn's father, Admiral William Penn, £16,000, and the land being granted in part settlement, the king added the name Penn to Sylvania, against the desires of the modest proprietor, in honor of the admiral.

Puerto Rico—From the Spanish Puerto Rico, Rich Port.

Rhode Island—Isle of Rhodes, first applied by Verrazano, 1524, was chosen by the General Court of the colony, 1644. One island had been called Aquidneck. The name of Roger Williams' settlement, Providence Plantations, was also used.

South Carolina—See North Carolina.

Tennessee—From 1784 to 1788 this was the State of Franklin, or Frankland. Tennesse was the name of the chief town of the Cherokees on the Little Tennessee river.

Texas—Named for Tejas, an Indian word meaning friends or allies, applied to Indian tribes living around Spanish missions in eastern Texas.

Utah—Named after the Utes, an Indian tribe.

Vermont—From French words Vert, green, and Mont, mountain. The Green Mountains were said to have been named by Samuel de Champlain. The Green Mountain Boys were Gen. Stark's men in the Revolution. When the state was formed, 1777, Dr. Thos. Young suggested combining vert and mont into Vermont.

Virginia—Named by Sir Walter Raleigh, who fitted out the expedition of 1584, in honor of Queen Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen of England.

Washington—Named after George Washington. When the bill creating the Territory of Columbia was introduced in the 32nd Congress, the name was changed to Washington because of the existence of the District of Columbia.

West Virginia—So named when western counties left Virginia, 1863.

Wisconsin—An Indian name, spelled Ouisconsin and Misconsin by early chroniclers. Means meeting of the waters. Congress made it Wisconsin.

Wyoming—The word was taken from Wyoming Valley, Pennsylvania, meaning mountains and valleys alternating. The original valley, site of an Indian massacre, became widely known by Campbell's poem, Gertrude of Wyoming.

How the United States Expanded Across Continent and Ocean

When the War of the Revolution ended the 13 original states—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia had a land and water area of 892,135 sq. mi., comprising New England, all land from Canada to Florida and from the Atlantic to the Mississippi. At the request of Congress (acting under the Articles of Confederation) the states gave their unorganized land to the Congress, which passed the Northwest Ordinance of 1787, and formed Northwest Terr., north of the Ohio river, and another territory south of it.

France originally occupied and fortified a large area from Canada to the Gulf via the Great Lakes and the Mississippi, which it lost to Britain by the Treaty of 1763 at the end of the Seven Years' War, also called the French and Indian War. Britain yielded this territory to the U. S. by the Treaty of Paris, 1783. After fighting Indians and British in border campaigns, the U. S. took possession July 11, 1796.

Louisiana Purchase

The first accession to the United States was the Louisiana Purchase, 827,987 sq. mi. west of the Mississippi. This was held by Spain until ceded to France in 1800, with the proviso that it go back to Spain if France gave it up. In order to free navigation on the Mississippi President Jefferson sent James Monroe and Robert R. Livingston to Paris to buy the Isle of Orleans (New Orleans) and West Florida, for which Congress voted $2,000,000. Napoleon, defeated in San Domingo, offered the vast Louisiana area. The treaty was signed Apr. 30, 1803; Congress ratified it in October; the U. S. took possession at New Orleans Dec. 20, 1803. The U. S. paid $11,250,000 (60,000,000 francs), assumed claims of Americans against France, $3,750,000. Total cost $15,000,000 excluding interest.

Nobody knew the exact boundaries. After Mar. 10, 1804, the U. S. divided the Purchase into the Territory of Orleans, later the state of Louisiana, and the Territory of Louisiana. Included in the Purchase were the present state of Louisiana west of the Mississippi plus the port of New Orleans; the present areas of Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota; North Dakota except the northeast corner, held by Britain until the treaty of 1819; Minnesota west of the Mississippi; Kansas except a small part in the southwest; Oklahoma except the Panhandle no-man's-land; parts of Colorado and Montana. Sometimes Wyoming was claimed and the territory was thought to have run as far as the Pacific coast, but U. S., Britain, Spain and Russia had conflicting claims and settled them by treaty.

Spain Gives Up Florida

Spain, which still claimed East Florida and West Florida as far as Mobile, Ala., ceded all rights to the U. S. by treaty Feb. 22, 1819, ratified by Spain 1821. The U. S. gave up claims to an undetermined border in Texas and on the Rio Grande and assumed $5,000,000 worth of Spanish obligations to Americans; total cost of the second accession, $6,674,057.

Spain, Britain, France and the Americans had fought in this territory. Spain's title was recognized in 1783. In 1810 the U. S. took possession of large areas along the Gulf, except Mobile, and West Florida declared itself independent and asked annexation. In 1814 Gen. Andrew Jackson took Pensacola from the British.

Oregon Territory Organized

Organization of the Territory of Oregon in 1848 was not called an accession because the U. S. claimed title by (1) discovery and occupation; (2) a free interpretation of the Louisiana Purchase; (3) treaties with Spain, 1819, Great Britain, 1818, Russia, 1824. The northern boundary was settled by treaty with Britain in 1846.

The Territory extended from the crest of the Rockies to the Pacific coast, north of 42° N. Lat. and included the present states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and parts of Montana and Wyoming.

Admission of Texas as State

The third accession came when the Republic of Texas was admitted to the Union as a state, Dec. 29, 1845. This was part of a Mexican state settled by many U. S. citizens. Texas declared its independence in 1836, was recognized by the U. S. and applied for admission into the Union. It was bounded by the Rio Grande on the Southwest, and the Sabine, Red and Arkansas Rivers on the North and Northeast, and roughly comprised parts of present New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and a bit of Kansas as well as Texas of today, 390,144 sq. mi. Today the state has 267,339 sq. mi. Texas had declared for slavery and its admission was opposed by anti-slavery men. Since a two-thirds majority of the Senate could not be attained it was admitted, Mar. 1, 1845, by a joint resolution of Congress, requiring only a majority of both houses. Texas ratified the agreement July 4, 1845.

Texas formally became a state Dec. 29, 1845. Congress gave Texas the right to divide itself into as many as five states "of convenient size" and sufficient population, at its own discretion. The Lone Star flag of the republic has been retained as the state flag of Texas. It can be flown by the side of the Stars and Stripes, but not above it.

Territory from Mexico

At the end of the Mexican War the U. S. and Mexico signed the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, Feb. 2, 1848, which gave the fourth large accession of territory. This included the present states of Arizona, New Mexico, California, Nevada, Utah, and Colorado west of the Rockies. The Gila river was a boundary line. The U. S. paid $15,000,000 to Mexico and assumed claims of U. S. citizens against Mexico. The claim of Texas to part of New Mexico territory was settled in 1850 by paying Texas $10,000,000. Interest increased both totals.

Inexact boundaries and agitation by railroad men for the Gila river valley to build the Southern Pacific led President Franklin Pierce to send James Gadsden as ambassador to Mexico to negotiate concessions of land. Gadsden got the Mexican dictator, Santa Anna, to yield 29,640 sq. mi. for $10,000,000 in 1853. This made the Rio Grande the boundary line on the South and the Colorado river on the West.

Alaska from Russia

Alaska was sold to the U. S. by Russia Mar. 30, 1867, for $7,200,000 in gold, through the efforts of William H. Seward, secretary of state under President Johnson, after much opposition. It was ratified June 20, 1867, and the U. S. took possession at Sitka Oct. 18, 1867. It has 586,400 sq. mi.

The legend that the U. S. bought Alaska to repay Russia for allegedly preventing Great Britain from rendering aid to the South in the Civil War is without foundation.

Hawaii Joins U. S.

Hawaii, an independent kingdom with independence guaranteed by Great Britain and France in 1844, had a revolution in 1893 and formed a republic in 1894. The republic asked annexation to the U. S., which was voted 1898. The U. S. assumed the Hawaiian national debt of $4,000,000. The Territory of Hawaii was established June 14, 1900. It has an area of 6,423 sq. mi.

Islands from Spain

After the 1898 war with Spain, Spain by treaty of Dec. 10, 1898, ceded Puerto Rico, Guam and the Philippine islands for $20,000,000. An additional $100,000 was paid later for islands of the Philippines not in the original treaty. Puerto Rico is a free commonwealth electing its own executives. Guam is administered by the Dept. of the Interior. The Philippine Islands received their independence July 4, 1946, as the Republic of the Philippines, and executed a treaty of defense with the U. S.

Panama Canal Zone

After the Republic of Panama was established the U. S. leased the Panama Canal Zone Feb. 26, 1904, for $10,000,000 outright and annual payments of $250,000, which sum was increased to $430,000 annually in 1936, and to $1,930,000 in 1955.

Virgin and Other Islands

On Jan. 25, 1917, the U. S. bought the Danish West Indies, comprising the islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John and numerous smaller islands from Denmark for $25,000,000. It established territorial government with an elective legislature and a governor appointed by the President. The islands were renamed Virgin islands, the title first given them by Columbus.

The U. S. also exercises sovereignty over American Samoa since Nov. 1889, and Swain's island, a naval station, annexed 1925. It took possession of Wake island in mid-Pacific July 4, 1898, and also owns Midway Islands, in the North Pacific.

Public Lands of the United States

Source: Bureau of Land Management, U. S. Dept. of the Interior

The term "original public domain" embraces all the area title to which was vested in the United States Government by virtue of its sovereignty. In continental United States, the "original public domain" involved 1,442,200,220 acres of land and 20,232,320 acres of water area, which included the States of Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, and every State north and west of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers except Texas. In addition, it included the Territory of Alaska. It was acquired in the following manner:

Laying of First Trans-Atlantic Telephone Cable Begun

Laying of the first trans-Atlantic telephone cable was begun in June, 1955, at Clarenville, Newfoundland, by the British cable ship Monarch. The ship was equipped to place 2,373 miles of cable on the ocean floor to Oban, Argyll, on the mainland of Scotland opposite the island of Mull. It is a joint effort of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Co. and the British Post Office. It will cost $40,000,000, half of which will be borne by the American corporation.

The cable will contain 18 circuits for a one-way conversation. A second cable making a two-way talk possible will be laid in 1956, with a total of 36 circuits. A single cable will connect Newfoundland with Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, when radio relay will connect with Portland, Me.

The cable varies in diameter from 2½ inches near the shore, where it must be specially protected, to 1 inch in mid-ocean. Since the human voice carries only about 60 miles by cable, 52 repeaters that amplify the voice and 8 equalizers that prevent vocal distortion will be installed as part of the cable. The present method of trans-oceanic telephone is by radio impulses, which are frequently disturbed and unreliable. They will, however, be continued after the cables begin operating.

The Flag of the United States

HISTORICAL ORIGIN OF THE STARS AND STRIPES

The flag of the United States originated in an act of the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, June 14, 1777. It was not the first flag under which colonists fought in the American War of Independence, nor did it exist in this form when the Declaration of Independence was issued.

Many different kinds of flags were improvised in the colonies. Some carried Latin mottoes. Sometimes, as in New York, the word Liberty was emblazoned. The Sons of Liberty in Cambridge, Mass., in 1770 raised a plain red flag on the Harvard campus. Later they placed a green pine tree on it. They carried this flag at the battle of Bunker Hill. A favorite device was a rattlesnake, and one famous flag bore the legend "Don't Tread on Me." The rattlesnake was in the public mind after Benjamin Franklin's paper, the Pennsylvania Gazette, suggested sending a cargo of rattlesnakes to London parks in retaliation for British injustice.

In 1775 the Philadelphia Light Horse carried a standard with 13 alternate blue and silver stripes in the upper left-hand corner. Flags with 13 alternating stripes were not uncommon. The Dutch East India Co. had a flag with 13 red and white stripes and a red cross on a white union as early as 1704 and flew it in New York harbor. There is also record of a Dutch flag with 13 yellow and red stripes.

In 1775 the Continental Congress appointed Benjamin Franklin, Benjamin Harrison and Thomas Lynch to go to Boston to confer on a flag. They decided on 13 red and white stripes with the cross of St. George and St. Andrew on a blue field in the corner. This flag was raised by George Washington Jan. 2, 1776, and was known as the Grand Union flag. On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress resolved "that the flag of the United States be 13 stripes alternate red and white, that the union be 13 stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation." It is believed this flag was used on the sea long before it reached the army. Some historians believe the official flag did not come into use until after Yorktown.

Two legends have become associated with this flag. One is that Washington visited Betsy Ross in Philadelphia and suggested the design, which she then modified, changing the points of the stars from six to five. Historians doubt the accuracy of this account, which was not circulated until the latter half of the 19th century. The other is that the stars and stripes were suggested by the coat of arms of the Washington family at Sulgrave Manor, England. This tale was not heard until 1850, when Martin Tupper, English writer, suggested it. It has no basis.

Francis Hopkinson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, claimed that he was the designer of the Stars and Stripes. He also designed a number of coins and several items of paper currency in the early days of the Republic. Hopkinson, born in Philadelphia Sept. 21, 1737, and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, was the first native American composer of a secular song "My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free." He was a lawyer and later a judge in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. He played the organ and the harpsichord. He died in Philadelphia on May 9, 1791.

The following description of the significance of the different parts of our national flag was written by a member of the committee appointed by the Continental Congress in 1777 to design a flag:

The stars of the new flag represent the new constellation of states rising in the West. The idea was taken from the constellation of Lyra, which in the land of Orpheus signifies harmony. The blue in the field was taken from the edges of the Covenanters' banner, in Scotland, significant of the league-covenant of the United Colonies against oppression, incidentally involving the virtues of vigilance, perseverance and justice. The stars were disposed in a circle symbolizing the perpetuity of the Union; the ring, like the serpent of the Egyptians, signifying eternity. The thirteen stripes showed with the stars, the number of the United Colonies, and denoted the subordination of the states to the Union, as well as equality among themselves. The whole was the blending of the various flags of the army and the white ones of the floating batteries. The red color, which in Roman days was the signal of defiance, denoted daring and the white purity.

The flag of 1777 was used until 1795. Then, on the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union, Congress passed and President Washington signed an act that after May 1, 1795 the flag should have 15 stripes, alternate red and white, and 15 white stars on a blue field in the Union. The stars were arranged in three rows of five each. The flag flown on the Constitution and other ships during the War of 1812 had 15 stripes.

When new states were admitted it became evident that the flag would become burdened with stripes. Congress thereupon ordered that after July 4, 1818, the flag should have 13 stripes, symbolizing the 13 original states; that the union have 20 stars, and that whenever a new state was admitted a new star should be added on the July 4 following admission; no law designates the permanent arrangement of the stars, but when a new state is admitted a new pattern is authorized by executive order.

The flag of the United States (The Stars and Stripes) has 13 horizontal stripes—7 red and 6 white—the red and white stripes alternating, and a union which consists of white stars of five points on a blue field placed in the upper corner next to the staff and extending to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top. The flag now contains 48 stars arranged in six horizontal and eight vertical rows, each star with one point upward.

Proper Display of the United States Flag

Congress, by joint resolution (approved by the President Dec. 22, 1942) established the following regulations as to the display and use of the American flag by such civilians or civilian groups or organizations as may not be required to conform with regulations promulgated by one or more executive departments of the Government of the United States.

When to Display the Flag—The flag should be displayed on all days when the weather permits, especially on New Year's Day, Inauguration Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Armed Forces Day, Easter Sunday, Mother's Day, Memorial Day (half staff until noon), Flag Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Constitution Day, Columbus Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, and such other days as may be proclaimed by the President of the United States; the birthdays of States (dates of admission); and on State holidays.

It should be displayed daily, weather permitting, on or near the main administration building of every public institution. It should be displayed in or near every polling place on election days. It should be displayed during school days in or near every schoolhouse.

It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open. However, the flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect. It should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously. It should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement.

How to Fly the Flag—When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half staff. When the flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out, union first, from the building. When the flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out, or so suspended that its folds fall as free as though the flag were staffed. When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

No other flag or pennant should be placed above or, if on the same level, to the right of the American flag, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea, when the church pennant may be flown above the flag during church services for the personnel of the Navy.

When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag; at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of states or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

When these other flags are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the flag of the United States should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant may be placed above the flag of the United States or to its right. When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size.

In June, 1953, Congress passed a new law permitting one exception: the United Nations flag may be flown above that of the United States and other member nations at United Nations headquarters.

Church and Platform Use of the Flag—When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, if it is displayed in the chancel of a church, or on the speaker's platform in a public auditorium, the flag should occupy the position of honor and be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the congregation or audience. Any other flag so displayed in the chancel or on the platform should be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's left as he faces the congregation or audience.

When the flag is displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium elsewhere than in the chancel or on the platform it shall be placed in the position of honor at the right of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform.

The flag should form a distinctive feature of the ceremony of unveiling a statue or monument, but it should never be used as the covering for the statue or monument.

The Flag in a Parade—When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the flag of the United States should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, or, if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

It should not be displayed on a float in a parade except from a staff, or as otherwise provided. It should not be draped over the hood, top, sides, or back of a vehicle or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motorcar, the staff shall be fixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

When the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, or during the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention, and salute. Those present in uniform should render the military salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the hat with the right hand holding it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Men without hats should salute in the same manner. Aliens should stand at attention. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart.

The Flag at Half Staff—When flown at half staff the flag first should be hoisted to the peak and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should again be raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. By half staff is meant lowering the flag to one-half the distance between the top and bottom of the staff. Crepe streamers may be affixed to flagstaffs in a parade only by order of the President.

When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground.

The Flag in Washington—When the flag flies from the staff of the White House, from sunrise to sunset, it indicates that the President is in residence.

Over only the East and West Fronts of the Capitol does the national flag fly continuously, night and day. The flags over the House Office Buildings and the Senate Office Building fly only from sunrise to sunset.

Over the Senate and House of Representatives wings of the Capitol the flags fly only while those bodies are in session and during a recess. At adjournment either at the end of a day's work or for a session, they are lowered.

Prohibited Uses of the Flag—The flag should not be dipped to any person or thing. Regimental colors, state flags, and institutional flags are to be dipped as a mark of honor. It should never be displayed with the union down save as a signal of dire distress. It should never touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, the floor, water, or merchandise. It should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

The flag must not be used as drapery or festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds. The flag should never be fastened, displayed, or used for covering a speaker's desk, or for draping the front of a platform. It should never be used or stored so that it will be easily torn, soiled, or damaged in any way. It should never be used as a covering for a ceiling, never have placed upon it, nor on any part of it, nor attached to it any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture, or drawing of any nature. It should never be used as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying, or delivering anything.

The flag should never be used for advertising purposes in any manner whatsoever, nor be embroidered on such articles as cushions or handkerchiefs and the like, printed or otherwise impressed on paper napkins or boxes or anything that is designed for temporary use and discarded, or used as any portion of a costume or athletic uniform. Advertising signs should not be fastened to a staff or halyard from which the flag is flown.

When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

Flags of the Army—In the Army Regulations four kinds of national flags are described: flags flown at military posts or on ships and used for display generally; small flags or ensigns used on small boats; colors; which are carried by unmounted regiments and separate battalions and standards which are carried by mounted regiments and separate battalions and are, therefore, smaller in size than colors.

Display of Bunting—Bunting may be used to cover a speaker's desk, to drape the front of a platform and to decorate premises. The Act of 1942 reversed the historic red, white and blue of bunting and specified that the blue must be on top, with white and red below it.

[Until this act was passed Americans customarily displayed bunting with red at the top. The historic national song, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, closes with 'Three cheers for the red, white and blue.'—Editor, WORLD ALMANAC.]

THE PRESIDENT'S FLAG

The flag of the President is of a dark blue rectangular background on which appears the coat of arms of the President in proper colors.

When the President visits a vessel of the United States, the President's flag is broken at the mainmast moment he reaches the deck and is kept flying as long as he is on board.

When the President is embarked on a boat he usually directs that his flag be displayed from the staff in the bow of his barge. When he passes in a boat flying his flag, vessels of the navy parade the full guards, four ruffles are given on the drum, four flourishes are sounded on the bugle, the National Anthem is played by the band, and officers and men salute.

The Pledge to the Flag

As revised by Act of Congress, June, 1954

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

This, the latest wording of the Pledge to the Flag, has developed from the original, which was drawn up in August, 1892, in the office of the Youth's Companion, a popular magazine for young people, in Boston, Mass. It was first used at exercises on Columbus Day, Oct. 12, 1892.

A change in the wording authorized by act of Congress signed by President Eisenhower June 14, 1954, directed attention to the original pledge and its history. Words added a few years ago were of the United States of America following flag. The insertion in 1954 was under God following nation. The first was supposed to particularize this country for naturalized citizens and immigrant children.

When President Eisenhower signed the act that added under God he remarked that "in this way we are reaffirming the transcendence of religious faith in America's heritage and future; in this way we shall constantly strengthen those spiritual weapons which forever will be our country's most powerful resource in peace and war." Immediately after the act was signed the pledge was thus recast on the steps of the Capitol in Washington. The original pledge was suggested by James B. Upham, one of the partners of the Perry Mason Co., publishers of the Youth's Companion, according to testimony of its editors. Chas. M. Thompson, an editor, 1890-1925, has written that Upham wrote the first draft and passed it around to members of the staff, who helped compress it. Among them was Francis Bellamy, who promoted patriotic activities of the Companion and gave the pledge national circulation. The Youth's Companion published a history of the pledge, which it issued also as a leaflet, naming Upham as originator of the draft "afterwards condensed and perfected by him and his associates of the Companion force."

Dams in the United States—Volume and Purpose

OVER 200 FEET IN HEIGHT

Source: Bureau of Reclamation, Dept. of the Interior; Corps of Engineers, Dept. of the Army
 Height—Difference in elevation, in feet, between lowest point in foundation and top of dam, exclusive of parapet or other projections.
 Length—Overall length of barrier in feet; main dam and its integral features as located between natural abutments.
 Volume—Total volume in cubic yards of all material in main dam and its appurtenant works.
 Year—Date structure was originally completed for use.
 River—Main stream.
 Purpose: Irr—Irrigation; FC—Flood Control; P—Power Production; N—Navigation; WS—Water Supply; RR—River Regulation; DC—Debris Control.
 Parentheses after name with type of dam are Bureau of Reclamation projects indicated as follows:
 (C)—Concrete; (E)—Earth; and (M)—Masonry.

Hydroelectric Power, Dams and Reservoirs

Source: Federal Power Commission; Bureau of Reclamation, Dept. of the Interior; Corps of Engineers, Dept. of the Army

FEDERAL HYDROELECTRIC PLANTS

Federal hydroelectric plants in 1955 had a capacity of 10,266,120 kw. The Federal Power Commission reported that Federal hydroelectric construction begun or under way in 1955 would account for 4,310,000 kw additional. Initial capacity of 20 new plants would be 3,494,600 kw, with provision for ultimate capacity of 5,337,600.

In May, 1955, the Federal Power Commission reported the following installed capacities of Federal hydroelectric plants by water basins:

Columbia	3,410,020	Savannah	280,000
Tennessee	2,636,890	White	230,400
Colorado	1,628,000	Roanoke	218,000
Missouri	596,450	Red	88,200
Cumberland	493,460	Arkansas	79,000
Sacramento-San Joaquin	456,000	Mobile-Ala.	74,000

The first Federal hydroelectric plant was the Minidoka on the Snake River, Idaho, 1909. Today the largest Federal plant is the Grand Coulee, Columbia River, Washington, Capacity 1,974,000 kw; second largest, Hoover, Colorado River, capacity 1,249,800 kw, divided between Arizona and Nevada; third largest, Bonneville, Columbia River, Oregon, 518,400 kw.

Federal agencies operating hydroelectric plants are Bureau of Reclamation, Corps of Engineers, U.S.A., Tennessee Valley Authority, National Park Service and Indian Irrigation Service, with a 1954 total of 10,266,120 kw. The Bureau of Reclamation accounts for 4,718,450 kw, the Corps of Engineers 2,866,000 kw, and TVA 2,668,750 kw.

TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY

Tennessee Valley Authority is a corporation created by act of Congress May 18, 1933. The act instructed TVA to take over Wilson Dam and a 60,000 kw steam plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., in the interest of national defense, and to develop fertilizer for agricultural improvement, install flood control, aid navigation, produce hydroelectric power for sale, support research in chemistry, chemical engineering and metallurgy, conserve natural resources, including forestry, fish and game; aid industrial and community development, supervise employe housing, and cooperate with state and local governments for the general welfare. It develops electric energy by both water power and steam.

TVA is financed by appropriations by Congress and by revenue derived from the sale of electrical energy and fertilizer. Originally also bonds covered funds advanced by the U.S. Treasury and RFC, now being repaid. Source and disposition of TVA funds for 21 years, 1933-54 in millions:

Received from appropriations, bonds, etc.....	$1,895
Received from gross revenues.....	1,031
Total receipts.....	$2,926
Invested in plant.....	1,630
Expended for operations.....	930
Repaid to U.S. Treasury.....	123
On hand, cash, receivables, etc.....	243
	$2,926

When TVA summarized 21 years of development at the end of its fiscal year, June 30, 1954, the whole system had an installed generating capacity of 6,075,685 kw, 57% in hydro plants and 43% in steam plants. New construction was expected to give the integrated system 10,000,485 kw by December, 1956. A great part of its electrical energy was delivered to the Atomic Energy Commission, while 148 municipal and rural cooperative systems distributed more than 11 billion kwh to business, industries and farms in fiscal year 1954.

In fiscal 1954 the net investment in the power plant, after depreciation, was $968,365,000. Revenue from power was $133,948,000 and net revenue $28,820,000. Investment in chemical facilities after depreciation reached $22,649,000. TVA pays local and state taxes to seven states, but no U.S. income tax.

In the 1954-55 planting season TVA furnished 21,000,000 seedlings for reforestation, 15,000,000 of which were for planting in the Valley, the balance being produced for other agencies on contract. In 21 years 240,000 acres have been reforested.

By the end of 1956 TVA expected to have 60% of its generating capacity in steam plants. Kingston, largest in the world, to supply AEC at Oak Ridge, will have capacity of 1,440,000 kw. Shawnee, to supply AEC Paducah plant, will have capacity of 1,350,000 kw. Both plants have begun operation. TVA steam plants burned 7,279,686 tons of coal in fiscal 1954, and expect to use about 18,000,000 tons annually when all the steam-electric facilities now under construction are completed.

In 1954 TVA had 23,933 fulltime employes, working 40 hours a week. They have collective bargaining and an independent retiring system administered by management and employes.

TVA has built 20 dams and is operating 30 in the Tennessee Valley. It provides a navigable channel of 11 ft. depth for 630 mi., moving over 1,250,000,000 ton-miles of freight annually.

TVA has a board of 3 directors, appointed by the President. The general manager is administrative head. There are 27 major officials. President Eisenhower appointed Brig. Gen. Herbert D. Vogel chairman (confirmed, Aug. 11, 1954). Hq: Knoxville, Tenn., and Washington, D.C.

POWER ADMINISTRATIONS

Bonneville Power Administration (Dept. of the Interior) markets the electric energy generated at Federal power projects in the Pacific Northwest, chiefly in the Columbia River basin and other basins in Washington, Oregon, western Montana and northern Idaho. The projects are built and operated by the Bureau of Reclamation and the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army. BPA sells power at wholesale, for either resale or direct consumption, to public bodies, cooperatives and private agencies at the lowest possible rates, taking into account operation and maintenance, amortization of the Government's investment, interest and other costs. Wholesale rates prepared by BPA must be approved by the FPC.

Preference in available supply of power is given to public bodies and cooperatives. Resale of power to ultimate consumers must be at rates which are reasonable and nondiscriminatory. BPA has authority to sell power generated at Grand Coulee, Hungry Horse, Bonneville, Detroit, McNary, Big Cliff, Lookout Point and the following dams under construction: The Dalles, Chief Joseph, Chandler, Dexter and Albeni Falls. In addition BPA may market power from 12 additional presently authorized projects in the area when constructed. The BPA had 6,565 circuit miles of transmission lines and 166 substations in operation as of Jan. 1, 1955. During calendar year 1954 BPA delivered 19.7 billion kwh to 116 customers for $46,207,000.

Southwestern Power Administration (Dept. of the Interior) markets electrical energy generated at reservoir projects controlled by the Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, in Arkansas, Louisiana, and parts of Kansas, Missouri, Texas and Oklahoma, under conditions similar to those of BPA. Its 7 projects and installed capacity (kw):

Bull Shoals, White River, Ark.....	160,000
Norfolk, North Fork R., Ark.....	70,000
Narrows, Little Missouri, Ark.....	17,000
Whitney, Brazos R., Texas.....	30,000
Denison, Red R., Okla.-Texas.....	70,000
Ft. Gibson, Grand (Neosho) R., Okla.	45,000
Tenkiler Ferry, Illinois R., Okla.....	34,000
Total kw.....	426,000

SPA operates and maintains 1,004 miles of high voltage transmission lines and 18 substations and switching stations. During the year ended June 30, 1954, SPA sold 822,129,016 kwh of energy, distributed as follows: REA cooperatives, 41.4% municipalities, 10.7%; Federal Government loads, 3.5%; private utility companies, 44.4%. Total revenue from sale of power was $4,711,999.

Southeastern Power Administration (Dept. of the Interior) markets power produced at projects controlled by the Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee. Specifically the power plants at Allatoona (Ga.), Clark Hill (Ga.-S. C.), John H. Kerr (Va.-N. C.), Wolf Creek (Ky.), Dale Hollow (Tenn.) and Center Hill (Tenn.) with a capacity of 836,000 kw and has the following under construction, with year scheduled for opening and capacity in kw:

Jim Woodruff, Fla., 1956	30,000
Burford, Ga., 1957	86,000
Cheatham, Tenn., 1957	36,000
Old Hickory, Tenn., 1956	100,000

During the year ended June 30, 1954, SEPA sold 1,779,437,722 kwh, gross revenue $7,931,023.

HOOVER DAM, BOULDER CANYON

Hoover Dam, completed in 1936 by the Bureau of Reclamation on the Colorado River, Arizona-Nevada, is the principal engineering structure of Boulder Canyon project. It is 726 feet high, 1,244 ft. long at top, contains 4,400,000 cu. yds. of concrete. Its reservoir, Lake Mead, extends 115 miles upstream and has a storage capacity of 31,142,000 acre-feet and is the largest artificial lake by volume in the world.

In the U-shaped Hoover Dam power plant there are 18 generators, having a total capacity of 1,249,800 kw, driven by turbines totaling 1,742,000 h. p. The installed capacity is sufficient to supply the normal domestic needs of 7,500,000 persons. The United States has executed contracts for disposal of all firm and secondary energy generated at the plant until 1987, the end of the amortization period. The Department of Water and Power of the Los Angeles and the Southern California Edison Company operate the generating equipment.

The Federal investment in the Boulder Canyon project is to be repaid with interest at 3% by revenues from power and water storage, except for $25,000,000 allocated to flood control, which is to be repaid without interest. Since 1936, the project has produced revenue of $124,572,525 and paid into the U. S. Treasury $77,056,302, of which $57,486,169 was for interest and $19,570,133 for principal.

M McNARY DAM

McNary Dam, dedicated by President Eisenhower Sept. 23, 1954, is located on the Columbia River between Oregon and Washington about 190 miles east of Portland, Ore. McNary Look and Dam is named for the late U.S. Senator, Charles L. McNary. It was authorized March 2, 1945, and construction was started in May, 1947, by the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army. The project is expected to cost about $287,000,000. The dam includes a gate-controlled spillway 1310 feet long, a powerhouse, 1,422 feet long and a navigation lock, which provides the world's highest single-lift with a maximum of 92 feet. The navigation lock chamber is 86 ft. wide and 675 ft. long. The project's total length is 7,300 feet. The completed powerhouse will contain 14 units with a total rated capacity of nearly 1,000,000 kw. Completion is scheduled for December, 1956.

GRAND COULEE DAM

The world's largest dam, power plant and pumping plant are located on the Columbia River in Washington, 92 miles west and north of Spokane and 240 miles east of Seattle.

Built by the United States Bureau of Reclamation as the key water control structure in the million-acre Columbia Basin Project, the dam is 550 feet high, 4,173 feet long, contains more than 10,585,000 cubic yards of concrete. Nearly half its volume is below the river surface. The central spillway is 1,650 feet wide, and the waterfall over it is half as wide and twice as high as Niagara Falls. Within the dam are 8½ miles of inspection galleries and 2½ miles of shafts. Buried in the concrete are 1,700 miles of thin-wall steel tubing, through which cold water was circulated during the construction period to cool the concrete.

The Grand Coulee power plant, consisting of two powerhouses on the down-stream side of the dam, contains 18 main generators of 108,000 kw each, and three smaller station units, with a combined capacity of 1,974,000 kw. Each main generator with its turbine weighs 1,500 tons. The plant holds all records for hourly (2,321,000 kwh), daily (53,181,000 kwh), monthly (1,514,140,000 kwh), and yearly (14,698,303,400 kwh) production of electric energy.

Power from the Grand Coulee Dam made possible the atomic energy installations at Hanford, Wash., as well as the development of large aluminum plants, making 40% of all U.S. aluminum.

The pumping plant raising water for irrigation from the 151-mile reservoir Franklin D. Roosevelt Lake, behind Grand Coulee Dam ultimately will contain 12 of the largest capacity pumps ever built, any two of which could supply the water needs of New York and Chicago combined. Six of the units already have been installed to pump 4,320,000 gallons per minute into reservoirs and canals. Water is raised 350 feet by the dam and an additional 280 feet by the pumps, total 630 feet.

Columbia Basin Project, begun July 16, 1934, is intended to reclaim about 1,000,000 acres of semi-arid land for irrigation 125 miles south of Grand Coulee Dam. North and South Dams have created an equalizing reservoir by sealing off both ends of the dry Grand Coulee, into which water is pumped from Lake Franklin D. Roosevelt and distributed by gravity flow through other reservoirs, canals, siphons, and laterals. Irrigation from the primary works began in 1952 when water was made available to about 66,000 acres. Facilities to supply about 47,000 acres more each year are expected to irrigate 515,000 acres by 1961.

As a self-liquidating development, the Columbia Basin Project will repay to the United States Treasury virtually its entire cost, estimated at $740,056,000. More than three-fourths of the outlay will be repaid through the sale of power produced by the Grand Coulee power plant.

MISSOURI RIVER BASIN PROJECT

In the vast basin of the Missouri River there is in progress a water and land resource development considered the largest undertaking of its kind in history. It affects a 529,000 square-mile region, comprising one-sixth of the continental United States, and includes the construction of reservoirs and other engineering features which, with soil and water conservation, will provide flood control, irrigation, electric power and navigation. There will also be related gains in the development of fish and wildlife, recreation, pollution abatement and forest and mineral resources.

The program proposes more than 112 multipurpose reservoirs in the Missouri River and its tributaries with a capacity of 107,400,000 acre-feet; irrigation of more than 3,589,000 additional acres of land and supplemental water for approximately 752,900 acres now receiving an inadequate supply; hydroelectric plants with an ultimate generating capacity of 2,816,650 kw. and an annual output of more than 13 billion kilowatt-hours. Soil and moisture conservation will affect many million acres of farms, ranches, range lands and forests and control of floods will reduce damage on 5,000,000 acres of valley lands and to 50 municipalities.

Under the Pick-Sloan Plan, the Bureau of Reclamation works upstream and on the tributaries to develop water primarily for irrigation, while the U. S. Corps of Engineers works primarily for flood control and navigation in downstream areas. Hydroelectric power developed on the Army dams is marketed by the Bureau of Reclamation along with power generated at Bureau dams. Legislative authority for joint execution of the program is the Flood Control Act of Dec. 22, 1944.

The Governors of Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming, and representatives of the Corps of Engineers, Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Labor and Interior, Health, Education & Welfare, and Federal Power Commission, make up a Missouri Basin Inter-Agency Committee which is coordinating the diversified program.

Although not yet wholly authorized, about one-fifth of the program has been accomplished. Power plants at Engineer-constructed dams at Fort Peck, Mont., and Fort Randall, S.D., are in operation, with an installed capacity of 485,000 kilowatts. Three others—Garrison, N.D., 400,000 kw., 1955; Gavins Point, S.D., 100,000 kw., 1956; and Oahe, S.D., 425,000 kw., 1961, will furnish a total of 1,410,000 kilowatts of generating capacity.

Under the Bureau of Reclamation, 15 irrigation units have been completed or are under construction, and advance planning is under way leading to start of construction on 15 other units. Fourteen Reclamation-built dams are functionally complete and in operation: Cedar Bluff, Bonny, Kans.; Enders, Trenton, Medicine Creek, Neb.; Dickinson, Heart Butte, Jamestown, N.D.; Shadepark, Angostura, S.D.; Boysen, Keyhole, Kortes, Wyoming; and Canyon Ferry, Montana. Power plants are in full operation at Boysen, Kortes, Canyon Ferry, and Angostura.

Over-all cost of the Missouri River Basin program was estimated in 1955 at $5,164,660,000, of which $12,400,000 was for Department of Agriculture projects; $2,677,360,000 for Bureau of Reclamation projects; and $2,474,900,000 for Corps of Engineers projects. By June, 1955, expenditures by the Corps of Engineers totaled $503,713,600 and for the Bureau of Reclamation, $298,790,000.

Principal Waterways in the United States

Source: Maj. Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Jr., Chief of Engineers, Department of the Army

The United States has the world's greatest system of navigable harbor channels and inland waterways, as a result of Federal improvements carried out by the Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army.

The Mississippi River System is the most extensive segment of the inland waterway network. It links with navigable channels the Great Lakes on the North and the Gulf of Mexico on the South. Improved tributaries of the Mississippi extend like broad turnpikes to rich sources of raw materials and to great centers of industry.

On the Lower Mississippi, there is a deep-draft channel enabling ocean vessels to proceed to New Orleans and Baton Rouge, approximately 250 miles inland. From Baton Rouge to Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Mississippi River has a navigable channel with minimum depth of 9 ft. Dependable 9-ft. navigation on the Upper Mississippi has been made possible by 27 locks and dams.

On the Ohio River, from its mouth to Pittsburgh, a distance of 981 miles, the Corps of Engineers constructed the nation's most extensive system of 46 navigation locks and dams. This provides a dependable 9-ft. channel. There is a rise of 420 feet on the Ohio, from its mouth to Pittsburgh, necessitating extensive canalization. Important tributaries of the Ohio, such as the Monongahela, Allegheny, Kanawha, and Tennessee have also been developed with 9-ft. channels.

The Illinois Waterway, connecting the Mississippi with the Great Lakes, is completely canalized over its 327 miles with a minimum navigable depth of 9 feet, the depth also designed for the Missouri River from its mouth to Sioux City, a distance of 761 mi. The Mississippi river system has generally a 9-ft. channel, and 12 ft. from Cairo, Ill., south.

Great Lakes Connecting Channels

Great Lakes, forming part of the northern boundary of the United States, is the world's busiest inland waterway system. Its usefulness has been made possible by developed connecting channels. For instance, St. Marys River, connecting Lake Superior with the other Great Lakes, has a natural rapids at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., with a fall of 21 ft. Four locks were built to overcome this natural barrier, the deepest of which is the MacArthur. Approximately 85% of the iron ore produced in the U. S. is transported to the steel mills via this route. The present Welland Ship Canal, which overcomes the barrier formed by Niagara Falls, was constructed by Canada.

A protected Intracoastal Waterway extends 1,000 mi. along the Atlantic coast and the same distance along the Gulf coast. This connects many natural coastal waterways and provides a channel for tows and light-draft vessels. The Atlantic section has a channel 12 ft. deep from Trenton, N. J., to Melbourne, Fla. From Melbourne to Miami it is 8 ft., and from Miami to Key West 4 ft.

Gulf Intracoastal Waterway

On the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, a navigable channel with 12-ft. depth extends from Carabelle, Fla., to Brownsville, Texas, at the Mexican border. The main channel is to be extended to its eastern terminus in Apalachee Bay.

There are numerous routes leading many miles inland from the coastal shores to port cities, industrial and agricultural areas. An excellent example is the improved navigable waterway via the Tombigbee, Warrior and Black Warrior rivers to the Birmingham, Ala., steel area, 470 miles. The Hudson River and New York State Barge Canal, with navigable channels, connect the New York area and the eastern coast with the Great Lakes.

Pacific Coast Waterways

On the Pacific coast, the Columbia River has a deep draft channel serving the ocean ports of Portland, Ore., and Vancouver, Wash., and continuing to the head of the Bonneville Pool, with a light-draft channel therefrom to Pasco, Wash. Eventually, it is planned to have a developed navigable channel all the way to Lewiston, Idaho, via the Columbia and Snake Rivers, 460 miles.

Ocean vessels can navigate to many inland cities, Philadelphia is 100 miles inland on the Delaware River. Baltimore is 150 miles inland. Washington, a similar distance inland, has a deep draft channel, enabling ocean vessels to navigate up the Potomac River. Jacksonville, Wilmington and Savannah are other ocean ports miles inland from the coast. Houston, Texas, is connected with the Gulf of Mexico by a ship canal of 58½ mi.

The U. S. frigate Constellation was awarded to Baltimore for permanent custody after the General Assembly of Maryland and Baltimore agreed to pay for its partial restoration. The frigate was built at Baltimore in 1797, and although partially rebuilt, retains the original lines. It will be exhibited near historic Fort McHenry.

WASHINGTON, CAPITAL OF THE UNITED STATES

Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Government, is the focal point of interest visited annually by increasingly large numbers of citizens. With a population of 802,178 (Census of 1950), it is believed to shelter up to 3,000,000 visitors during the year. It is the destination of many conventions, and numerous schools send students in chartered buses to make the rounds of monuments, galleries and Government offices, many of which have free lectures and conducted tours.

Washington is reached by the Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, Fredericksburg & Potomac, and Southern railways through Union Station, and by the Old Dominion line. Its National Airport is served by Allegheny, American, Capital, Colonial, Eastern, National, Northwest, Resort, TWA and United airlines. Andrews Field, U. S. Air Force base near Washington, also serves civilian aircraft.

The architecture of the public buildings has been affected by the styles of periods, but in general has retained the simplicity of the Graeco-Roman fundamentals. Most of the buildings erected in recent decades conform externally to classical lines, but their interiors are the most modern and streamlined of office structures, sacrificing monumental impressiveness to function. The principal expression of classical ideals within and without is the Supreme Court Building. The most imposing interior hall is the rotunda of the National Gallery of Art.

The central design extends from the Capitol through the elm-bordered Mall to the Washington Monument and thence over the reflecting basin to the Lincoln Memorial. A cross-axis is formed by the White House, the Washington Monument, and the Thomas Jefferson Memorial. Arlington Memorial Bridge, across the Potomac to Virginia, leads to Arlington National Cemetery, the Custis-Lee Mansion and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Along the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue from the Treasury to the Capitol are the Departments of Commerce, Labor, Post Office and Justice, the Archives, Interstate Commerce, Internal Revenue and the Federal Trade Commission. These buildings have a uniform cornice line and an adaptation of classical exteriors. On the south they face Constitution Avenue, a monumental thoroughfare extending two-and-a-half miles from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial. A frame for this memorial is formed on the north side of the avenue by five white marble buildings set back of deep gardens—buildings of the Pan-American Union, Atomic Energy Commission, Federal Reserve, National Academy of Sciences and American Institute of Pharmacy. The Interior Department occupies two squares between C and E, 18th and 19th Streets. Framing the grounds south of the White House are the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the American Red Cross, Constitution Hall and Continental Memorial Hall of the D. A. R. Ford's Theater, in which President Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth Apr. 14, 1865, now houses the Oldroyd collection of Lincoln memorabilia and many other historical objects, including Booth's weapons. Across the street is the Peterson house, in which Lincoln died, with much original furniture.

Capitol Hill, dominated by the Capitol, has in its environs the Senate and House Office buildings, the U. S. Supreme Court, the Library of Congress, Folger Shakespeare Library, Union Station, U. S. Botanic Garden and Government Printing Office. The latter has free conducted tours.

See article on District of Columbia, page 196.

The Capitol

The Capitol building in Washington, D. C., is situated on a plateau 88 ft. above the level of the Potomac River and covers an area of 153,112 sq. ft., or approximately 3½ acres. Its length, from north to south, is 751 ft. 4 in.; its width, including approaches, is 350 ft., and its location is described as being in latitude 38° 53' 22.9" north and longitude 77° 00' 33.7" west from Greenwich. Its height above the base line on the east front to the top of the Statue of Freedom is 287 ft., 5½ ins.

The original plan for the Capitol was drawn by Dr. William Thornton, of Tortola, West Indies, and accepted April 5, 1793. It had a central section, nearly square, a low dome and rectangular buildings north and south, 126 by 120 ft. The southeast cornerstone of the north section was laid by President Washington with Masonic ceremonies Sept. 18, 1793. Sandstone from Aquia Creek, Va., was used. The northern wing was completed first and housed government courts and the Congress from 1800 on. The architects were Stephen H. Hallet, Geo. Hadfield and James Hoban, the latter architect of the White House. For the southern section, now including Statuary Hall, the architect was B. H. Latrobe. This was occupied by the House of Representatives in 1807, but not completed until 1811. All interiors were burned by the British, 1814.

B. H. Latrobe had charge of rebuilding until Dec., 1817, when Charles Bulfinch built the central part, 1818-1829. The Capitol was reoccupied 1819.

The present Senate and House wings were begun 1851; Thos. U. Walter, architect. Daniel Webster spoke at the cornerstone laying of the House wing, July 4, 1851. The walls of the wings have white marble from Lee, Mass., and columns from Cockeysville, Md. The House moved in Dec. 16, 1857, the Senate Jan. 4, 1859. The original dome, wood covered with copper, was replaced, 1856, by the present dome of cast iron, completed 1865. Its greatest exterior diameter is 135 ft. 5 in. The rotunda is 97 ft. diameter, height from floor to base of lantern, 180 ft. 3 in. The dome has 108 windows and there are 365 steps from the architect's office to the top of the dome. In the "eye" of the dome is a great fresco by Constantino Brumidi, the Apotheosis of Washington. Below the dome runs a 300-ft. frieze in fresco, portraying history from Columbus, 1492, to Kitty Hawk, 1903. Brumidi painted one-half by 1880. Costaglini added panels by 1888. On May 11, 1954 President Eisenhower dedicated the whole frieze, completed by Allyn Cox in 1953.

The Statue of Freedom surmounting the dome is of bronze and weighs 14,985 pounds. It was modeled in plaster by Thomas Crawford, father of F. Marion Crawford, the novelist, in Rome, for $3,000, and cast in bronze by Clark Mills, on the Bladensburg Road, Md. It cost $20,796.82. It was placed in its present position Dec. 2, 1863.

The Senate chamber is 113 ft. 3 in. long and 80 ft. 3 in. wide. The Hall of Representatives (House) is 139 ft. long and 93 ft. wide. Reconstruction, 1949-1951, cost $2,367,000 for the Senate and $2,735,000 for the House.

The Capitol has a floor area of 14 acres, and 435 rooms are devoted to office, committee, and storage purposes. There are 679 windows, and 554 doorways. In 1955 an old project of extending the central east front 40 feet in line with the Senate and House wings was revived. It would provide new offices and improve the facade.

A nondenominational room for meditation and prayer, 17 ft. square, was opened off the rotunda in March, 1955. Decorated in blue, it has a white oak altar with an open Bible and candelabra, and 2 kneeling benches. A stained-glass window depicts Geo. Washington kneeling in prayer, while side panels show the obverse and reverse of the Great Seal. Also depicted are a candle and an open book, and a sentence from the 119th Psalm: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." The 13 original states have stars and all states are named in a laurel wreath.

Frederick Law Olmsted designed the terraces. The grounds now cover 131.1 acres. The House

Hours for Visiting National Capitol and White House

Bureau, United Press

The Capitol in Washington is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. The only exceptions are Christmas, New Year's Day and Thanksgiving Day. Should either the House or the Senate remain in session beyond 4:30 p.m., the wing of the Capitol in use will stay open until the session closes.

Tours are conducted through the Capitol from 9 a.m. to 3:55 p.m. They include a brief visit to Senate and House, with a nominal charge.

Visitors wishing to hear a debate on the floors of Congress must obtain a visitor's card from either their Representative or Senator, for admission to the Visitors' Gallery. Their offices are in the Senate and the House Office Buildings. No pass is needed for open committee meetings.

The White House is open from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, Tuesday through Saturday. Only the public rooms in the basement and the first floor rooms may be visited. No permit is required.

Office building, erected 1905-08, enlarged later, cost $4,860,155. It has a subway tunnel to the Capitol and 690 rooms. An additional building, 251 rooms, was built 1932-1933, cost $7,805,705. The Senate Office building, 1906-1909, enlarged 1931, cost $8,390,892.

In July, 1955, Congress by joint resolution authorized construction on the Capitol grounds by popular subscription of a 110-ft. bell tower in memory of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio (1889-1955).

Inaugurations of Presidents take place on a platform erected over the great steps on the East front. The oath of office is administered by the Chief Justice of the United States. Inauguration Day formerly March 4, was usually rainy, and it was on such an occasion that William Henry Harrison, in 1841, caught the fever that killed him a month later. On account of the weather William Howard Taft was inaugurated in the Senate chamber in 1909. The ceremony now takes place on Jan. 20.

NATIONAL STATUARY HALL

Statuary Hall was created by an act of July 2, 1864 in the old hall of the House of Representatives. States were invited to contribute not more than two statues of distinguished persons judged worthy of national commemoration by the states. In 1933 the number of statues in Statuary Hall was limited to 48, others to be placed in other parts of the Capitol. To date 78 statues have been contributed by 42 states. The Hall contains:

Alabama — Gen. Joe Wheeler.	Missouri — Thomas H. Benton.
Arkansas — Uriah M. Rose.	Nebraska — William Jennings Bryan.
Arizona — John Campbell Greenway.	New Hampshire — Daniel Webster.
California — Junipero Serra.	New Jersey — Richard Stockton.
Connecticut — Roger Sherman.	New York — Robert R. Livingston.
Delaware — Caesar Rodney.	North Carolina — Zebulon B. Vance.
Florida — John Gorrie.	Ohio — William Allen.
Georgia — Alexander H. Stephens.	Oklahoma — Sequoyah.
Idaho — George L. Shoup.	Oregon — Rev. Jason Lee.
Illinois — Frances E. Willard.	Pennsylvania — Robert Fulton.

The White House

The White House, the President's residence, stands in tree-shaded grounds (18 acres) on the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, between the Treasury and the Executive Office Building. The main building, 170 by 85 ft., has 6 floors, with the East Terrace, 135 by 35 ft., leading to the East Wing, a 3-story building, 139 by 82 ft., used for offices and as an entrance for official functions. The West Terrace, 174 by 35 ft., contains offices and a swimming pool, and leads to the Executive Office, 3 stories high, 148 by 98 ft., erected in 1902 and enlarged several times since.

The White House was originally called the President's Palace, and has been called the President's House. Although the building is known officially as the Executive Mansion, President Theodore Roosevelt was the first to have the name White House engraved on his stationery.

The White House was designed by James Hoban, an Irish-born architect, in a competition that paid $500. The main facade resembles the Duke of Leinster's house in Dublin, on which the design was supposedly based. Details of other faces and the interior arrangement were probably devised from contemporary houses abroad. President Washington chose the site, which was included on the plan of the Federal City prepared by the French engineer, Major Pierre L'Enfant. The cornerstone was laid Oct. 13, 1792. President Washington was not present and never lived in the house. President John Adams entered in November, 1800, and Mrs. Adams hung her washing in the partially completed East Room.

The walls are of gray sandstone, quarried at Aquila Creek, Va. Thos. Jefferson developed the east and west terraces and built one-story offices, woodsheds and a wine cellar. On Aug. 14, 1814, during Madison's administration, the house was burned by the British after the Stuart portrait of Washington and other relics had been removed and turned over to Mrs. Dolly Madison. James Hoban completed rebuilding by Dec., 1817, and President Monroe moved in. The walls were then painted white to obliterate marks of the fire.

The south portico was added in 1824 and the north colonnade and porch in 1829, according to Latrobe's plans, based on sketches by Hoban, approved by Jefferson. In 1947 President Truman had a second-floor porch built into the south portico. In 1948 he had Congress authorize complete rebuilding because the White House was unsafe. He moved to Blair House, 1651 Pennsylvania Ave., and returned to the White House in March, 1952, living there until Jan. 20, 1953, when it became the home of President Eisenhower.

Reconstruction cost $5,761,000. The interior was completely removed, New underpinning 24 ft. deep was placed under the outside walls and a steel frame was built to support the interior. All trim and metal work were preserved and incorporated in the new house. A deep basement with 2 floors was constructed, extending partly under the lawn. It contains a modern kitchen, heating and air conditioning equipment and a bomb shelter.

Formerly the house had one elevator—now there are five—a main elevator, a service elevator, and three freight elevators. A ramp leads from the third floor to the new sun parlor, or solarium, over the south portico. Permanent devices for broadcasting and television transmission were installed on the first floor. Where there were formerly 48 rooms and 14 baths in the part of the house used as living quarters, there are now 54 rooms and 16 baths. In all, the White House now has 132 rooms and 20 baths and showers, compared with 62 rooms and 14 baths prior to the renovation.

Six classic columns separate the entrance lobby from the main corridor. The entrance to the main stairway is now from the east side of the lobby. Seals of the 13 original states are carved on the marble-faced openings of the stairway. The President's seal in bronze originally embedded in the floor of the main foyer, has been placed above the entrance to the main hall. Portraits of Andrew Jackson and Zachary Taylor hang on the stair wall.

The East Room always has been used for formal functions and some historic receptions of royalty and foreign dignitaries have been held here. In this room White House marriages have been per-and here Presidents who died in office have been in state. The East room is decorated in white and gold, with draperies of white and lemon-yellow damask. Several original Adam sofas, recently acquired, add a note in blue. The grand piano carries on the gold theme. There are elaborate crystal chandeliers and full-length portraits of George and Martha Washington.

The Green Room, used for informal receptions, has green silk damask on the walls, a white marble fireplace, white enamel wainscoting and door trim, and a rug with the U.S. seal for a center-piece. The upholstery varies between green and gold. A portrait of John Quincy Adams hangs over the mantel.

The Red Room, used by the President's wife when receiving guests, has walls of deep red silk damask reproduced from the Rubens room in Windsor Castle. There is a portrait of Woodrow Wilson over the white marble fireplace. Some of the chairs are covered with white silk damask.

Between these rooms is the elliptical Blue Room, used for receiving foreign diplomats and guests to state dinners. The walls are of blue silk damask with gold medallions, the fireplace is white and gold with an 18th century Adam mirror, and gold eagles are poised over the blue window draperies.

The State Dining Room, used for formal dinners and luncheons, has walls of paneled oak, painted light green, a carved mantelpiece with green marble facing, with a portrait of Lincoln by G. A. Healy above it. Gold silk damask drapes are used for the windows and the side chairs are upholstered in gold cloth. The table is a 4-pedestal antique Hepplewhite, with carved chairs in Hepplewhite mahogany. An over-mantel of a painting of flowers framed in gilt over a mirror was presented by King George VI through the Princess Elizabeth, now the Queen of England.

There are 9 bedrooms on the second floor and 4 guest rooms have been added to the third floor suites. The east and west rooms on the second floor are sitting rooms. The President's oval study is decorated in green satin damask with an eagle motif taken from the President's seal. His bedroom has 18th century English furniture.

The room of the President's wife is in mauve and another family bedroom is in green gold chintz. The private dining room has draperies of red damask and a portrait of President Tyler. This floor has portraits of George Washington, Franklin Pierce and Harry S. Truman.

The Lincoln Room contains Lincoln's long bed. It has Victorian furniture, with a body Brussels carpet with yellow roses and green leaves on beige. The bedcover is white linsey woolsey with a cotton fringe.

The White House has many famous gifts and historic objects on display. The ground floor room used for exhibiting the china collection of the Presidents has been paneled in pine from the old timbers of the house and fitted with red upholstery. A full length portrait of Mrs. Grace Coolidge dominates this room.

The Library also has been paneled in pine from the original beams. Its rug, with the U.S. seal, is in light purple tones and this color is reflected in the window drapes.

The Oval Room, used by President F. D. Roosevelt for his fireside chats, now has walls decorated with portraits of White House hostesses: Dolly Madison, Angelica van Buren, Julia Gardner Tyler, Sarah Polk, Lou Henry Hoover and Edith Carow Roosevelt.

Library of Congress

The Library of Congress, Capitol Hill, Washington, D. C., is the world's largest establishment devoted exclusively to library work. It occupies two buildings; an ornate Italian Renaissance structure (1897), and a modern Annex of Georgia white marble (1939). They cover 13 acres, contain 36 acres of floor space and have 250 miles of book shelves.

L. Quincy Mumford, professional librarian, became the 11th Librarian of Congress when he was sworn into office by Associate Justice Harold H. Burton, Sept. 1, 1954. He was appointed by President Eisenhower to succeed Luther H. Evans, who became director general of Unesco. Mr. Mumford was president of the American Library Assn. during 1954-55.

Congress, on April 24, 1800, provided for the purchase of books for the use of Congress and for a "suitable apartment" for them in the Capitol. The Library had over 3,000 vols. when it was destroyed by British troops in the burning of the Capitol, Aug. 24-25, 1814. In January, 1815, Congress purchased Thomas Jefferson's library of 6,487 vols. In 1851 a fire destroyed about half the collections. In 1866 the science library of Smithsonian Institution was transferred to the Library, and in 1870 the Library became the repository for materials deposited for copyright. A system of international exchange was organized in the 1840's.

At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1955, the Library held more than 34,000,000 items. There were over 10,500,000 books and pamphlets, 151,000 bound newspaper volumes, more than 14,500,000 manuscripts, over 2,300,000 maps and views, more than 2,000,000 photographic negatives, prints, and slides, 458,000 phonograph recordings, 582,000 fine prints, 108,000 reels and strips of microfilm, 112,000 motion picture reels; also broadsides, photo-stats, and posters.

More than 748,000 readers were served during the fiscal year 1955. The Legislative Reference Service answered more than 56,600 inquiries from Congress. The Library registered copyright claims for 224,732 works and took in $881,017 in fees, which were transferred to the U.S. Treasury. It distributed more than 23,000,000 catalog cards to about 10,000 subscribers, who paid over $968,400, which also went to the Treasury. During the fiscal year $13,950,376 was available for use. Of this sum $9,399,636 was appropriated by Congress, $3,054,483 was transferred from other Government agencies, and $981,161 was derived from gifts.

The serially published Library of Congress Catalog reproduces the cards it prints for books, maps and atlases, motion pictures and filmstrips, music, and phonograph records. The quinquennial cumulation of its subject catalog, published in the fall of 1955, contained more than 11,210 pages, recording approximately 1,000,000 entries for books cataloged during 1950-54. Other bibliographical publications included the Armed Forces Medical Library Catalog (1950-1954), the Catalog of the Jean Hersholt Collection of Hans Christian Andersen, Introduction to Asia: A Selective Guide to Background Reading, Scientific and Technical Serial Publications; Soviet Union, 1945-1953, and a Walt Whitman Catalog.

Exhibits and Other Activities

Among the permanent exhibits are Jefferson's "rough draft" of the Declaration of Independence; one of the original copies of the Bill of Rights; the first and second drafts of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address; manuscripts and other memorabilia of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Wilson; the Gutenberg Bible and the Giant Bible of Mainz and General Eisenhower's military banner. Two major literary exhibits commemorated the centennial of Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass and the sesquicentennial of Hans Christian Andersen's birth. Special exhibits marked the centennial of Robert M. LaFollette's birth and the birthdays of Hawthorne, L'Enfant, Audubon and Bartholdi; also the American first editions of 1855. The manuscripts of Charles Lindbergh's The Spirit of St. Louis was displayed on the 27th anniversary of his Atlantic flight. Major exhibits in music included manuscripts and memorabilia of Richard Rodgers, William Schuman, Geraldine Farrar and Fritz Kreisler. Important among prints and photographs were the 13th National Exhibition of Prints, the 12th White House News Photographers Association exhibit, an exhibit of Arnold Genthe's photographs and loan exhibits from abroad of Japanese woodcuts, contemporary Italian prints, photographs of Venetian villas and British prints. Special exhibits honored the visits to the Library of the President of Liberia, the Chancellor of Austria, and the Prime Ministers of Japan, Thailand, and Burma.

During fiscal 1955, composers William Schuman and Richard Rodgers presented manuscripts to the Music Division. The Prints and Photographs Division received the Brady-Handy Collection, presented by Mrs. Mary H. Evans and Mrs. Alice H. Cox and containing more than 3,000 negatives several thousand great-uncle, Mathew B. Brady, and C. Handy. The Manuscripts Division acquired the papers of Kermit Roosevelt, James R. Garfield, Peyton C. March, Ogden Mills, Nelson T. Johnson, among others.

The Gertrude Clarke Whittall Poetry and Literature Fund sponsored three lectures on Walt Whitman by Gay W. Allen, Mark Van Doren, and David Daiches, and a reading of Whitman's poetry by Arnold Moss to honor the Leaves of Grass cen-ennial. The fund also sponsored readings and lectures by Carl Sandburg, Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn, Lord Dunsany, Thornton Wilder, Frank C. Baxter and Merrill Moore.

National Gallery of Art

The National Gallery of Art, situated on the area bounded by Seventh Street, Constitution Avenue, Fourth Street, and Madison Drive on the Mall in Washington, D. C., was established March 24, 1937, as a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution.

The building, costing about $15,000,000, was erected with funds given by the late Andrew W. Mellon. It was completed under the direction of Paul Mellon, Donald D. Shepard, and David K. E. Bruce, trustees of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust. The architects were John Russell Pope and associates, Otto R. Eggers and Daniel Paul Higgins. The building is of rose-white marble, 785 feet in length and classical in style. The Andrew W. Mellon Memorial Fountain, in front of the building, was dedicated May 9, 1952. It was designed by Eggers and Higgins.

The central architectural feature of the Gallery is the rotunda, covered with a coffered dome supported by 24 columns of dark green marble. The diameter of the rotunda and the height of the dome from the marble floor both measure 100 feet. Flanking the rotunda on either side are two long galleries for larger pieces of sculpture. At the end of each of these galleries is a garden court, with a colonnade of 16 monoliths of Indiana limestone. In the center of each court has been installed a 17th Century fountain from the park of Versailles.

The principal collections now comprise over 26,000 works, including paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings, and examples of decorative arts.

In addition to providing the building, Mr. Mellon also gave his collection, consisting of 126 paintings and 26 pieces of sculpture, the latter largely from the Dreyfus Collection. These paintings cover the various European schools from the 13th Century to the 19th, and include such masterpieces as Raphael's Alba Madonna; the Niccolini-Cowper Madonna, and St. George and the Dragon; Van Eyck's Annunciation; Botticelli's Adoration of the Magi; nine Rembrandts, and three Vermeers. Twenty-one paintings in the Mellon Collection came from the famous Hermitage Gallery in Leningrad. Also in this collection are the Vaughan Washington, by Gilbert Stuart, and the Washington Family, by Edward Savage of the American School.

The National Gallery has been augmented by the Samuel H. Kress collection. Among the masterpieces are Giorgione's Adoration of the Shepherds, Raphael's portrait of Bindo Altoviti, a Madonna by Giotto and 9 paintings by Giovanni Bellini; also French paintings from the 17th to the early 19th centuries.

The Jos. E. Widener collection of over 100 paintings includes 14 Rembrandts, 8 Van Dycks, 2 Vermeers and examples of Italian masters; also Renaissance and French sculpture and examples of the decorative arts.

The Chester Dale collection includes masterpieces by Tintoretto, El Greco, Rubens, Zurbaran, Boucher, Drouais, and Chardin, and a group of American paintings. French 19th and 20th century paintings have been placed on loan by Mr. Dale.

Lessing J. Rosenwald has given 17,136 prints to the National Gallery. The print collection also includes gifts from Miss Ellen T. Bullard, Miss Elisabeth Achelis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Mrs. Walter B. James, Mrs. Addie Burr Clark, George Matthew Adams and heirs of Frank Crowninshield. From the Collection of Edgar William and Bernice Chrysler Garbisch has come an important group of American Primitive paintings.

The Index of American Design, at the National Gallery of Art, is a collection of some 22,000 water color renderings and photographs of American crafts and folk arts. The Library has over 12,000 vols.

Arlington National Cemetery

Arlington National Cemetery administered by the Department of the Army, is located at Fort Myer, Va., on the south bank of the Potomac River opposite Washington. It was established June 15, 1864, on land, originally the estate of George Washington Parke Custis, and later the home of Robert E. Lee.

It now embraces more than 420 acres. An official report on Feb. 28, 1954, showed 81,994 military, naval and civilian persons buried there, of whom 4,720 are unidentified. Among the unknown dead are 2,111 who died in the Civil War on the battlefields of Virginia and 167 who lost their lives when the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana Harbor Feb. 15, 1898.

Large memorial structures include the Temple of Fame; the Confederate Monument (1914); the U.S.N. Maine memorial (1915), and the Arlington Memorial Amphitheater (1920).

Among famous Americans buried in Arlington National Cemetery are Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who planned the City of Washington; Gen. Phil Sheridan, Gen. Philip Kearny, Adm. W. T. Sampson, Gen. Walter W. Gresham, Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, Robert Todd Lincoln, William Jennings Bryan, Adm. Robert E. Peary, Adm. Horatio G. Wright, former President William Howard Taft, Major Walter Reed, Admiral Marc Mitscher, General John J. Pershing, James V. Forrestal and General H. H. Arnold.

TOMB OF UNKNOWN SOLDIER

The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier of World War I is situated on the east front of the Arlington Memorial Amphitheater facing Washington across the Potomac. It is a simple monument of white marble bearing the inscription, "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."

The Unknown Soldier was one of four unidentified American soldiers whose bodies, by Congressional resolution, were disinterred from four U. S. Army cemeteries in France (October, 1921). The bodies were placed in caskets and taken to Chaumont-sur-Marne where a wounded and decorated veteran, Sgt. Edward F. Younger, selected one casket by placing on it a spray of white roses. The casket arrived in Washington Nov. 9, 1921, on the cruiser Olympia, Adm. Dewey's flagship in the Battle of Manila Bay, and was placed in the rotunda of the Capitol on the same catafalque on which had rested the bodies of the three martyred Presidents—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. The body was placed in the tomb on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1921, in the presence of President Harding and high officials and military and naval officers.

Custis-Lee Mansion

On the hilltop stands Arlington, the former home of Robert E. Lee, which was officially designated the Custis-Lee Mansion by an act of Congress in 1955. A house with a large portico with heavy Doric-style columns, and balanced wings, it was built by George Washington Parke Custis, grandson of Martha Washington and father of Mary Ann Randolph Custis, who married Lee in this house in 1831. Here Lee wrote his resignation from the U.S. Army. The property was taken by the Government, later restored to the Lee family and then sold to the Government.

Famous Churches

Washington contains many churches that have historical or architectural interest for the visitor. On Mount St. Alban, 400 ft. above the Potomac in Northwest Washington rises the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, also called Washington Cathedral, seat of the Protestant Episcopal diocese. It was begun in 1908 and was planned to be 534 ft. long, with a transept of 135 ft., two towers 195 ft. and a central tower to rise 262 ft. It has a number of fine chapels. Among notables buried in the cathedral are President Woodrow Wilson, Admiral George Dewey, Bishop Satterlee and Melville E. Stone. Above Wilson's tomb hang three flags, one carried by the first troops to go abroad in 1917.

Also architecturally imposing is the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, at the Catholic University of America, a Romanesque-Byzantine design 485 ft. long, with a transept of 331 ft. and provision for a dome rising 254 ft. This was begun in 1920.

Two Protestant churches are each called Church of the Presidents, because Presidents attended them during terms of office. St. John's Episcopal Church, across Lafayette Sq. from the White House, designed by Benj. Latrobe in 1816, was attended by Presidents from Madison to F. D. Roosevelt. They also favored the New York Ave. Presbyterian Church, New York Ave. and M. at 13th St., N.W. Here is preserved a room which Lincoln sat, and a room that was used has been turned into a museum. Eisenhower attends the church. Dates from 1860 and 1861 are on the walls with chimes of the Robert M.

Armed Forces Institute of Pathology

The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, 14th and Alaska Ave., N.W. Washington, D. C., is the central laboratory of pathology for the United States Army, Navy and Air Force, the Veterans Administration, the U. S. Public Health Service, The Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies. It is made up of four major departments and the Administrative Service.

Department of Pathology is concerned with diagnosis, consultation, research and advanced training in the pathology of diseases of medicomilitary importance. It is charged with review, confirmation or modification of the pathologic diagnosis on surgical and autopsy material from hospitals of the Armed Services and Veterans Administration. It conducts experimental, morphologic and statistical research and provides instruction in advanced pathology, both general and related to medical specialties. A total of 581,088 cases are available for study by qualified civilians.

Medical Illustration Service is responsible for the collection, preparation, publication, exhibition, and file of medical illustration material of importance to the Armed Forces. Its facilities are also available to the Medical Services of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and prescribed Federal and civilian medical agencies.

American Registry of Pathology operates 22 component registries in special fields of pathology as the central agency for a corresponding number of national medical, dental, and veterinary societies. Its files contain approximately 119,000 cases. Loan sets of slides for microscopic study are available to qualified physicians.

Medical Museum, 9th and Independence Ave., S.W., exhibits materials of professional and historical importance for the graduate study of physicians and allied scientists, and the education of laymen. Demonstrations of wounds range from those inflicted by arrows and tomahawks during Indian wars to those caused by atomic explosions.

Armed Forces Medical Library

Armed Forces Medical Library, formerly the Army Medical Library, is the largest medical library in the country.

It contains nearly 1,000,000 items, including approximately 470,000 books, 423,000 pamphlets, 55,000 portraits and photographs, and nearly 600 incunabula. It receives about 10,000 serials regularly, about half of them in foreign languages. Material in the Armed Forces Medical Library may be obtained by microfilm and photostat, subject to copyright restrictions; some volumes may be borrowed as inter-library loans. All rare books and manuscripts are housed in the Library's History of Medicine Division, 11,000 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland 6, Ohio. The Library publishes the Current List of Medical Literature, a monthly index of articles in medical journals; the Armed Forces Medical Library Catalog, an annual catalog of titles added to the collections; and the Index-Catalogue, a basic medical bibliography since 1880.

Corcoran Gallery of Art

The Corcoran Gallery of Art, 17th St., between New York Ave., and E St., N.W., Washington, was donated by William Wilson Corcoran in 1869 and is privately endowed. Numerous benefactors, including Sen. W. A. Clark, have augmented its collections.

The Gallery has a wide range of American and European art, including paintings by Cole, Innes, Peale, Sully, Ryder, Davies, Eakins, Bellows, Luks, Melchers, etc.; drawings by Sargent; etchings by Whistler, Pennell and others.

Modern French paintings include a series on the life of Joan of Arc by Boutet de Monvel. There are Flemish tapestries, Gobelins, bronzes by Barye and sculpture by Hiram Powers, including his Greek Slave, and a large number of miniature portraits of Americans by St. Memin.

Recent notable exhibitions have been, American Professional (1950), Privately Owned (1952), and The Sword in America (1954) as well as the Corcoran Biennial Exhibitions of Contemporary American Oil Painting.

D. A. R. Headquarters

National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution (org. 1890), occupies three formal buildings: Memorial Continental Hall, Constitution Hall and Administration, connecting the two, on a block bounded by 17th and 18th Sts., and C and D Sts., N.W. At either side are the Red Cross and the Pan American buildings.

The buildings contain offices, the Museum, with priceless heirlooms; 28 State rooms, furnished by state organizations; the auditorium of Constitution Hall, and the Library, dedicated 1949. Notable works of art include Martha Washington by E. F. Andrews, and George Washington by Rembrandt Peale. The Library has over 40,000 vols., many manuscripts and genealogical records. Microfilms of state census records, 1850-1880, may be consulted by appointment. The Genealogical Library is open to the public.

Folger Shakespeare Library

The Folger Shakespeare Library on Capitol Hill, Washington, D. C., is a research institution devoted to the advancement of learning in the background of Anglo-American civilization in the 16th and 17th centuries. It has the largest collection of Shakespeariana in the world with 79 copies of the First Folio and 239 copies of the Quartos. Its most significant collections, however, are source materials useful in the study of English civilization in the period before 1700. Its collection of English books printed before 1640 is the largest in the Western Hemisphere. It also has extensive source materials for the history of theatre and drama from the Middle Ages to the end of the 19th century, both English and American. It owns a large collection of 16th and 17th century books gathered by Sir Leicester Harmsworth, English newspaper publisher. The library owns approximately 250,000 volumes, many excessively rare.

The library was founded and endowed by Henry Clay Folger, a former president of the Standard Oil Co. of New York, and his wife, Emily Jordan Folger. He left its administration to the trustees of his alma mater, Amherst College. The library is available to all accredited scholars and advanced students working in fields where it has materials. It awards annually a certain number of grants-in-aid to promising scholars. Its exhibition gallery is open free every day except Sundays and holidays. Dr. Louis B. Wright is director.

Thomas Jefferson Memorial

The Thomas Jefferson Memorial stands on the south shore of the tidal basin in West Potomac park. It was dedicated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt Apr. 13, 1943, the 200th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson. The Pantheon style was adopted because it represents Jefferson's artistic preference, and the simplicity of the design is in keeping with his tastes in architecture.

The design is a modification of that produced by John Russell Pope and carried to completion after his death in 1937 by his associates, Otto R. Eggers and Daniel P. Higgins. The Memorial consists of a circular structure in marble, which contains a marble-lined central circular chamber 86.3 ft. in diameter, with a domed ceiling. The center of the room is dominated by a heroic full-length figure of Thomas Jefferson by the American sculptor, Rudolph Evans.

On the frieze of the main entablature is an inscription: "I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man." On four panels on the sides of the memorial chamber are inscribed passages from the writings of Jefferson, including the Declaration of Independence. They express his convictions of personal liberty and religious freedom and the obligation of the government to keep pace with human progress.

The exterior of the structure is surrounded by a peristyle of Ionic columns, each 43 feet high. The flat dome which surmounts the Memorial is 95 feet 8 inches above the floor at its apex. A portico eight columns wide and two bays deep, surmounted by a low pediment, dominates the principal facade of the Memorial. A sculptural group depicting Jefferson reading a draft of the Declaration of Independence to a committee of the Continental Congress, by Adolph A. Weinman, occupies the center of the tympanum. The complete composition is posed on a circular stylobate consisting of steps and broad terraces.

The exterior of the Memorial is constructed of Imperial Danby Vermont marble. Georgia white marble is used for the interior. The entire structure is 183 feet 10 inches in diameter to exterior of stylobate and 151 feet 10 inches in diameter to exterior of peristyle. Height from floor of Memorial Room to top of dome, exterior 95 feet 8 inches; interior, 91 feet 8 inches. The 26 Ionic columns are each 5 feet 3 inches in diameter and 41 feet high. The portico is 92 feet 8 inches wide, 38 feet 4 inches deep and 62 feet 2 inches high. The interior columns are 5 feet in diameter and 39 feet 2 inches high. Congress appropriated $3,000,000 to build the Memorial.

Lincoln Memorial

The Lincoln Memorial, in Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., on the axis of the Capitol and Washington Monument, was designed by Henry Bacon, architect of New York City, and dedicated May 30, 1922. It cost $2,940,000.

The exterior of the Memorial symbolizes the Union of the United States of America. Surrounding the walls of the Memorial Hall is a colonnade of the States of the Union, the frieze above it bearing the names of the 36 States existing at the time of Lincoln's death. On the attic walls above the colonnade are inscribed the names of the 48 States existing today. These walls and columns enclose the sanctuary containing three memorials to Abraham Lincoln. The place of honor is occupied by a colossal marble statue of the man himself, facing the Washington Monument and Capitol. On the north wall is inscribed Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address; on the south wall is the Gettysburg Address.

The columns are not vertical, but are slightly tilted inward toward the building, and the tilt of the four corner columns is even more exaggerated. The outside face above the columns is also inclined inward, but less than the columns. The wall of the Memorial Hall inclines inward least of all. This was done to avoid the optical illusion of bulging at the top.

The foundations of the Memorial rest upon bedrock from 44 to 65 feet below the original grade. The superstructure of white Colorado-Yule marble is approximately 80 feet high and rests on a base composed of three immense marble steps. Masonry approaches from the direction of the Washington Monument and the Capitol ascend a terrace retained by a 14-foot granite wall. This wall on the east and west sides is 256 feet, 10 inches long and 187 feet long on the north and south sides. The walls of the Memorial are enclosed by a continuous colonnade 188 feet, 4 inches long and 118 feet, 6 inches wide. The 38 columns in the colonnade, including the two standing in the entrance, are 44 feet high, 7 feet 5 inches in diameter at the base, and the shafts are composed of 11 drums each. Greek Ionic columns 50 feet high and 5 feet, 6 inches in diameter at the base divide the interior of the Memorial into three chambers. The walls of the interior are Indiana limestone, and the ceiling, which is 60 feet above the finished floor, is designed with bronze girders ornamented with laurel and pine leaves. The panels between the girders are of Alabama marble saturated with paraffin to produce translucency.

The outstanding feature of the Memorial is the statue of Abraham Lincoln, designed and modeled by Daniel Chester French. It represents Lincoln as the war President seated in a great armchair 13½ feet high, over the back of which drapery has been placed, 28 blocks of Georgia white marble compose the statue, which is 19 feet high from head to foot. The extreme width, including the drapery over the chair, is 19 feet. The statue rests upon an oblong pedestal of Tennessee marble 10 feet high, 16 feet wide, and 17 feet deep, which in turn rests upon a platform of Tennessee marble.

The two murals by Jules Guerin typify allegorically the principles which were evident in the life of Lincoln. Each is 60 feet long and 12 feet high. In front of the Memorial is the Reflecting Pool, about 2,000 ft. long, ending in a Rainbow Pool, with a fountain of 200 jets.

Mount Vernon

Mount Vernon on the south bank of the Potomac, 16 miles below Washington, D. C., is part of a large tract of land in Northern Virginia which was originally included in a royal grant made to Lord Gulepper, who in 1674 granted 5,000 acres to Nicholas Spencer and John Washington. The division between Spencer and Washington put John Washington's son Lawrence in possession of the Washington half in 1690. Later it became the property of Lawrence Washington's son Augustine, the father of George Washington.

The present house is an enlargement of one apparently built on the site of an earlier one by Augustine Washington, who lived there 1735-1738. His son Lawrence came there in 1743, when he renamed the plantation Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon under whom he had served in the West Indies. Lawrence Washington died in 1752 and was succeeded as proprietor of Mount Vernon by his half-brother, George Washington.

To Mount Vernon in 1759 Washington brought his wife, Martha Dandridge Custis, having previously enlarged the house from 1½ to 2½ stories. Here he cultivated a farm and employed a shoemaker, a tailor, a dozen textile workers and other help. Just before the Revolution he planned additions, and when he was called away to war his kinsman Lund Washington supervised the work, which was completed after Washington returned in 1783. During the Revolution Washington visited Mount Vernon only twice, on the way to and from Yorktown in 1781. His wife often stayed with him at headquarters. He returned to the house on Christmas Eve, 1783. In 1789 he left to become President and lived in New York and Philadelphia, with brief visits to the plantation. He came back in 1797 and died in Mount Vernon Dec. 14, 1799. He was buried in the old family vault. He had made plans for a new burial vault and this was built in 1831. Both his remains and those of Martha, who died in 1802, were transferred there.

Mount Vernon was left to Washington's nephew, U. S. Supreme Court Justice Bushrod Washington, and by him to his nephew, John A. Washington, whose son, John Augustine Washington was the last private owner. In 1858, when the place was run down, Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina organized the Mount Vernon Ladies Assn., which bought the mansion and 200 acres, since extended to 475 acres. The Association reassembled original Washington furniture and repaired the buildings. It restored the kitchen garden, flower garden and experimental botanical garden, reconstructed the greenhouse and built a museum. It is believed that 16 trees planted by Washington still exist, and that the boxwood of the flower garden dates from 1798.

The Association preserves house and tomb with the visitor's fee. The Regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association is Mrs. Albert Harkness. About 30 states are represented by vice regents. The resident superintendent is Chas. C. Wall.

National Academy of Sciences

The National Academy of Sciences is a private non-profit corporation electing its own members from among the leading scientists in the United States. It was established by Act of Congress, approved by President Lincoln, March 3, 1863, for the furtherance of science and to advise the Federal Government upon request in scientific and technical matters.

The National Research Council was organized by the Academy in 1916, with the cooperation of the major scientific and technical societies, to enable the scientists and engineers of the country to associate their efforts with those of the Academy in service to science and to the Government. It has representatives of more than 100 societies and of the Government, and a number of members-at-large.

The building and general maintenance of the Academy—Research Council are financed by a $5,000,000 endowment by the Carnegie Corporation in 1919. Other expenses are met by contracts, grants, bequests, and gifts from private and government sources.

National Archives and Records

The Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights are now enshrined in the National Archives Exhibition Hall, whither they were brought from the Library of Congress in December, 1952. These charters and many other famous documents of American history are on view weekdays, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sundays and holidays, except Christmas Day, 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Readable facsimiles of the three documents are available in an inexpensive 16-page publication, Charters of Freedom, and facsimiles of other historical documents, such as the Emancipation Proclamation and the first Inaugural Address of George Washington are also available. Certain series of records of high research value are available on microfilm.

The National Archives and Records Service is a part of the General Services Administration. It consists of the National Archives and the Divisions of Records Management and the Federal Register in Washington, and the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library in Hyde Park, N. Y. It is headed by Dr. Wayne C. Grover, Archivist of the United States.

Its functions are to promote the efficient management of records throughout the Government; to facilitate the orderly destruction of Federal records no longer needed and the economical storage of those needed for a short time only; to preserve, describe, and render reference service on those selected for permanent preservation; to publish the daily Federal Register, the Code of Federal Regulations, the statute-at-large and the U. S. Government Organization Manual, and to supervise collections in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library. There are now nearly 800,000 cubic feet of records in the National Archives Building in Washington. They date from the Revolutionary War through World War II and include more than 250,000 sound recordings, 900,000 maps and charts, 2,000,000 photographic items and the equivalent of 75,000 reels of motion-picture film. About 400,000 reference services are supplied annually.

National Geographic Society

The National Geographic Society was founded in 1888 "for the increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge." It occupies its own buildings at 1146 Sixteenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.—headquarters for the Society's publications, for its expeditions and staff field trips to all parts of the world, and for its scientific projects.

The Society publishes the illustrated monthly National Geographic Magazine for its 2,150,000 members (1955), as well as occasional books, and special monographs describing scientific research it has sponsored. Large-scale maps in 10 colors are issued quarterly by the cartographic division. The 1955 subjects were: Atlantic Ocean, Southeast Asia, New England, and Eastern South America.

The Society's library numbers 22,000 books on geography. Its collection of published and unpublished photographs totals nearly 500,000. Memorabilia, paintings, and photographs of world geography are exhibited in its Explorers Hall. A notable 1955 addition was Adm. Robert E. Peary's 45-starred United States flag, flown at the North Pole April 6, 1909, and carried on all of his Arctic travels. The Peary family presented it to the Society at ceremonies in Constitution Hall on May 6, when a Special Gold Medal of the Society was bestowed on Mrs. Peary for her part in her husband's early explorations.

The Society's news service staff issues an average of six bulletins weekly on progress of expeditions and researches and on geographic backgrounds to headline news. These are sent to daily newspapers, press associations, and radio and TV news outlets. Geographic School Bulletins are sent weekly during the school year to 27,000 teachers and students for classroom use, at nominal cost.

Two major publishing events marked the Society's accomplishments in 1955. In October it published Indians of the Americas, a book with 400 illustrations, 262 in color. Matthew W. Stirling, Hiram Bingham, and Neil M. Judd are among contributing authorities.

In August the first sections of the National Geographic Society-Palomar Observatory Sky Atlas were distributed to observatories, universities, and scientific institutions on every continent. The year marked the virtual completion of the Sky Survey, begun in 1949. Additional sections of this 1,758-plate "portrait of the universe" are being delivered through 1956. Astronomers will use the Atlas to select celestial objects worthy of study through large telescopes.

A Texas-size dark region on a large desert area of Mars, reported by E. C. Slipher after preliminary study of 20,000 new Mars photographs, represents what Dr. Slipher terms the greatest change noted in the planet's surface since it was first mapped 125 years ago. It is attributed to primitive plant life. The photographs were taken at the Lamont-Hussey Observatory, Bloemfontein, South Africa, by the National Geographic Society-Lowell Observatory Expedition in 1954.

The National Geographic Society-Calypso Oceanographic Expeditions, continuous since late 1952 under direction of French Navy Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, photographed underwater shelves along islands of the western Indian Ocean in 1955, then returned to Red Sea and Mediterranean projects. Dr. Harold E. Edgerton, M.I.T., devoted his third summer to improving the group's camera and photoflash equipment. He made tests of a capable of photography at the oceans' maximum depths of more than 6 miles.

Anthropologists Philip Drucker, Smithsonian Institution, and Robert F. Heizer, University of California, led a Society-cosponsored expedition,

January through May, which made extensive excavations at La Venta, southern Mexico. Continuing earlier research on the 1,500-year-old Olmec culture, the scientists uncovered carved stone monuments, tile courts, jade, and pottery from three distinct periods of construction.

With National Geographic support, the University of Miami Marine Laboratory continued research on pelagic fishes of the Florida coast, bearing on the sea food supply; and Dr. Carl W. Gartin, Cornell University, continued his long-range study of auroras and their possible relation to wire and radio communication disturbances.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star, were elected to the Board of Trustees of the Society in 1955.

Officers of the Society are: Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Gilbert Grosvenor; President and Editor, John Oliver La Gorce; Vice President and Associate Editor, Melville Bell Grosvenor; Vice President and Secretary, Thomas W. McKnew; Treasurer, Robert V. Fleming. Research Committee Chairman, Lyman J. Briggs; Vice Chairman, Alexander Wetmore.

The Pentagon

The Pentagon is the world's largest office building. It is situated on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, and covers 34 acres. It houses personnel of the Dept. of Defense, which includes the Depts. of the Army, Navy and Air Force. The Secretary of Defense, the Secretaries of the three departments and the military Chiefs of Staff have offices here. The building does not accommodate all the personnel of the Dept. of Defense.

The Pentagon was completed Jan. 15, 1943, at a cost of about $83,000,000. It covers 34 acres and has 200 acres of lawns and terraces. It is 5 stories high and consists of 5 rings of buildings connected by 10 corridors, with a 5-acre pentagonal court in the center. Each of the outermost sides of the building is 921 ft. long and the perimeter is seven-eighths of a mile. The gross floor area is approximately 6,500,000 sq. ft. There is a mezzanine below the first floor and a basement below that. The latter is used for records and offices and accommodates 3,000 persons.

Daytime population is 28,000, 70% civilians. The war-time peak in April, 1945, was 26,500.

Parking space covers 69 acres and can hold 9,200 vehicles. The bus terminal has 894 bus trips in and out daily.

Many facilities for daily use, such as a bank, drug store, medical and dental clinics, ticket agency, are located in the Pentagon. It has the largest private exchange switchboard, staffed by approximately 200 persons. This serves the entire Dept. of Defense and has over 45,000 telephones connected by 175,000 miles of cable, handling 280,000 calls a day.

Some of the workers eat 2 or 3 meals in the building. A staff of approximately 675 prepares and serves meals from 3 kitchens to 2 restaurants, 6 cafeterias, 9 beverage bars and an outside snack bar located in the inner court which is open during the summer months. During an average day Pentagon personnel consume approximately 30,000 cups of coffee, 3800 quarts of milk and milk products and 7,000 soft drinks.

Walter Reed Army Medical Center

Walter Reed Army Medical Center has three locations. Headquarters, at 6825 16th St., N.W., Washington, D. C., comprises Walter Reed Army Hospital, Army Medical Service Graduate School, Central Dental Laboratory, and the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

The hospital has an average of 1,400 bed patients daily, exclusive of out-patients. The school spearheads the Army's medical, dental, and veterinary educational and research programs. The laboratory annually produces more than 10,000 dentures for Army personnel. The institute is the central laboratory of pathology for the Army, Navy, Air Force, Veterans Administration, Public Health Service, and other agencies.

A section at Forest Glen, Md., houses the hospital's ambulatory center, the Army Prosthetics Research Laboratory, engaged in research on artificial limbs, an audiology and speech correction center, and the Army's first school of practical nursing for enlisted personnel. The third section is a housing development for enlisted personnel at Glenhaven, Md.

The Center has facilities comparable to a city of 6,000. Major General Leonard D. Heaton is in command. Visitors are welcome.

Smithsonian Institution

Smithsonian Institution was established in 1846 under the terms of the will of James Smithson, an Englishman, who bequeathed his fortune in 1826 to the United States to found in Washington an institution for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

The Smithsonian issues 14 series of scientific publications which are distributed free to libraries, learned societies, and educational institutions throughout the world. It also maintains a library of more than 900,000 volumes, mainly transactions of learned societies and scientific periodicals.

Branches of the Institution are the National Museum, the National Gallery of Art, the National Collection of Fine Arts, the Freer Gallery of Art, the International Exchange Service, the Bureau of American Ethnology, the National Zoological Park, the Astrophysical Observatory, including the Division of Radiation and Organisms, the National Air Museum, and the Canal Zone Biological Area.

The United States National Museum is the depository of the national collections. It is rich in the natural history, geology, paleontology, archeology and ethnology of America, and has large and important collections illustrating American history, including military and naval material, as well as valuable series relating to engineering and industries. It is an educational and research museum, and issues scientific publications.

A "First Ladies Hall" was opened in 1955 at the Smithsonian. Composed of facsimiles of White House parlors during various eras, the hall has 37 plaster models wearing inaugural gowns or favorite dresses of Presidents' wives or White House hostesses from Martha Washington to Mamie Eisenhower.

The National Air Museum, estab. 1946, contains aeronautical exhibits, including the Kitty Hawk plane of the Wright brothers, Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, Wiley Post's Winnie Mae and Langley's planes.

The National Collection of Fine Arts contains numerous important art works, including a valuable collection of etchings and engravings from George P. Marsh; the Harriet Lane Johnston bequest, comprising numerous portraits and other works by British, Flemish, Dutch, and Italian masters; the Ralph Cross Johnson collection of rare paintings by Italian, English, French, Flemish, and Dutch masters; the William T. Evans collection, comprising 150 examples of the works of contemporary American artists, the Gellatly collection of paintings, glassware, and other objects. A special room is devoted to the paintings of Albert Pinkham Ryder.

The Freer Gallery of Art, the gift of Charles L. Freer, has rich collections of Chinese and Japanese art, paintings by Thayer, Dewing, Homer, and Tryon, and paintings and etchings by Whistler, including his Peacock Room.

Washington National Monument

The Washington National Monument is a tapering shaft or obelisk of white marble, 555 feet, 5 1/2 inches in height and 55 feet, 1 1/2 inches square at the base. Eight small windows, two on each side, are located at the 500 foot level, where Washington points of interest are indicated.

The erection of the monument by the Washington National Monument Society with funds obtained by popular subscription was authorized by Congress in 1848. The cornerstone was laid July 4 of the same year. Work progressed slowly until 1854 when $300,000 had been subscribed and 156 feet of the shaft erected. In that year the enterprise became the subject of controversy and contributions ceased. Work was resumed 1878 at Government expense by the Corps of Engineers.

The capstone weighs 3,300 lbs. and was placed Dec. 6, 1884. The monument was dedicated Feb. 21, 1885, and opened Oct. 9, 1888. It weighs 81,120 tons. It is dressed with white Maryland marble in 2-ft. courses. The first 150 ft. are backed by rubble masonry. New England granite was used from this point to the 452-ft. level. Above this only marble was used. The capstone is crowned by a small pyramid of aluminum 8.9 inches high, weighing 100 ounces. Set into the interior walls are 189 memorial stones from foreign countries, the 48 states, cities and organizations.

Ghosts in White House Get Short Shift from Presidents

Source: Arthur Krock, Washington columnist, in the New York Times, June 2, 1955

When President Truman moved back to the rebuilt White House in late March, 1952, the ghostly rappings on doors in the night that he had heard previously were heard no more. . . . The old subject of White House ghosts was revived by something the former President said in reply to this question asked him by his daughter Margaret during a televised interview: "Remember the night * * * that you heard a knock on your bedroom door in the White House?" "Yes," was the answer, "I heard the knock and answered it about 3 a.m. There wasn't anybody there. I think it must have been Lincoln's ghost walking the hall." The experience was repeated several times.

On the telephone from Kansas City the former President told this correspondent that his mention of the sounds had been serious, but not his attribution of their cause. He doesn't believe in ghosts: he soon discovered the noises were among the warning signals that parts of the interior of the structure were on the verge of collapse. "But I was awakened several times by authentic knocks on my door," he recalled, "for instance, during the organization meeting of the United Nations in 1945 when (Secretary of State) Stettinius, working by a clock 3 hours earlier than Washington, had some urgent message for me."

This homely explanation will be most disappointing to all believers in the supernatural, however reassuring it is to those who, like the late Charles A. Dana, can say "I don't believe in ghosts but I have been afraid of them all my life." But the two other living men who have occupied the White House support it. "I didn't hear any of the sounds in the White House that President Truman heard," said Herbert Hoover. "But," he added jocosely, "I did hear a lot of others—many of them fantastic." President Eisenhower, when the question was put to him, simply said No.

The Hoover regime ended March 4, 1933, before the White House began to "fall down," as Mr. Truman described its condition. All but the inside walls and part of the roof had been taken out and reconstructed more than 10 months before President Eisenhower moved in. So Mr. Truman's explanation of his nocturnal experiences is reasonable.

Nevertheless, a ghost story in this grand and historic setting will not be so easily refuted. In this legend the dominant White House ectoplasm is that of Abraham Lincoln. According to Bess Furman in White House Profile, Theodore Roosevelt "many times fancied that Lincoln's spirit still pervaded" it. Early in the New Deal a girl secretary insisted that one mid-afternoon she had seen Lincoln pulling on his boots, sitting on the bed he in life had slept in. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told Miss Furman that she had felt Lincoln's presence in the White House "repeatedly."

Before the ghost of Lincoln monopolized the still watches of the night Dolly Madison's appeared to the satisfaction of White House workers who, in the Wilson Administration, were about to move her rose garden and then and there desisted. A boy ghost, his materialization sworn to by members of President Grant's household, was easily identified as Willie Lincoln, who died in the White House. Abigail Adams used to pass through the locked doors of the East Room in the Taft Administration; at any rate, there were folk in the Executive Mansion who said so. And years before the recent rebuilding a colored footman anxiously advised one of F. D. R.'s guests not to get up and open his door "because there won't be nobody there."

Adlai E. Stevenson spent at least one night in Lincoln's bedroom and bed. He heard no eerie sounds and saw no apparitions. But he confessed that he did not sleep very soundly after picking up a book entitled The Corpse Was Cold.

Now that the second floor of the White House has been entirely rebuilt, with steel beams and joists substituted for the old wooden ones, the spirits, if they roam at all, can glide about silently if they are so minded. . . . Mr. Truman said that when his daughter's piano broke down the floor and projected one leg through the ceiling of the state dining room below he knew it was time to move out of the place. Maybe the ghosts thought so, too.

STATE OF NEW YORK

The State of New York, known as the Empire State, was one of the original 13 states that fought the American War of Independence. It was named by Charles II. King of England, for his brother, the Duke of York, when he ordered New Netherland taken from the Dutch in 1664. The colony had a population of 180,000, of British, Dutch and Palatine German origin, when it declared its independence of Great Britain July 9, 1776. It adopted its first constitution April 20, 1777 and elected George Clinton governor. It ratified the Constitution of the United States July 26, 1778. New York City became the first capital of the United States and George Washington took his oath as first President in Federal Hall, at Broad and Wall Sts., April 30, 1789.

THE PALISADES INTERSTATE PARK

The Palisades Interstate Park is a chain of parks that lie along the west bank of the Hudson River beginning at Fort Lee in New Jersey, embracing the Palisades, a large part of the Highlands of the Hudson, and terminating at Cornwall, in New York. The rocks of the Palisades are said by geologists to be 150,000,000 years old.

Within the area of the Park, under the supervision of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, is the Stony Point Battlefield Reservation.

The total area of the Park is 51,907 acres, of which the Harriman Section covers 39,335 acres; Bear Mt., 4,490; Storm King, 1,057; Hook Mt., 655; Blauvelt, 536; Tallmadge, 781; Haverstraw, 73; Palisades, 46; Stony Point, 45; Nyack Beach, 73; and High Tor, 491.

Every section of the Park is accessible by motor highways and by interior roads. In the summer season, steamboats run to Hook Mountain and Bear Mountain. The Mohawk Coach Lines and the West Shore Railroad reaches the eastern borders, and the Erie the western.

The main artery connecting the several sections of the Park is U. S. Route 9-W. Readily accessible by way of the Holland Tunnel, the George Washington Bridge and from New York City and from Yonkers, over the Yonkers-Alpine Ferry. It is a scenic highway almost constantly in sight of the Hudson River. New York State Route 17 gives access to the southern and western portions of the Harriman Section of the Park and U. S. Route 6 crosses the northeastern corner of the Bear Mountain-Harriman Section. From the east side of the Hudson River, access to the Park may be had over the Bear Mountain Parkway and the Bear Mountain Bridge.

Camping facilities are available by permit at Lake Tiorati and Lake Welch in Harriman State Park.

Benefit Payments, 1954	288,324,000
Funds on Hand, Jan. 1, 1955	1,267,384,000

The Unemployment Insurance Law of the State of New York was enacted in April, 1936, and was the second of its kind in the United States. Collections from employers began in 1936 and first payments to the unemployed were made in 1938.

Since that time various amendments have altered the provisions of the law. Benefit rates set at $7 to $15 a week in 1938 have been $10 to $30 since January, 1952; duration of payments, originally 3 to 16 weeks, were increased to 26 weeks in 1945; the original waiting period of 3 to 5 weeks was reduced to one week in 1945; compensation is now for days instead of full weeks of unemployment; coverage has been extended to seamen, employees of the Federal government, permanent employees of the state and other government subdivisions which so elect, and reductions have been made in employers' contributions.

WHAT EMPLOYER PAYS

Employer contributions to the Fund were reduced from 3% to 2.7% in 1940. Beginning July 1, 1945, actual contributions could be lower than 2.7% because of the tax credit provision in the law. In 1954 contribution rates varied from 0.5% to 2.7%, depending on each employer's own experience with unemployment. The law also provides for subsidiary contributions, payable in addition to regular contributions. They may amount to 1% of 1% of payrolls or 1% of payrolls. As required by the Social Security Act, all monies collected are deposited with the Secretary of the Treasury in an Unemployment Trust Fund, subject to requisition by the State Division of Employment for the payment of benefits. Contributions are payable quarterly. Since Jan. 1, 1938, contributions have been payable on the first $3,000 of wages.

Tips, bonuses, vacation pay, and other gratuities are wages on which contributions must be paid; dismissal wages are not. Payments made by an employer under a retirement, sickness, or accident disability plan, effective Jan. 1, 1940, are not wages to be used as a basis for benefit payment.

Employers, whether subject to the law or not, are required to keep accurate records of wages paid to each employee. Once subject, an employer ceases to be subject only after he has not employed four or more persons in employment in: 1) the preceding calendar year if liability is to cease at the start of a calendar year; 2) or the lapsed calendar quarters of the instant year plus the preceding calendar year if liability is to cease during the year. A delinquent employer who erroneously contributed to the unemployment compensation fund of another state is not held liable for penalties and interest.

Employment of four or more persons makes an employer subject to the law on and after the first of the 15 days within which employment occurs.

VOLUNTARY COVERAGE

The following employers not subject to the law may become voluntarily insured with the consent of the Industrial Commissioner: firms with fewer than four employees; non-profit-making religious, scientific, charitable, literary and educational bodies (excepting such bodies whose primary activity is the production of plays or concerts for public entertainment); New York State municipal corporations and other governmental subdivisions, except certain employees of the State government and employees of custodians or custodial engineers in cities having population of more than 500,000.

The State Board of Mediation has 7 members appointed by the Governor, with hq at 270 Broadway, New York, N. Y., and district offices in Albany, Buffalo and Syracuse, N. Y.

The function of the Board is to prevent or settle labor disputes by voluntary mediation. Any party to a dispute may ask the Board to mediate or arbitrate. In an existing, imminent or threatened labor dispute, the Board may upon its own motion, or upon the direction of the Governor must, take steps to effect an amicable and expeditious settlement of differences.

On-the-Job Training for Veterans

On-the-Job Training for Veterans is an earn-while-learning program to give servicemen training in a particular field of employment. The program was reactivated by the 82nd Congress to provide training for Korean veterans. The Dept. of Employment excluded from coverage under the State law which cannot voluntarily be covered includes: employment of spouse or minor child; employment as a golf caddy; employment during all or any part of a school year or vacation as a part-time worker of any person in regular attendance during the daytime as a student in an institution of learning (although compensation for such employment is taxable where the employer is also subject to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act); employment in agriculture; employment of a 25% stockholder by a firm not subject to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, and employment covered by the Federal Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

BENEFITS TO UNEMPLOYED

Benefits are payable to claimants who in an individual base period (52 weeks preceding the filing of a valid original claim for benefits) worked in insured employment in at least 20 weeks, and earned remuneration totalling $300 (averaging at least $15 per week) in any 20 weeks. Such benefits are payable for not more than 26 weeks of unemployment within the claimant's individual benefit year (52 weeks following the filing of a valid original claim). The weekly benefit rate is based on the claimant's average weekly wage, and varies from 2% of the average weekly wage for claimants entitled to the $10 weekly minimum, to 1/2 of the average weekly wage for claimants entitled to the $30 maximum. Benefits are paid weekly for each fourth and subsequent day of total unemployment within the week, known as effective days, after a waiting period of four effective days, which need not be consecutive.

The partial earnings under which a claimant may get benefits are limited to $30 a week.

To permit prompt settlement of benefit claims, employers are required to supply wage information within seven days after receiving a request.

If "reasonably fitted" by training and experience eligible claimants must accept offered employment unless its acceptance requires joining a company union, jeopardizing his labor union status, working in an establishment where an industrial controversy exists, working for substantially less than the wages, hours, or conditions prevailing for similar work in the locality, or working at a place unreasonably distant from home at increased expense unless the expense is provided for. An employee may also refuse employment for other good cause, but benefits are not paid if he has withdrawn from the labor market.

A 1941 amendment provided a 42-day disqualification for workers who voluntarily leave their employment without good cause. Another amendment provided for a 7-week suspension of benefit rights rather than an extended waiting period for loss of employment due to misconduct, a strike, lockout, or other industrial controversy. The same amendment made provision for reduction of benefits in cases of wilful false statements.

BENEFITS FOR VETERANS

A revision in 1952 extended to veterans the same privileges possessed by civilians. The term of military service was disregarded and the 52 weeks of civilian life prior to the filing of a claim were made the base period.

INSURANCE APPEAL BOARD

The Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board consists of three members appointed for 6 years each by the Governor. The Board hears appeals from the decisions of Unemployment Insurance Referees on disputed claims for insurance benefits and on contested rulings of the Industrial Commissioner affecting employer liability.

State Mediation Board

The Board arranges conferences between disputants, and assists in negotiating and drafting agreements.

If a labor dispute, which vitally affects the public's interest, has not been settled through mediation, the Board may certify this matter to the Industrial Commissioner, who is empowered to approve a Board of Inquiry. The latter may hold public or private hearings, subpoena witnesses, take testimony and receive evidence, and issue a factual report.

Labor supervises this in New York State, with hq at 40 Howard St., Albany, N. Y. The Apprenticeship Council of 7 members and 3 ex-officio members establishes standards for apprenticeship agreements and canvasses job opportunities.

New York State Personal Income Tax Law

Source: State Income Tax Bureau

The New York State Personal Income Tax Law was first adopted in 1919, and as amended embodies the following provisions:

Residents and non-residents of New York State are taxable—a resident on income from all sources except those specifically exempted by the law; a non-resident on compensation from services actually rendered in New York, or income derived from a business carried on, or from property located within, New York State.

A return is required of every taxpayer when, if single, his net income and net capital gain for the taxable year is $1,000 or more or, if married and living with spouse, the aggregate net income and net capital gain of both is $2,500 or more.

A return must be rendered in any case irrespective of the amount of net income where the gross income and capital gain amounts to $5,000 or over.

The ordinary tax based on net income which is computed as usual is levied at the following graduated rates, which are applied to the amount of net income after reflecting credit for the personal exemptions: 2% on the 1st $1,000; 3% on the 2nd and 3rd $1,000; 4% on the 4th and 5th $1,000; 5% on the 6th and 7th $1,000; 6% on the 8th and 9th $1,000; 7% on all over $9,000.

Personal Exemptions

A single person, or a married person not living with husband or wife, may claim a personal exemption of $1,000.

A person, who, during the taxable year, was the head of a family, or was married and living with husband or wife, may claim an exemption of $2,500. Only one exemption of $2,500 is permitted against the aggregate net income received by both.

A head of a family is an individual who actually supports and maintains, as a family unit, one or more dependent individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation.

In addition to the personal exemptions just mentioned, an allowance of $400 may be claimed for each person, other than husband or wife, under eighteen years of age, or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, or over 18 years of age and in fulltime attendance at an approved school or college, who was receiving his or her chief support from the taxpayer. If the exemption status changed during the year the exemption must be apportioned. The dependency credit can be claimed only by the person who provides the chief support and cannot be divided between two individuals. If the taxpayer did not occupy the status of head of family except by reason of there being one or more dependents for whom he would be entitled to credit under this paragraph, the credit under this paragraph shall be disallowed with respect to one of such dependents.

If the exemption status changes during the taxable year the exemption allowable for the periods prior and subsequent to the change must be apportioned on the basis of time.

Life insurance premiums are deductible up to $150. Extraordinary medical expenses are deductible within regulated limits.

Where a taxpayer actually changes residence from or to the state during a taxable year, a return is required to be filed for period of residence and one for period of non-residence provided the net income of sufficient amount for the whole taxable period as defined above to require one.

Filing Dates

Returns are due on or before April 15 of each year with respect to the previous calendar year or on or before the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of a fiscal year.

A fiscal year means an accounting period of 12 months ending on the last day of any month other than December.

The normal tax may be paid in full when the return is filed or it may be paid in quarterly installments, the first installment being due at the time of filing. If this is filed on April 15, subsequent installments are due July 15, Nov. 15, and Feb. 15, of the following year. In no event shall any installment except the last be less than $10.

Capital Gain Tax

In addition to the normal tax there is due a net capital gain tax. Net capital gain is the excess of gain over loss with respect to the sale or exchange of capital assets. The rate is one-half of the normal rates. It, also, is payable in installments in the same manner as the normal tax.

Division of Veterans' Affairs

The Division of Veterans' Affairs of New York State is a branch of the executive department and is administered by a State Director appointed by the Governor. He must be a veteran.

Assisting the Director is a Veteran Affairs Commission, which helps coordinate activities of various agencies, providing service for members of the Armed Forces and veterans. It consists of various state officials and three additional members, veterans, named with consent of the Senate. They serve without pay, but have an allowance of $20 per diem when attending meetings.

The Division of Veterans' Affairs establishes a State Veterans' Service Agency, which assists veterans and their families with relation to educational training and retraining, health, medical and rehabilitation facilities, special rights and privileges under Federal, state and local laws, employment and similar matters. Each county outside the metropolis establishes a County Veterans' Service Agency and cities may establish a City Veterans'

Service Agency. These bodies carry on in their fields the work outlined for the State Veterans' Service Agency. The costs are paid by the county and the city respectively, except that the State Director may make certain allowances for maintenance and operation, which are limited by law in amount and in no case exceed 50% of the total expenditures.

For the fiscal year beginning Apr. 1, 1955, the state appropriated $190,930 for salaries in the executive and administrative units, maintenance and operation $96,103, and $952,000 under maintenance undistributed for services and expenses for veteran counseling, clerical and other services; total, $1,239,033.

The executive office received $31,134; the legal, research and training $46,041; the publicity office $10,978. In the three area offices, New York City, Albany and Buffalo, the area veteran director in each office received $9,395. Traveling expense amounted to $35,000 and communications $24,000.

Unincorporated Business Tax

An unincorporated business tax is imposed by Article 16-A of the New York State Tax Law. This is a tax on net incomes of unincorporated businesses carried on in New York State and is due at the rate of 4%.

An exemption of $5,000 (or a ratable portion thereof for a period less than twelve months) is permitted, and the tax is not due in those cases in which the net income is less than the exemption.

The computation of gross income and net income follows closely the computation made for purposes of the Personal Income Tax Law. However, in addition to the deductions permitted for the Personal Income Tax there is allowed a reasonable amount on account of the personal services of the individual conducting the business or the members of a partnership carrying on an unincorporated business, if such person is actively engaged in the conduct of the business.

The amount so allowable can, in no event, exceed in the aggregate 20% of net income nor can it exceed $5,000 for each individual or member.

If business is carried on both within and without New York State the net income must be apportioned so as to allocate to the State a proportion of the total income which, under the circumstances in each case, will equitably reflect the amount of income actually earned within the State.

The returns must be made in conjunction with the returns filed under the provisions of the Personal Income Tax Law. Special blanks for this purpose have been prepared by the Tax Commission and should be secured by every unincorporated business entity which is subject to the tax.

The tax is payable in full when the return is filed.

Workmen's Compensation in New York State

Source: New York State Workmen's Compensation Board
New York's Disability Benefits Law, which went into effect April 13, 1949, constitutes Article IX of the Workmen's Compensation Law of New York under which workmen's compensation benefits for occupational disabilities and deaths have been payable since July 1, 1914. New York, recognizing the similarity of many aspects of "on-the-job" and "off-the-job" disability benefits, was the first to combine their administration. The new state law provides cash benefits up to $33 a week during thirteen weeks in a year or for a single disability. These benefits partially replace wages lost due to non-occupational disability.

The benefits differ in character from those provided for occupational disabilities. All workers for employers of four or more employees are covered by the law, except certain groups traditionally exempt. Special provision is made for the disabled unemployed. Employees are required to contribute by pay-roll deduction 1/2 of 1% of wages earned on and after July 1, 1950, but not more than 30 cents a week. Employers, who contribute the balance of cost, may secure payment of benefits by purchasing insurance, qualifying as a self-insurer, or by submitting acceptable welfare plans. The Disability Benefits Law, which became effective July 1, 1950, when non-occupational disability benefits became payable, is administered by Angela R. Parisi, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

With respect to occupational accident or disease, the Workmen's Compensation Law of New York requires coverage whenever one of more employees are engaged in any of the listed hazardous employments carried on for pecuniary gain. In addition, the statute requires compensation coverage by any employing organization whether or not the work embraces the listed hazardous employments and regardless of whether carried on for pecuniary gain if four or more workmen or operatives are employed. An amendment of 1947 makes mandatory coverage of executive officers of corporations subject to the law.

Farm and Domestic Help

It expressly excludes farm laborers and domestic servants, except that an amendment of 1946 extends coverage to domestic workers, other than those employed on farms, employed by the same employer for a minimum of 48 hours per week in cities and villages having a population of 40,000 or more. The workers excluded may be covered voluntarily. It also excludes lumbering operations by a farmer for the production of firewood for sale to the general public provided not more than four persons are engaged in such work.

An amendment of 1929 specifically exempts teachers, ministers, and non-manual workers for a religious, charitable, or educational corporation.

An amendment of 1931 includes in the coverage of the compensation law private or domestic chauffeurs employed as such in New York City. No penalty is placed, however, upon employers who fail to insure such chauffeurs.

All State employees are entitled to compensation, but only such municipal employees as are included among the listed hazardous occupations. An amendment of 1952 extends workman's compensation to resident physicians and internes in municipal hospitals and prisons.

There is mandatory coverage for voluntary firemen.

Railroad employees injured in interstate commerce are excluded by the Federal Employers' Liability Act.

Masters and crews of vessels on navigable waters are excluded by the Admiralty jurisdiction of the Federal courts. Longshoremen and other maritime workers if injured on docks are protected by the compensation law, but if injured upon navigable waters, including dry docks, compensation is paid under the Federal "Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act," approved March 4, 1927. Masters and crews engaged in unloading or repairing are excluded from compensation if the vessel on which accident occurs is under eighteen tons net.

An injured employee or others must give written notice of the accident to the employer within thirty days unless failure to give such notice is excused by the Board on the ground that notice for sufficient reason could not have been given or that the employer had knowledge of the accident, or on the ground that the employer had not been prejudiced by the omission. A compensation claim must be filed within 2 years after injury or disablement. In cases of disablement caused by compressed air illness, by latent or delayed pathological bone, blood, or lung changes, or malignancies due to occupational exposure to certain substances, the claim may be filed beyond two years if filed 90 days after occurrence of disablement and of the knowledge that the claim is or was due to the nature of employment. The requirement as to filing does not apply to a minor, or an incompetent who has no legal guardian or committee, nor to an employee to whom compensation has been paid or medical care furnished.

The first payment of compensation becomes due on the fourteenth day of disability and thereafter is payable bi-weekly.

The accident must not be due to the injured employee's wilful intent to injure himself or another or solely to his intoxication.

In the case of an accident which occurred prior to July 1, 1935, the employer is required to provide proper and adequate medical attention and the employer may select the physician.

In case of an accident after such date the injured employee may select a physician authorized by the Chairman of the Board.

Compensation to a disabled employee is 2/3 of his average weekly wages but not to exceed $36 per week, or less than $12 per week, and the minimum rate in cases of permanent total disability shall not be less than $15 per week nor in cases of temporary total disability less than $12 per week.

In death cases awards are made to dependents in accordance with a schedule provided therefor. The total amount of benefits must not exceed 2/3 of the average weekly wage of the deceased based on maximum earnings of $260 a month. In the case of widows and children of deceased employees wages are not deemed less than $78 a month.

Temporary total disability—two-thirds of the average weekly wage for the period of disability, but not to exceed $6,500.

Temporary partial disability—when there is a decrease in earning capacity, the compensation provided is two-thirds of the difference between the injured employee's average weekly wages before the accident and his wage earning capacity thereafter, but shall not exceed a total of $5,500.

Compensation for Disease

The Law allows compensation for any and all occupational diseases if the disability is occasioned after September 1, 1935.

For silicosis or other dust diseases, compensation is payable for total disability or death only. A 1947 amendment removed any limitation as to amount of benefits and transferred to the special fund ($15, subd. 8) liability after the first 260 weeks in cases of death or total disability from silicosis or other dust diseases. In cases of death after September 1, 1947, where total disability occurred prior thereto, the special fund is liable after the first 104 weeks.

Minors under 18 years of age who are employed in violation of the Labor Law are entitled to double compensation.

Laws 1945, Chapter 872, provides that an employee who has any permanent physical impairment who incurs a subsequent industrial accident or disease producing a permanent disability caused by both conditions that is substantially greater than that which would have resulted from the subsequent injury or occupational disease alone shall receive compensation and medical expenses from the carrier for the resulting disability. Such carrier, however, shall be entitled to reimbursement from the special Disability Fund for all such payments after the first one hundred and four weeks of disability. If such subsequent injury results in death, the carrier shall be reimbursed for all death benefits payable in excess of one hundred and four weeks.

Minimum Wage Law and Other Protection for Workers

Source: New York State Department of Labor

Minimum wage standards were established in New York State in 1937 by enactment of the law entitled Minimum Wage Standards for Women and Minors. It is administered by the Division of Industrial Relations, Women in Industry and Minimum Wage, which is responsible for enforcement of laws concerning hours of labor, employment of women and minors, child labor, payment of wages, industrial homework and equal pay. The Division has its offices in the State Dept. of Labor, 80 Centre St., New York, N. Y.

The law empowers the Industrial Commissioner to investigate wages paid to women and minors in any occupation, except domestic service in the home of the employer or labor on a farm, and if the Commissioner believes that a substantial number of women or minors receive wages insufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health, to appoint a board to report on minimum wage rates in such occupations.

The wage board is composed of not more than 3 representatives of employers, an equal number of representatives of employees and not more than 3 disinterested members representing the public. Within 90 days, or up to 180 days if necessary, it must report and also recommend minimum wage standards for women and minors in the occupations under consideration. The board is required to hold public hearings and in recommending minimum wage standards may take into account (1) the amount sufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health, (2) the value of the service rendered, and (3) wages paid for like or comparable work.

If the Commissioner, after public hearings, rejects the report, he refers the matter to the same wage board or to a new one. If he accepts the report in whole or in part, he issues a wage order and administrative regulations to be effective within 60 days.

Violation of a wage order is a misdemeanor. Any employee who is paid less than the wage established by an order may recover in a civil action the full amount due him. Any employer discriminating against an employee for giving testimony or serving on a wage board is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Provision is made for reconsideration and review of the minimum wage standards after a wage order has been in effect for six months, and for appeal to the courts on the validity and reasonableness of any order.

No adult male, 21 years of age and over, may be paid less than the minimum wage standards or rates fixed for women and minors in any industry or occupation under a minimum wage order.

Minimum wage orders covering about 1,275,000 workers are in effect in the amusement and recreation, beauty service, building service, cleaning and dyeing, confectionery, counselor staff occupations (children's camps), hotel, laundry, restaurant, and retail trade industries.

No employer may discriminate in rates of pay because of sex. Differentials in pay between employees based on seniority, length of service, merit, skill, experience, training, work schedules, locality of employment, productivity, or quality of work are permitted provided this practice is applied to both sexes alike.

New York Labor Relations Act; Anti-Discrimination

Source: New York State Department of Labor

The New York State Labor Relations Act applies particularly to industries in intrastate commerce, excepting from its applications employers and employees admittedly subject to the National Labor Relations Act or the Federal Railway Labor Act. Employees of the state, municipality or other governmental agency, charitable, religious or educational organizations, domestic servants and farm laborers are exempt.

The act affirms the rights of employees to self-organization, to form, join or assist labor unions, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, free from interference, restraint, or coercion of employers. It makes the representatives selected by the majority of the employees the exclusive bargaining agency in respect to conditions of employment. Employees may at any time present grievances to employers directly or through representatives.

The State Labor Relations Board has 3 members appointed by the Governor with consent of the Senate, salary, $14,800 yr. It is authorized to decide the appropriate unit for collective bargaining and it may also conduct investigations, hearings and elections, if necessary, to ascertain proper representatives. Individuals hired for the duration of a strike are barred from participation in elections. Company unions cannot be listed on ballots.

The Board cannot intervene in representation controversies between persons or groups within a labor organization or between labor organizations affiliated with the same parent organization.

In cases of alleged unfair practices, the Board can hold hearings, subpoena persons, records, etc., and take testimony. If violations are proved, the Board can serve cease and desist orders upon the employer and may take further action, such as ordering reinstatement with back pay of employees discriminated against by the unfair labor practice. The Board may petition the State Supreme Court for enforcement of orders issued at the close of unfair labor practice proceedings, and the employer may petition the Court to vacate such orders. Interference with the activities of the State Labor Relations Board or with employees' exercise of their rights in an election of representatives is penalized.

Annual reports and record of decisions are available at the Board's offices, 270 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. The members of the Board are Joseph D. Fede, Chairman, Jay Kramer and Frank D. Maurin, Members. Philip Feldblum is General Counsel and A. M. Goldberg is Executive Secretary.

AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

The State Commission Against Discrimination is composed of 5 members appointed for 5 years by the Governor of New York with consent of the Senate, salary $11,950 yr. The Commission "formulates policies to eliminate and prevent discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color or national origin, either by employers, labor organizations, employment agencies or other persons, and is empowered to take action against such discrimination." It may make rules, start investigations, pass on complaints, and create advisory bodies and conciliation councils of representative citizens, serving without pay but with reimbursement of expenses. Anyone protesting the decisions of the Commission may obtain judicial review.

Housing in New York State

Source: State Division of Housing

To help meet New York State housing, urban planning, and redevelopment needs, the State Division of Housing, under the direction of Commissioner Joseph P. McMurray, operates a slum clearance, low rent public housing and community redevelopment program involving financial and technical aid to local housing authorities; supervises a lower middle income family program and limited dividend and limited profit rental and cooperative housing, and offers advisory service in community redevelopment and private large scale housing construction.

Financial aid for slum clearance and low rent housing was initiated in 1939 and is given to the extent of $935,000,000 in loans to local housing authorities and up to $25,000,000 per year for 50 years in annual subsidies. As of Mar. 31, 1955, the agency had made loan and subsidy contracts for 80 such housing developments containing 53,229 apartments, in 32 municipalities throughout the state. Of this number 57 projects were completed, 7 were under construction and 16 were in planning stages.

For families of low income and lower middle income, the state encourages the development of and supervises 21 privately-owned limited dividend rental and cooperative housing projects built between 1927 and 1955, which contain 11,145 apartments.

Local Non-Property Taxes in New York State

Source: New York State Department of Audit and Control

The Legislature of the State of New York has authorized counties and cities to impose various local non-property taxes in addition to the real property tax.

Chapter 278 of the Laws of 1947, as amended, authorizes counties and cities with the exception of New York City to impose any or all of the following taxes:

1. A tax on retail sales of tangible personal property at a rate not in excess of 2% of receipts, and a compensating use tax.
2. A tax on receipts from sales of food or drink in restaurants and similar establishments, where the charge is $1.00 or more, at a rate not in excess of 3%.
3. A tax on the consumption or use of gas, electricity, water, refrigeration or steam (or service in these categories) for domestic or commercial use, and on telephone or telegraph service of any nature, at a rate not in excess of 3% of the charge.
4. A tax on the privilege of selling alcoholic beverages at retail for on or off premises consumption at a rate not in excess of 25% of the State license fee.
5. A tax on admissions to places of amusement, including roof gardens, cabarets, etc., and on dues and admission fees to social, athletic or sporting clubs, at a rate not in excess of 5%.
6. A tax on coin-operated amusement devices at a rate not in excess of $25 per year for each machine.
7. A tax on the use of motor vehicles at a rate not in excess of $5.00 per year on non-commercial passenger vehicles weighing less than 3,500 pounds and $10 on heavier passenger vehicles and trucks.
8. A tax on hotel room occupancy at a rate not in excess of 5% of the rent.

The following cities and counties have adopted non-property taxes:

Sales and Compensating Use Tax—Erie and Monroe Counties, and the cities of Auburn, Niagara Falls, Poughkeepsie and Syracuse.

Consumers' Utility Tax—Cities of Binghamton, Buffalo, Cohoes, Elmira, Johnstown and Troy.

Admissions and Dues Tax—Cities of Binghamton and Elmira.

Hotel Room Occupancy Tax—Cities of Elmira and Long Beach.

In addition, all cities of the state with the exception of the City of Sherrill have imposed a 1% tax on the gross income or gross operating income of utilities, as authorized by § 20b of the General Law. Pursuant to § 138d of the Village Law, enacted in 1950, the authority to impose a similar tax was extended to all villages having a population of 5,000 or more, and 40 villages have imposed such a tax.

School districts wholly or partly in cities of less than 125,000 population are authorized, in accordance with Chapter 811 of the Laws of 1951, to impose a tax of 3% on consumers' utility bills. This tax is imposed by the city school districts of Gloversville, Long Beach, Niagara Falls, Schenectady and Watertown.

In addition, on request of a majority vote of the whole number of school authorities of a school district located wholly or partly in a city under 125,000 population, such city is authorized to adopt and amend local laws imposing for school district purposes any of the taxes which the city may impose for city purposes except the consumers' utility tax. In a school district located partly in a city, the tax must also be imposed in that part of the school district which is located outside of the territorial limits of the city.

Since the City of Niagara Falls allocates 25% of its receipts from the 2% sales tax to the city school district, the school district imposes a tax of .5% within that part of its territorial limits outside of the city.

CITY OF NEW YORK TAXES

The City of New York has been authorized to impose the following taxes:

- (1) Chapter 873, Laws of 1934, as amended, authorizes the city to impose: a retail sales tax on tangible personal property at a rate not in excess of 3% and a compensating use tax; a 1% and 3% utility tax; a tax on the gross income of conduit companies at the rate of 3%.
- (2) Chapter 302, Laws of 1934, as amended, authorizes a tax on the privilege of doing business. The present rates are as follows: General business tax— $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1% of the gross receipts of any other than a financial business (1/10 of 1% in the case of certain low mark-up businesses) and $\frac{1}{4}$ of 1% of the gross income of financial businesses.
- (3) Chapter 341, Laws of 1946, as amended, authorizes New York City to impose the tax on occupancy of hotel rooms at the rate of 5%.
- (4) Chapter 278, Laws of 1947, as amended, empowers New York City to impose at the same rates most of the taxes that upstate municipalities were authorized to levy—restaurant, consumers' utility, privilege of selling liquor, admissions, coin-operated amusement devices and motor vehicle taxes.
- (5) A tax of 1c per pack of 20 cigarettes was imposed pursuant to Chapter 235, Laws of 1952.
- (6) Chapter 202, Laws of 1953, as amended, empowers New York City to impose a payroll tax at a rate not in excess of $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1% provided, among other conditions, that the city transfer its transportation system to the newly created transit authority.

All of the taxes authorized are imposed by the city at the present time, with the exception of the coin-operated amusement tax, the payroll tax and the liquor tax. New York City imposed the admissions tax effective July 1, 1954, and the liquor tax expired effective June 25, 1953.

Although, § 110 of the Public Housing Law authorizes all cities to impose certain taxes for housing subsidies, New York City is the only city that has levied any of these taxes. It imposes a tax on occupancy for any gainful purpose and a tax on the possession and operation of vending machines selling tangible personal property.

TAXES ON RACING

Chapter 339, Laws of 1946, as amended, authorizes counties and the City of New York to levy a tax on pari-mutuel pools other than harness racing. The present rate of the tax is 2%; the rate decreases 1% each year until the authorization expires December 31, 1955. This tax is imposed by New York City and Nassau and Saratoga Counties. Nassau County's tax is administered by New York City since Belmont Track is partly in the city.

Chapter 236, Laws of 1952, as amended, authorizes counties and the City of New York to impose a tax not to exceed the rate of 15% on admissions to running horse race meetings. The City of New York, Nassau County and Saratoga County receive revenues from this tax.

Chapter 148, Laws of 1952, as amended, authorizes any county, except a county wholly within a city, to impose a tax, not to exceed 15%, on admissions to harness horse race meetings conducted in the county except race meetings conducted within a city having a population in excess of 100,000. Any city having a population in excess of 100,000 is also authorized to impose a tax at the same rate on admissions to harness horse race meetings conducted in the city, Genesee, Nassau, Onieda and Saratoga Counties and the City of Yonkers have adopted the tax.

Public Assistance in New York State

Source: State Department of Social Welfare

Public assistance in New York State consists of the home relief program, including veteran relief, financed by state and local funds, and the four special types of assistance in the financing of which the Federal Government participates—old age assistance, aid to dependent children, assistance to the blind, and aid to the disabled.

During 1954 a monthly average of 227,668 cases received public assistance of $247,647,572. Of this amount 37.1% was from Federal funds, 32.0% from state funds and 30.9% from local funds.

Home relief expenditures for the year were $31.-

771,885, helping a monthly average of 30,200 cases.

Old-age assistance granted to a monthly average of 106,038 persons was $95,375,948.

A monthly average of 48,924 families received $78,762,968 under the aid to dependent children program.

Assistance to the blind, covering an average of 4,351 persons per month, was $4,373,637.

Aid to the disabled covered a monthly average of 38,155 persons and involved expenditures of $37,263,134.

New York State Canal System

Source: State Department of Public Works

The Erie Canal was opened Oct. 26, 1825. The construction of the improved canal was begun in 1903 when, by referendum, a bond issue was authorized for that purpose. This 1903 legislation further stipulated that the canals of the state were to be toll free. The depth of the channel is 14 feet from Waterford to Oswego, and 12 feet elsewhere in the canals; depth over lock sills is 12 feet; the locks are 310 feet long, with usable length 300 feet, 43½ feet in beam, overhead clearance not to exceed 15½ feet above the water surface.

Although there is a canal terminal at Buffalo, the Barge Canal terminates at the Niagara River at Tonawanda. There are 35 locks in the 338 miles between Tonawanda and Waterford, which lift shipping 564 feet to the Niagara River level at Tonawanda. Between Tonawanda and Lake Erie the Federal lock at Black River raises shipping to Lake Erie, an elevation of approximately 573 feet.

On the Erie branch, the Mohawk River is utilized from Troy to Rome; from Rome to Sylvan Beach, land cuts and the enlarged channel of Wood Creek are utilized; then Oneida Lake and Oneida River. Seneca and Clyde Rivers to Lyons, where another land cut is made to a point near Pendleton; then Tonawanda Creek to the Niagara River.

The Oswego Canal, which joins the Erie Canal at Three River Point and extends to Lake Ontario at Oswego, is practically the Oswego River canalized.

The Champlain Canal extends from the Erie Canal at Waterford to Lake Champlain at Whitehall. It is formed by the canalized Hudson River from Waterford to Fort Edward, and an artificial channel from Fort Edward to Whitehall.

The Cayuga and Seneca Canal is formed by the canalization of Seneca River and Cayuga and Seneca Lakes. This canal joins the Erie Canal near Montezuma.

The Cayuga branch extends southerly to the head of Cayuga Lake at Ithaca.

The Seneca branch extends from the junction at the foot of Cayuga Lake up the Seneca River to and through Seneca Lake to Watkins.

The Champlain Canal was opened for traffic in 1916. The Oswego Canal in 1917, and the complete route from Troy to Buffalo in 1918.

The total length of the canals is 525 miles.

They are under the supervision of the Superintendent of Public Works, who acts through the Superintendent of Operation and Maintenance.

The principal office is in the State Office Building, Albany, N. Y.; district offices in Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo.

The state grain elevator and Barge Canal terminal at Gowanus Bay, Brooklyn, was transferred to the Port of New York Authority, and all other canal terminals in New York City were turned over to the city in 1944.

The State of New York owns and operates a modern grain elevator of 1,000,000 bushel capacity in Oswego as a facility for handling grain moved on the canal system. Terminals or docks, with warehouses have been established at many of the cities and villages along the canal system. The Federal Government has dredged the Hudson River to Albany to a channel depth of 27 feet at mean low water and the City of Albany has established a modern port so that deep water navigation has been brought 150 miles closer to the Great Lakes. Albany has the 15th largest grain elevator capacity in the U. S., 13,500,000 bu., to accommodate transshipment from the canal system to ocean vessels for export.

SAVINGS BANK LIFE INSURANCE, NEW YORK STATE

Savings Bank Life Insurance is legal reserve life insurance and operates in New York state under supervision of the State Banking and Insurance Departments. Mutual savings banks may issue policies for insurance not exceeding $5,000 for each person, when requested by voluntary buyers. There are no solicitors. All forms of life insurance are available, including group insurance.

All issuing banks contribute 1% of premium income to the Savings Banks Life Insurance Fund, to serve as a central guaranty fund, supplementing reserves and surplus funds required by law. An actuary and a medical director are provided by the fund, which is directed by 7 trustees appointed by the Supt. of Banks, with approval of the Governor. In New York on Jan. 1, 1955, there were 167,507 policies in force for $260,106,794.49, including group insurance of $31,962,850. There were 42 issuing banks and 24 agency banks. An agency bank accepts applications for insurance and refers them to issuing banks, and acts as a collection agency for the receipt of premiums.

James Rumsey, American Steamboat Pioneer, Honored in London

A memorial tablet to James Rumsey (1743-1792) was erected in St. Margaret's, Westminster, London, England, in May, 1955. Rumsey, whose career had many reverses, was buried in St. Margaret's churchyard on Christmas Eve, 1792.

Like John Fitch, Rumsey applied his theory of operating boats by steam under difficulties. He had the support of General George Washington, to whom he explained in 1784 his devices for operating boats on the Potomac against the current by machinery. On Dec. 3 and 11, 1787 Rumsey demonstrated an experimental steamboat at Shepherdstown, now in West Virginia. He used a steam engine to operate a force pump that pushed water through the stern, a form of jet propulsion.

Rumsey published his theory in A Plan Wherein the Power of Steam is Fully Shown, in 1788. The Rumseian Society was organized in Philadelphia to support him, and Benj. Franklin and Benj. Rush gave him letters to British scientists. He also had encouragement from Thomas Jefferson, then in Paris. He hoped to become associated with Boulton & Watts of London in developing a steamboat, but failed to get sufficient financial backing. He obtained patents for his device in London.

Rumsey completed a steamboat, the Columbian Maid, at Dover, England, December, 1792. He was stricken by apoplexy while lecturing on the principles of steam navigation to a learned society in London. In April, 1792, four months after his death, his boat was operated by jet propulsion upstream at 4 knots on the Thames.

St. Lawrence Seaway Project of U. S. and Canada

The St. Lawrence Seaway Project is being undertaken by the United States and Canada to provide a channel for ocean-going ships to proceed as far inland as Duluth, Cleveland and Chicago via the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes. A power project is associated with the Seaway. The 83rd Congress in 1954 authorized Federal support and created the Development Corp. The Seaway into Lake Erie is to be open in 1959.

The project will provide new canals with 7 new locks between Montreal, Quebec and Ogdensburg, N. Y., and deeper river channels. The U. S. will dredge the channel at Thousand Islands and Canada will deepen the Welland Canal. Canada will build 4 locks at Montreal and 2 at Iroquois, Ont. U. S. will build 2 near Massena, N. Y. These are in addition to locks already in position on the Welland and Sault Ste. Marie Canals. They will permit vessels to rise to the level of Lake Superior; 602 ft. above sea level.

The Seaway will permit iron ore vessels from the ore port of Seven Islands, Quebec, to travel to the American mills at the foot of Lake Michigan by inland waters. Manufactured goods from Midwest plants will be placed on shipboard at inland ports for ocean transport.

The St. Lawrence Power project was begun in 1954 by the Power Authority of the State of New York, Robt. Moses, ch., and the Hydroelectric Power Commission of Ontario. It will be paid for by bonds backed by anticipated revenue. Cost will be about $600,000,000, and first power will be available in 1958. The power project creates the pool making possible the Seaway.

Iroquois Dam, near Ogdensburg, N. Y., is a buttressed concrete gravity structure with gate-controlled sluiceway openings. Barnhart Island power plant will have an integrated concrete dam 3,200 ft. long, and controlled water will drive 32 turbine generator units, 16 on each side of the International boundary, each capable of 88,800 hp. Each generator will have a rating of 57,000 kw, and total maximum capacity of the 16 will be 940,000 kw.

Project figures published Sept. 1, 1955, by Power Authority of the State of New York showed 3,978 employed during August, of whom 2,216 were U. S., 1,762 Canadian. There were 49 major supply and construction contracts in progress.

Housing in New York City

Source: Citizens' Housing & Planning Council of New York, Inc.

Housing in New York City is planned for families to rent, mostly in apartment buildings of 3 or more units. Privately financed buildings generally contain fewer than 300 dwelling units. In recent years large scale projects with more than 300 units have been built with government assistance. The major programs:

Public Housing is built under the auspices of the New York City Housing Authority, for families of low income, with financial assistance from Federal, state, or city governments. As of August, 1955, 49 projects containing 57,800 units with rentals ranging from $6 to $9.33 per room per month, including gas and electricity, were completed; 5 projects with 7,800 units with a rental range of $6.03 to $11.49 including utilities were partially occupied; 7 projects with 9,300 units were under construction, and 16 projects with 17,200 units were pending. In addition the Authority has a no-cash subsidy program in which rents cover all costs. Completed were 20 projects containing 21,100 units renting at $15.36 and $16.59, including utilities. Two projects with 2,100 units to rent at $21.44 per room were under construction, and 4 projects with 5,400 units were pending.

Urban Redevelopment Projects—The city acquires substandard areas and sells them off, chiefly to private developers, at a reduced price.

The loss is shared by Federal and city governments on a $\frac{2}{3}$ and $\frac{1}{3}$ basis. As of August, 1955, the 12 developments approved comprise 16,400 housing units at estimated rentals ranging from \$17 to \$55 per room per month. Two of the 12 projects with 2,950 units were under construction, and the other 10 sites were being cleared.

Cooperatives—As of June, 1953, publicly assisted cooperatives (receiving partial tax exemption or Federal Housing Administration mortgage insurance under Section 213 of the National Housing Act) totaled 29 projects with 26,700 units at monthly carrying charges from $12 to $26 per room per month and average down payments from $30 to $675 per room. These figures included completed projects and those planned and under construction.

FHA 608 and 207 Projects—As of June, 1953, the FHA had insured mortgages on 45 projects containing 35,500 units with rentals from $23 to $35 per room per month, including gas and electricity.

Bank and Insurance Co. Projects—As of August, 1955, 10 projects containing 31,800 units with average rentals ranging from $15 to $65 per room per month were in operation. Some of these were built on a straight investment basis and others received government aid in the form of partial tax exemption.

CITY OF NEW YORK

Its History, Political Divisions and Official Buildings

New York, N. Y., is the post office designation of the largest metropolis in the United States. Officially it is City of New York, and popularly it is called New York City. Originally located on Manhattan Island, it expanded first into part of Westchester County. In 1898 it was organized into boroughs, which include Brooklyn and other localities on Long Island, and Staten Island.

Manhattan Island, the present Borough of Manhattan, is the seat of the central government of New York, N. Y. It was discovered Sept. 11, 1609, by Henry Hudson, on a voyage for the Dutch East India Co. Discovery by Verrazano in 1524 is not clearly proved. The first houses were built by Adrian Block in lower Manhattan in 1613. On May 6, 1626, Peter Minuit, director general of New Netherland, as the Dutch called the colony, paid the Indians the equivalent of $24 in trinkets for Manhattan. When the settlement had around 200 people it was named New Amsterdam.

The Dutch erected a church in 1633 and in 1635 built Fort Amsterdam where the U. S. Customs House now stands. In 1642 they built a public meeting house on the site of 73 Pearl St. In 1653 they erected a wall to protect their settlement, from which Wall St. takes its name. On Feb. 2, 1653, when the place had 800 pop. it was incorporated as a city.

On Sept. 8, 1664, British troops occupied New Amsterdam without resistance, took over the government from the Dutch director general, Peter Stuyvesant, and called it New York, after the Duke of York, brother of Charles II of England. Without notice to the Dutch King Charles had conferred upon the Duke title to all the Dutch land in America, including the present states of New York, New Jersey and part of Connecticut. Thomas Willett of Plymouth was made the first English mayor, June, 1665. On Aug. 9, 1673, the Dutch recaptured the city and named it New Orange, after the Prince of Orange. War in foreign parts resulted in the defeat of the Dutch by the English, and in November, 1674, the Dutch gave up New Netherland, taking in exchange Surinam, in South America. The province and the city were renamed New York.

NEW YORK UNDER THE BRITISH

The British made easy terms for the Dutch and many prominent Dutch merchants and landowners became loyal subjects. The city was divided into 6 wards Dec. 8, 1663, with an alderman for each. The first charter was granted Apr. 27, 1686. The first printing press arrived Apr. 12, 1693 and the first newspaper was issued Oct. 16, 1725.

In 1700 the city built a city hall at the northeast corner of Broad and Wall Sts. A library was founded 1754. A stage service to Philadelphia was opened 1756. Streets were first lighted at public expense, 1762. Trinity Church, first of the Anglican communion, was first erected 1698.

DURING THE REVOLUTION

New York was a focal point for both Continentals and British during the American Revolution. Washington had his headquarters for a time in the Kennedy house, which stood at present No. 1 Broadway and later became British headquarters. The Declaration of Independence was read to the American troops July 9, 1776, in the presence of Washington near the present City Hall. The Americans lost the Battle of Long Island Aug. 27, 1776, and the British occupied New York Sept. 14, 1776. Over 500 houses were destroyed by fire Sept. 21, 1776. The Americans entrenched on Harlem Heights, where they fought several actions; on Nov. 15, 1776, they lost Fort Mifflin in upper Manhattan, to the British and left the island.

Washington reentered New York on Evacuation Day, Nov. 25, 1784. On Apr. 30, 1789, Washington took the oath of office as first President on the balcony of Federal Hall, Broad and Wall Sts., where a bronze statue by J. Q. A. Ward now stands. New York was the national capital until 1790, when it had a population of 33,131. Until 1797 it was the capital of the state.

NEW YORK IN THE U. S. A.

Robert Fulton's first practical steamboat, the Clermont, went up the Hudson from New York to Albany Aug. 11, 1807, arriving in 32 hours. The first horse railroad in the world started 1832 in Fourth Ave. In 1835 a large part of New York east of Broadway was burned. In 1844 the uniformed police force was organized and on May 2, 1865 the paid fire department took the place of volunteers.

By act of the state legislature, Kingsbridge, north of Manhattan, and West Farms and Morrisania, east, 12,317 acres, were joined to the city Jan. 1, 1874. In 1894 adjacent towns voted on annexation. Eastchester and Pelham Manor voted favorably; Mount Vernon and Westchester (town) unfavorably, the latter by only one vote. The legislature overrode Westchester and joined it to the city with Eastchester and Pelham Manor, total over 39 sq. mi., or 26,017 acres.

GREATER NEW YORK

On Jan. 1, 1898 Greater New York was formed by organizing the adjacent counties into boroughs. New York on Manhattan became the Borough of Manhattan; Brooklyn gave up its independent organization and with Kings County became the Borough of Brooklyn; the city areas north and east of Manhattan became the Borough of the Bronx; Queens County became Queens Borough and Richmond County (Staten Island) became Richmond Borough. Each borough has a president, with the mayor of New York as chief executive.

The term Greater New York never proved popular and is not used by the Bureau of the Census.

New York's public business is transacted chiefly in a group of buildings extending from the miniature City Hall of 1812, in City Hall Park—between Broadway and Park Row, Chambers and Vesey Streets—and the large Criminal Courts Building and Tombs Prison at 100 Centre Street. Half of the buildings flank Foley Square and create a Civic Centre of varying architectural designs.

The City Hall was erected from 1803 to 1812 from designs by Joseph F. Mangin and John McComb. It is a handsome adaptation of formal Italian Renaissance, with a large porch and a clock cupola surmounted by a figure of Justice. Although one of the smallest buildings in this area—216 by 105 feet—its position in the park gives it a fine setting. It was built of Stockbridge marble save for the rear wall, which for economy was made of red sandstone. The exterior facing of the City Hall was completely replaced in 1955 because of the destructive weathering of the original marble.

The City Hall contains the mayor's office, chambers of the City Council and the Board of Estimate, the Art Commission and a museum. The chair used by Washington when inaugurated president, his desk, and chairs of the first Congress, used in Federal Hall, New York, are here. Large paintings of Lafayette, Washington, Hamilton, Clinton, John Jay and Henry Hudson by John Trumbull, S. F. B. Morse and other painters adorn the walls.

Directly north of the City Hall stands City Court Building, erected 75 years ago by the Tweed administration. West of the City Hall stands the Liberty Pole, on the approximate spot where the Revolutionary patriots raised five poles that were cut down by the British. Statues of Nathan Hale and Horace Greeley, and a plaque commemorating the first reading of the Declaration of Independence are found here. An oak commemorates the unjust hanging of Jacob Leisler in 1691 as the result of a British political feud.

The Hall of Records, an ornate building of 1911, ornamented with huge allegorical figures and portrait statues, stands at Chambers and Centre Sts. It contains real estate records, the New York County Register, the Surrogate's Court and the Commissioner of Jurors. East of Centre St. the Municipal Building of 1913 stands astride Chambers St., from Centre to Park Row. It is 40 stories high with a tower surmounted with a 20-ft. gilded figure of Civic Fame by Adolph A. Weinman. It contains the marriage license bureau and marriage chapel, the city's broadcasting station, WNYC, and the Municipal Reference Library.

ON FOLEY SQUARE

North on Centre St. lies Foley Square. Like the Roman Forum, it was once a pond and a swamp. The nearest building facing Centre St. at the east is the United States Court House, designed by Cass Gilbert, architect of the Woolworth building, and completed by his son, Cass Gilbert, Jr., in 1936. Its 32-story tower is filled with Federal offices and courts. North of it stands the Supreme Court Building, of 1932, an eight-story hexagonal neoclassic structure with Corinthian pillars and a granite staircase 100 feet wide. Across Worth St. stands the State Office Building, completed 1930, of a less ornate and more functional classical design. It is the headquarters of the State Tax Commission. West of Centre St., facing south, is the Health Department Building, similar in design to the State building, erected in 1935 and containing the Health, Hospital and Sanitation Dept's.

These official buildings face the landscaped area of Foley Square, which today occupies the site of Collect pond, where John Fitch is supposed to have tried out a model of a steamboat in 1796. On the higher ground to the northwest the slaves who rebelled in 1712 were executed. Behind the Supreme Court Building is the site of Five Points, notorious slum area in the early 19th century.

The Criminal Courts Building and Tombs Prison, erected 1941, stand directly north of the State Building on Centre St., bounded also by Leonard, Baxter and White Sts. They replace the old Criminal Courts Building and Tombs that faced Lafayette St., demolished in 1948. The freed area will have the projected Magistrates Courts. The Criminal Courts Building rises 17 stories and is faced with polished green granite and hard gray limestone. It contains 25 two-story court rooms, and the prison, which occupies 12 stories of the north wing, has 835 cells and is connected with the court rooms by two bridges.

Here are the offices of the District Attorney, and the following courts: General Sessions, Special Sessions, Magistrates and Traffic, also Grand Jury chambers, the Correction Dept., State Parole Board, Children's Society, Legal Aid Society, probation bureaus, psychiatric clinics, hospital and kitchen facilities and libraries. On the eleventh floor there is a chapel with a revolving platform in three parts, adjustable to the needs of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish services. On the east the building overlooks Columbus Park, which occupies the site of Mulberry Bend, a slum abolished through the efforts of Jacob A. Rills 60 years ago when Theodore Roosevelt was Commissioner of Police with headquarters nearby.

BROOKLYN, A GREAT CITY WITHIN A CITY

Civic Center Becomes Hub of Official and Educational Activities

For many years Brooklyn was an independently organized city on Long Island, across the East River from its friendly rival, New York, which grew up on Manhattan Island. The need for administrative unity in the vast expanding population of these areas prompted the organization, on Jan. 1, 1898, of Greater New York, in which Brooklyn and Kings County became the Borough of Brooklyn, and New York became the Borough of Manhattan.

Brooklyn gave up the office of mayor and accepted a borough president, but its administrative offices remained in and around the former City Hall, now Borough Hall, at Court, Fulton and Joralemon Sts., erected 1836-49 after a Graeco-Roman design, with marble pillars and portico. Brooklyn also retained its postal identity and, to the satisfaction of civic pride, passed Manhattan in population in the 1920-30 decade. In the most recent estimate of population, 2,832,000, it has a lead of about 1,000,000 over Manhattan, which has fewer residents today than it had in 1920.

THE CHANGING CITY

In recent years large physical changes have taken place in Brooklyn, the most conspicuous being in the Civic Center area. Leveling of many acres of old buildings, opening of new streets and highways and development of open spaces and parks conform to far-reaching plans of New York's Dept. of Parks. The Brooklyn Bridge Plaza is today a wide, formal approach to the first bridge to span the East River to Manhattan. Near it is S. Parkes Cadman Plaza Park, with the War Memorial Community house, erected by popular subscription at a cost of $500,000.

Adjoining it Walt Whitman Park was being constructed in 1955. This honors the great Brooklyn poet, Walt Whitman, who was born at West Hills, L. I., May 31, 1819, grew up in Brooklyn as schoolboy, printer and journalist; edited the Brooklyn Eagle, 1846-48, the free-soil organ The Freeman, 1849, and the Brooklyn Times, 1851-1859. In 1855 he published Leaves of Grass, a major work of American literature.

In stages of building in 1955 were the Supreme Court Building, to cost $17,300,000; the Court of Domestic Relations, the Welfare Center and the City Prison for Male Adults. Completed was the building of the American Red Cross. Adjoining or near the Center are the Transit Authority building, and Pratt Institute, which has embarked on a building program. A large area near the Center will be constructed to house the expanding facilities of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. Long Island University has added 7½ acres to its holdings in this area for expansion.

Brooklyn is also the site of extraordinary rebuilding in other areas. The removal of the Elevated railroad has provided better traffic facilities and business opportunities, and the slum clearance and large-scale housing projects, with public and private financing, are bringing comfortable living quarters to many parts of the borough.

A structure that has contributed to the advantages of Brooklyn Heights is a promenade, of cantilever construction, that overlooks the harbor and is the third deck of the Brooklyn-Queens connecting highway. The waterfront also is subject to considerable reconstruction, the Port of New York Authority having allocated $85,000,000 to rebuild two miles to greater usefulness.

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD

Brooklyn Navy Yard is the famous Federal base known for its extensive services to the Navy during the two World Wars. Among its recent accomplishments are the U. S. carrier Saratoga, a $200,000,000 investment in defense, and the Independence, begun in 1955.

When New York was New Amsterdam, Dutch farmers bought 930 acres near Gowanus Kill in 1636, and a Walloon immigrant bought 300 acres near the present Wallabout Bay in 1637. The bend in the East River at the present U. S. Navy Yard was called waal boght—harbor bend. In 1645 a farm was located at Roode Hoek (Red Hook) named for its red soil. In 1646 a village was organized and called Bruckelen, after a town in the province of Utrecht, Holland. In this period settlements grew up at Flatlands (New Amersfoort), Flatbush, (Midwout), Brooklyn, Bushwick, and New Utrecht. Gravesend was settled by English.

In 1660 Bruckelen had 31 families and 134 inhabitants. After the British came in 1664 the name was spelled Broekland, Brocklin, Brookline and Brooklyn. It was incorporated as a village in 1816, as a city in 1834. In 1835 it had 24,529 people and King's County had 32,057. Williamsburg was joined to Brooklyn in 1855. Ferries ran from Long Island to Manhattan from 1642 to 1883. The Brooklyn Bridge was opened May 24, 1883; it was built by John A. Roebling and his son, Col. Washington A. Roebling, and cost $15,000,000.

Seal and Official Flags of New York City

THE CITY SEAL

Arms. Upon a shield, saltire wise, the sails of a windmill. Between the sails, in chief a beaver, in base a beaver, and on each flank a flour barrel.

5th Avenue: From 775 to 1286, drop last figure and deduct 18 from remainder.

New York City Transit System in 1955

New York, N. Y., is served by the largest municipally owned and operated transit system in the United States, comprising the following routes and miles:

Rapid Transit (Subway and Elevated)...	228.07
Trolley	19.15
Trolley coach	28.86
Bus	519.91
Total mileage	795.99

TRANSIT AUTHORITY TAKES CHARGE

Early in 1953 the City of New York faced mounting deficits in transit operation, in excess of available revenue. Proposals to raise more money by taxation were revised by the State Legislature, which on Mar. 26 created the five-member New York Transit Authority to assume operation. By relinquishing the transit system the City was enabled to increase realty taxes by $50,000,000 or impose a 5% payroll tax.

The New York Board of Estimate voted to lease the system to the Authority for five years, beginning June 15. The Authority, Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Casey ch., Sidney H. Bingham, exec. dir. and gen. mgr., was to make operation self-sustaining, exclusive of capital costs.

The Transit Authority on July 15, 1953, announced new rates of fare were made necessary despite economies, especially "taking into account items of deferred maintenance, the reserve for which, set up by the Board of Transportation, was retained by the City of New York under its agreement, making it necessary for the Authority to pay the cost of such items out of current operating revenues." The Authority explained no changes in fare could be made between July 30, 1953, and Jan. 1, 1954. It then announced new rates, effective July 25, 1953, as follows:

1. On rapid transit lines 15 cents, by purchase of a token for deposit in turnstile.
2. On surface lines 15 cents, except that the present additional charge of 5 cents for transportation across the Whitestone Bridge will be continued.

3. There will be no present change in policy as to transfer privileges in any part of the system.

4. For pupils in elementary or high school grades of public or non-public elementary or secondary day schools, requiring transportation when traveling to or from school, the charges for such transportation on school days, subject to regulations adopted by the Authority, will be as follows:

(a) For those in the elementary grades, a flat charge of $1.00 per month, whether the riding is on surface lines or rapid transit lines, or both.

(b) For those in high school grades: 5 cents for each one-way trip on a surface line; on rapid transit, prior to Feb. 1, 1954, students paid full fare en route to school and rode free en route from school upon presentation of eligibility cards; since Feb. 1, 1954, the above conditions are in effect for the first two-thirds of each school term while for the last third the High School student may ride free both ways upon presentation of his card, thus effecting an average 5-cent fare for the school term.

5. Children under 6 years of age, when accompanied by an adult, will be permitted to ride, free of charge, on both surface lines and rapid transit lines, in accordance with regulations to be promulgated by the Authority.

The new 15-cent fare necessitated a change in turnstile coin boxes and issuing of tokens.

TRANSIT INVESTMENT AND DEBT

During the year ended June 30, 1955 the City of New York expended approximately $56,000,000 for additions and improvements on its transit properties. The total of the City's investment at that date was approximately $1,839,000,000 of which $1,522,000,000 was disbursed directly by the City for construction and equipment of transit lines and $317,000,000 for the BMT-BQT and IRT-Manhattan properties acquired under the Unification Plan consummated in June 1940.

CITY'S TRANSIT DEBT

Unamortized transit debt.....	710,145,933.49	234,884,210.87	979,809,144.36

The above does not include City's 3-year Serial Bonds authorized by the 1952 Legislature for the temporary financing of deficits from operation of the transit system.

It would have been impossible for the City to have carried out its transit development plans or to have purchased the privately-owned systems under unification if the following exemptions of debt had not been authorized by constitutional amendments:

FIXED CHARGES ON TRANSIT DEBT

The City's tax budget for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1955, included $43,233,065.29 for interest and $27,586,758.27 for amortization and redemption, a total of $70,819,823.56 for service on the transit debt. The tax budget for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1956 includes $44,578,986.54 for interest and $27,906,263.65 for amortization and redemption, a total of $72,485,250.19 for transit debt service.

Port of New York Authority; Airports, Tunnels, Bridges

Source: Headquarters, 111 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

The Port of New York Authority is a self-supporting public corporate agency of the states of New Jersey and New York, created in 1921 to deal with terminal and transportation facilities, and to improve and protect the commerce of the New Jersey-New York Port District.

The Port Authority is administered by a board of 12 commissioners, 6 from each state, appointed by the Governors of New York and New Jersey. They serve without pay for terms of 6 years. The commissioners are:

New York—Howard S. Cullman, honorary chairman; Bayard F. Pope, vice chairman; Eugene F. Moran, S. Sloan Colt, Charles S. Hamilton, Jr., Chas. H. Sells.

New Jersey—Donald V. Lowe, chairman; Horace K. Corbin, John F. Sly, Jess Harrison Davis, David Van Alstyne, Jr., Dow H. Drukker, Jr.

Charged with the protection of port commerce the Port Authority appears before such regulatory bodies as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Maritime Board in the interest of the unified port area. It maintains trade promotion offices in New York, Washington, Chicago and Cleveland and a Latin American office at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

GROWTH OF AIRPORTS

The Port Authority operates four major airports: La Guardia, New York International, Newark Airport and Teterboro Airport, Bergen County, N. J. Totals for 2 years:

	1953	1954
Passengers	8,279,110	9,320,838
Cargo, lbs.	243,638,900	245,559,000
Mail, lbs.	64,965,600	80,774,600

La Guardia Airport, occupying 550 acres in the Borough of Queens, was opened Dec. 2, 1939, by the City of New York and leased to the Port Authority in June, 1947. During 1954 it handled 4,909,840 passengers, 44,001,000 lbs. of mail, and 99,874,500 lbs. of cargo. It cost $39,000,000 to build and up to Jan. 1, 1955, the Port Authority had invested an additional $7,000,000.

New York International Airport, 5,070 acres at Idlewild, Borough of Queens, one of the world's largest airports, was opened by the Port Authority July 1, 1948, and dedicated by President Truman July 31, 1948. During 1954 it handled 2,939,968 passengers, as against 2,250,000 in 1953; and 87,135,700 lbs. of cargo, slightly less than in 1953. There were 8 hangars in use in 1955. The City of New York invested $53,600,000 and the Port Authority spent or committed $66,500,000 up to Jan. 1, 1955.

Plans for a vast passenger terminal development at International Airport were announced Feb. 21, 1955, by the Port Authority. At an outlay of $60,000,000 it will build a Terminal City of 10 buildings capable of accommodating 140 aircraft at one time. There will be an 11-block long arrival building with 2 adjacent wing buildings, 7 individual terminal buildings, and roadways, taxiways, aprons and related facilities, all within a 655-acre central oval. Construction was scheduled to start in the fall of 1955, and the arrival and wing buildings are to be completed early in 1957.

Newark Airport, comprising 2,300 acres, a pioneer in the field of commercial aviation, is one of the leading air terminals of the nation. A $8,500,000 Terminal Building, featuring enclosed arcades for passenger loading and a glass-walled observation deck above the 500-foot-long main concourse, was opened July 29, 1953. Total investment in the airport as of Jan. 1, 1955, was approximately $50,900,000, of which $27,000,000 came from the Port Authority.

Passenger service between La Guardia, International (Idlewild) and Newark airports by helicopter was begun July 9, 1953, by New York Airways, which had been carrying mail between the airports since Oct. 15, 1952. Sixteen flights are made daily between New York and Newark airports in five Sikorsky S-55 helicopters.

Teterboro Airport, Teterboro, N. J., is intended for use of private, executive and corporate aircraft, and to handle specialized types of air cargo and for industrial activities related to aeronautics.

The first roof-top landing platform for helicopters was built in 1951 atop the Authority's building, 111 Eighth Avenue, Manhattan. There are also landing areas at Pier 41 East River and the Battery, for the Port Authority, New York City Police and Coast Guard helicopters.

TUNNELS

Holland Tunnel, opened Nov. 13, 1927, was the first long underwater tunnel for motor traffic. Located under the Hudson River, the tunnel connects Canal St., Manhattan, with 12th and 14th Sts., Jersey City. It was named in honor of its first chief engineer, Clifford M. Holland.

The tunnel has two tubes, each with two traffic lanes. The north tube, carrying westbound traffic, is 8,557 feet long. The south tube, for eastbound traffic, is 8,371 feet long. The tubes have an external diameter of 29 ft., 6 in., and 30 ft., 4 in., and the roadway is 93 feet below mean high water at the maximum tunnel depth. Eighty-four fans in four ventilation buildings provide a change of air in the tunnel every 1½ minutes.

The Holland Tunnel and its approaches cost $54,000,000. Traffic volume in 1954 was 19,914,439 vehicles, compared with 19,443,674 in 1953. Trucks numbered 4,810,722 in 1954, and 4,704,743 in 1953.

Lincoln Tunnel, under the Hudson River, joins midtown Manhattan (West 38th Street) and Weehawken, N. J. The south tube was opened Dec. 22, 1937, and the north tube on Feb. 1, 1945. Construction of a third two-lane tube south of the present tube was begun on Sept. 25, 1952, to be ready for use in 1957.

Each of the two existing tunnel tubes has two traffic lanes. The north tube, carrying westbound traffic, is 7,482 feet long. The south tube, for eastbound traffic, is 8,216 feet long. The tubes have an external diameter of 31 feet, and the roadway is 97 feet below mean high water at the maximum tunnel depth. Fifty-six fans in three ventilation buildings provide a change of air in the tunnel every 1½ minutes.

On the New Jersey side, a six-lane, three-mile main approach expressway rises from a spacious plaza in a loop. This expressway, including a direct connection with the New Jersey Turnpike, cost $17,000,000. In Manhattan, direct ramps connect the tunnel with the Port Authority Bus Terminal's suburban bus level and public roof parking area. These ramps are radiant-heated to prevent snow accumulation.

The existing tubes and approaches of the Lincoln Tunnel cost $88,000,000, and the third tube will cost an additional $100,000,000, including additional approaches. In 1954 the tunnel was used by 20,997,803 vehicles; in 1953, by 20,771,676.

BRIDGES

George Washington Bridge, opened to traffic on Oct. 25, 1931, is the second longest suspension bridge in the world. The bridge spans the Hudson River between Port Lee, N. J., and West 178th St., Manhattan. Its eight traffic lanes connect directly with the arterial highways of northern New Jersey and the northern terminus of the New Jersey Turnpike.

On the New York side, the bridge is linked directly with Riverside Drive and Henry Hudson Parkway. Tunnels under 178th and 179th Sts., Manhattan, provide non-stop cross-town arteries between the bridge and the Harlem River Drive and the east side of Manhattan. In New Jersey there are direct ramp connections with Palisades Interstate Parkway.

The George Washington Bridge is 4,760 feet long between anchorages and has a river span of 3,500 feet. The length of bridge and its approaches, including tunnels to Amsterdam Avenue, is 11,130 feet. With an overall width of 124 feet, the bridge has a 90 foot roadway. Its massive towers in New York and New Jersey are 600 feet above the water and contain 43,070 tons of steelwork. There are 105,000 miles of wire in the main cables of the bridge, enough to go around the earth four times.

The cost of the George Washington Bridge and its approaches to date is $75,000,000. In 1954 a total of 32,961,931 vehicles used the bridge, compared with 30,805,252 in 1953.

Bayonne Bridge, opened Nov. 15, 1931, connecting Bayonne, N. J., and Port Richmond, Staten Island, is the longest steel arch bridge in the world. It has an arch span of 1,675 feet and total length, including approaches, of 8,100 feet. Its midspan channel clearance of 150 feet permits uninterrupted use of the Kill Van Kull by deep-sea vessels.

Goethals Bridge, opened June 29, 1928, spans Arthur Kill between Elizabeth, N. J., and Howland Hook, Staten Island. The bridge was named for Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, who was the first consulting engineer of the Port Authority. It is a cantilever structure, similar in design to the Outerbridge Crossing. The bridge clears Arthur Kill channel by 135 feet, without interruption to the passage of over 2,000 ships each year. The total length of the truss spans of the bridge is 1,152 feet. The bridge plus approaches in New Jersey and Staten Island is 8,702 feet long.

Outerbridge Crossing, opened June 29, 1928, spans Arthur Kill between Perth Amboy, N. J., and Tottenville, Staten Island. It was named for Eugenius H. Outerbridge, first chairman of the Port Authority. It is a cantilever structure with a midspan channel clearance of 135 feet over Arthur Kill. Total length of the truss spans of the bridge is 2,100 feet. The bridge plus its approaches in New Jersey and Staten Island is 10,140 feet long.

NEW BRIDGES PROPOSED

A $400,000,000 program of bridge and arterial construction over the next five years was recommended Jan. 17, 1955, in a joint report on arterial facilities in the New York-New Jersey Metropolitan Area by the Port Authority and the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority. The recommended program includes a $220,000,000 12-lane double deck suspension Narrows Bridge, connecting Fort Hamilton in Brooklyn and Fort Wadsworth in Staten Island; an $82,000,000 6-lane lower deck for the George Washington Bridge, and a $93,000,000 6-lane single-deck Throgs Neck suspension bridge connecting Criders Point in Queens and Fort Schuyler in the Bronx. The joint report also recommended construction of extensive connecting highways beyond the immediate approaches to the bridge projects. Such highways, to cost about $200,000,000, would require financing from Federal and State funds since they could not be provided on a self-supporting basis.

MARINE AND INLAND TERMINALS

The agency's terminal facilities include the Port Authority Building, 111 Eighth Ave., Manhattan, housing the Union Railroad Freight Terminal; the New York Union Motor Truck Terminal, 325 Spring St., Manhattan; the Port Authority Grain Terminal and Columbia Street Pier at Gowanus Bay, Brooklyn; the Newark Union Motor Truck Terminal, Port Newark in Newark, N. J., a 26-berth marine terminal which has been completely rehabilitated with new cargo buildings, deepened 35-foot channel, and other facilities; and the Hoboken-Port Authority Piers, leased from the U. S. Maritime Administration and the City of Hoboken.

The Port Authority on January 28, 1954, leased the Hoboken facility to the American Export Lines, Inc. for 15 years. The terminal is being improved at a cost of $17,000,000 and will include by the end of 1956 two new piers, a rehabilitated existing pier, and a recently modernized headhouse and upland area. American Export Lines took over the $6,300,000 Pier C on Mar. 1, 1955. Construction of Pier A, of the same basic design as Pier C, began in April, 1955.

The Port Authority Bus Terminal, largest in the world, occupies the entire block between W. 40th and W. 41st Sts. and Eighth and Ninth Aves., Manhattan. The terminal's ramps connect directly with the Lincoln Tunnel. It handles 130,000 passengers and 5,000 buses each weekday, including 60,000 daily commuters from New Jersey.

Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority

Source: General Offices, Randall's Island, New York

The Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority is governed by a board of three members appointed by the Mayor of the City of New York for overlapping terms of six years each. The members are: Robert Moses, chairman; George V. McLaughlin and William J. Tracy, vice chairmen, George E. Spargo, general manager and secretary; Arthur S. Hodgkiss, asst. general manager. The Authority administrators:

Brooklyn-Battery Tunnel (1950) connects Brooklyn and Manhattan under New York Harbor with access at the Battery in Manhattan and at Hamilton Avenue and Gowanus Parkway in Brooklyn.

The tunnel has two tubes, each with two traffic lanes. It is 9,117 feet long, the longest tunnel under water in this country and the second longest vehicular tunnel in the world. The longest is under the Mersey at Liverpool, 11,254 feet. Tubes have an outside diameter of 31 feet. Four ventilating stations and 53 fans, 8 feet in diameter, supply 10,000 tons of fresh air an hour through the tunnels. The tunnel cost approximately $82,000,000. The base toll is 35¢ per passenger vehicle.

Triborough Bridge (opened on July 11, 1936) connects Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens. The project comprises three bridges, a suspension bridge, a vertical lift bridge, and a fixed bridge all connected by long viaducts. The suspension bridge, having 1,380 feet of main span with side spans making a total of 2,780 feet, crosses the East River at Hell Gate and spans a channel 806 feet wide. The vertical lift bridge, crossing the Harlem River, has a length of 310 feet and spans a channel of 204 feet. In weight and area it is the largest vertical lift span in the world. The fixed bridge is a truss 383 feet in length and spans the Bronx Kills. The Triborough Bridge is three miles long. The connecting arteries, built by the Authority but maintained by the City in Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, cover 14 mi.

Bronx-Whitestone Bridge (opened on April 29, 1939) connects the Bronx and Queens, and crosses the East River about two miles west of the point where it widens into Long Island Sound. The main span of 2,300 feet makes it the fifth longest suspension bridge in the world. The channel width is 1,000 feet.

Henry Hudson Bridge (single deck opened Dec. 1936, upper deck May, 1938) crosses the Harlem River at Spuyten Duyvil where the Harlem connects with the Hudson River. The length of the entire structure is 2,000 feet and it spans a channel of 418½ feet.

Marine Parkway Bridge (completed July 3, 1937) crosses Rockaway Inlet from Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, to the Jacob Riis Park in the Rockaways. This bridge is 4,022 feet in length and has three main channel spans of 540 feet, the center span being the longest vertical lift highway span in the world.

Cross Bay Parkway Bridge, reconstructed and widened to accommodate six traffic lanes (completed June 3, 1939), crosses Jamaica Bay, leading from the mainland to the Rockaway Peninsula. It includes a bascule bridge over a 100-foot channel.

Jacob Riis Park Parking Field (completed July 3, 1937) is located in the Rockaways. It is a 70-acre parking field capable of parking 9500 cars at one time. Construction is of concrete.

Queens Midtown Tunnel (opened for traffic Nov. 15, 1940), crosses under the East River between East 36th Street, Manhattan, and Borden Avenue, Long Island City. The length of the tunnel is 6,200 feet. At its deepest point the roadway is 95 feet below the surface of the East River, and consists of two separately driven steel and cast-iron lined tubes, each 31 ft. in outside diameter accommodating two lanes of traffic. Two ventilating towers and 46 fans 8 ft. in diameter supply 6500 tons of fresh air per hour to the tunnels.

East Side Airlines Terminal and Public Parking Garage. The Terminal was opened to the public on Dec. 1, 1953 and is located in block bounded by First Avenue, East 37th Street, the Queens Midtown Tunnel Approach Street and East 38th Street. It is the point of arrival and departure of all airlines' buses serving International and LaGuardia Airports.

West Side Airlines Terminal was constructed 1954-55 to open September, 1955, to serve passengers for Newark Airport.

For 12 months ending December 31, 1954, the Authority reported income of $32,269,956.42, an increase of 4.7% over the preceding year. Cost of operation averaged 16% of revenues. In the same period 132,983,212 vehicles used the facilities.

CENTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST IN NEW YORK CITY

Capsule Guide to Parks, Libraries, Art Galleries, Monuments

Newest addition to New York's public buildings is the New York Coliseum, occupying a two-block area west of Columbus Circle, scheduled to open May, 1956, and provide needed space for exhibitions and conventions. It is administered by the Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Authority, Robt. Morris, ch., with an associated housing project supervised by the City of New York.

The Coliseum is costing $30,000,000 and occupies ground conveyed to the Authority by the City for $2,182,000. The Authority will pay the City $42,000 a year in lieu of taxes and all income over annual net revenues of $1,225,000. The four-level, 9-acre Coliseum will be surmounted by a 20-story office structure along West 58th St. Besides the exhibition floors the Coliseum will have offices and service rooms, and the basement and sub-basement will have parking facilities for 666 self-parked or 850 attendant-parked vehicles.

Building of the new Aquarium began in October, 1954, at Seaside Park, Coney Island. It replaces the older Aquarium at Battery Park, closed in 1941. The new building is a $1,500,000 segment of the larger $10,000,000 project, and the joint undertaking of the New York Zoological Society, the Dept. of Parks and the City of New York. It will be 216 ft. long, 120 ft. wide, with an outdoor tank 60 by 40 ft., and many large and small indoor tanks. Sea water obtained from points offshore will supply 1,000 gallons a minute to the facilities.

American Acad. of Arts and Letters

The American Academy of Arts and Letters is a privately endowed, honorary institution, founded in 1904 by the National Institute of Arts and Letters, a body consisting of 250 members which had been organized in 1898 by the American Social Science Association. The purpose of the Academy is the furtherance of literature and the fine arts. Membership, which is limited to 50, is based upon distinguished creative work in literature, art and music. Only members of the Institute are eligible.

The Academy occupies its own buildings at 633 West 155th Street and 632 West 156th Street, New York City. Its annual meeting takes place in December. In May of each year the Academy and the Institute hold a ceremonial at which new members of both organizations are inducted, medals awarded and fifteen $1,000 arts and letters grants given. An exhibition of the works of newly elected members and of the recipients of honors is held in the art gallery and the museum at that time.

Officers of the Academy: Archibald MacLeish, president; Mark Van Doren, chancellor; Douglas Moore, secretary; Deems Taylor, treasurer; Gilmore D. Clarke, Barry Faulkner, Robert Sherwood and Chauncey B. Tinker, directors.

Officers of the Institute: Marc Connelly, president; Louis Kronenberger, secretary; Virgil Thomson, treasurer; Clare Leighton, Otto Luening, Oronzio Maldarelli, James Kellum Smith, Malcolm Cowley and William Zorach, vice presidents.

Members of the Academy: W. H. Auden, Gifford Beal, Bernard Berenson, Ernest Bloch, Van Wyck Brooks, Arthur Brown, Jr., Pearl S. Buck, Gilmore D. Clarke, Aaron Copland, E. E. Cummings, William Adams Delano, John Dos Passos, Barry Faulkner, William Faulkner, Robert Frost, John Hersey, Charles Hopkinson, M. A. DeWolfe Howe, Anna Hyatt Huntington, Archer Milton Huntington, Robinson Jeffers, Leon Kroll, Joseph Wood Krutch, Lee Lawrie, Walter Lippman, Archibald MacLeish, Paul Manchip, Carl Milles, Douglas Moore, Allan Nevins, Frederick Law Olmsted, Bliss Perry, Herbert Putnam, Edward W. Redfield, Carl Sandburg, Henry D. Sedgwick, Roger Sessions, Henry H. Shepley, Robert E. Sherwood, Eugene Speicher, John E. Steinbeck, Deems Taylor, Chauncey Brewster Tinker, Mark Van Doren, Thornton Wilder, Frank Lloyd Wright, Mahonri M. Young.

For 1955 awards consult index.

New York Botanical Garden

The New York Botanical Garden occupies 230 acres of Bronx Park, New York, adjacent to Fordham Road and with a station on the Harlem division of the New York Central R. R. It includes the Museum, a four-story building that houses a library, an herbarium, exhibits and a 700-seat lecture hall. Its laboratories will be removed to the new Laboratory Building, started in 1954. Separate from the Museum is the extensive Conservatory, recently reconstructed, filled with plants from many parts of the world, including aroids, tropical ferns, aquatics and cacti. There is a waterfall, and a pool with a glass front permits views of plant life under water. There are also a 40-acre hemlock forest, a rock garden, an azalea garden and meadows of daffodils. The 8-acre Montgomery Conifer collection contains 200 rare specimens. A formal rose garden has 400 varieties and 7,000 plants. Lilacs, rhododendrons, and tulip trees are extensively cultivated.

The reconstructed Lorillard Snuff Mill on the Bronx River was opened in April, 1954, with rooms for group activities and restaurant service at a cost of $166,000. The mill, long operated by the Lorillard tobacco family, was built in 1840. The old DeLancey grist mill once stood on the river bank and was the site of skirmishes in the Revolutionary War.

Brooklyn Institute Activities

Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences is privately endowed and supports concerts, lectures and other cultural and educational activities at the Brooklyn Academy of Music building, which it leases from the City of New York. The building occupies a block on Lafayette Ave., from Ashland Pl. to St. Felix St. The Institute also operates Brooklyn Central Museum, Brooklyn Children's Museum and Brooklyn Botanic Garden. The City of New York contributes towards maintenance.

Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Eastern Parkway, Washington and Flatbush Aves., 50 acres of "gardens within a garden," among which are the Rose, Rock, Japanese, Herb and Wild Flower gardens; mass plantings of Japanese cherry trees, azaleas, tulips, daffodils, crocus, chrysanthemums and water lilies. The model Children's Garden is over 40 years old. The laboratory building, erected 1918, has a library, herbarium, lecture and study rooms, and scientific research laboratories.

Brooklyn Children's Museum, 185 Brooklyn Ave., provides a wide variety of activities for children after school and on Saturdays. Club groups in science, cultural history and natural history meet throughout the week. Motion pictures are shown Tuesday through Saturday. Demonstrations and gallery programs are held on Saturdays. A small collection of live animals can be handled by the children under special supervision. School classes have individually planned programs. The Museum provides material from its loan collection for classroom use.

Brooklyn Museum

The Brooklyn Museum, Eastern Parkway and Washington Ave., Brooklyn, New York, was established at its present site in 1897. It is open weekdays 10 to 5 p.m.; Sundays and holidays, 1 to 5 p.m., closed Christmas Day. Admission is free.

Its collections of decorative and useful objects and fine arts are comprehensive and include American Indian, Colonial U. S., Alaska, Africa, Central America, China, Egypt, India, Japan, Mexico, Peru. The Egyptian section has a large Old Kingdom exhibit with a royal sarcophagus of c. 2600 B. C. The Coptic art is rich in textiles.

European paintings and water colors include works by Bellini, Vermeyen, Hals, Ribera, Geri-cault, Degas, Monet, Gauguin, Tisot.

American paintings and water colors include works by Allston, Fiske, Blackburn, Peale, Copley, Blakelock, Stuart, Cassatt, Eakins, Homer, Sargent, Sully, West, Mount, Quidor, Inness, Heade. The American rooms are unique in that an entire main floor and staircase is often shown as a unit. The earliest example is the Maj. Nicholas Sewall house from Secretary, Md., c. 1710; the latest a Moorish room from J. D. Rockefeller's house.

Its collections from South America, pre-Columbian and later, are of exceptional value. There are many fine Peruvian textiles.

The museum has a collection of over 6,000 prints, with a good representation of modern French and American prints; a large Egyptological library and a general reference library of art and ethnology.

The Brooklyn Museum Art School gives 60 courses in fine and commercial art and enrolls over 1,300. The Design Laboratory for professional designers provides work rooms for study of the collections.

Brooklyn Public Library

The Brooklyn Public Library in Brooklyn, N.Y., estab. 1897, has a Central Building, 40 branches, seven sub-branches, and an Extension Dept. operating two bookmobiles and distributing books to schools, hospitals and camps.

Administration headquarters are in the Central Building (Ingersoll Memorial), Grand Army Plaza, Brooklyn. This building, built by the City of New York at a cost of $5,000,000, was opened in 1941. New construction in 1953-54 added special study rooms, exhibit space and an auditorium. There are separate children's and young people's rooms and five major subject divisions. The library serves one of the largest children's reading public in the U.S. Its juvenile circulation exceeds 3,000,000 a year.

In the last year of record 687,509 card-holders borrowed 8,048,606 books.

The library's collection totals approximately 1,912,492 volumes. Notable are the collections of music books and scores, costumes, chess and checkers, Civil War books, local history, books on education, and Old Juveniles. A large collection of phonographic records is available for home use. Framed prints of fine paintings are also circulated. Club rooms for Senior Citizens are maintained in the Flatbush Branch. Special reference work to assist business men is done in the Business Reference Branch, 197 Montague St. Audio-visual aids are offered, and a telephone reference service is in daily operation. The library has produced its own 16mm film describing its services for all ages, and it publishes a monthly News Bulletin.

Chief Librarian is Francis St. John. The Board of Trustees, 1955-56, follows: Henry J. Davenport, pres.; Charles J. Mylod, vice pres.; Harold J. Bailey, sec.; Edmund P. Looney, treas. and Joseph D. Allen, Duncan Cranford, Irving Engel, Msgr. Francis X. FitzGibbon, Elizabeth Goodman, Denis M. Hurley, Marion Crary Ingersoll, Henry Q. Middendorf, Joseph Resnick, Harriet T. Righter, William A. Shea, John J. Smith, Jay S. Unger, Edward A. Vosseler, Rev. Alfred Grant Walton, and Oliver D. Williams. Ex-officio: the Mayor of the City of New York, the Comptroller, the President of the Borough of Brooklyn.

Cooper Union

The Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, 7th St. and 4th Ave. at Cooper Square, New York, N. Y., was founded, 1859, by Peter Cooper, inventor, iron-master, and philanthropist. It serves the public through six educational divisions:

The School of Engineering, tuition-free, grants the bachelor's degree in chemical, civil, electrical, or mechanical engineering through day and evening sessions.

The Art School offers tuition-free training in the fine or graphic arts or architecture in day or evening sessions.

The Green Camp, a 1,000-acre tract at Ringwood, N.J., given by Norwin Hewitt Green, grandson of Peter Cooper, offers students in both schools educational and recreational facilities.

The Museum for the Arts of Decoration, founded, 1896, by Peter Cooper's two granddaughters, serves the working artist, decorator, designer, and general public through its collections of drawings, prints, furniture, ceramics, woodwork, metalwork, costume accessories, wallpaper, and textiles dating from 1500 B.C. Other collections: 13,000 original drawings for ornament and decoration by European and American masters from the 16th to the 20th century; a representative collection of engravings and etchings from Mantegna to Picasso, and works by American artists. A program of frequently changing special exhibitions is offered without admission charge.

The Cooper Union Library offers reading and research privileges, including out-of-town and local newspaper collections. The book collection totals 110,000 volumes. Its Museum Library contains books, pamphlets and auction catalogs on fine and applied arts, including a special collection of engravings and original books of design of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries. Its Picture Library contains over 600,000 classified clippings and photographs.

The free Forum lectures, concerts, and dance-demonstrations are held three times weekly from October to May in the Great Hall where Abraham Lincoln made his famed Cooper Union address Feb. 27, 1860. Twelve presidents besides Lincoln and many other personalities have spoken there.

Empire State Building

Empire State Building, at Fifth Ave., between 33rd and 34th St., is 1,472 ft. high and the tallest building in the world. Its height was augmented in 1950 by the addition of a 222-ft. television sending tower. The TV tower is used as a transmitter by all seven of New York's television stations, i.e., WCBS-TV (2), WRCA (4), WABD (5), WABC-TV (7), WOR-TV (9), WPIX (11), WATV (13). Completed May 1, 1931, from plans by Shreve, Lamb and Harmon on the site of the original Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, it has 102 stories, 75 elevators, 2 basements, and can house 25,000 tenants. There are observation stations on the 86th and the 102nd floors. The first president of the building corporation was Alfred E. Smith, and among the directors have been Pierre S. du Pont, Louis G. Kaufman, August Heckscher, John J. Raskob. On October 14, 1954, Henry J. Crown of Chicago became the owner of the building, thus marking the second time in the building's history that one man has owned the structure. On July 28, 1945, a B-25 bomber hit the building 915 ft. above the street, killing 13, injuring 25.

Federal Hall Memorial

Federal Hall Memorial National Historic Site, n.e. cor. Wall and Nassau Sts., New York, occupies the Greek Revival structure of 1842, formerly the U. S. Sub-Treasury. A heroic statue of Washington commemorates his taking the oath as first President Apr. 30, 1789, on the balcony of Federal Hall on this site. The Continental Congress began meeting in the colonial City Hall here Jan., 1785; here it issued the call for the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, 1787, sent the Constitution to the states for ratification, and adopted the Northwest Ordinance, 1787. When the Congress designated New York as the U. S. capital, Sept., 1788, the City Hall was rebuilt by Major L'Enfant into Federal Hall. Congress here established the State, War and Treasury Dept., and the Supreme Court, and, Sept. 25, 1789, adopted the Bill of Rights. Federal Hall was removed in 1812.

The John Peter Zenger Memorial on the third floor, opened 1953, commemorates by dioramas and documents the victory of the printer, Zenger, for freedom of the press, Aug. 4, 1735. Zenger was tried here for libel because he fought the abuses of the British Gov. Cosby. He occupied a cell on the top floor of the City Hall.

FRANCES TAVERN, Broad and Pearl Sts., was erected 1719 as the DeLancey mansion, acquired 1762 by Samuel Fraunces and operated as the Queen's Head Tavern. The Long Room was the scene of Washington's farewell to his officers, Dec. 4, 1783. After harsh use in the 19th century it was restored by the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York and is their headquarters.

Freedom House

Freedom House, estab. 1941, was formed to advance the ideals of a free society. Among its founders were Wendell L. Willkie, Herbert Bayard Swope, Herbert Agar and George Field. The president is Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, President of Brooklyn College. It is housed in the Willkie Memorial Building, established by Freedom House in association with friends of the late Wendell L. Willkie, and dedicated Oct. 8, 1945, the first anniversary of his death. The aim of the founders of this Memorial Building is inscribed on a plaque at the entrance: "We Carry on in the Spirit of his Service to All Men and One World." The building was financed by voluntary contributions at a cost of $250,000.

The Memorial is a nine-story structure at 20 West Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y., facing the New York Public Library and Bryant Park. Inside the lobby, a tablet extends from the floor to the two-story ceiling against a terra cotta background. On this is inscribed in stainless steel letters a quotation from a speech made by Willkie at Duke University Jan. 14, 1943: "We must establish beyond any doubt the equality of man."

Organizations that make their headquarters in the building include Freedom House, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Anti-Defamation League and Metropolitan Council of B'nai B'rith, the Citizens' Housing and Planning Council of New York, the Common Council for American Unity, the Public Education Association, the World University Service, the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, and the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service.

Frick Collection

The Frick Collection, 1 E. 70th St., New York 21, N. Y., was founded by the late Henry Clay Frick (1849-1919).

The principal part of the Collection consists of 14th to 19th century paintings, several of which have been acquired since Mr. Frick's death. Among the masters represented are Duccio, Castagno, Piero della Francesca, Gentile and Giovanni Bellini, Titian, Tintoretto, Veronese, Holbein, Hals, Van Dyck, Rembrandt, Terborch, Ruysdael, Vermeer; El Greco, Velazquez, Goya; Monet, Renoir; Boucher, Fragonard, Chardin, Ingres, Hogarth, Gainsborough, Reynolds, Romney, Raeburn, Constable, Turner and Whistler.

There are also bronzes and portrait busts by Vecchiotta, Laurana, Bertoldo, Pollaiuolo, Bellano, Riccio, Cellini, Giovanni Bologna, Hans Vischer, Adriaen de Vries, Jonghelinck, Derbais, Girardon, Coysevox, Pajou, and Houdon—of whose famous Diana a unique terra cotta version is here.

The Collection further includes Limoges painted enamels of the 16th century, with pieces by Nardon Pénicaud, Léonard Limosin, Martial Raymond, and Jean Court; 17th and 18th century Chinese and French porcelains; English, French and Italian period furniture.

These works of art are not displayed as in the conventional museum but are the furnishings and decoration of an early 20th-century house which is itself a part of the Collection. One of the rooms is an oak-paneled library, hung with portraits and landscapes of the English School. Another is a drawingroom, containing French 18th-century furniture of exceptional interest and a notable series of wall-panels by Fragonard. A third, reproducing an 18th-century boudoir, is decorated with panels which Boucher painted for Madame de Pompadour.

American Geographical Society

The American Geographical Society, Broadway at 156th St., New York, N. Y., was organized in 1851 and is primarily a research institution. Its object is the advancement of geographical knowledge. To this end it carries on original investigations, issues publications, maintains a library and map collection, presents lectures, and awards honors and medals for exploration and geographical research.

Most recent publications of the Society are Glacier Variations and Climatic Fluctuations, by H. W. Ahlmann and Geography in the Making; The American Geographical Society 1851-1951, by J. K. Wright; Geography of the Northlands, G. H. T. Kimble and Dorothy Good, editors; and Finland and Its Geography, Raye R. Platt, editor.

The Society's collections contained approximately 132,000 volumes of books and periodicals, 245,000 maps, 3,500 atlases, and 38,000 photographs.

Governors Island

Governors Island, lying in New York harbor half a mile south of the Battery and reached by a small ferry, contains 173.35 acres and has been a U. S. Army headquarters for nearly 150 years. It is now HQ for First Army, which has charge of the military activities of New England states, New York and New Jersey. Its shoulder patch, a "big black A," superimposed on a red and white background, is a familiar sight on the streets of New York.

The island was purchased from the Indians by Wouter van Twiller, second director of New Netherland, June 16, 1637. In 1698 it was set aside for the benefit of "His Majesty's Governors," and for this reason is spelled Governors, without an article or apostrophe.

The picturesque old fort, Castle Williams, was built 1807-1811 by Col. Jonathan Williams, nephew of Benj. Franklin. It is in the form of $\frac{3}{8}$ ths of a circle, 200 ft. in diameter, with walls of red sandstone 8 ft. thick, 40 ft. high, originally mounting 100 guns. Castle Williams was used as a prison for Confederates during the Civil War. South Battery, built 1812, is now the Officers Club. Fort Jay, built 1794-1806, marks the site of original Revolutionary fortifications. In 1809 it was renamed Fort Columbus; the name Fort Jay was restored in 1904.

Generals who have served on the island include Grant, Scott, Gaines, Hancock, Schofield, Miles, Shafter, Merritt, Chaffee, Arthur MacArthur, Leonard Wood, Bliss, Bullard, Ely, Sumner, Drum, Wainwright, Van Fleet, Hodges, Walter Bedell Smith, Willis D. Crittenger, Withers A. Burress, and now in command, Lt. General Thomas W. Herren.

GRANT'S TOMB, Riverside Dr., at W. 122nd St. "Who is buried in Grant's Tomb?" is a familiar radio quip. Both Gen. U. S. Grant, 18th President, and Mrs. Grant are buried there. The tomb is 165 ft. tall, 300 ft. above the Hudson. It was built by popular subscription.

DEFENDERS MEMORIAL GROVE, north of Grant's Tomb, is an island of trees given to New York City by the Daughters of the Defenders of the Republic, 1946. The Chaplains Memorial commemorated four chaplains who went down in the U. S. S. Dorchester. A bronze tablet commemorates the dead of the Korean War.

Hall of American Artists

The Hall of American Artists is located in the rotunda of the Gould Memorial Library, at New York University in New York, N. Y. Founded by W. Fracklyn Paris and offered to the University (1919) as a memorial to American painters and sculptors, this group contains portraits in bronze of the following artists, all executed by American sculptors and endowed by popular subscription:

James A. McNeill Whistler by Edmund T. Quinn; J. Q. A. Ward by Hermon A. MacNeil; J. Q. A. Ward by himself; Elihu Vedder by Albin Polasek; Augustus St. Gaudens by John Flanagan; Walter Shirlaw by Paul W. Bartlett; Charles S. Pearce by Paul W. Bartlett; Clinton Ogilvie by Paul W. Bartlett; Samuel P. B. Morse by Horatio Greenough (1841); Francis D. Millet by Albin Polasek; George Inness by Scott Hartley; Charles W. Hawthorne by Albin Polasek; Charles Grafty by Albin Polasek; Daniel Chester French by Margaret French Cresson; Frank Duveneck by Charles Grafty; William M. Chase by Albin Polasek; Henry K. Brown by H. K. Bush-Brown; Carroll Beckwith by George T. Brewster; Charles H. Niehaus by Adolph Alexander Weinmann; Henry Merwin Shady by E. Amateis; Frederic MacMonnies by John Flanagan, and a self-portrait by Frederick Ruckstull.

Hayden Planetarium

The American Museum Hayden Planetarium, 81st Street near Central Park West, New York, N. Y., is a theatre of the sky. Here, guided by a Zeiss planetarium projector, the stars and other heavenly bodies are projected by rays of light on a 75-foot dome, giving an illusion of the night sky. About 9,000 stars, including stars of the sixth magnitude are shown.

Sky-shows have proved most popular, especially the Conquest of Space. Other favorites are Trip to the Moon, Color in the Sky, and Easter in the Heavens. A special Christmas show is given each December in which theories regarding the Star of Bethlehem are discussed with the aid of the Planetarium projector.

In the corridors of the planetarium building are many interesting scientific exhibits including a large collection of meteorites and several transparencies of the world's finest astronomical photographs. A series of vivid "black-light" murals grace the walls of the first floor corridor and dramatically illustrate in color such subjects as sunspots, auroras and eclipses.

Additional activities include fall and spring courses in astronomy and navigation. These talks are planned for children as well as adults and are held in the planetarium dome. Amateur interest in astronomy is encouraged by instruction in telescope making. Anyone may make a mirror for his own telescope by registering for this course.

Hall of Fame

The Hall of Fame for Great Americans is located on the campus of New York University on University Heights in the Bronx, New York, N. Y. The Hall and adjoining buildings were built with funds contributed by the late Mrs. Finley J. Shepard (Helen Gould). Only persons dead 25 years or more are now eligible.

Names to be inscribed in the Hall of Fame are chosen every five years by a College of Electors, consisting of approximately 100 American men and women of distinction, representing every state. Busts and tablets are donated by individuals and associations. Following are the 83 names chosen up to and including 1950.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Fifth Avenue at 82nd St., New York 28, N. Y., was founded in 1870. The Museum is open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sundays and holidays 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free. The collections illustrate the arts and cultures of ancient Assyria, Egypt, Greece, Rome, and the countries of the Far East, as well as the arts of Europe and the United States. This collection is the largest of its kind in the Western Hemisphere, consisting of over 1,000,000 works of art representing almost every kind devised by man in the past 5,000 years.

EUROPEAN PAINTINGS

The famous collection of European paintings, including oils, pastels, watercolors, miniatures, and drawings, numbers more than 3,000. From this collection some 700 masterpieces which trace the evolution of painting in Europe from the 13th through the 20th century are exhibited in 44 completely modernized galleries, which opened in January, 1954. Byzantine, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, Flemish, British, French, and German paintings are displayed by historical periods.

Among the masterpieces in the collections are two Raphaels, some 30 Rembrandts, and important pictures by Bellini, Boucher, Bouts, Brouwer, Bruegel, Castagno, Cézanne, Claude, Constable, Corot, Courbet, Daumier, David, Degas, Dürer, Gainsborough, Giorgione, Goya, El Greco, Guardi, Hals, Holbein, Ingres, Lawrence, Manet, Memling, Monet, Murillo, Poussin, Renoir, Reynolds, Ribera, Rubens, Sassetta, Segna, Steen, Tintoretto, Tiepolo, Titian, Turner, van der Weyden, van Dyck, van Eyck, Van Gogh, Velazquez, Vermeer, Veronese, Watteau, etc.

Recent accessions include: The Sacrifice of Iphigenia by Romanelli, Pieta by Carreno de Miranda, The Marquise de Jaucourt by Vigée LeBrun, Crucifixion by Salvador Dali, Saint Catherine by El Greco, and the Pérussis Altarpiece by an unknown French painter of 1480.

Hispanic Museum and Library

The Hispanic Society of America, founded 1904 by Archer M. Huntington, is a free public museum and reference library devoted to the art and literature of Spain and Portugal, and to the presentation of their culture. It occupies two monumental buildings on Audubon Terrace, between 155th and 156th Sts., west of Broadway, New York, N. Y. Its paintings include primitives of the Catalan, Aragonese, Valencian and Castilian schools, works of the 16th and 17th centuries by Morales, El Greco, Zurbarán, Ribera and Velázquez, and of the 18th century by Goya. Modern artists represented include Zuloaga, Villadrich, López Mezquita and Sorolla, whose canvases on the regions of Spain were painted for the room in which they are exhibited.

Among the exhibits are pre-Roman and Roman bronzes, jet statuettes and amulets, Hispano-Moresque lustreware, Roman and Spanish glass, tiles and pottery; metalwork, including silver for ecclesiastical use; furniture and textiles. The latter include Hispano-Moresque silks, gold and silver brocades, velvets, ecclesiastical vestments, lace, and rugs from Cuenca, Salamanca and Alcaraz.

The library contains 250 Hispanic incunabula, including several by Lambert Palmart of Valencia; the famed collection of the Marquis of Jerez de los Caballeros; first and rare editions. Photographs of fine and decorative arts, including costumes, of Spain, Portugal and Hispanic countries, are available for study. The Society has published numerous books on Hispanic art, history, and literature, including many studies of the museum and library collections prepared by members of its staff. In 1954 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding, a history of the Society was issued. President is Archer M. Huntington; secretary, Charles Eldredge.

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART

times to the present. Artists represented include Allston, Bingham, Blackburn, Blakelock, Cassatt, Chase, Copley, French, Eakins, Homer, Inness, Martin, Morse, Mount, Peale, Powers, Rimmer, Rogers, Ryder, Saint-Gaudens, Sargent, Smibert, Stuart, Sully, Trumbull, West, and Whistler. Portraits of the 18th and early 19th century are shown in the American Wing.

The collection of modern American paintings, acquired chiefly through funds given by George A. Hearn, has been augmented since 1949 by purchase of works by contemporary artists. These include Albright, Baziotis, Demuth, Dove, Evergood, Hartley, Hopper, Knaths, Kuhn, Kunislysh, MacIver, Marin, McFee, O'Keeffe, Pereira, Shahn, Sheeler, Stamos, Tomlin, Wood, and Wyeth.

THE AMERICAN WING

Included in the collections of American art is a wing developed to the decorative arts from the 17th through the first quarter of the 19th century. In rooms reconstructed with original woodwork, there have been assembled furniture, metalwork, ceramics, glass, prints and paintings.

The earliest room is the parlor from the Thomas Hart House, Ipswich, Mass., 1640. Of particular interest is the Assembly Room from the City Tavern, Alexandria, Va., where Washington attended his last birthday ball (1798). The exhibit includes an important Philadelphia Chippendale room from the Samuel Powel house at Albany, N. Y., and a group of early 19th century rooms containing furniture by McIntire and Phye. The south exterior wall of the American Wing is the facade of the United States Branch Bank formerly at what is now 30-32 Wall St., built 1822-24.

PRINTS

The Print collection consists of woodcuts, engravings, etchings and lithographs dating from c. 1450 to the present. In addition to illustrated books and works by great artists such as Mantegna, Rembrandt, Daumier and Goya, the collection includes original prints and drawings used by cabinetmakers, architects, interior decorators, silversmiths, writing masters, and lace-makers. There are also important series of trade cards, bookplates, and cigarette insert cards.

ANCIENT ART

Egypt—The Egyptian collection of 35,000 objects presents a chronological picture of 30 centuries. Outstanding are a matabeth tomb erected about 4,400 years ago for a Memphite dignitary, named Pery-neb, rebuilt in its original form; a series of painted wooden funerary models from the tomb of the Theban grandee, Meket-Re (c. 2,000 B.C.); jewelry and other treasures of the Princess Sit Hat-Hor-Yunet (XII Dynasty), and of three princesses of the XVIII Dynasty; a series of life-size and colossal statues of Queen Hatsheput (c. 1500 B.C.) and small works of art of the New Kingdom.

Greece and Rome—Notable among numerous examples of the arts of Greece and Rome are a Greek statue of a youth, the best-preserved of the early Attic statues of this type; a number of Athenian sculptured gravestones from the 6th to the 4th century B.C.; Roman copies of Greek statues, notably a wounded Amazon and an Aphrodite of the Medicean type; Greek and Roman pottery; a Cycladic marble statuette of a harpist of about 2500 B.C.; bronzes from the 8th century B.C. to the 3rd century A.D., among them a Greek statuette of a horse, a sleeping Eros and a portrait of the Roman Empress Livia; wall paintings from a villa at Boscoreale, near Pompeii.

ORIENTAL ART

Ancient Near East—The collection of the art of the Ancient Near East contains some Assyrian reliefs. Sumerian sculpture of the 3rd millennium B. C. is exhibited. Gold, silver, and bronze objects from Iraq and Persia are of the first millennium B.C. Ancient Persian pottery and a collection of sea-stones are arranged chronologically.

Near East—The Museum's Near Eastern collections contain many outstanding examples of Islamic and pre-Islamic decorative arts. Its beautiful carpets form one of the important collections of the world. Many of them, including the famous Anhalt carpet, are great examples of 16th century weaving. Persian manuscripts and miniature paintings, many from the Alexander Smith Cochran collection, are by the greatest artists in Persian calligraphy and painting from the 14th to the 18th century. A representative collection of Near Eastern ceramics is particularly rich in Persian, Mesopotamian and Turkish pottery. The Museum's excavations at Nishapur in Persia yielded 9th and 10th century types of pottery hitherto unknown, as well as carved stucco panels and wall paintings. Enamelled glass vessels of the 13th and 14th centuries from Syria are among the most important pieces of the extensive glass collection. Very fine inlaid brasses of the 13th to 15th centuries distinguish the metalwork collection. The art of India, Hindu and Mohammedan, is represented by miniatures, sculpture, jewelry and textiles.

Far East—The Far Eastern collections number some 30,000 objects. The Chinese sculpture collection includes superb examples from the Han to the Ch'ing Dynasty (206 B.C. to 220 A.D.). The Chinese paintings rank high and the Chinese ceramic collection is the best in this country. The textiles, especially the Manchu court robes, form one of the best collections in the world. There are also a few very fine examples of Japanese painting and sculpture, a small but good representation of Japanese prints, lacquers and potteries and Chinese jade.

MEDIEVAL ART

The collections of medieval art in the Metropolitan Museum, form the most important assemblage of medieval art in America. Five modernized galleries—a Sculpture Hall, a Tapestry Hall, a Romanesque Chapel and two smaller galleries, one of them a Medieval Treasury-house about 1,000 objects from the beginning of the Christian era.

Gifts by J. Pierpont Morgan and later by his son J. P. Morgan brought to the Museum world-famous groups of Early Christian, Byzantine, Romanesque and Gothic objects. Notable sequences of Ivories, enamels, sculpture and furniture have been augmented. The metalwork of the Migration Tribes, the Albanian gold and silver treasure, silver plates from Cyprus, Byzantine enamels, jewelry and ivories are outstanding. The Gothic tapestries, ranging from the 14th century to the beginning of the Renaissance, are unique. A stained-glass window from Saint-Germain-des-Prés in Paris, a Romanesque and a Gothic head from Notre-Dame of Paris, a 13th century Rhenish statue of St. James the Less, a 12th century figure of a king from St. Denis, sculptures from the Château de Biron are particularly noteworthy.

EUROPEAN DECORATIVE ARTS

Renaissance Arts. Objects are displayed in 12 modernized galleries. Chief is the Renaissance Sculpture Hall containing large-scale works. The sculptures include fine examples by Lombardo, Malano, Mino, Riccio, Rossellini, Torrigiano and Vittoria. There are also galleries devoted to the decorative arts of Italy, France, Spain and England, in painting, sculpture, woodwork and furniture, ceramics, metalwork, musical instruments and armor. The little intarsia room from the Ducal Palace at Gubbio is one of the most perfect of Italian period rooms of the Renaissance. Tapestries include two unique French hangings from a set made for Diane de Poitiers, and a series of four Brussels tapestries representing the Twelve Ages of Man, a recent gift of the Hearst Foundation. The famous Cellini cup, a masterpiece of goldsmithery, is in the Altman collection.

Post-Renaissance Arts. Adjoining medieval and renaissance decorative art are 17 galleries and 6 period rooms containing the Museum's remarkable collection of European furniture and decorative objects of the post-renaissance period. The ground floor galleries accommodate collections of European ceramics, silver, gold, glass and horology.

On the first floor is the dining room designed by Robert Adam for Lansdowne House in London, two so-called Indo-Chinese tapestries woven by John Vanderbank of Soho, a set of early 18th century furniture with silvered mounts, and examples of English portraiture grace the galleries. The French section begins with galleries of Louis XIV woodwork and large embroidered hangings. There are also a Savonnerie carpet from the Louvre, a bust of Louis XV by Lemoyne, and one of Franklin by Houdon. In the style of Louis XVI are a small boudoir from the Hôtel Crillon in Paris and an oval room from Bordeaux. The resplendent salon from the Hôtel de Tessé on the Quai Voltaire, Paris, is the setting for Louis XVI furniture. On this floor is a bedroom from the Palazzo Sagredo, Venice, and a gallery of Tiepolo frescoes with Italian 18th century furniture.

Other displays include a collection of silver bequeathed by Catherine D. Wentworth, a collection of Italian majolica, English ceramics, and many examples of French, German and Austrian porcelain, given by R. Thornton Wilson. In this section are shown rare pieces of Oriental Lowestoft from the Helena Woolworth McCann collection, and gold watches and snuff boxes from the collection of J. P. Morgan.

ARMS AND ARMOR

The collection of arms and armor contains signed works by the best-known artist-armourers of Augsburg, Nuremberg, and Milan, and over 450 pieces with historical associations. Among the latter are the embossed casque signed by Philip de Negrollo of Milan and the embossed shield of Henry II of France; the etched and gilded armor for man and horse (dated 1527) of Gallot de Genouilhac, Grand Master of Artillery of France; four harnesses from the English Royal Armoury at Greenwich, worn in Elizabeth's reign; and the sword with chiseled hilt of Ambrogio di Spinola, Spanish commander-in-chief in the Netherlands. The Near East and Far East collections include many remarkable objects from Turkey, India, Persia, and Malaya. The Japanese works are the finest outside of Japan.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

The collection of 4,000 musical instruments includes pre-historic instruments as well as those of Europe, Asia, Africa, Oceania and America.

The European section, of about 1,300 objects, includes early lutes, archlutes, citterns, and guitars; also the first pianoforte built (1721) in Florence by Bartolommeo Cristofori (still in playing condition); the earliest double virginal now in existence, built by Johannes Ruckers in Antwerp (1581); numerous Italian, German, Flemish, and English harpsichords, among them examples by Jerome de Zentis, Joannes Couchet, Louis Bellot, and others; clavichords dating from 1537 to the 18th century; a spinettino made in Venice (1540) for the Duchess of Urbino; and two violins made by Antonius Stradivarius, the Francesca (1694) and the Antonius (1721). The evolution of wind instruments from the Renaissance up to the modern orchestra is illustrated by an unbroken sequence of examples.

THE CLOISTERS

The Cloisters in Fort Tryon Park, New York, N. Y., is a branch of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, devoted to European medieval art. Incorporated in the building are five cloisters reconstructed with original elements from the French monasteries of Cuxa, St. Guilhem-le-Désert, Bonnefont, Trie and Froville. Among the other medieval monuments shown here are a Romanesque chapel rebuilt from sections of the former church at Langon, a complete chapter house of the 13th century from Pontaut and a 13th century sculptured portal from Moutiers-St. Jean.

Displayed in the three rooms of the Treasury are about 200 objects of medieval art. The Chalice of Antioch, earliest-known Christian chalice, is on view in the main room.

Museum of American Indian

The Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, at Broadway and 155th Street, New York, N. Y., forms one of the group of buildings which New York owes to the public spirit of Archer M. Huntington, who gave the site of the museum, which was built and equipped at a cost of $350,000.

The Museum has more than 2,000,000 exhibits, and can display but about one tenth of these at one time. The top floor is devoted to laboratories, work and study rooms, which are open under suitable conditions to students, Dr. George G. Heye, who founded the Museum and turned over to it nearly 500,000 specimens, is the director.

In 1925 Mr. Huntington gave to the Museum six acres, near Pelham Bay Park. A modern storage and study museum building has been erected on the site. Four totem poles and replicas of several types of Indian dwellings occupy a portion of the grounds. The library of the Museum, containing some 25,000 volumes, complete runs of important publications in its field and thousands of pamphlets, is in the new building, Huntington Free Library and Reading Room, 9 Westchester Square, The Bronx, New York, N. Y.

Museum of City of New York

The Museum of the City of New York on Fifth Ave., between 103rd and 104th Sts., New York, N. Y., was incorporated 1923 to illustrate the history and life of the city by permanent and special exhibitions. Its collections include dioramas, paintings, prints, maps, photographs, portraits, miniatures, vehicles, fire engines, ship models, costumes, silver, furniture, theatrical and musical memorabilia, rare books and manuscripts.

Among its permanent exhibits are two main floor galleries devoted to the history and development of the City from Indian days to the present; a Fire Department gallery with engines, models and memorabilia; two complete rooms from the city house of the late John D. Rockefeller and several period rooms and costume alcoves including the 1905 drawing room from the Park Avenue house of Harry Harkness Flagler; a collection of silver by old New York makers; a complete Old New York toy shop; a Stock Exchange history; military uniforms of New York City units and individuals; and a history of the Port of New York in collaboration with the Marine Museum.

Recent special exhibitions of historical importance have been: New York Comes of Age, 1789-1825—life in New York from Washington's inauguration to the opening of the Erie Canal; The Sea and the City—300 years of the port of New York; The Face of New York; Ethel Barrymore and Her Career; Shipyards of New York.

Museum of Modern Art

The Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53rd St., New York, N. Y., (estab. 1929) emphasizes modern art and its application to practical activities and furnishes popular instruction by lectures and exhibits. It also sends exhibits around the U. S. and abroad. Its collections include a representative collection of modern paintings of the United States, Europe and Latin America; a most complete collection of post-Rodin sculpture, early 20th century and French, German and American; some late 19th century and many 20th century drawings and prints. In architecture the Museum has both models and photographs of modern work and design.

Of special value is the large motion picture collection, which includes films of historic importance, as well as primitives, avant-garde examples, American films from the start of the industry and Russian, German, French and British films. About 500 films are available to organizations throughout the country for study and 106 titles are shown annually in the Museum's theatre. The collection of photographs of the 19th and 20th centuries is unusually large and valuable.

Museum of Natural History

ning at Central Park West and 79th St., New York. Here are exhibited large displays illustrating the habits of man and beast from the most primitive times to the present, with extensive reconstruction of fossilized remains, dioramas of men and animals in their natural settings, and collections of objects from the smallest insects to the skeleton of the huge brontosaurus, which in life weighed over 25 tons.

The museum is especially rich in its display of mammals from all parts of the earth. Groups of elephants, gorillas, antelopes, rhinoceroses, giraffes, lions, are portrayed in their natural habitat. While some visitors gape at the huge tyrannosaurus, others are captivated by more than 400 different kinds of birds from the Pacific area, including the extinct moa, found in the Whitney Memorial Hall of Pacific Bird Life. In the Hall of Primates, monkeys and apes are displayed close to primitive man. In the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial building emphasis is on the animal life of New York state, and here birds, insects, reptiles and mammals are shown. Roosevelt memorabilia is also shown.

In May, 1953, the museum opened Brontosaurus Hall, first of six new exhibition rooms showing the development of life on earth. The largest specimen exhibited was the skeleton of a Brontosaurus lizard, 67 ft. long, 16 ft. high, which weighed 30 tons and lived many millions of years ago. In May, 1954, the Hall of North American Mammals was completed. Here 90 mounted animals are displayed in a variety of geographical settings representing 29 different habitat groups. The latest addition of the museum's display is the Hall of Oil Geology, opened in March, 1955. This tells the story of petroleum, from its origin in the earth millions of years ago to its emergence through man-made wells for countless uses in today's mechanized world.

Noteworthy are the collections of minerals and gems, fossil fishes, marine life, woods and trees, including a 45 ft. fossilized tree trunk, ages old, and the cross section of a California sequoia, 16 ft. in diameter, believed to have begun growing in the 6th century, A.D. A 76-foot whale, the skeleton of P. T. Barnum's elephant Jumbo is also shown. The Museum's Department of Astronomy is housed in The American Museum-Hayden Planetarium.

National Academy of Design

This, the oldest organization in America composed exclusively of artists, is located at 1083 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y. It was organized 1825 with Samuel F. B. Morse first president. Its members are Associates and Academicians, the latter elected from the Associates. When an Academician is elected he presents the society with one of his works. Thus the Academy has acquired a valuable collection illustrating the development of American painting, sculpture and allied arts. The Academy finances scholarships, awards donations of works to institutions and operates a school of fine arts at 3 East 89 Street.

AMERICAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY, founded 1853, maintains a museum of coins and other currency, ancient and modern, medals and decorations at Broadway and 156th St., New York.

New York Historical Society

The New York Historical Society (founded 1804) is located at 170 Central Park West between 76th and 77th Streets, New York, N. Y. The society maintains a library, museum and gallery of art. The library contains 400,000 volumes and large collections of pamphlets, newspapers, prints, cartoons, broadsides, maps and manuscripts, relating to American and New York history.

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

The New York Public Library, which, with the Library of Congress and Harvard University Library ranks as one of the three largest in the United States, was given its present organization in 1895, by the consolidation of the Astor and Lenox libraries and the Tilden Trust. These constitute the basis of the Reference Department of the Library, at Fifth Ave., and 42nd St., which is supported from private funds. A number of circulating libraries were acquired, from 1900 to 1904, to form the basis for the present Circulation Department, which is maintained by the city of New York. This department operates 41 branch libraries in Manhattan, 28 in the Bronx and 11 in Richmond.

During 1954-55 the Library had special exhibitions of the People and the Book, the background of 300 years of Jewish life in America; the Prints of André Racz and Louis Schanker; Leaves of Grass; "Batter up!", an exhibition of baseball material from the Library's shelves; Diaghilev; the Negro.

Among its permanent exhibitions are United States Postage Stamps, 1850-1926; a Washington Irving Collection; and the history and development of printing.

The Library regularly publishes essays on results of literary research. Its recent publications include Tobacco or Codfish, Lord Baltimore Makes His Choice; Goethe and Music; The Literature of Jazz; Stephens, Yeats, and Other Irish Concerns; The Liebmann Collection of American Historical Documents; Nathaniel Hawthorne, the Years of Fulfillment, 1804-1853.

The Reference Department has over 3,500,000 books and well over 1,000,000 readers a year. The number of visitors to the central building runs from 7,000 to 10,000 per day. From July 1, 1953-June 30, 1954, the Library and its branches lent for home use a total of 10,725,425. Typical of the book circulation are the figures for January, 1954: home use, adult, 674,555; juvenile, 283,605; total: 958,160.

BERG COLLECTION

This collection was founded 1940 by Dr. Albert A. Berg in memory of his brother, Henry W. Berg, and is one of the world's great collections of English and American literature. It is particularly strong in the writings of the 18th and 19th centuries and, in addition to first editions, presentation copies and other unusual volumes, contains a large amount of manuscript and association material. The collection consisted originally of books gathered by the Berg brothers. Later the

Here are to be found a file, beginning in 1730, of New York's first newspaper, the New York Gazette, a complete file of New York City Directories, from the first one printed in 1786; an unusual collection of genealogical material; and an excellent local history section covering every state in the Union. There are manuscripts by Horatio Gates, James Duane, Rufus King, Albert Gallatin, James Alexander, John Lamb, William Alexander, General Steuben, Beekman, Robert R. Livingston, Luther Bradish, and Cadwallader Colden, and 200 letters by George Washington.

Also of importance are the original articles of Burgoyne's surrender; an orderly book record of Nathan Hale's execution; letters patent from Charles II to Edmund Andros, 1674, authorizing him to take over New Netherland from the Dutch Governor; Lord Cornbury's Charter to the City of New York; the correspondence of the American Fur Co. with its Western posts; the manuscripts of Henry O'Reilly relating to the telegraph, and Philip Hone's manuscript diary, 1828-51.

The Landauer Business History Collection comprises letterheads, advertising cards, broadsides, posters and other historical material.

Among the museum collections are important association pieces, including the Beekman family coach, used before the Revolutionary War; the remains of the equestrian statue of King George III, and the statue of William Pitt; original furniture of Federal Hall, where Washington was inaugurated first President. There also are the Prentiss period rooms, Beekman Mansion rooms, a large collection of toys, early carriages and fire fighting equipment.

The Port of New York Gallery is given over to the maritime history of New York and is fitted in the style of a sailing vessel, from the "cabin" of which views of the New York skyline may be seen as it appeared at various times in its history.

The Gallery of Art now numbers more than 2,000 paintings, including European old masters, important collections of the late W. T. H. Howe and Owen D. Young were added. On his death in July, 1950, Dr. Albert A. Berg bequeathed a generous endowment to the collection.

GEORGE ARENTS COLLECTION

This is a special library of books and other material about tobacco formed by George Arents and given to the Library by him and his family. There are well over 7,000 volumes. They begin with the earliest mention of tobacco in the printed accounts of 16th-century American exploration, and include historical, literary and economic material relating to the development, enjoyment and commercial status of tobacco and the tobacco industry.

SPENCER COLLECTION

The Spencer Collection of Illustrated Books and Books in Fine Bindings came to the Library through the will of William Augustus Spencer who died in the Titanic disaster. Some of the Library's finest illuminated manuscripts, including the Tickhill Psalter, an English manuscript of the 14th century, are in this collection. Original drawings for illustrations, as well as printed books, are featured.

OFFICERS AND TRUSTEES

Officers, 1954: Morris Hadley, president; Henry Bruère, first vice-president; Roy E. Larsen, second vice-president; Roland L. Redmond, secretary; Junius S. Morgan, treasurer; Edward G. Freehafer, director.

MUNICIPAL REFERENCE LIBRARY

The Municipal Reference Library, a branch of the New York Public Library, is on the 22nd floor of the Municipal Bldg., Chambers St., with a public health division at 125 Worth St. With more than 100,000 vols. it has important city records, real estate atlases, etc., and a file of civil service examinations and other material of use to those wishing to enter the city's service.

1,500 of the paintings are American portraits by such artists as Charles Willson Peale, Gilbert Stuart, John Wollaston, Benjamin West, Asher B. Durand, John Wesley Jarvis, and many others.

The Society also possesses the original water color drawings made by John James Audubon for his "Birds of America."

Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum

The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, 1071 Fifth Avenue, between 88th and 89th Streets, New York, N.Y., is a gallery exhibiting XXth century works of art. It is supported by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation, established 1937 "for the promotion and encouragement of art and education in art and the enlightenment of the public, especially in the field of art." Director is James Johnson Sweeney.

Noteworthy among the paintings and sculptures in the Guggenheim Collection are major works by Archipenko, Arp, Bonnard, Brancusi, Calder, Campendonk, Cézanne, Chagall, Feininger, Gabo, Gleizes, Gris, Kandinsky, Klee, Léger, Malevitch, Marc, Metzinger, Miró, Modigliani, Mondrian, Pevsner, Picasso, Redon, Rousseau, Schwitters, Seurat, Severini, Vantongerloo, Villon, Vordemberge-Gildewart, Vuillard.

Recent acquisitions include works by Braque, Calder, Cézanne, Feininger, Giacometti, deKooning, Larionov, Miró, Modigliani, Ohashi, Ozenfant, Pevsner, Picabia, and Van Doesburg, as well as paintings from the exhibitions Younger European Painters and Younger American Painters, among them Burri, Deyrolle, Hartung, Lansky, Manessier, Pollakoff, Riopelle, Scott, Singier, Ubac, Vieira, de Silva, Winter, Callaghan, DuCasse, Ernst, Gottlieb, Guerrero, Kline, Carl Morris, Kyle Morris, Mueller, Okada, Pollock, and Wonnor.

A new museum building designed by Frank Lloyd Wright is planned to fill the block-long site from 88th to 89th Streets, the site of the present temporary galleries.

Pierpont Morgan Library

The Pierpont Morgan Library, 29-33 East 36th Street, New York, N. Y., is based on collections begun by J. Pierpont Morgan about 1880. In 1924 his son, J. P. Morgan, gave the library and an endowment to a board of trustees as a memorial to his father. On March 26, 1924, the Library was incorporated as an educational institution by the New York state legislature. Its collections, which comprise medieval and renaissance illuminated and textual manuscripts, incunabula, authors' autograph manuscripts, historical and literary autograph letters and documents, bookbindings, master drawings, and prints, are open to students engaged in research, and the exhibition rooms are open to the public daily, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Sundays, holidays and during August.

In 1955, three major exhibitions were held: Children's Literature in Books and Manuscripts, Drawings and Prints by Albrecht Durer, and Recent Acquisitions.

Children's Literature (Nov. 19, 1954-Feb. 28, 1955) featured the Library's recently acquired dedication manuscript of Perrault's Contes de ma mere l'oye, 1695, which contains Little Red Riding Hood, Puss in Boots, Sleeping Beauty, Blue Beard, and The Fairies. Shown with it were thirty early printed editions of Perrault's Contes, many of which were borrowed from private collectors and institutions, the most comprehensive group of these tales ever assembled. Some of the other examples of immortal children's books shown were the original manuscript of Struwwelpeter, lent by the Germanisches Museum, Nuremberg, autograph manuscripts of Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, lent by, respectively, Georgetown University and The Buffalo & Erie County Public Library, and the Morgan Library's autograph manuscript of Dickens' A Christmas Carol.

The Drawings and Prints of Albrecht Durer (March 17-April 16) displayed 25 Durer drawings, 6 belonging to Morgan Library and 19 to private collectors and institutions, a large selection of engravings and woodcuts, broadsides, books, and woodblocks. The "Self-Portrait" of 1493, "A Kneeling Donor," 1506, an unpublished "Portrait of a Man," 1520, and a drawing of Durer's patroness, Susannah of Bavaria, 1525, were among the drawings exhibited.

The exhibit called Recent Acquisitions (May 11-July 29) included an Anglo-Saxon manuscript Gospels believed to have been illuminated by the Monks of Glastonbury about 1000 A.D. and an Italian 14th-century medical picture book for the use of physicians of the School of Salerno. A rare first state of a Rembrandt etching and drawings by Pozzoserrato, Gaspard Poussin, Saint-Aubin and Tiepolo were among the selections shown; printed books included a Missal for the Use of Langres (Paris, 1491), the first missal in which cuts were printed in color, and a profusely illustrated Book of Hours for the Use of Noyon (Paris, 1498) from the press of Pigouchet. Two long autograph letters of Erasmus were outstanding among the acquisitions in the field of autograph manuscripts, letters, and documents.

Also included were selections from several archives lately acquired: letters and poems from James Thomson to Elizabeth Young; letters from Voltaire's mistress, the Marquise Du Chatelet to the Count d'Argental; letters and poems from Coleridge and the Wordsworths to Sir George and Lady Beaumont; correspondence from and to William Ernest Henley, and revealing letters from John Ruskin to the pupils of Winton Hall and to his close friends, the Cowper-Temples.

Rockefeller Center; Radio City

Rockefeller Center, the largest privately-owned business and entertainment center in America, is located in the heart of New York City, from 48th to 52nd Streets, between Fifth Avenue and the Avenue of the Americas. More than 75,000 men were directly employed in the construction of its 15 buildings. Construction of the first—the Americas Building (formerly RKO)—was started in September, 1931. The most recent is the 19-story addition to the United States Rubber Co. Bldg., occupying the site of the demolished Center Theatre. The surface area of Rockefeller Center covers 549,856 sq. ft., more than 12½ acres, of which 510,705 sq. ft. are leased for a long period from Columbia University. Rockefeller Center pays Columbia an annual rental of $3,800,000.

The lease with options for renewal runs until 2069 when the Center will become the property of the university.

The part of Rockefeller Center comprising theaters and radio and television studios is often referred to as Radio City. It comprises approximately one-fifth of Rockefeller Center. The studios of the National Broadcasting Co. are located in the 70-story RCA Building (850 ft. tall). The other structures and their heights are: International Bldg. (512 ft.), Time & Life Bldg. (490 ft.), Esso Bldg. (424 ft.), the Americas Bldg. (409 ft.), United States Rubber Company Bldg. (278 ft.), RCA Building West (243 ft.), United States Rubber Company Bldg. Addn. (230 ft.), Associated Press Bldg. (226 ft.), Eastern Air Lines Bldg. (225 ft.), Radio City Music Hall (121 ft.), International Building North (92 ft.), Palazzo d'Italia (92 ft.), British Empire Bldg. (90 ft.), and La Maison Francaise (90 ft.).

The estimated daily population of Rockefeller Center is 160,000. More than 34,000 work there and 126,000 persons visit there every day. In the Center are the offices of more than 900 firms.

In the Center are 20 eating places; an 800-car parking garage; U. S. Post Office; government passport bureau; landscaped roof gardens; consulates of 21 foreign countries; and, in season, an outdoor skating pond. The RCA Building, in gross area 2,908,903 sq. ft., has a ground area of 99,770 sq. ft. with a frontage of 155 ft. on the Avenue of the Americas, 472 ft. on 49th St., 468 ft. on 50th St. and 191 ft. on Rockefeller Plaza. On the 70th floor is the Observation Roof, 904 ft. above mean high water level, and 850 ft. above the street. The Rainbow Room, located on the 65th floor, is open at the cocktail hour. Of the 166 elevators, 8 are the fastest in the world, moving up 65 floors in 37 seconds.

Radio City Music Hall, largest exclusively indoor theater in the world, seats 6,200 people. Its stage, 144 ft. wide by 67 feet deep, has a proscenium arch 60 ft. high and 100 ft. wide at the base.

Bisecting the Center is Rockefeller Plaza, a private street 60 ft. wide between 48th and 51st Streets. Adjoining lies the Lower Plaza, a court 125 ft. long and 95 ft. wide, used for ice skating in the winter, and for an outdoor cafe in the summer. The Prometheus Fountain, by Paul Manship, is located in the Lower Plaza.

Theodore Roosevelt Museum

The Theodore Roosevelt Museum, established 1923 by the Theodore Roosevelt Association, is situated in Theodore Roosevelt House, the restored birthplace of the late President at 28 East 20th Street, New York, N. Y. In the Museum are exhibited photographs, cartoons, letters, books, manuscripts, guns, swords, saddles, hunting trophies, wearing apparel and numerous other items of interest related to the late President. Much of the material is chronologically arranged.

Among the items are his buckskin "chaps," his branding irons and other paraphernalia as a cowboy, the spectacle-case which saved his life when he was shot in Milwaukee (1912), and the bullet-perced speech he carried in his left breast pocket, as well as trophies of the Spanish War and letters and documents relating to the Presidency. The cartoon collection is especially notable.

Theodore Roosevelt House is itself a museum. The first and second floors of the residence in which the Roosevelt family lived in the 1850s and 1860s have been restored by the Woman's Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Association, and apart from their Roosevelt interest are important as a reproduction of a well-to-do American home of the middle nineteenth century. Many original pieces of furniture are shown, including the bedroom set of the room in which Theodore Roosevelt was born, and the miniature chairs he used in his earliest childhood.

Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, L. I., home of Theodore Roosevelt, 1887-1919, was restored by the Theodore Roosevelt Association, and dedicated as a national shrine, June 14, 1953, by President Eisenhower, Gov. Dewey (N. Y.) and Herbert Hoover, former President. It is open daily except Tuesday. The Roosevelt grave is near the village.

United Nations Headquarters

United Nations Headquarters occupies approximately 18 acres between First Ave. and Roosevelt Drive (East River), E. 42nd and E. 48th Streets. Its Secretariat building is 544 ft., 39 stories tall, 287 ft. wide on two sides that are entirely of glass set in aluminum, and two sides 72 ft. wide of Vermont marble. It shelters the staff and infor-

STATUE OF LIBERTY NATIONAL MONUMENT

A statue known the world over and symbolizing to European immigrants the freedom and security of a democratic land is the statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, popularly known as the Statue of Liberty, on Bedloe's island in the harbor of New York. Rising 305 ft. 1 inch above the water line, this substantial figure of a woman holding aloft a torch that is illuminated at night, is located 1½ land miles or 2,860 yards from the southernmost tip of Manhattan and reached by a ferry that accommodates well over 500,000 visitors a year. The island is the property of the Federal Government and is administered by the National Park Services of the U. S. Dept. of the Interior.

The United States owes this great symbolical statue to French friendship and the personal enthusiasm of an Alsatian sculptor, Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, who was born Apr. 2, 1834, in Colmar, Alsace, and died Oct. 4, 1904, in Paris. Bartholdi is known in France for a number of famous works, foremost among them the sculptured lion commemorating the heroic defense of Belfort. He is also the sculptor of the Bartholdi fountain in Washington, D. C., and of a statue commemorating Lafayette's arrival on American shores that was placed in Union Square, New York. During the Paris Commune that followed the defeat of France by Prussia in 1871, Bartholdi came to the United States. He was moved by the idea of placing a statue in the harbor and immediately began plans to bring it about. With the help of the Franco-American Union, in which E. de Laboulaye was active, he solicited contributions from French citizens. In France 180 cities formed committees and $250,000 was raised, chiefly by small donations.

STATUE MADE IN SECTIONS

Bartholdi began his work in 1874. His mother, Charlotte Beyer, Bartholdi is reputed to have served as a model for the Statue. The first study model measured 1.25 meters or 4 ft. in height. This model was reproduced to a height of 2.85 meters. Another model was later obtained, measuring 11 meters or 36 ft. in height. On this basis he computed the statue in sections. Wood patterns were made and sheets of copper 3-32 of an inch thick were hammered into shape on them by hand. A framework of four huge steel supports was designed by Gustave Eiffel, whose fame endures in the Eiffel tower.

The hand of the statue holding aloft the torch was exhibited at the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. It was then taken to New York City and exhibited on a pedestal in Madison Square.

On Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, 1877, President Hayes authorized the use of Bedloe's island for the statue, the site having been suggested by Bartholdi and approved by Congress.

The head was shown at the Paris exposition of 1878. When framework and base were put in place in Paris the American ambassador, Levi P. Morton, drove the first rivet on Oct. 24, 1881, the centennial of the battle of Yorktown, in which French and Americans were allies.

The statue was finished May 21, 1884, and formally presented to Ambassador Morton July 4, 1884, by Ferdinand de Lesseps, head of the Franco-American Union. He had built the Suez Canal and was at work on the ill-fated Panama Canal project at the time.

CORNERSTONE OF PEDESTAL LAID

On Aug. 5, 1884, the Americans in turn laid the cornerstone for the pedestal on Bedloe's island. This was to be built on the foundations of the star-shaped Fort Wood, which had been erected by the Government in 1811. The fort originally mounted 24 heavy guns and had a garrison of from 50 to as many as 600 troops. The island, originally owned by Bedloo (later Bedloe), was purchased by the corporation of the city of New York during 1759, in order to erect a pest house.

The American committee had raised $125,000, but when the pedestal was 15 ft. high, this was found to be inadequate. Joseph Pulitzer, owner of The World of New York City, on Mar. 16, 1885, called for general subscriptions. By Aug. 11, 1885, he had raised $100,000. This came from 120,000 individuals. The statue was already on these shores, having arrived dismantled, in 214 packing cases, in the steamship Isere, which reached New York from Rouen, France, in June, 1885.

New York citizens eagerly followed the work of fitting the statue together. The pedestal was made of concrete with granite facing and steel girders were built into it to connect with the framework of the statue and hold it in place. The first rivet of the statue was driven July 12, 1886, and the last on Oct. 28, 1886, when President Grover Cleveland dedicated the statue in the presence of the sculptor, Bartholdi.

The cost of the statue was estimated at $250,000 and that of the pedestal at $280,000, but expenses mounted and estimates of the total range from $500,000 to $600,000. The statue weighs 450,000 lbs. or 225 tons. The copper sheeting weighs 200,000 lbs. There are 167 steps from the land level to the top of the pedestal, 168 steps inside the statue to the head, and 54 rungs on the ladder leading to the arm that holds the torch. Visitors may enter the head, which holds from 30 to 40 persons, but not the torch. The statue is open daily.

The torch was originally maintained by the Lighthouse Service. Funds for permanently lighting the whole statue were raised by subscription by The World of New York in 1916 and President Wilson turned on the lights Dec. 2, 1916. The island was used by the United States Army until 1937, when the post was abandoned. Since then it has been maintained by the National Park Service.

EMMA LAZARUS' FAMOUS POEM

A poem by Emma Lazarus, which is graven on a tablet within the main entrance of the pedestal on which the Goddess stands, follows:

THE NEW COLOSSUS

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land.
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of exiles, from her beacon-hand
Glowed world wide welcome; her mild eyes command
The air-brided harbor that twin cities frame.
"Keep ancient lands, your storied pomp!" cries she
With silent lips. "Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

mation services. The Conference Building has chambers for the Political and Security, Economic and Social, Trusteeship Councils and committee rooms. It connects with the General Assembly Building, 380 ft. long, 160-220 ft. wide, with room for 960 delegates and secretaries, 234 press representatives and 800 auditors. Addresses in foreign languages may be followed in immediate interpretation via earphones. Guides are available. The Library building is on 42nd Street.

Staten Island

The Staten Island Institute of Arts and Sciences, founded 1881, has about 900 regular members and 700 associates, and is partly supported by New York City. It occupies a museum at 75 Stuyvesant Pl., and a library and office building at 146

Stuyvesant Pl., St. George, S. I., and offers exhibits, programs, lectures and forums. Art and the natural history of Staten Island are stressed. It publishes the New Bulletin and the Proceedings of the Institute.

Whitney Museum

The Whitney Museum of American Art, 22 West 54th St., New York, N. Y., was founded 1931 by Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney to advance the knowledge and appreciation of American art. It holds exhibitions of group and individual artists, historical and contemporary. The Museum's permanent collection consists of about 600 oils, 550 watercolors and drawings, 250 sculptures and 1,000 prints. All works are by American artists of the 20th century.

ZOOLOGICAL PARK (BRONX ZOO) AND AQUARIUM

By William Bridges, Curator of Publications

A couple of kings, two emperors and a duo of dragons kept the staff of the Bronx Zoo in a state of pleasant excitement during much of 1955. The Bronx Zoo is officially known as the New York Zoological Park, 185th St. and Southern Blvd.; 177th St. station of East and West Side lines.

The kings made zoo history by laying eggs—king cobras produced the first young ever hatched in captivity anywhere, so far as the Bronx Zoo can discover, and a pair of king penguins brought forth the first egg laid in a zoo in the United States.

The emperors were two emperor penguins, largest of all the penguins, that the Bronx Zoo exhibited for the first time in its history. And the dragons were a pair of Komodo monitors, or dragon lizards, from Indonesia, largest of living lizards. The Bronx Zoo had exhibited them on two previous occasions, but never with such attending headaches as these 9-foot and 8-foot specimens caused.

MATING OF KING COBRAS

King cobras are generally considered the most dangerous snakes in the world because of their great size—they are recorded up to 18 feet 4 inches—and the potency of their nerve-attacking venom. They are by no means rare in eastern India and Malaysia, and most large zoos usually have a specimen on exhibition. But until the spring of last year almost nothing was known about their reproduction. Then, on the afternoon of March 10, Dr. James A. Oliver, the Bronx Zoo's Curator of Reptiles, was conducting a guest around the reptile house and pointing out exhibits of particular interest. As they approached the king cobra's glass-fronted compartment, Dr. Oliver's learned lecture tapered off and he abandoned his guest. The 13-foot 4-inch female and the 11-foot 3-inch male king cobra were beginning the ritualistic entwining of bodies and slow progression around the sandy floor of their cage that could mean only one thing—courtship, with mating to follow.

Someone else took over the distinguished guest; Dr. Oliver's eyes never wavered from the king cobras, and he witnessed the whole of the courtship and the 58-minute mating that followed. There were repeated matings on the next two days, and on April 22 the female began to build her nest of bamboo and magnolia leaves, supplied in generous quantities by the reptile house keepers. King cobras are known to build two-chambered nests, some of them as much as three feet in diameter, and to coil in a guarding position in the upper chamber while the eggs incubate. But how a creature without hands managed to build such a compact nest could only be guessed at before; now we know. She does it by throwing out loops of her body, lassoing a pile of leaves, and crawling onto the pile with the leaves scraping along inside her loop.

A few days later the female deposited 41 white, leathery-shelled eggs, about the size of a goose's egg, in the pile of leaves. Dr. Oliver penned her in a corner with a plastic shield and investigated. Eleven eggs were obviously infertile, but 30 were firm and good. Since there was no good way of controlling temperature and humidity in the cage, the eggs were all removed and bedded in damp sand, paper, and leaves in a series of coffee cans in the curator's office, where they could be watched and humidified as necessary. There was no record of how long it takes king cobra eggs to hatch, but Dr. Oliver figured they should begin to pop about the end of June. Actually, the first egg split and the first snaking crawled out on July 4. It was 13 inches long, weighed $\frac{3}{4}$ ounce, and its jet black body was vividly striped with creamy white. The belly was clear grayish-white. The parents are olive drab, and it may take the youngsters three or four years to take on adult coloration.

Eventually about half a dozen perfect little king cobras were successfully hatched. Some eggs spoiled during incubation, and some others produced deformed youngsters—an indication that either temperature or humidity was not exactly right. However, considering that the conditions could only be guessed at, for lack of any reports on hatching in the wild, the Bronx Zoo is quite well satisfied.

The baby king cobras crawled out of the egg fully equipped with fangs and venom apparatus, and able and willing to take care of themselves. Some of them spread their tiny hoods and glared at the curator even while parts of their bodies were still in the egg.

PENGUINS PRODUCE EGG

The other kings in the Bronx Zoo's collection—two king penguins from South Georgia island near the Antarctic Circle—astonished everyone by producing an egg on June 24 after eight years during which they gave no signs of particularly caring for each other. The technique of king penguin incubation is for one parent to hold the egg on its feet and to cover it with a deep fold of feather-covered skin from the lower abdomen. Incubation lasts for 50 to 55 days and during that time the incubating bird neither feeds nor swims, and stands virtually motionless except for occasional poking of the dirty-gray egg with its beak, possibly to shift it into a more comfortable position.

Because the incubating king penguin might be upset by newcomers, the Bronx Zoo did not dare put on exhibition in the refrigerated penguin house its greatest penguin treasure—a couple of the gigantic emperor penguins from the Antarctic.

These 40-inch, 60-pound birds were among the seven brought back from the south polar regions by a navy research party early in the spring. All went to the National Zoo in Washington, but two were released to the Bronx Zoo and were quartered temporarily in a "penguin cooler" in a building used for winter storage of birds. It was thought that they would remain off exhibition only for a few weeks while laboratory tests were made to find whether they were free from the dread aspergillosis disease that is invariably fatal to penguins. By the time that they were discovered to be disease-free, the king penguins had started incubating their egg and the zoo was torn between its desire to show off its first emperor penguins and its reluctance to jeopardize the first king penguin egg ever laid in America. Reluctance won, and the emperors remained in semi-seclusion for several weeks more.

DRAGON LIZARDS FROM JAVA

The Komodo monitors, or dragon lizards, are the only ones on exhibition anywhere except in Java, next door to their native island of Komodo in Indonesia. The Bronx Zoo had exhibited them in 1926 and again in 1934, but for less than two months; the early specimens had undergone a long sea voyage and were not in good condition on arrival. The 1955 pair, however, came by air from Java in five days and after about 48 hours of sleep and rest were full of vigor once more. They were not supposed to be able to climb—but they repeatedly scaled a 4-foot flower bench in their compartment and wrecked the planting, so that it had to be removed and the bench boarded up. They swallowed horsemeat, dead chickens, dead squabs and eggs voraciously at first, and then grew pickish, refusing everything but squabs and eggs. Worst of all, they developed aggressive tendencies as they grew more rested, and the male made a vicious swipe at the Bronx Zoo's photographer, raking one leg with his claws. It was not a serious injury, but it showed that the world's largest lizards are potentially just as dangerous as they look.

Work went forward in 1955 on the New York Aquarium being built at Coney Island, with promise at the year's end that Stage One of the eventual $10,000,000 building will be opened to the public in the spring or summer of 1956.

OTHER NEW YORK ZOOS

Brooklyn Zoo is a popular feature of Prospect Park, and has entrances on the East Drive in the Park and on Flatbush Ave. The animals have modern quarters. Pits without bars are placed around a central plaza, with a sea lion pool.

Central Park Zoo, at 60th and 64th Streets and Fifth Ave., is a small but highly popular zoo operated by the Dept. of Parks, New York City, and open daily between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Staten Island Zoo, Clarence T. Barrett Park, West New Brighton, Staten Island, is operated by the Staten Island Zoological Society with funds provided by the City of New York. Its work is closely associated with education.

UNITED STATES POPULATION

Married Couples and Children Increase; Farms Still Losing Residents

The total population of the United States including Armed Forces overseas, was about 165,248,000 on July 1, 1955, according to estimates by Robert W. Burgess, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. This figure represented an increase of 14,115,000, or 9.3% since April 1, 1950, the date of the last census, and an increase of 2,838,000, or 1.7% over the estimate for the corresponding month in 1954.

During the first half of the decade, the annual increase in the number of households averaged about 850,000, according to the results of sample surveys made by the Bureau of the Census. There were an estimated 47,800,000 households in April, 1955, as compared with 43,600,000 in March 5 years earlier. This increase was not shared uniformly. Urban and rural-nonfarm households in the United States increased by about 1,000,000 a year during 1950 to 1955, whereas rural-farm households showed a decline of close to 150,000 a year. In March, 1950, there were 37,300,000 urban and rural-nonfarm households and 6,300,000 rural farm households. According to the most recent survey, there were 42,200,000 nonfarm households and 5,500,000 farm households in April, 1955.

MORE MARRIED COUPLES

The number of married couples reached an estimated 37,600,000 in 1955 as compared with 36,100,000 in 1950. The number not maintaining their own household was at the low for the post-war period, 1,300,000, as compared with 2,000,000 in 1950 and 2,900,000 in 1947. These "double-up" married couples in April, 1955, represented only 3.5% of all married couples.

FARMS LOSING PEOPLE

The population living on farms in the United States numbered about 22,158,000 in April, 1955, according to an estimate prepared cooperatively by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, and the Agricultural Marketing Service, Department of Agriculture. This figure is not significantly different from the corresponding estimate for 1954 but represents a drop of approximately 3,000,000 from 1950.

The drop in farm population between 1950 and 1955 represents a continuation of the long-time downward trend, which has reduced the number of farm residents to 13.5% of the total population by 1955. Changes have been particularly marked since the beginning of World War II. Between 1940 and 1945 the number of persons living on farms fell by over 5,000,000. Some return to farms occurred after the war. After 1948, the downward trend was resumed; and since 1950 farm population has decreased on the average about 600,000 persons a year.

Between April, 1950, and April, 1954, urban and rural population increased at approximately the same rate, according to the Current Population Survey. In this period the rural civilian population increased by 6.3% and the urban civilian population by 5.6%.

MALES ARE FEWER

Between April, 1950, and April, 1954, there was a decline in the ratio of males to females in both urban and rural civilian population. The number of males per 100 females declined from 93.5 to 91.0 in the urban and from 104.4 to 102.0 in the rural population. The decline in the sex ratio of the total civilian population reflects in part the higher mortality of men which accounts for the long term decline in this ratio, but it also reflects the increase in the size of the Armed Forces during that period.

OLDER GROUPS GAIN

The rate of gain among persons 65 years of age and over was three times as rapid in the urban as in the rural population. The increase of 1,300,000 in the urban population was at the rate of 16.8%. In the rural population, the aged increased at the rate of 5.4%. The number in this age group rose from 7,800,000 to 9,100,000 in the urban population and from 4,400,000 to 4,700,000 in the rural population.

CHILDREN INCREASE

The rate of growth in the number of children under 15 was higher in urban than in rural population. Between April, 1950, and April, 1954, there was an increase of 17.9% in this urban age group, whereas the rural rate of increase was 12%. The urban increase in this age group was from 23,400,000 to 27,600,000; in the rural population, it was from 17,100,000 to 19,200,000.

RISE IN EMPLOYMENT

Noteworthy among population figures is the rise in employment, which reached a record 65,000,000 in July, 1955. The previous record, 64,000,000, was set one month earlier. Most of those added to the work force were students who took vacation jobs. The number of regularly employed adults held steady in farm and nonfarm sectors.

Unemployment, which usually shows little or no change in midsummer, fell by 200,000 to 2,500,000 in July, 1955. In previous years unemployment increased in July as a result of vacation shut-down. But only 1 in 6 of the young persons who entered the labor force in July were still unemployed when the count was made.

The total labor force, employed and unemployed and the Armed Forces, rose by 750,000 in midyear, 1955, to reach the 70,000,000 mark in the summer for the first time in history. There has been a steady increase of adult women in jobs—1,000,000 more 25 years of age and over working in July, 1955, than in July, 1954. The majority was over 45 years of age. The release of 400,000 members of the Armed Forces also swelled the number of civilian workers.

The American Baby Boom

Source: Statistical Bulletin, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., May, 1955

The baby boom, which started at the close of World War II, continues unabated. From 1946 through 1954 the number of births in the United States averaged in excess of 3,750,000 annually, or 1 3/5 times the number in 1933. Births reached an all-time high of 4,076,000 in 1954 and the end of the boom may still be several years ahead.

An important factor in the recent upsurge in births has been the marked rise in the number of married women. Wives at ages 15-44 have increased in number by one-seventh since 1945, and by more than one-third since 1933. A second factor has been the almost uninterrupted rise in the fertility rate since its low level in the 1930's. In each of the postwar years about one out of every six married women aged 15-44 bore a child, but in the mid-1930's the proportion was only one in eight.

Particularly noteworthy has been the sustained high rate for second births. Moreover, since 1951 there have been somewhat more than 1,100,000 second births annually. Equally striking has been the rapid rise in the rate for third births. From its low point of 17 per 1,000 in the late 1930's, the rate for third births has climbed to 33 per 1,000—the highest in over 33 years.

¹Of 100,000 born alive, number living at beginning of age interval.

²Average number of years of life remaining at beginning of age interval.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on Sept. 16, 1955, reported that the average life expectancy of American wage earners was 69.8 years, based on mortality tables of its insured workers. It estimated that within a few years life expectancy of this group would pass the Biblical three score years and ten. In 1879-89 life expectancy of this group was 34 years. It was also estimated that those aged 65 in 1954 had a life expectancy of 14.1 years.

U. S. Population, Urban and Rural, 1950

Source: Bureau of the Census

According to the revised definition adopted for the Census of 1950, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, and villages, (b) incorporated towns of 2,500 inhabitants or more except in New England, New York, and Wisconsin, where "towns" are simply minor civil divisions of counties, (c) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more, and (d) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the old definition, the urban population had been limited to all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and in areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

*Totals for All Countries include foreign-born white population as follows—Other Europe, 86,375; Other America, 120,297; All Other Population 69,658 and Not Reported 77,175.

Places in the U. S. With Population Exceeding 2,500

When an incorporated town and an unincorporated town bear the same name in certain states, figures include both in the total. Thus in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont, all figures for towns include their unincorporated areas. In other states unincorporated communities are designated by an asterisk (*).

Special censuses were taken after April 1, 1950, at the request and expense of the city or town; they are listed with the year indicated by the Bureau of the Census.
